CASE LAW SUMMARY

FEBRUARY 2025

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF-DEATH PENALTY: Rule 3.851, which limits the filing of a motion for postconviction relief to within one year of the date the defendant's conviction and sentence become final in death penalty cases, absent certain narrow exceptions, applies to defendants under an active death warrant. All terms and conditions of direct appeal and collateral review are strictly enforced, including the application of procedural bars, to ensure that all claims of error are raised and resolved at the first opportunity. Ford v. State, SC2025-0110 (2/7/25)

CRUEL AND/OR UNUSUAL PUNISHMENT: The conformity clause of Article I, §17 of the Florida Constitution, providing that Florida's prohibition against cruel or unusual punishment shall be construed in conformity with decisions of the U.S. Court's interpretation of the cruel and unusual clause of the Eighth Amendment means that the Supreme Court's interpretation of the Eighth Amendment is both the floor and the ceiling for protection from cruel and unusual punishment in Florida. Ford v. State, SC2025-0110 (2/7/25)

CRUEL OR UNUSUAL PUNISHMENT: Florida is precluded from interpreting its prohibition against cruel or unusual punishment to exempt individuals eighteen or more years old from execution on the basis of their age at the time of their crimes. Ford v. State, SC2025-0110 (2/7/25)

DEATH PENALTY-UNANIMOUS VERDICT: Jury must unanimously agree to the existence of an aggravating circumstance necessary for the death penalty; it need not unanimously agree to death. Erlinger's holding that a jury must decide beyond a reasonable doubt whether ACCA predicate offenses occurred on different dates does not apply. Ford v. State, SC2025-0110 (2/7/25)

DEATH PENALTY: Determinations of whether the aggravating factors are sufficient to justify the death penalty and whether those factors outweigh the mitigating circumstances is not subject to the beyond a reasonable doubt standard of proof. Ford v. State, SC2025-0110 (2/7/25)

HUMAN SMUGGLING: The prohibition on human smuggling of aliens continues until the subjects arrive at their destination. State v. Padilla-Valladares, 5D2023-2201 (2/7/25)

VOP: Court must set forth those specific conditions of probation that Defendant admits to violating and upon which the revocation and termination of probation are based. Fetterly v. State, 5D2023-2296 (2/7/25)

HABITUAL VIOLENT FELONY OFFENDER: Erlinger v. United States, 602 U.S. 821 (2024)--holding that a jury must decide beyond a reasonable doubt whether ACCA predicate offenses occurred on different dates–did not overrule Florida precedent about judges, not juries, making predicate findings for HVFO sentences. "We reject this argument because even if the HVFO sentence was rendered in error, the error is harmless on this record." Capra v. State, 5D2024-0090 (2/7/25)

APPEAL-MOTION TO WITHDRAW PLEA: Where a notice of appeal is filed first, the trial court is divested of of jurisdiction to consider a motion to withdraw plea. Hickman v. State, 5D2024-2146 (2/7/25)

RULES-AMENDMENT: Rules 1.070, 1.410, and 1.550 amended to remove the word "praecipe." In Re: Amendments to Florida Rules of Civil Procedure, No. SC2024-0774 (2/6/25)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Court may not summarily deny motion for postconviction relief without attaching relevant portions of the record. Citing the record numerous times is insufficient. Touchton-Williams v. State, 1D2023-1275 (2/5/25)

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL: Because direct evidence of intent is rare, and intent is usually proven through inference, a trial court should rarely, if ever, grant a motion for JOA on the issue of intent. Dorsey v. State, 1D2023-2113 (2/5/25)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446812/opinion/Opinion_2023-2113.pdf

RESISTING-LAWFUL EXECUTION: Officer who had reasonable suspicion of criminal activity based on an anonymous tip and made observations matching the description was therefore engaged in the lawful execution of a legal duty. Dorsey v. State, 1D2023-2113 (2/5/25)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is not entitled to relief on an untimely and successive postconviction challenge to a trial court's subject matter jurisdiction based on a prosecutor's alleged failure to take the sworn testimony of a material witness before filing the charging document. Carsten v. State, 1D2024-0183 (2/5/25)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446818/opinion/Opinion_2024-0183.pdf

IMMUNITY: Use immunity forbids testimony to be used against the witness in any criminal prosecution of the witness. Transactional immunity provides complete immunity from prosecution for the matter concerning which the testimony was elicited. Transactional immunity extends further, therefore, because it not only immunizes the witness for any use of his or her testimony or its fruits in a subsequent trial, but it also provides absolute immunity against future prosecution for the offense to which the question relates. State v. Perez, 3D23-1152 (2/5/25)

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL: Court shall grant a new trial only if new and material evidence is discovered which is of such a nature that it would probably produce an acquittal on retrial, which, if introduced at the trial would probably have changed the verdict or finding of the court, and which the defendant could not with reasonable diligence have discovered and produced at trial. Defendant-police officer convicted of battery on suspect–is not entitled to a new trial because the charges against the victim were later dropped. State v. Perez, 3D23-1152 (2/5/25)

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL: Generally, impeachment evidence does not justify a new trial, other than in certain limited circumstances. State v. Perez, 3D23-1152 (2/5/25)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446831/opinion/Opinion_2023-1152.pdf

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL: A new trial based on newly discovered evidence, even if it existed, that charges were dropped against the victim in retun for his testimony against officer would not justify a new trial where CCTV and body camera videos showing Defendant/Officer kicking and hitting handcuffed Victim on the floor and lifting him from the ground by his handcuffs and dropping him on his chin. State v. Perez, 3D23-1152 (2/5/25)

BELATED APPEAL: If a petitioner seeking a belated appeal presents a facially sufficient petition consistent with the rule's requirements, the burden shifts to the State to specifically dispute the petitioner's allegations. If the State raises a good faith basis to dispute the petitioner's claims through affidavit or specific contrary allegations, the appellate court may order an evidentiary hearing in the trial court to determine the limited disputed issues of fact. Delgado v. State, 3D24-1925 (2/5/25)

GAIN TIME: The authority to regulate gain time resides exclusively within the Department of Corrections. The burden falls upon the defendant to seek credit for this time pursuant to the appropriate administrative procedures. Parker v. State, 3D24-2057 (2/5/25)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446865/opinion/Opinion_2024-2057.pdf

SENTENCING-CORRECTION: Where Defendant's conviction was scored as a Level 8–it should have been Level 7–Defendant is entitled to resentencing if the reviewing court cannot determine conclusively from the record that the trial court would have imposed the same sentence despite the erroneous scoresheet. Reid v. State, 4D2023-1954 (2/5/25)

SENTENCING-DEPARTURE/VARIANCE: When a court determines that a guidelines sentence will not adequately further sentencing purposes and imposes a higher or lower sentence from the guidelines range, that's a variance. A departure, by contrast, is a term of art under the Guidelines and refers only to non-Guidelines sentences imposed under the framework set out in the Guidelines, including the departure provisions. USA v. Olson, No. 23-1193 (11th Cir 2/3/25)

SENTENCING-DEPARTURE/VARIANCE: Advance notice to the parties is generally required for a departure but not for a variance. A primary indicator that the court departed is if it cited a specific guidelines departure provision in setting the defendant's sentence. If, instead, the court's rationale was based on §3553(a) factors and a determination that the guidelines range was inadequate, then that indicates a variance. USA v. Olson, No. 23-1193 (11th Cir 2/3/25)

SENTENCING-DEPARTURE/VARIANCE: In some cases determining whether the court imposed a departure or variance may matter, but in others the lack of clarity, or even confusion about, which framework was being used won't matter. Where Court said, "I find the advisory guidelines range is not appropriate to the facts and circumstances of this case, and the sentence here, whether an upward departure or a variance," it doesn't matter. Plainly, that means the district court would have imposed the same sentence either way. USA v. Olson, No. 23-1193 (11th Cir 2/3/25)

SENTENCING-SUNSTANTIVE REASONABLENESS-UPWARD VARIANCE: Court is free to weigh the §3553(a) factors as it sees fit. The weight to be assigned to any one factor falls squarely within the court's broad sentencing discretion. USA v. Olson, No. 23-1193 (11th Cir 2/3/25)

FYI: 97.2% of federal criminal cases settled with a plea bargain in the fiscal year 2023. USA v. Olson, No. 23-1193 (11th Cir 2/3/25)

JANUARY 2025

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL-ELEMENT: Where Child is charged with robbery, Court may not find him guilty of the lesser offense of aggravated assault where the petition alleged that he carried deadly weapon, not that he assaulted the victim with a deadly weapon. Error is fundamental. J.M. v. State, 2D2022-3344 (1/31/25)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446617/opinion/Opinion_2022-3344.pdf

FUNDAMENTAL ERROR: "It is a fundamental principle of due process that a defendant may not be convicted of a crime that has not been charged by the state; an error that directly results in such a conviction is by definition fundamental." J.M. v. State, 2D2022-3344 (1/31/25)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446617/opinion/Opinion_2022-3344.pdf

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: In determining whether to depart from the sentencing guidelines, a trial court must engage in a two-step process: First, the court must determine whether it can depart, i.e., whether there is a valid legal ground and adequate factual support for that ground in the case pending before it (step 1). Second, it must determine whether it should depart, weighing the totality of the circumstances in the case, including aggravating and mitigating factors. Where it is unclear whether the court rejected Defendant's request for downward departure based upon an erroneous conclusion that it lacked the authority to depart, an insufficiency of the evidence presented, or the exercise of trial court's discretion not to depart, resentencing is required, either with or without a new sentencing hearing. Manyak v. State, 2D2023-1558 (1/31/25)

COSTS PER CASE/COUNT: The minimum cost of prosecution is "per case," not per charge. Granison v. State, 5D2024-1690 (1/31/25)

DEATH PENALTY: Court did not abuse its discretion by denying the Defendant's motion to withdraw his jury waiver following his penalty phase as filed in bad faith for the purpose of the delay. Caylor v. State, SC2023-0338 (1/30/25)

https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446581/opinion/Opinion_SC2023-0338.pdf

DEATH PENALTY: Prove beyond a reasonable doubt is not required in determining the relative weight of the aggravators and the mitigators in a death penalty case. Sentencing determinations are neither elements of an offense nor their functional equivalent. Caylor v. State, SC2023-0338 (1/30/25)

JOA-POSSESSION OF FIREARM BY FELON: Where State did not introduce a certified copy of Defendant's prior felony conviction at trial, he may not be convicted of possession of a firearm by felon. Harris v. State, 3D24-0486 (1/29/25)

POSSESSION OF FIREARM BY FELON: Without a valid stipulation, the only methods for the State to prove at trial that Defendant was a convicted felon would be to admit the whole record pertaining to the prior felony conviction or providing a certified copy of the conviction. Defendant must personally acknowledge the stipulation and his voluntary waiver following an on the record stipulation. Harris v. State, 3D24-0486 (1/29/25)

POSSESSION OF FIREARM BY FELON: When a criminal defendant offers to stipulate to the convicted felon element of the felon-in-possession of a firearm charge, the Court must accept that stipulation. Harris v. State, 3D24-0486 (1/29/25)

MOTION TO CORRECT CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: Court may not summarily deny motion to correct sentence without attaching to the order those portions of the files and records that conclusively demonstrate no entitlement to relief. Icon v. State, 3D24-1121 (1/29/25)

YOUTHFUL OFFENDER: No one who has been found guilty of a life felony can be sentenced as a youthful offender. Jones v. State, 3D24-1544 (1/29/25)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446533/opinion/Opinion_2024-1544.pdf

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS-INFORMATION: A criminal information filed without a waiver of indictment is "instituted" and tolls the statute of limitations for an indictment. The later indictment filed years later related back to the date of the filing of the information. "Although the Fifth Amendment and Rule 7(b) protect Webster from prosecution by information without a waiver of indictment, the statute of limitations does not serve this same function." USA v. Webster, No. 23-11526 (1/28/25)

DEFINITION-"INSTITUTE": "Institute" means "to establish" and "to enact." "The meaning of the word 'institute' has not changed since. . .1790." USA v. Webster, No. 23-11526 (1/28/25)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202311526.pdf

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS-NOTICE: "[W]e have not held that actual notice is required to toll the statute of limitations." USA v. Webster, No. 23-11526 (1/28/25)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202311526.pdf

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS-NOTICE (J. JORDAN, CONCURRING): "Our decision today leaves room for potential prosecutorial manipulation of the statute of limitations. If the timely filing of an information tolls the limitations period even without a waiver of indictment, the government can file an information just before that period expires, not provide the defendant any notice, and then wait years—there is, after all, no time limit under § 3282(a) for statutory tolling—to obtain an indictment.. . .And nothing. . .can prevent the government from proceeding in this fashion and tolling the statute of limitations for an indefinite period of time." USA v. Webster, No. 23-11526 (1/28/25)

WHO COULD DISAGREE? (J. JORDAN, CONCURRING): "Whenever you encounter a word with a long history, it's safe to assume that the meaning has changed . . . or that it has stayed the same." USA v. Webster, No. 23-11526 (1/28/25)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202311526.pdf

PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: A PRR sentence is not illegal because the trial court, instead of a jury, made the finding that the offense was committed within three years after Defendant's release from prison. The key fact pertinent to PRR sentencing—whether the defendant committed the charged offense within three years of release from prison—is not an ingredient of the charged offense. Rather, it relates to the fact of a prior conviction. Denson v. State, 5D2024-1318 (1/28/25)

https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446448/opinion/Opinion_2024-1318.pdf

PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER (J. EISNAUGLE, CONCURRING): Simmons, which held that the Sixth Amendment permits a judge, rather than a jury, to decide a defendant's date of release from prison from a prior sentence for purposes of imposing a PRR sentence, was wrongly decided but is binding. "Stated simply, the Erlinger Court enforced the constitutional right to a jury trial even where the 'inquiry will be straightforward' and 'regardless of how overwhelmin[g] the evidence may seem to a judge.'. . .Erlinger now makes plain what Apprendi signaled years ago—the exception for the fact of a prior conviction is questionable to begin with, and as a result, it must be applied narrowly. In short, the Sixth Amendment will not tolerate an expansion of the exception—even if the bench might view it as logical or slight." Denson v. State, 5D2024-1318 (1/28/25)

PRO SE-MOTION-REPRESENTED DEFENDANT: Pro se motion for jail credit should be stricken when Defendant was represented by counsel. Wells v. State, 2D2024-1305 (1/24/25)

APPEAL-SUPPLEMENTING RECORD: Where appellate court granted Appellant's motion to supplement the record on appeal after the appellate record had been transmitted, and Appellant moved the trial court for transcripts to be prepared, the trial court lacked jurisdiction to deny the transcription requests absent an order that relinquished jurisdiction to the trial court. "[W]e share [the Chief Judge's] confusion as to why PD10 sought certain transcripts. For example, it demanded transcripts of multiple status hearings where the trial court took no evidence and issued no substantive ruling. . .[T]his Court may give more careful consideration to PD10's future supplementation requests." Justiniano-Nazario v. State, 6D2024-0832 (1/24/25)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF-DISCOVERY: Order deciding that Appellant is not entitled to postconviction discovery is not among the class of orders independently appealable by a defendant pursuant to R. 9.140(b)(1). Burks v. State, 1D2024-1673 (1/23/25)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Failure to investigate or call a witness whose testimony, when not hearsay, was "confusing and scattered" is not sufficient to support an ineffective assistance claim. In assessing prejudice under Strickland, the question is not whether a court can be certain counsel's performance had no effect on the outcome or whether it is possible a reasonable doubt might have been established if counsel acted differently, but rather whether it is reasonably likely the result would have been different. The likelihood of a different result must be substantial, not just conceivable. State v. McReynolds, 2D2023-1900 (1/22/25) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446170/opinion/Opinion_2023-1900.pdf

STALKING: To support an injunction for stalking, courts use a reasonable person standard, not a subjective standard, in determining if an incident causes substantial emotional distress. A reasonable person does not suffer substantial emotional distress easily. Calls saying "[W]ait, wait, let me talk" followed by a hang up are not enough. Abercrombie v. Nenneman, 2D2023-2110 (1/22/25) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446169/opinion/Opinion_2023-2110.pdf

REOPENING CASE: Trial court may allow the State to reopen its case after it rested and defense moved for acquittal. Destin v. State, 2D23-1403 (1/22/25) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446181/opinion/Opinion_2023-1403.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: When evidence is introduced that is so unduly prejudicial that it renders the trial fundamentally unfair, the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment provides a mechanism for relief. In reviewing a federal habeas corpus action challenging state court's denial of postconviction relief, the ultimate question is whether a fair minded jurist could disagree that the evidence so infected the trial with unfairness as to render the resulting conviction or sentence a denial of due process. Andrew v. White, No. 23–6573 (U.S. S. Ct. 1/21/25) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/24pdf/23-6573_m647.pdf

HOLDING: When the Supreme Court relies on a legal rule or principle to decide a case, that principle is a "holding" of the Court for purposes of AEDPA. "To be sure, this Court did not hold in Payne that the introduction of all irrelevant evidence violates the Due Process Clause. Payne established, rather, that due process protects defendants from the introduction of evidence so prejudicial as to affect the fundamental fairness of their trials." To the extent that the Court of Appeals thought itself constrained by AEDPA to limit Payne to its facts, it was mistaken. Andrew v. White, No. 23–6573 (U.S. S. Ct. 1/21/25) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/24pdf/23-6573_m647.pdf

AEPDA-HOLDING: General legal principles can constitute clearly established law for purposes of AEDPA so long as they are holdings of this Court. Certain principles are fundamental enough that when new factual permutations arise, the necessity to apply the earlier rule will be beyond doubt. Andrew v. White, No. 23–6573 (U.S. S. Ct. 1/21/25) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/24pdf/23-6573_m647.pdf

AEPDA-HOLDING (J. THOMAS, DISSENTING): "We have instructed lower courts. . .to carefully distinguish holdings from dicta; and to refrain from treating reserved questions as though they have already been answered. The Tenth Circuit followed these rules. The Court today does not. . .And, worst of all, it redefines 'clearly established' law to include debatable interpretations of our precedent." A contestable interpretation of precedent cannot be clearly established law. Andrew v. White, No. 23–6573 (U.S. S. Ct. 1/21/25) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/24pdf/23-6573_m647.pdf

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL-PRINCIPAL: In order to be a principal in a crime, one must have a conscious intent that the crime be done and must do some act or say some word which was intended to and does incite, cause. Mere presence at the scene of an offense is not sufficient to support a principal instruction. Intent cannot be circumstantially proved unless one or more of the circumstances demonstrate knowledge. Dixon v. State, 2D2022-2549 (1/17/25)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446054/opinion/Opinion_2022-2549.pdf

WEAPON: An object not designed to inflict bodily harm may be a "weapon" if it was threatened to be used in a manner likely to cause bodily harm[1]. Whether an object is being used as a weapon during the commission of a felony is a question of fact for the jury. Hatcher v. State, 2D2023-1691 (1/17/25)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2446059/opinion/Opinion_2023-1691.pdf

BOND REVOCATION (C.J. SLEET, CONCURRING): Court may forfeit the bond of Defendant who appears late to court for trial, but has discretion to set aside the forfeiture. "It seems to me the interest of justice, as well as judicial economy, would have been better served by setting aside the forfeiture ruling and proceeding with Henderson's trial." Henderson v. Gualtieri, Sheriff of Pinellas County, 2D2024-1286 (1/17/25)

HUMAN SMUGGLING: The human smuggling statute provides that "[a] person who transports into this state an individual who the person knows, or should know, is illegally entering the United States from another country

commits a felony of the third degree" applies to someone who transports illegal aliens in Florida before reaching their final destination; the "illegal entering" is not complete when the Mexican/U.S. border is crossed. Illegal entering" plainly contemplates the continuous act of entering the United States until the illegal alien is delivered by the smuggler to his final destination in the interior. Defendant's reading of the phrase "is illegally entering." "is strained and unduly limits all that the language may be fairly read to mean. State v. Yanes-Blanco, 5D2023-1997 (1/17/25)

HUMAN SMUGGLING-GRAMMAR: To "enter" means "to come or go in; make an entry." The statute's phrase "is illegally entering" is in the present progressive tense, which indicates a continuing action or course of conduct, and Florida courts have long presumed that the Legislature knows the meaning of words and the rules of grammar when writing our laws. Rather than a singular event occurring at an instantaneous, identifiable moment in time—an illegal alien's entry into the United States is a continuous process. State v. Yanes-Blanco, 5D2023-1997 (1/17/25)

APPEAL-BREACH OF PLEA AGREEMENT-ISSUE PRESERVATION (J. PRATT, CONCURRING): Where Defendant claims a plea-agreement violation, he must move to withdraw his plea in order to preserve his claim for appeal. A Quarterman willfulness challenge does not concern a sentencing error. When a court erroneously determines that the defendant has breached his deferred-sentencing agreement and pronounces a sentence harsher than the one for which he bargained, the court violates his plea agreement and does not commit a sentencing error. "[W]here Rule 9.140 requires a motion to withdraw plea to preserve a claim, it means what it says." Gore v. State, 5D2023-2807 (1/17/25)

QUARTERMAN PLEA AGREEMENT: In consideration for the privilege to remain free, the defendant agrees that if he does not appear for sentencing at the agreed upon time and place, the trial court can sentence the defendant to any lawful sentence even if it is a sentence in excess of the sentence specified in the negotiated plea agreement. This practice is known as a Quarterman agreement. Gore v. State, 5D2023-2807 (1/17/25)

APPEAL: Defendant may not challenge as fundamental error a written sentence for not comporting with its oral pronouncement on appeal if he has not preserved the issue by either filing a motion under rule 3.800(b) or by objecting during the sentencing hearing. O'Neil v. State, 6D2023-0677 (1/17/25)

DEATH PENALTY-SELF-REPRESENTATION: The Constitution does not forbid a State from insisting that a criminal defendant proceed to trial with counsel when the defendant is found to be mentally competent to stand trial but not mentally competent to conduct that trial himself. POSTCONVICTION RELIEF-TIMELY (J. WINOKUR, CONCURRING): If a trial court issues a nonfinal, nonappealable order under rule 3.850(f)(2) granting a defendant sixty days to file an amended motion—and provided the court has not issued a final order denying the motion with prejudice—Defendant cannot file a second motion beyond the sixty days but before expiration of the two-year deadline contained in R. 3.850(b) without the motion considered untimely or successive, even though this rule, as it has been interpreted by Daise and Ivory, is plainly at odds with the rule as identified by the Supreme Court in Spera. POSTCONVICTION RELIEF-TIMELY (J. WINOKUR, CONCURRING): History of postconviction motions explained. "Although rule 3.850 falls within the rules of criminal procedure, and although pleadings under the rule contain the same caption as the defendant's criminal case, postconviction proceedings are technically civil, not criminal...They are civil in nature because their roots lie in the writ of habeas corpus." VOLUNTARY INTOXICATION: Voluntary intoxication resulting from the consumption, injection, or other use of alcohol or other controlled substance as described in chapter 893 is not a defense to any offense proscribed by law. Evidence of a defendant's voluntary intoxication is not admissible to show that the defendant lacked the specific intent to commit an offense and is not admissible to show that the defendant was insane at the time of the offense, except when the defendant's lack of specific intent or insanity is attributable to the use of a prescription medicine lawfully prescribed and taken as prescribed. JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL-POSSESSION OF FIREARM BY FELON: Defendant is entitled to a JOA on the possession of a firearm by a felon count where the State did not enter Defendant's prior felony conviction and sentence into evidence, did not ask the trial court to read any stipulation to the jury, nor enter a stipulation into evidence, and where the jury was never told that the defense stipulated that he was a felon. Defendant's bodycam recorded statement implying that he knew he was a felon (Detective: "I'm asking, as a convicted felon, are you allowed to have a gun? Defendant: "Nah. You know that.") is legally insufficient to prove his status. Error is fundamental. Presha v. State, 3D23-2254 (1/15/25)

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL-POSSESSION OF FIREARM BY FELON: When requested by a defendant in a felon-in possession of a firearm case, the trial court must approve a stipulation whereby the parties acknowledge that the defendant is a convicted felon. But out of the jury's presence and after consultation with counsel, the defendant must personally acknowledge the stipulation and his voluntary waiver of his right to have the State otherwise prove the convicted felony status element beyond a reasonable doubt. JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL-FUNDAMENTAL ERROR: An argument that the evidence is totally insufficient as a matter of law to establish the commission of a crime need not be preserved. Such complete failure of the evidence meets the requirements of fundamental error-i.e., an error that reaches to the foundation of the case and is equal to a denial of due process. Presha v. ATTORNEY-MOTION TO WITHDRAW: While trial courts are accorded broad discretion to make appropriate inquiry to determine whether any of the grounds for attorney withdrawal are present, or whether the attorney-client relation has deteriorated to a point where counsel can no longer give effective aid in the fair presentation of a defense, such an inquiry may not (absent a valid waiver) include requiring counsel to reveal confidential communications with the client. DRIVER LICENSE/DRIVER'S LICENSE: "[R]eferences will be to a "driver license," the phrase used in Florida Statutes, rather than the colloquial "driver's license." See § 322.01(18)." Crist v. State, 5D2022-2966 (1/10/25)

DRIVER LICENSE-SEXUAL PREDATOR: Requirement that the "Sexual Predator" designation appear on the one's driver license is unconstitutional as government compelled speech. "A Florida driver license is a forum in which a license holder, who has been convicted of a sexual offense, is compelled to disclose the fact of his criminal history against his wishes. That a fact is compelled rather than a political opinion or policy doesn't matter." The SEXUAL PREDATOR designation on driver licenses is not a narrowly tailored means to inform only those persons who have the greater need to know about an individual's past sexual criminality. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: "Both Moradi's lawyers testified they were unfamiliar with a four-year-old case—binding at the time—that held it was fundamental error to deliver a justifiable use of deadly force instruction that referred to a burden when discussing the forcible felony that can be used to establish a self-defense claim. Although trial counsel failed to object to a jury instruction, Defendant suffered no prejudice because there is no reasonable probability that the verdict would have been different even if his trial counsel had submitted the appropriate justifiable use of deadly force instruction. A near-seven-inch, heart-piercing stab with a five-inch blade is not a "poke." Plus, Defendant then beat the victim and placed his hands around his neck while blood gushed out of his body. Moradi v. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-REASONABLE SUSPICION-FIREARM: Stopping a person solely on the ground that the individual possesses a gun violates the Fourth Amendment. Officer who sees Defendant remove a gun from a waistband holster and transfer it into his backpack lacks reasonable suspicion to detain him. Due to the statutory change to §790.01, non-licensure is an element of, rather than an affirmative defense to, the crime of carrying a concealed weapon. Mere possession of a concealed weapon does not constitute criminal activity. Sheppard v. State, 3D23-0752 (1/8/25)

VOP-SEX OFFENSE: Where a condition of sex offender probation includes that Defendant is prohibited from possessing pornographic materials "that are relevant to the offender's deviant behavior pattern," possessing DVDs titled "Sex from the North," "Brunettes Have More Fun," "Hometown Amateurs," "One on One," and "Sorority Self-Masturbation Satisfaction" are not relevant to the defendant's deviant behavior pattern unless they depicted or suggested the following viewing or touching a minor or against a person's will. All the DVD "artwork" appeared to show young women, but the State offered no proof that they were children or adolescents. College-age women are adults—they are not children or adolescents. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-K-9 ALERT: In the past, an alert by a properly trained police dog was usually accepted as providing probable cause for a search. But whether the substance dog smells is legal or illegal is not readily apparent, his alert, alone, cannot provide the probable cause needed to justify a warrantless search. "[P]lain smell—whether perceived by man or man's best friend–of a distinct odor which may have emanated from a legal substance does not, by itself, supply probable cause to conduct a warrantless search of a vehicle." Ford v. State, 5D2023-1995 (1/7/25)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-K-9 SNIFF: "Is the undifferentiated alert behavior of a properly trained police drug-sniffing dog sufficient to supply the sole probable cause for a warrantless search of a car, when that K-9 officer. . .cannot distinguish between illegal pot and legal medical marijuana or hemp? In other words, is that sniff up to snuff? Going forward, that dog won't hunt." Ford v. State, 5D2023-1995 (1/7/25)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-K-9 ALERT-GOOD FAITH: Although K-9 alert alone no longer justifies the search of a vehicle, the good-faith exception to the exclusionary rule applies to cases arising before this change in the law. Ford v. State, 5D2023-1995 (1/7/25)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PROBABLE CAUSE: Probable cause is a fluid concept—turning on the assessment of probabilities in particular factual contexts—not readily, or even usefully, reduced to a neat set of legal rules. Finely-tuned standards such as proof beyond a reasonable doubt or by a preponderance of the evidence, have no place in the determination of probable cause. Whether the basis for probable cause is proved by machine, man, or beast, all we have required is the kind of fair probability on which reasonable and prudent people, not legal technicians, act. Ford v. State, 5D2023-1995 (1/7/25)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-K-9 ALERT (J. PRATT, CONCURRING): "[G]oing forward,. . .dogs trained to alert on cannabis can no longer provide the sole basis for a stop or search. . .[C]annabis legalization no doubt has triggered a setback for drug-detecting canine officers. But it need not mark their retirement. An alert by a dog trained not to alert to cannabis—or to alert to cannabis differently than it alerts to other drugs—can still on its own supply probable cause. And for another thing, even without such canine training, an undifferentiated alert can supply probable cause when combined with an officer's questions ruling out the presence of lawful cannabis." Ford v. State, 5D2023-1995 (1/7/25)

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: A condition of probation is valid if it satisfies one of the following factors: (1) has a relationship to the crime for which the offender was convicted, (2) relates to conduct that is criminal in nature, or (3) requires or forbids conduct that is reasonably related to future criminality. Defendant who murdered her daughter's father may not be required to take a parenting class. Murdering the child's father does not involve any act of parenting. "Requiring Parker to complete parenting classes in the distant future, once she is released from her 53-year incarceration and long after the daughter reaches majority, can have no bearing on any future criminality whether involving Parker's daughter or otherwise." Parker v. State, 1D2023-0760 (1/2/25)

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Where Defendant murdered her daughter's father, she may be prohibited from having contact with her daughter for life. As the next of kin of a homicide victim, her child is a "victim" under the Florida Constitution. Parker v. State, 1D2023-0760 (1/2/25)

REVERSE WILLIAMS RULE EVIDENCE: The threshold for admission of both Williams rule evidence and reverse Williams rule evidence is relevance. REVERSE WILLIAMS RULE EVIDENCE: Defendant's unprovoked drive-by shooting motivated by mutual dislike between people from "the northside" and people from "the southside" is too dissimilar from a planned shooting motivated by a fight over a woman at a football game for latter to be admissible as reverse Williams rule evidence. Peterson v. State, 1D2023-2589 (1/2/25)

ATTORNEY-PERJURY: The right to counsel includes no right to have a lawyer who will cooperate with planned perjury. There is no permissible choice to testify falsely. For defense counsel to take steps to persuade a criminal defendant to testify truthfully, or to withdraw, deprives the defendant of neither his right to counsel nor the right to testify truthfully. HEARSAY-IDENTIFICATION: A statement is not hearsay if the declarant testifies at the trial or hearing and is subject to cross-examination concerning the statement and the statement is one of identification of a person made after perceiving the person Photographs which witnesses used to identify Defendant are not admissible when they include accusatory narratives such as "He came into my brother's home. . .with a firearm." POSTCONVICTION RELIEF-JURORS: Defendant is not entitled to postconviction relief due to counsel's failure to strike a juror who stated she was unsure whether she could be fair. Only where a juror's bias is so clear can a defendant show the necessary prejudice under Strickland that there is a reasonable probability that, but for counsel's unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would have been different. Merely expressing doubt does not establish actual bias against the defendant. Fluctuating equivocations do not demonstrate actual bias. Nixon v. State, 3D22-1833 (1/2/25)

EVIDENCE: Police officers and lay witnesses may testify as to their observations of a defendant's acts, conduct, and appearance, and also to give an opinion on the defendant's state of impairment based on those observations. Objective observations based on observable signs and conditions are not classified as "scientific." Malakhov v. State, 3D23-1105 (1/2/24)

BOLSTERING: Officer's testimony that witness was a hundred percent sure of his identification of the defendant in the photo line up did not constitute improper bolstering because he did not opine on the ultimate issue of the witness's credibility. Johnson v. State, 3D23-2183 (1/2/25)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Relevant factors in assessing the reasonableness of a stop pursuant to a BOLO) include: (1) the length of time and distance from the offense; (2) route of flight; (3) specificity of the description of the vehicle and its occupants; and (4) the source of the BOLO information. HABEAS CORPUS-MANIFEST INJUSTICE: Appellate courts have the authority to correct a manifest injustice by way of habeas corpus, but this exception only applies to a narrow category of cases. MEDICAL RECORDS: Court may not sua sponte order disclosure of private medical and psychological records to the county jail where the direct filed fourteen-year-old defendant is in custody. A patient's medical records enjoy a confidential status by virtue of the right to privacy contained in the Florida Constitution, and any attempt on the part of the government to obtain such records must first meet constitutional muster. "[W]e caution that trial courts must be mindful of the limits imposed by the judicial role. With very few exceptions, the court's role does not include initiating matters but instead is limited to adjudicating matters properly raised by interested parties." Rosa v. DECEMBER 2024

LEWD AND LASCIVIOUS-AGE OF VICTIM: It is fundamental error to adjudicate Defendant guilty of a first-degree felony and to sentence him accordingly when the jury never found him guilty of that crime. Where the information's time frame spanned when the child was between eleven and twelve years of age, the evidence and arguments show that she was twelve, and the jury instruction alluded to the victim being between the ages of twelve and sixteen, the Clerk of Court Disposition Memorandum "Guilty as charged" erroneously reflected that Defendant was found guilty as charged of lewd molestation as a first-degree felony punishable by life, Defendant may be adjudicated and sentenced only for a second degree felony. The judgment of the Court must conform to the verdict of the jury. Lincoln v. State, 6D2023-0235 (12/30/24)

OOPS: "At the sentencing hearing, the State argued for life in prison in accordance with that charge, notwithstanding its argument during the hearing that the victim was twelve at the time of the offense. The defense argued mitigating factors and requested leniency but did not bring the error in the PSI or scoresheet to the court's attention. No one addressed the error, and the trial judge sentenced Lincoln to life in prison." Lincoln v. State, 6D2023-0235 (12/30/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Double Jeopardy does not bar a retrial after a mistrial without prejudice is declared following a Brady violation. Unless the prosecution's misconduct was intended to provoke the defendant into moving for a mistrial, when a trial court declares a mistrial, double jeopardy does not bar a retrial, even if the Defendant moved that the mistrial be with prejudice. A request for a mistrial with prejudice does not constitute an objection to a mistrial without prejudice or create a double jeopardy issue, particularly when Defendant rejected other possible remedies. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-DOG SNIFF: Search was not unlawfully prolonged for a K9 search where driver said he could get proof of insurance in a few minutes by contacting the vehicle owner, but did not. State v. Denoncourt, 5D2024-0947 (12/27/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PAT DOWN: Officer was justified in conducting a pat-down search of Defendant where he acted "very odd," messed with his pants, and had a notable bulge in it that "was 150 percent clearly not of a human body part unless you have just a massive hernia or something going on with you." State v. Denoncourt, 5D2024-0947 (12/27/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Where defendant Is lawfully detained, officer may order him to exit vehicle, even if he did not have particularized basis to believe defendant was a threat to his safety. State v. Denoncourt, 5D2024-0947 (12/27/24)

COMPETENCY-MOOTNESS: Where underlying indictment is dismissed due to his continuing incompetency but Defendant remains confined due to civil commitment proceedings, his appeal challenging his detention is moot. Where new statutory bases supersede the original bases for orders challenged on appeal, appeals of the original orders are moot. USA v. Alhindi, No. 24-10595 (11th Cir. 12/23/24)

PLEA WITHDRAWAL: A motion to withdraw a plea is a critical stage of the proceedings during which an indigent defendant is entitled to court-appointed, conflict free counsel. Failure to offer appointed counsel before summarily denying such a motion requires reversal. Young v. State, 2D2023-1507 (12/20/24)

VOP: Where defendant was ordered to pay a $85,000 restitution at the rate of $200 per month, he may not be found to have violated probation when he received $75,000 from a divorce settlement and used that money to pay off other debts. There is no term in the probation order that addresses what effect, if any, a change in his financial circumstances would have vis-à-vis payment of his entire restitution obligation. "We understand the circuit court's frustration with what transpired in this case. . .Mr. Watson avoided prison under the assumption he would make restitution to the victims of his financial crime. But, having determined that Mr. Watson complied with the letter, if not the spirit, of his restitution obligation during his probation's term, we must reluctantly reverse the order revoking Mr. Watson's probation." TRANSCRIPTS DURING TRIAL: Court's comment that it would not order preparation of trial transcripts on a daily basis is not unlawful. The speculative argument that Defendant may need transcripts is legally insufficient. Lugo v. State, 3D24-2128 (12/20/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to file motion to suppress when discrepancies between the weight of drugs seized and those tested suggest improper chain of custody. A trial attorney's failure to investigate a factual defense or a defense relying on the suppression of evidence, which results in the entry of an ill-advised plea of guilty, constitutes a facially sufficient attack upon the conviction. Reyna-Duran v. State, 6D2023-1876 (11th Cir. 12/20/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: A pro se defendant—even if he has standby counsel—cannot later complain that the quality of his defense was substandard or amounted to ineffective assistance of counsel. Craft v. State, SC2023-1501 (12/19/24)

JOA: A defendant moving for a legal acquittal effectively admits not only the facts stated in the evidence adduced, but also every conclusion favorable to the adverse party that a jury might fairly and reasonably infer from the evidence. For a JOA, the evidence presented by the State must have been so wanting that no view which the jury may lawfully take of it favorable to the opposite party can be sustained under the law. "A key legal point here. . .is that not just direct or circumstantial evidence counts toward the sufficient-evidence assessment, but also all reasonable inferences that could be drawn from that evidence to conclude the element has been adequately demonstrated." Fogarty v. State, 1D2021-2233 (12/18/24)

JOA-SEXUAL BATTERY-HELPLESS VICTIM: Sexual battery on a victim physically helpless to resist includes a victim who is unconscious, asleep, or for any other reason physically unable to communicate unwillingness to an act. Although neither Victim nor Defendant recalled the two having sex the night of the incident, the combination of evidence of Victim's debilitating state of drunkenness, her breasts exposed, her pants pulled down, his semen on her underwear and in her vagina, and Defendant running out the back of the apartment is sufficient to infer that Defendant had sex with Victim only after she was so drunk that there was no way she could have given intelligent, knowing, and voluntary consent. Fogarty v. State, 1D2021-2233 (12/18/24)

INFERENCE-PERIPHERY OF THE SPHERE: An inference is a permissible analytical move a factfinder may make in determining whether a proponent of a factual proposition has met the legally required burden of proof. Of course if none of the inferences on the one hand accords with logic and reason or human experience, while on the other hand an inference which does square with logic and reason or human experience is deducible from the evidence, the question is not for the jury but is one of law for the court. Often astute lawyers fail to appreciate the fact that when an appellate court has spoken of inferences which may be drawn from circumstantial evidence it meant assuredly that such inferences had to be susceptible of being deduced from within the periphery of the sphere of the circumstantial evidence and that when one goes beyond such point he has entered the field of conjecture and speculation. Fogarty v. State, 1D2021-2233 (12/18/24)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444893/opinion/Opinion_2021-2233.pdf

TRIAL-ABSENT DEFENDANT: Where Defendant failed to appear for trial after the jury was chosen because he had been drinking and drugging, nearly died, was taken to the hospital, and had not been discharged, Court erred in finding that he had voluntarily absented himself from the trial ("Everything the witness just stated sounds very voluntary to me") and continuing with the trial in his absence. Where Defendant's counsel provided ample explanation—through a witness who found him unresponsive and an attending nurse who could speak to his current medical status in the hospital—for why he was not present in court, it may not. "The most that can be inferred. . .is that Nipper engaged in terribly reckless behavior that nearly killed him. . .[T]he trial court erred when it relied on the voluntariness of Nipper's misconduct. . .to find, essentially, a 'forfeiture by wrongdoing.' The judicially developed forfeiture doctrine does not extend this far." Nipper v. State, 1D2022-1381 (12/18/24)

SAT CITO SI RECTE (J. ROWE, CONCURRING): "Sat Cito Si Recte—Soon enough if correct." Nipper v. State, 1D2022-1381 (12/18/24)

APPEAL-TIMELINESS OF OPINION (J. ROWE, CONCURRING): Rule 2.250(a)(2) establishes 180 days from the oral argument date as the "presumptively reasonable" time for appellate courts to render a decision. As a matter of judicial integrity and humility, judges must strive to render decisions consistent with the motto Sat cito, si recte. But there are no shortcuts to justice. The legal principles and constitutional rights which have preserved us a nation are either observed or they are violated. No matter how well intended, there cannot be any 'homespun', 'living room' approaches to matters of such grave consequence to one's freedom. Nipper v. State, 1D2022-1381 (12/18/24)

JOA-ATTEMPTED SECOND DEGREE MURDER: To establish attempted second-degree murder, the State must show that (1) defendant intentionally committed an overt act that could have resulted in the death of the victim but did not, (2) the act was imminently dangerous to another and demonstrated a depraved mind without regard for human life, and (3) the overt act went beyond mere preparation. Shooting at the victim through a privacy curtain into the bathroom area because the victim was complaining about Defendant ("that slick mouth pissed [him] off") evinces a depraved mind. That, and being "the baddest motherfucker . . . in Dixie County." Mooney v. State, 1D2022-4160 (12/18/24)

LESSER INCLUDED-2ND° MURDER-AGGRAVATED ASSAULT: An instruction on aggravated assault as a lesser included to attempted second degree murder is not required where there was no evidence that the victim had

APPEAL: Two letters filed with the trial court stating that he felt "rushed" during his plea hearing and he wished to appeal the plea offer is not a notice of appeal. The letters should be treated as a motion to withdraw plea. Appeal dismissed. Rhodes v. State, 1D2023-0463 (12/18/24)

APPEAL-ANDERS BRIEF: Anders brief which fails to state that the appeal would be frivolous is legally insufficient. Anderson v. State, 1D2023-2573 (12/18/24)

APPEAL-ANDERS BRIEF: Appointed counsel for appeal must master the trial record, thoroughly research the law, and exercise judgment in identifying the arguments that may be advanced on appeal." Anders brief which consists of a single page containing only limited facts, lacks references to the record evidence or legal authorities and fails to address the testimony of several witnesses, disputes about the offense elements, Defendant's designation as a violent felony offender of special concern, and the propriety of a downward departure sentence is insufficient. Anderson v. State, 1D2023-2573 (12/18/24)

APPEAL-ANDERS BRIEF: "[W]e turn now to the continued viability of our current Anders procedures. Addressing the recurring of inadequacy in briefing led us to evaluate the procedures more broadly. . ., we found them to be in tension with our core neutral adjudicatory power." Appellate court's duty to scour record for issues conflicts with duty to address only properly raised issues. Question Certified: Does R. 9.140(g)(2) continue to accord with the fundamental principles of appellate review in a manner sufficient to invoke the court 's jurisdiction, and, if so, does it require appellate courts to depart from their roles as neutral arbiters? Anderson v. State, 1D2023-2573 (12/18/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-DOG SNIFF-PROLONGED DETENTION: Detention was unlawfully prolonged where canine did not arrive at twelve minutes after it determined that no one in the car at a warrant or had committed an ascertainable crime. A traffic stop may last no longer than necessary for an officer to address the traffic violation that warranted the stop and attend to related safety concerns. If an officer can complete traffic-based inquiries expeditiously, then that is the amount of time reasonably required to complete the stop's mission. A traffic stop prolonged beyond that point is unlawful. Officer's equivocal testimony about what he was doing is insufficient to meet the State's burden to establish that the stop was not attenuated. AGGRAVATED ANIMAL CRUELTY: Defendant who shot two dogs which had attacked his chickens inside a fenced-in chicken coop in his fenced-in yard, one of which was caught eating one of his chickens, is entitled to dismissal the charge of aggravated animal cruelty. Chickens by statute are domesticated animals. Barnes v. State, 1D2024-0701 (12/18/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Two requirements must be met for a conviction to be set aside based on newly discovered evidence: First, the evidence 'must have been unknown by the trial court, by the party, or by counsel at the time of trial, and it must appear that defendant or his counsel could not have known of it by the use of due diligence. Second, the newly discovered evidence must be of such nature that it would probably produce an acquittal on retrial. Leggett v. State, 3D23-0305 (12/18/24)

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT: Once a suspect has requested the help of a lawyer, no state agent can reinitiate interrogation on any offense throughout the period of custody unless the lawyer is present. The admissibility of statements obtained after the person in custody has decided to remain silent depends under Miranda on whether his right to cut off questioning was scrupulously honored. State v. HABEAS CORPUS: Habeas corpus is not a vehicle for obtaining additional appeals of issues which were raised or should have been raised on direct appeal, or which could have been, should have been, or were raised in post-conviction proceedings. Diaz v. Dixon, 3D24-0956 (12/18/24)

DUI-PROBABLE CAUSE: An officer may not arrest a DUI suspect on the basis of witnesses who saw drunk bar patron start her car but prevented her from leaving. LEO may execute a warrantless misdemeanor arrest for DUI in only three circumstances: (1) the officer witnesses each element of a prima facie case, (2) the officer is investigating an accident and develops probable cause to charge DUI, or (3) one officer calls upon another for assistance and the combined observations of the two or more officers are united to establish the probable cause to the arrest. Officer may not arrest for DUI when by the time the officer arrived, Defendant was outside of her car, which was turned off. Atwell v. State, 4D2024-0618 (12/18/23)

CITIZEN'S ARREST: To effectuate a valid citizen's arrest, the private citizen arrestor must deprive the defendant of her freedom to leave. A security guard does not effectuate a valid citizen's arrest by positioning his golf cart to block drunk Defendant from driving off. Atwell v. State, 4D2024-0618 (12/18/23)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-DOG SNIFF-PROLONGED DETENTION: Stop was not unlawfully prolonged for canine to arrive where the sniff was performed within approximately five minutes of the initiation of the traffic stop and the investigating officer had not yet written the traffic violation warning. SPEEDY TRIAL-SIXTH AMENDMENT: To determine whether a defendant has been deprived of his constitutional right to a speedy trial, courts weigh four factors: (1) the length of the delay, (2) the reason for the delay, (3) the defendant's assertion of his right, and (4) the prejudice to the defendant. A defendant generally must show actual prejudice unless the first three factors all weigh heavily against the government. USA v. Ogiekpolor, No. 22-13428 (11th Cir. 12/16/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL-SIXTH AMENDMENT: Although trial was delayed for well over a year, Defendant's constitutional speedy trial right was not violated because the reasons for the delay (COVID, Defendant's motions to extend time) do not weigh heavily against the government. USA v. Ogiekpolor, No. 22-13428 (11th Cir. 12/16/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL-SIXTH AMENDMENT-ACTUAL PREJUDICE: To show actual prejudice, Defendant must show (1) oppressive pretrial incarceration, (2) his own anxiety and concern, or (3) the possibility that his defense was impaired because of the delay. Pretrial incarceration alone ordinarily does not amount to prejudice. USA v. Ogiekpolor, No. 22-13428 (11th Cir. 12/16/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL ACT: Speedy Trial Act requires the government to file an information or indictment within 30 days from the defendant's arrest. USA v. Ogiekpolor, No. 22-13428 (11th Cir. 12/16/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL ACT: Speedy Trial Act requires the government to bring the case to trial within 70 days from the defendant's arrest, excluding any time periods when the ends of justice outweigh the best interest of the public and the defendant in a speedy trial, considering whether the failure to grant the continuance would be likely to make a continuation of such proceeding impossible, or result in a miscarriage of justice; whether the case is so complex that it is unreasonable to expect adequate preparation within the time limits; and whether the denial of a continuance would deny either party reasonable time necessary for effective preparation. USA v. Ogiekpolor, No. 22-13428 (11th Cir. 12/16/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL: Defendant's failure to move for dismissal prior to trial constitutes waiver of the right to dismissal for failure to indict within thirty days. His motion to dismiss based on the seventy day rule (trial) is not a motion to dismiss based on the thirty day rule (indictment). USA v. Ogiekpolor, No. 22-13428 (11th Cir. 12/16/24)

STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION: When Congress drafts new legislation, it divides that legislation into sections, subsections, paragraphs, subparagraphs, clauses, subclauses, and items and refers to each level of that hierarchy by a unique word. A section is a unit below the subpart but above the subsection, whereas a paragraph starts with "(1)," a subparagraph begins with "(A)," and a clause commences with "(I)." USA v. Ogiekpolor, No. 22-13428 (11th Cir. 12/16/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL ACT: In deciding whether to grant an ends-of-justice continuance, a district court must consider a multiplicity of factors, i.e., adequate time for defense counsel and the government to prepare, number of witnesses, pending motions, anticipated trial time, conflicts in schedules of judges and trial counsel, etc., including the anticipated filing of a superseding indictment. USA v. Ogiekpolor, No. 22-13428 (11th Cir. 12/16/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Trial counsel was not ineffective for failing to obtain a delay of the Faretta hearing because he knew that Defendant had frontal lobe brain damage that could be impairing his judgment where Defendant had already had two court-appointed experts who found him competent to proceed notwithstanding potential brain damage from a past car accident and his mother's use of drugs and alcohol. USA v. Ogiekpolor, No. 22-13428 (11th Cir. 12/16/24)

DUI-EXPERT-BLOOD LEVEL: Defendant's expert may testify about the Widmark formula for calculating blood-or breath-alcohol level at a particular point in time notwithstanding that no blood/breath test was performed. The statute criminalizes driving under the influence, regardless of whether based on the impairment of normal faculties or on an excessive blood-or breath alcohol level. Panaro v. State, 2D2023-1369 (12/13/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444702/opinion/Opinion_2023-1369.pdf

EVIDENCE-EXPERT: Where evidence tends in any way, even indirectly, to establish a reasonable doubt of the defendant's guilt, it is admissible. While the defense is bound by the same rules of evidence as the state, the question of what is relevant to show a reasonable doubt may present different considerations than the question of what is relevant to show the commission of the crime itself. "Simply put, Panaro gets the benefit of any doubt on the relevance of the proffered expert testimony." Panaro v. State, 2D2023-1369 (12/13/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444702/opinion/Opinion_2023-1369.pdf

FINES/COST: Court must individually pronounce discretionary fees, costs, and fines during a sentencing hearing to comply with due process requirements. Jenkins v. State, 5D2023-2800 (12/13/24) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444699/opinion/Opinion_2023-2800.pdf

STAND YOUR GROUND: When a jury rejects a claim of self-defense at trial beyond a reasonable doubt, there is no reasonable probability that a trial judge would have rendered a different judgment at a Stand-Your-Ground hearing with a lower standard of proof. James v. State, 6D2023-1486 (12/13/24) https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444748/opinion/Opinion_2023-1486.pdf

CARRYING CONCEALED WEAPON BY FELON: How or if the weapon is used is not dispositive as to whether it is a deadly weapon. Possession of or carrying a concealed, common pocketknife by a convicted felon, without more, is not a crime. The same does not hold true for a machete. Whether a machete is a deadly weapon that could not be carried concealed by a convicted felon is for the jury to decide.

CARRYING CONCEALED WEAPON BY FELON: How or if the weapon is used is not dispositive as to whether it is a deadly weapon. Possession of or carrying a concealed, common pocketknife by a convicted felon, without more, is not a crime. The same does not hold true for a machete. Whether a machete is a deadly weapon that could not be carried concealed by a convicted felon is for the jury to decide. The initial analysis as to whether an object is an "other deadly weapon" under the concealed weapon statute at issue is guided by the object's design and construction, not its use. State v. BANK ROBBERY: Federal bank robbery is a crime of violence under the elements clause of §924(c)(3). USA v. Armstrong, No. 21-11252 (11th Cir. 12/11/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202111252.rem.pdf No. 21-11252

ATTEMPTED BANK ROBBERY: Attempted bank robbery under §2113(a) is a crime of violence because it requires as an element that the defendant acted "by force and violence, or by intimidation" in committing the inchoate crime. USA v. Armstrong, No. 21-11252 (11th Cir. 12/11/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202111252.rem.pdf No. 21-11252

CATEGORICAL APPROACH: An indivisible statute is one which sets out a single (or "indivisible'') set of elements to define a single crime, even though it may also spell out "various factual ways of committing some component of the offense." When faced with an indivisible statute, the categorical approach is used to determine whether the offense is a crime of violence. A divisible statute, on the other hand, may list elements in the alternative, and thereby define multiple crimes. When parsing a divisible statute, the modified categorical approach is used to determine whether the defendant committed a crime of violence, considering a limited set of documents—the indictment, jury instructions, plea agreement, and plea colloquy—to determine which specific crime, comprising which elements, the defendant committed. USA v. Armstrong, No. 21-11252 (11th Cir. 12/11/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202111252.rem.pdf No. 21-11252

ROBBERY/EXTORTION: Robbery and extortion are two distinct crimes, criminalizing the two separate offenses of bank robbery, on the one hand, and bank extortion, on the other. Robbery and extortion are alternate elements—amounting to separate crimes—not alternate means of committing one crime; the modified categorical approach applies. USA v. Armstrong, No. 21-11252 (11th Cir. 12/11/24)

SEXUAL PREDATOR: A Colorado conviction is a qualifying predicate for a Florida sexual predator designation. The Colorado "position of trust" is similar to Florida's "position of familial or custodial authority." "Given the identification in the Sexual Predators Act of a 'compelling interest in protecting the public from sexual predators and in protecting children from predatory sexual activity,' we strive to ensure that any interpretation of the phrase 'similar law of another jurisdiction' furthers the Act's stated purpose, rather than reading it so narrowly that we thwart its purpose." The Sexual Predators Act is meant to apply to offenders who have committed a sex crime (especially a sex crime against minors) in a foreign jurisdiction, regardless of whether the sex crime is identical to a Florida sex crime. Conflict certified. Debose v. State, 1D2022-0995 (12/11/24)

VENUE: Venue is an appropriate question for the jury; a defendant may move for JOA on the ground that the State failed to prove proper venue. Question certified. Debose v. State, 1D2022-0995 (12/11/24)

VENUE: Venue for unlawful use of a communication device may lie in the county where the message is received. Debose v. State, 1D2022-0995 (12/11/24)

VENUE (J. WINOKUR, CONCURRING): "I raise practical issues that occur when a jury is required to determine whether the State has proved venue, issues that demonstrate essential contradictions that call into question the entire concept of making venue a jury issue. . .[A]n analysis of the constitutional right to trial before a jury in the county where the crime was committed leads to the conclusion that venue is a question of law for the court and should never be brought before the jury as a question of fact at all." "[I]f the State has violated a defendant's constitutional rights by trying him in the wrong county, then a jury composed of citizens from the wrong county is vested with the responsibility of deciding whether it is the right jury to try the defendant. . .This seems to violate the very notion of a constitutional right to trial by a jury in the county where the crime occurred." EVIDENCE: Evidence that Defendant brought a second weapon–not the murder weapon but one with matching projectiles–is admissible, or if error, would be harmless. Johnson v. State, 1D2022-4051 (12/11/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444594/opinion/Opinion_2022-4051.pdf

APPEAL-NONVERBAL SIGNALS: Claim that counsel was ineffective for not investigating whether witness's counsel was giving the witness nonverbal signals during her trial is not cognizable on direct appeal. Johnson v. State, 1D2022-4051 (12/11/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444594/opinion/Opinion_2022-4051.pdf

VOP-UNCHARGED CONDUCT: A trial court may not revoke probation based on a ground not alleged in the violation of probation affidavit, but when a trial court relies on both proper and improper grounds to revoke probation, reliance on improper grounds does not require reversal when it is clear from the record that the trial court would have revoked probation based solely on proper grounds. Morrow v. State, 1D2024-0445 (12/11/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444627/opinion/Opinion_2024-0445.pdf

VOP: Where a condition of sex offender probation prohibited Defendant from accessing the Internet, watching Netflix movies online may constitute a willful and substantial violation. "Morrow's argument that using the internet should be considered a substantial violation only when the offender uses the internet to access pornography or to contact a minor is an effort to rewrite the probation statute and second-guess the legislature's policy choices." Morrow v. State, 1D2024-0445 (12/11/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444627/opinion/Opinion_2024-0445.pdf

WILLIAMS RULE NOTICE: No Williams Rule notice is required for evidence of offenses used for impeachment or on rebuttal. Paylan v. State, 2D2022-0304 (12/11/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: "The recurring theme in all her challenges, from the initial investigation to date, has been that someone on the other side or in cahoots with the other side is lying, whether out of personal animus, for personal gain, or to cover their own incompetence. But even if she were right, it would not be our role to 'fix' it. We may not be swayed by concerns of factual guilt or innocence. Nor may we decide the credibility of witnesses. To the contrary, we are affirmatively precluded from doing those things." Paylan v. State, 2D2022-0304 (12/11/24)

HABITUAL FELONY OFFENDER: Before a trial court may impose a habitual felony offender sentence, it must find, based on record evidence, that the defendant has been previously convicted of any combination of two or more felonies and that the current felony occurred either (a) while the defendant was serving a prison sentence or lawfully imposed supervision as a result of a prior felony conviction; or (b) within five years from the date of conviction for the defendant's last prior felony or within five years from the date of the defendant's release from prison or supervision for a prior felony offense. Thus, the State must provide record evidence of the date of the current felony offense, the date of the conviction for the last prior felony, and the date the defendant was released from any prison term or supervision imposed for the last felony conviction. Mathis v. State, 2D2023-1764 (12/11/24)

PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: Before a PRR sentence may be imposed, the State is required to submit evidence that the offender's current offense was committed within three years of his release from custody on a prior offense. Mathis v. State, 2D2023-1764 (12/11/24)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444590/opinion/Opinion_2023-1764.pdf

HFO/PRR SENTENCING: Where Court received and reviewed sentencing packet that was made part of the record, but it was never removed or received in evidence, evidence is insufficient to support the trial court's finding that defendant qualifies as a HFO or a PRR. Mathis v. State, 2D2023-1764 (12/11/24)

CIVIL RESTITUTION LIEN: If inmate is convicted for a capital or life felony, the convicted offender is liable for incarceration costs and other correctional costs in the liquidated damage amount of $250,000. DOC may use this civil restitution lien to offset damages owed to the inmate for his treatment in prison. "Although we may share the trial court's concerns about the use of the civil restitution lien in this manner, the FDOC pursued a remedy which it was entitled to pursue." D.O.C. v. O'Neal, 2D2023-2495 (12/11/24)

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT: Attorney is disqualified from representing Defendant where he had earlier twice consulted with the co-Defendant on the same case and the co-Defendant, with other counsel, later flipped on Defendant and then died. Although the Sixth Amendment's right to counsel creates a presumption favoring a defendant's choice of counsel, that right is not absolute and may be overcome not only by a demonstration of actual conflict but by a showing of a serious potential for conflict. The fact that the codefendant died does not render the trial court's decision as error because the privilege continues after the individual's death. Landis v. State, 4D2023-0390 (12/11/24)

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS: Cumulative 40 year sentence, intended to ensure that the Defendant "never see the light of day" is lawful and not based on improper considerations. State's argument that Defendant "is not just a drug trafficker in Martin County, he is the drug trafficker in Martin County" is not improper. Judges are routinely made aware of information which may not be properly considered in determining a cause. Our judicial system is dependent upon the ability of trial judges to disregard improper information and to adhere to the requirements of the law in deciding a case or in imposing a sentence. Landis v. State, 4D2023-0390 (12/11/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444645/opinion/Opinion_2023-0390.pdf

VOP-CONDITIONS: Court may not revoke probation based upon defendant's failure to remain confined to his approved residence after curfew and his failure to obey instructions from his probation officer. Although these are standard conditions of probation, the trial court did not orally pronounce these conditions at sentencing, nor were these conditions included in the written sentencing order. Okwor v. State, 4D2023-0495 (12/11/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444622/opinion/Opinion_2023-0495.pdf

VOP: Court cannot revoke probation for violating a condition unilaterally imposed by his probation supervisor under the general condition requiring compliance with a probation supervisor's instructions. TRIAL-REMOVAL FROM COURTROOM: Defendant who routinely interrupted the trial judge and spoke out of turn, even after multiple warnings,

PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: The holding in Lewars--that release from jail rather than prison does not qualify Defendant for later PRR sentencing– does not apply retroactively. Conflict certified. Linden v. State, 4D2024-1544 (12/11/24)

CIVIL LIABILITY-SOCIAL MEDIA: Where the complaint fails to allege actual knowledge, online social media platform that randomly places anonymous people in video chatrooms where some (known as “cappers”) induce children to perform sex acts online is not civilly liable for knowingly possessing child pornography nor knowingly benefitting from participation in a sex trafficking venture. M.H. v. Omegle.com, No. 22-10338 (11th Cir. 12/9/24)

EVIDENCE-ARGUMENT: Where a video is admitted into evidence but only a part of it published--the balance was objected to as not authenticated--Defendant may not publish during closing argument, nor invite the jury to view during deliberations, the unpublished portions. "Simmons relies on the fact that the entire exhibit had already been admitted into evidence, but that does not move the needle. The district court was operating well within its discretion here when it concluded that Simmons was trying to introduce new evidence rather than summarize and argue from evidence the jury had already heard." VOP: Defendant did not willfully violate probation by not reporting to the probation office within 72 hours when the office had relocated, he was given an incorrect address, and he tried to report there. Del Corral v. State, 5D2023-2205 (12/6/24)

VOP: Before a probationer can be imprisoned for failure to pay a monetary obligation such as restitution, the trial court must inquire into a probationer's ability to pay and make an explicit finding of willfulness. In all probation revocation proceedings in which the violation alleged is a failure to pay a monetary obligation, the State must present sufficient evidence of the probationer's willfulness, which includes evidence on ability to pay, to support a finding of willfulness. AUTOPSY PHOTOS: Where photographs are relevant, Court must determine whether the gruesomeness of the portrayal is so inflammatory as to create undue prejudice. Crime scene and autopsy were relevant to explain the crime scene and to show the victim's position (standing and at close range) when shot. Harris v. State, 1D2023-0027 (12/4/24)

TEXT MESSAGES-AUTHENTICITY: The requirement that evidence be authenticated as a condition of its admissibility is satisfied by evidence sufficient to support a finding that a matter in question is what its proponent claims. Text messages on witness's phone and identified as coming from Defendant are sufficiently authenticated. Harris v. State, 1D2023-0027 (12/4/24)

INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE-APPELLATE COUNSEL: There cannot be a cognizable claim for ineffective assistance of appellate counsel once a panel of the appellate court, in the underlying appeal, has conducted the Anders review to discover any arguable issues. Martin v. State, 1D2024-0261 (12/4/24)

MISTRIAL: The granting of a motion for mistrial is not based on whether the error is prejudicial. Rather, the comments must either deprive the defendant of a fair and impartial trial, materially contribute to the conviction, be so harmful or fundamentally tainted as to require a new trial, or be so inflammatory that they might have influenced the jury to reach a more severe verdict than that it would have otherwise. EXPERT/LAY WITNESS: When a witness testifies in a dual capacity, i.e., as both a lay witness and an expert witness, the district court must ensure that the lay opinions satisfy R. 701 and that the expert opinions satisfy R. 702. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

EXPERT-GANGS: Court erred in excluding Defendants' expert on gangs to rebut Government's extensive evidence suggesting that their Miami gang activity was affiliated with the Bloods gang or a Bloods-affiliated gang. "In the law, what's sauce for the goose is normally sauce for the gander." Where the government presents evidence to support a certain theory, a defendant is entitled to rebut that theory with evidence of his own. Expert testimony can be used to counter an opponent's fact or lay opinion testimony. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

EXPERT: With the exception of testimony on the mental state or condition of a defendant, there is no categorical prohibition on expert testimony concerning an ultimate issue of fact. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

EXPERT-RICO: In RICO case, Defendants' qualified expert in criminal gangs should have been allowed to give his opinion that the gang was not a criminal enterprise involved in or affecting interstate commerce. Just because an element of an offense has a legal definition (or prescribed legal parameters) does not mean that it is transformed into a question of law. USA v. ON THE OTHER HAND...: "We pause for a moment here to note that several circuits have held that the existence of an enterprise is not an element of a §1962(d) conspiracy. . .But others have come to a different conclusion. . .Some of our decisions suggest the that the existence of an enterprise is not an element of a §1962(d) offense. . . But one of our early cases points in a different direction." USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

RICO-ENTERPRISE: In addition to predicate crimes, a RICO conspiracy charge requires proof of an enterprise, of the continuing racketeering activity, and of the defendant's knowledge of, agreement to, and participation in the conspiracy. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

RICO-ENTERPRISE: An enterprise must have an ascertainable structure beyond that inherent in the pattern of racketeering activity in which it engages. An association-in-fact enterprise must have at least three structural features: a purpose, relationships among those associated with the enterprise, and longevity sufficient to permit these associates to pursue the enterprise's purpose. CONSPIRACY: 21 U.S.C. §846 does not require proof that a coconspirator commit an overt act in furtherance of the conspiracy. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-INCIDENT TO ARREST: Where Defendant is handcuffed and taken to police station for questioning, gun may be seized incident to arrest even though officers subjectively believed Defendant was not under arrest or that he went to the police station "voluntarily" while handcuffed in the back of a police car. The character of a seizure as arrest or Terry stop depends on the nature and degree of intrusion, not on whether the officer pronounces the detainee "under arrest." USA v. ARREST-PROBABLE CAUSE: Defendant may be lawfully arrested for driving an unregistered vehicle in violation of §320.02, a second-degree misdemeanor. SEVERANCE: As a general rule, defendants who are indicted together are usually tried together. A defendant does not suffer compelling prejudice, sufficient to mandate a severance simply because much of the evidence at trial is applicable only to co-defendants. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

JURORS-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE-BATSON: In evaluating a claim that a peremptory strike is racially discriminatory: First, a defendant must make a prima facie showing that a peremptory challenge has been exercised on the basis of race. Second, if that showing has been made, the prosecution must offer a race-neutral basis for striking the juror in question. Third, in light of the parties' submissions, the trial court must determine whether the defendant has shown purposeful discrimination. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

JURORS-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE-BATSON: In assessing discriminatory intent, Court should consider how reasonable, or how improbable, the explanations are; and by whether the proffered rationale has some basis in accepted trial strategy. Other relevant factors at include (1) statistical evidence about the prosecutor's use of peremptory strikes against black prospective jurors as compared to white prospective jurors in the case; (2) evidence of a prosecutor's disparate questioning and investigation of black and white prospective jurors in the case; (3) "side-by-side comparisons of black prospective jurors who were struck and white prospective jurors who were not struck in the case; (4) a prosecutor's misrepresentations of the record when defending the strikes during the Batson hearing; and (5) other relevant circumstances. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

JURORS-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE-BATSON: No discriminatory intent is shown where nearly 1/3 of the jury pool was black and the jury ultimately selected was 1/3 black. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

JURORS-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE-BATSON: No discriminatory intent shown where the "government took some liberties in describing some of the prospective Black jurors' answers, but its descriptions were not a 'series of factually inaccurate explanations.'" Mistaken explanations should not be confused with racial discrimination. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

JURORS-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE-BATSON: A juror's familiarity with—and thus potential bias for or against—the particular geographic setting of a case (and the defendants who hail from that area) can be a legitimate reason for the use of a peremptory strike. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

ISSUE-PRESERVATION: Where Court denied motion in limine without prejudice and advised Defendant to reassert the objection at trial, but he did not, he did not preserve the issue. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

EVIDENCE-SOCIAL MEDIA POSTS: Defendant's social media post ("My uncle fish gave me the game, my Aunte Danielle showed me the way, and ma n*s got me this far.") is admissible as a statement against Defendant's interest. "It is true that there is nothing facially self-inculpatory about Jerimaine's Facebook post. . .But a 'facially neutral statement[ ] might actually be against a declarant's interest. . . And a statement's context elucidates its meaning. . . '[T]he game" likely meant 'narcotics sales.'" USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

CONFRONTATION CLAUSE: Admission of Facebook post as a prior consistent statement does not violate the Confrontation Clause. "Simply put, Jerimaine could not have reasonably anticipated that a social media post, made years before his arrest, would be used in court. The statement is therefore nontestimonial and the Confrontation Clause does not apply." USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

HEARSAY-PRIOR CONSISTENT STATEMENT: A prior consistent statement by a witness is not hearsay if (1) the declarant testifies and is subject to cross-examination on the statement; and (2) the statement is consistent with the declarant's testimony and is offered to rebut an express or implied charge that the declarant recently fabricated it or acted from a recent improper influence or motive in so testifying. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

EVIDENCE-REHABILITATION: R. 801(d)(1)(B) does not limit the scope of rehabilitation to the precise issues on which witness was impeached. The scope of the use of a recording for rehabilitation is within the discretion of the court. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

ADOPTIVE ADMISSION: The issue is close, but Court did not abuse its discretion in admitting Defendant's "giggle and smirk" reaction to a co-conspirator's statement about participating in a murder. Non-verbal reactions like silence and a head-nod may be adoptive admissions. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

ADOPTIVE ADMISSION: When a statement is offered as an adoptive admission, Court must determine as a whether (1) the statement was such that, under the circumstances, an innocent defendant would normally be induced to respond and (2) there are sufficient foundational facts from which the jury could infer that the defendant heard, understood, and acquiesced in the statement. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

APPEAL-ISSUE: Where Appellants insufficient brief and argue an issue, it will not be considered on appeal. Appellants "do not tell us with sufficient specificity what 'other acts' were actually and improperly introduced against them at trial; for what purpose those 'other acts' were presented; and when during the trial those 'other acts' were introduced. Saying that they included acts of mugging, auto theft, fleeing and eluding, possession of firearms, etc. is not enough." To properly present an issue on appeal, appellants must identify exactly the evidence they challenge. "We decline to sift through a transcript of nearly 8,000 pages to figure out and resolve their arguments." And specifying those matters in the reply brief is too late. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

RULE OF SEQUESTRATION: A violation of the rule of sequestration does not require the automatic exclusion of testimony. Court erred in excluding testimony of witness who viewed parts of the trial before changing her mind about testifying. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

APPEAL-HARMLESS ERROR: Where Government fails to argue on appeal harmless error, the appellate court has discretion to sua sponte determine whether an error is harmless. But that discretion is not an obligation. "Nothing about this case is amenable to a sua sponte review for harmlessness. . .The trial transcript is nearly 8,000 pages long, and the exhibit pages number in the thousands. . .To determine the effect of the exclusion of Dr. de la Cruz on the six defendants convicted of the RICO conspiracy charge, we would have to sift through the voluminous record. . .--a task not generally befitting of an appellate court." USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

FAIR TRIAL: "We do not vacate convictions in cases like this one lightly. And we appreciate the immense undertaking required of all parties to bring this case to trial, and acknowledge that it would be equally or even more burdensome to do it again years later. But paramount to our sensitivity for the government's limited resources and the district court's docket is our duty to ensure that the defendants receive a fair trial." USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

RICO-UNANIMOUS VERDICT: For a RICO conspiracy charge the jury need only be unanimous as to the types of racketeering acts that the defendants agreed to commit. It is not necessary to prove the specific predicate acts that supported a RICO conspiracy charge in order to prove a defendant's participation in a RICO conspiracy. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

RICO: Government does not have to establish that each conspirator explicitly agreed with every other conspirator to commit the substantive predicate RICO crime described in the indictment. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)

RICO: One who uses a gang handshake may be regarded as a gang member. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

RICO-JUVENILE: Defendant may be found guilty of RICO notwithstanding that a large portion conspiracy occurred while he was a juvenile and therefore were delinquencies rather than felonies. When there was one continuous conspiracy and the defendant's membership in that conspiracy straddled his 18th birthday, his juvenile acts can be the sole basis for guilt. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

SENTENCING: A RICO conspirator may be held accountable for his co-conspirator's actions (here, murder) if they were reasonably foreseeable and in furtherance of the conspiracy, even if he did not personally participate in those actions. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-DRUG QUANTITY: A drug quantity may be based on the lowest estimated figures for daily sales. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

RICO-PARTICIPATION-DRUG QUANTITY: "Bryant asserts that he should not be held accountable for crack cocaine sold during the three years he spent in prison after joining the DSBF in 2010. The evidence, however, showed that he joined the narcotics conspiracy as early as 2010 and, other than his self-serving assertion to the contrary, he provided no evidence to establish that he withdrew from the conspiracy when he went to prison." Neither arrest nor incarceration automatically triggers withdrawal from a conspiracy. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

SENTENCING-FIREARM-ENHANCEMENT: Firearm enhancement should be applied if the weapon was present, unless it is clearly improbable that the weapon was connected with the offense. Proximity between guns and drugs alone is sufficient for the enhancement. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-ENHANCEMENT-THREAT OF VIOLENCE: A single incident of violence is enough for application of the threat of violence enhancement. USA v. Graham, No. 19-10332 (11th Cir. 12/2/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201910332.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS-PRETRIAL DETENTION-NEBBIA HEARING: Court may not maintain a Nebbia hold on Defendant after bondsman and Defendant's mother established that the funds for the bond came from a non-criminal sources (social security check, her checking account, and some funds that were sent to her from friends and relatives). Mother's ability to pay the promissory note to the bail bondsman is not relevant to the Nebbia analysis. Her ongoing financial status has nothing to do with whether the funds used to post the appearance bond were derived from illegal sources, and verges on the proscription against pretrial detention merely for being indigent. Jenkins v. State, 3D2024-1998 (12/2/24)

HABITUAL OFFENDER: Defendant may not be habitualized on the basis of a prior conviction that did not sufficiently identify him by anything except the name. A certified copy of conviction with illegible fingerprints, no picture no date of birth nor a Social Security number is insufficient. State can prove that a prior conviction belongs to a defendant in several ways, such as fingerprint analysis, photographic evidence, or social security number, but may not be proved by name identity alone. Williams v. State, 4D2023-2253 (12/4/24)

SENTENCING: Court's oral pronouncement of a sentence controls over the written sentencing document. When the written document results in a sentence that is more severe than the sentence announced in court, the sentence is illegal. Dimitrion v. State, 4D2023-2259 (12/4/24)
https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444250/opinion/Opinion_2023-2259.pdf

INVESTIGATIVE COSTS: Court may not impose $50 investigative costs if requested by the law enforcement agencies. A prosecutor cannot seek costs on behalf of an agency without that agency's request. Dimitrion v. State, 4D2023-2259 (12/4/24)
https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444250/opinion/Opinion_2023-2259.pdf

EVIDENCE-OTHER BAD ACTS: In car burglary/robbery with a shooting case, Williams Rule evidence of forty or fifty other car burglary/robberies committed by the Defendant while wearing a mask is inadmissible as in sufficiently similar and unduly prejudicial, particularly where the testimony about the earlier burglaries came from a flipping codefendant without corroboration. Music v. State, 4D2024-0018 (12/4/24)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444257/opinion/Opinion_2024-0018.pdf

INCOMPETENCE-COMMITMENT: Court's findings that Defendant "meets the criteria for commitment. . .and restoration of competency related abilities" based on being "clearly delusional. . . [with] irrational beliefs and opinions," and having "no family or friends in Jacksonville" and no place to live fall short of making the required specific findings. Involuntary commitment quashed. D.L.D. v. State, 5D2024-2623 (12/3/24)

NOVEMBER 2024

JUDGE-DISCIPLINE: A 60-day suspension without pay and a public reprimand imposed on the judge who yelled at a litigant who was trying to find a seat ("[C]ould you shut up and sit down. . .You want to be held in contempt and go to jail? I asked you a fg question, ae."). Judges must conduct themselves with integrity and be patient, dignified, and courteous toward others in official settings. Inquiry Concerning a Judge re: Hon. Wayne Culver, SC2022-0846(11/27/24)
https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444076/opinion/Opinion_SC2022-0846.pdf

JUDGE-DISCIPLINE: A 25-day suspension without pay and a public reprimand imposed on a judge who ran on a platform that he would support law enforcement and that criminals would not be happy to see him on the bench. A judicial candidate may not impliedly pledge to favor law enforcement. There are few campaign tactics more corrosive to the integrity and impartiality of the judicial system than a candidate broadcasting his or her support for one party or another. Inquiry Concerning a Judge re: Hon. John B. Flynn, SC2023-1435 (11/27/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Convictions for both first-degree and second-degree murder violates double jeopardy. First-degree felony murder and second-degree murder are degrees of the same offense. Gould v. State, 1D2023-0821 (11/27/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-FUNDAMENTAL ERROR: A double jeopardy violation is fundamental error that may be addressed for the first time on appeal. Gould v. State, 1D2023-0821 (11/27/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444025/opinion/Opinion_2023-0821.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVED ISSUE: Although the trial court failed to make the required written findings on whether Defendant posed a danger to the community, he failed to preserve the issue by filing a motion to correct. Norman v. State, 1D2023-1069 (11/27/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444026/opinion/Opinion_2023-1069.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: When a defendant challenges a conviction by asserting ineffective assistance of counsel, he must show that there is a reasonable probability that, but for counsel's unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would have been different. Defendant, who had beaten his cellmate to death over the course of days cannot show prejudice. "An assessment of the likelihood of a result more favorable to the defendant must exclude the possibility of arbitrariness, whimsy, caprice, 'nullification,' and the like. A defendant has no entitlement to the luck of a lawless decisionmaker." Johnson v. State, 1D2023-1640 (11/27/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444027/opinion/Opinion_2023-1640.pdf

MANDAMUS: Court must rule on Defendant's motion to mitigate, notwithstanding that it was not separately docketed with the circuit court; it is considered filed on the date it was conveyed to prison officials for mailing. Shirah v. State, 1D2023-1833 (11/27/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444029/opinion/Opinion_2023-1833.pdf

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444030/opinion/Opinion_2023-2080.pdf

APPEAL-INMATE: Access to a prison law library is not necessary to prepare and transmit a simple notice of appeal and lack of that access did not demonstrate a right to a belated appeal. Edenfield v. State, 1D2024-2191 (11/27/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444052/opinion/Opinion_2024-2191.pdf

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS: Court may not consider dismissed charges, unsubstantiated allegations of misconduct, or speculation about defendant committing future crimes. Court improperly considered charges that had been dropped in prior shootings involving the Defendant in determining the sentence. If the record is at all unclear whether a trial court considered improper sentencing factors, the sentence must be reversed. Alhasani v. State, 2D2023-1525 (11/27/24)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444008/opinion/Opinion_2023-1525.pdf

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS: Reliance on improper sentencing factors is a due process violation that results in fundamental error; an appellant raising such an argument is not required to have preserved that argument below. Alhasani v. State, 2D2023-1525 (11/27/24)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444008/opinion/Opinion_2023-1525.pdf

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: No part of the time that the defendant is on probation or in community control shall be considered as any part of the time that he or she shall be sentenced to serve. Probation is a minimal restraint on liberty compared with incarceration, and a probationary period is not considered to be a "sentence." Kelly v. State, 2D2024-1934 (11/27/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444011/opinion/Opinion_2024-1934.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Where an initial motion for post-conviction relief raises the claim of ineffective assistance of counsel, the trial court may summarily deny a successive motion which raises additional grounds for ineffective assistance. Barrett v. State, 3D24-0546 (11/27/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444044/opinion/Opinion_2024-0546.pdf

JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION: When a trial judge's spouse or immediate family member is employed by the State Attorney's Office in the same judicial circuit where the trial judge is presiding over criminal cases and does not have supervisory authority over prosecutors appearing before the judge, recusal of the trial judge is not required. Guzzi v. State, 3D24-0659 (11/27/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444062/opinion/Opinion_2024-0659.pdf

VFOSC: Where a court orally pronounces a reason for its finding that the defendant, as a violent felony offender or of special concern, poses a danger to the community, but fails to provide written reasons for its finding, the proper remedy is to affirm the revocation of the defendant's probation, but remand for entry of a written order conforming to the court's oral pronouncement. Resentencing is not required. Hart v. State, 4D2023-1691 (11/27/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444064/opinion/Opinion_2023-1691.pdf

DISMISSAL-INVITED ERROR: Where State reneged on its waiver of jury trial and refused to call witnesses, Court may dismiss the case. In the absence of a motion to dismiss or a statute permitting the dismissal, the prosecutor generally has the sole discretion to dismiss criminal charges. But where the state refuses to proceed without a good faith reason, the trial court does not abuse its discretion by dismissing charges. "Here, the state never formally sought to revoke its consent to the jury trial waiver, waited until the day of trial to seek a jury trial, and did not move for a continuance. . .This cavalier refusal by the new ASA was compounded by her failure to suggest . . .a reasonable alternative. . .The state cannot now complain of error for which the state itself is responsible and which the state, in essence, invited the trial court to make." State v. Poitier, 4D2024-01206 (11/27/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Court may not summarily deny motion for postconviction relief without attaching records showing no entitlement for relief. Sending hearing and trial transcripts up on appeal is not enough. The State's argument requires that this Court replace the trial court and examine the record in the first instance, which would actually hurt judicial efficiency. To accept the State's position, the work of trial courts would shift to the appellate court, unfairly and adversely affecting other litigants. Jackson v. State, 4D2024-0126 (11/27/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Where Defendant voluntarily dismisses his motion for postconviction relief, Court errs in dismissing it with prejudice. Johnson v. State, 6D2023-1929 (11/27/24)
https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444083/opinion/Opinion_2023-1929.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-ABANDONMENT: Where Defendant abandoned backpack while fleeing, Officers did not need a warrant to open it and break the lock to the container in it. State v. Howard, 6D2023-4057 (11/27/24)
https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2444085/opinion/Opinion_2023-4057.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-ISSUE PRESERVATION-MARIJUANA: Defendant failed to adequately challenge the frisk of his person where the motion challenged only the search of the car based on the odor of marijuana. "[T]he item Simmons seeks to suppress—the firearm—was not found in the car. He has not presented us with any legal argument regarding why the search of his person was unlawful, and we are not at liberty to craft that argument for him." Simmons v. State, 2D2023-0953 (11/22/24)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443743/opinion/Opinion_2023-0953.pdf

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443743/opinion/Opinion_2023-0953.pdf

DICTA/HOLDING: A holding consists of those propositions along the chosen decisional path or paths of reasoning that (1) are actually decided, (2) are based upon the facts of the case, and (3) lead to the judgment. If not a holding, a proposition stated in a case counts as dicta. Any statement of law in a judicial opinion that is not a holding is dictum. Simmons v. State, 2D2023-0953 (11/22/24)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443743/opinion/Opinion_2023-0953.pdf

OTHER BAD ACTS-CHILD SEX ABUSE: When a defendant is charged with a crime involving child molestation, evidence of the defendant's commission of other crimes, wrongs, or acts of child molestation is admissible and may be considered for its bearing on any matter to which it is relevant. A defendant's commission of other acts of child molestation is admissible regardless of whether the charged and collateral offenses occurred in the familial context or whether they share any similarity. Court must make a finding of relevancy

(whether the evidence tends to prove or disprove a material fact) before performing the balancing test (probative value versus unfair prejudice). State v. Riggleman, 2D2024-0691 (11/22/24)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443753/opinion/Opinion_2024-0691.pdf

EVIDENCE-GENERAL CHARACTERISTICS: General criminal behavior testimony based upon an officer's experience with other cases is inadmissible as substantive proof of a defendant's guilt. General criminal behavior testimony used to show that a defendant's conduct mirrored that of other drug sellers is inadmissible. A defendant has a right to be tried based on the evidence against him or her, not on the characteristics or general behavior of certain classes of criminals. Lawrence v. State, 5D2023-3653 (11/22/24)

COSTS OF PROSECUTION: Imposition of the cost of prosecution is mandatory and need not be requested. Conflict recognized. J.S., A Child v. State, 5D2024-0295 (11/22/24)

https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443750/opinion/Opinion_2024-0295.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to pursue and file a mental health evaluation is legally insufficient where Defendant does not claim to be incompetent to stand trial, but he must be provided an opportunity to amend his claim. Villaba-Santos v. State, 5D2024-0875 (11/22/24)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443755/opinion/Opinion_2024-0875.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to retain an expert to rebut State's expert that the gun was functional is legally insufficient where Defendant does not allege the substance of an expert's testimony and how that omitted testimony prejudiced him, but he must be provided an opportunity to amend his claim. Villaba-Santos v. State, 5D2024-0875 (11/22/24)

https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443755/opinion/Opinion_2024-0875.pdf

COST OF PROSECUTION: Imposition of the statutorily specified minimum cost of prosecution is mandatory and State does not need to specifically request it. Beauty v. State, 5D2024-1166 (11/22/24)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443760/opinion/Opinion_2024-1166.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: A claim that should have been raised on direct appeal is procedurally barred. Mosley v. State, SC2023-1091 (11/21/24)
https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443730/opinion/Opinion_SC2023-1091.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Upon remand, Defendant may not raise a new claim of recently discovered evidence (that the medical examiner was impaired) which exceeds the scope of the remand. Mosley v. State, SC2023-1091 (11/21/24)
https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443730/opinion/Opinion_SC2023-1091.pdf

NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: To succeed on a claim of newly discovered evidence, Defendant must establish two prongs: first, that the evidence was not known by the trial court, the party, or counsel at the time of trial and it could not have been discovered through due diligence at the time of trial; and, second, that the newly discovered evidence is of such a nature that it would probably produce an acquittal on retrial. Here, it would not have. The mother was immolated and the child asphyxiated. Mosley v. State, SC2023-1091 (11/21/24)

APPEAL: Defendant may not appeal an order granting a judgment of acquittal. A party to the cause may appeal only from a decision that is in some respect adverse to him. Wakely v. State, 1D2023-0245 (11/20/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443644/opinion/Opinion_2023-0245.pdf

CONTINUANCE: When faced with a party's motion to continue for insufficient time to prepare for trial, a trial court should take account of the following factors: 1) the time available for preparation, 2) the likelihood of prejudice from the denial, 3) the defendant's role in shortening preparation time, 4) the complexity of the case, 5) the availability of discovery, 6) the adequacy of counsel actually provided, and 7) the skill and experience of chosen counsel and his pre-retention experience with either the defendant or the alleged crime. Rasmussen v. State, 1D2023-1984 (11/20/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443657/opinion/Opinion_2023-1984.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel is not ineffective for failing to call civilian witnesses to support Defendant's insanity due to anxiolytic withdrawal syndrome defense (she had abruptly stopped taking Xanax) where they would have undermined the timeline of the expert witness. Thomason v. State, 3D22-1991 (11/20/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443615/opinion/Opinion_2022-1991.pdf

STATEMENTS OF DEFENDANT: Generally, on-the-scene questioning which is customarily made by investigating officers during the fact-finding process does not constitute custodial interrogation because during this early on-the-scene investigatory stage, where the police have not focused on a suspect, and the questioning is not accusatory or has its core purpose the intent to elicit

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Strategic choices made after thorough investigation of law and facts relevant to plausible options are virtually unchallengeable and strategic choices made after less than complete investigation are reasonable precisely to the extent that reasonable professional judgments support the limitations on investigation. decisions are generally not subject to postconviction attack. A particular decision not to investigate must be directly assessed for reasonableness in all the circumstances, applying a heavy measure of deference to counsel's judgments. Thomason v. State, 3D22-1991 (11/20/24)

ARGUMENT: Courts allow attorneys wide latitude to argue to the jury during closing argument. Logical inferences may be drawn, and counsel is allowed to advance all legitimate arguments. Walker v. State, 3D23-0735 (11/20/24)

COSTS: Twenty-five dollar community service administrative fee as a special condition of probation must be stricken if not orally pronounced at sentencing; it is not specifically authorized by statute or rule. Guzman v. State, 4D2024-0791 (11/20/24)

DEATH PENALTY-EXECUTION: Execution by nitrogen hypoxia without sedation does not violate the Eighth Amendment. The Eighth Amendment does not demand the avoidance of all risk of pain in carrying out executions.

"There may exist a form of execution that induces psychological terror or pain that is severe enough to support an Eighth Amendment claim [but]. . .[n]othing in our Eighth Amendment jurisprudence suggests a special exemption for psychological terror or pain from the prohibition on cruelty." Grayson v. Commissioner, Alabama D.O.C., No. 24-13660 (11/18/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202413660.pdf

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS: Defendant is entitled to a new sentencing hearing before a different judge where Court considered nolle prossed cases and testimony about those cases. A sentence cannot stand if the sentencing judge considered constitutionally impermissible factors in arriving at the sentence. Relying on pending or dismissed charges, in effect deeming such charges established without proof or a conviction, violates a defendant's right to due process. Grant v. State, 5D2023-3019 (11/15/24)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443443/opinion/Opinion_2023-3019.pdf

VFOSC: Court must enter a written order as to whether Defendant, as a violent felony offender of special concern, poses a danger to the community. King v. State, 5D2024-0585 (11/15/24)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443445/opinion/Opinion_2024-0585.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Court may not summarily deny Defendant's claim that the Court erred in relying on certain predicate convictions to support adjudicating him as a Habitual Felony Offender. Court must conduct a hearing or attach portions of the record that conclusively refute Defendant's claim. Robinson v. State, 5D2024-1742 (11/15/24)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443448/opinion/Opinion_2024-1742.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Where Defendant alleged that the Court orally pronounced a sentence of thirty months but entered a written order imposing a 6.78 year sentence, the Court's order denying the motion to correct, merely stating that it had reviewed the recording of that proceeding in the motion and that it had no merit, is insufficient. Court must attach the sentencing transcript. Brown v. State, 5D2024-2036 (11/15/24)

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: R. 3.801 to correct credit for time served requires Defendant to seek relief within one year of the final sentence. Any procedural case law on jail credit preceding rule 3.801's enactment is irrelevant. No manifest injustice results from Defendant's failure to follow established procedural rules. Murray v. State, 6D2023-1816 (11/15/24)

INCONSISTENT VERDICTS: Where jury found the Defendant guilty of committing sexual battery on the victim by penetrating her vagina with his penis but also made a special verdict finding that he did not penetrate the victim's vagina with his penis during the course of committing the offense (Defendant neither objected to the verdict nor filed a motion for arrest judgment), the verdict is truly inconsistent. Where the jury finds the defendant guilty of a charge but also makes a specific verdict finding that directly negates a necessary element of that charge, the verdicts are truly inconsistent and is fundamental error. DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Convictions for Soliciting a Person Believed to Be a Child to Commit an Illegal Act and Transmitting Material Harmful to a Minor do not violate Double Jeopardy. Each offense has different elements. Blockburger. State v. Banda, 6D2023-4217 (11/15/24)

JOA-RACKETEERING-ENTERPRISE: Deputy who planted narcotics on people during multiple traffic stops for years cannot be convicted of RICO. The RICO Act does not criminalize one person's use of his or her place of employment to commit related crimes. Under the RICO Act, the State must prove that the enterprise in which the defendant is alleged to have participated or been employed by was being used by at least two persons with the understood purpose of accomplishing some illegal objective or end. Question certified. Wester v. State, 1D2021-2114 (11/13/24) http://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443265/opinion/Opinion_2021-2114.PDF

RICO-GRAMMAR: The plain language of the RICO statute and its syntax dictate that a RICO violation is dependent on "any person" being associated with an enterprise. "The Legislature's deliberate use. . . of the ordinary term 'person' along with the distributive determiner 'any' requires recognition of its singular tense. But the 'any person" reference should not be interpreted blindly as declaring the Act's applicability to a sole bad actor, as such an application eviscerates the remaining provision of the statute. Logically, the use of the singular noun "person" may indicate a charging or procedural component." Wester v. State, 1D2021-2114 (11/13/24) http://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443265/opinion/Opinion_2021-2114.PDF

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: The Harmonious-Reading Canon means that the provisions of a text should be interpreted in a way that renders them compatible, not contradictory. . .The imperative of harmony among provisions is more categorical than most other canons of construction because it is invariably true that intelligent drafters do not contradict themselves (in the absence of duress). Wester v. State, D2021-2114 (11/13/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443265/opinion/Opinion_2021-2114.pdf

EVIDENCE-GROOMING: CPT interviewer may give limited testimony defining grooming and giving examples of general behaviors that could constitute grooming. LESSER INCLUDED: A permissive lesser-included offense is one where the greater and lesser offenses appear to be separate on the face of the statutes, but the facts alleged in the accusatory pleadings are that the lesser offense cannot help but be perpetrated once the greater offense has been. McKee v. State, 1D2023-0607 (11/13/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443273/opinion/Opinion_2023-0607.pdf

LESSER INCLUDED: A court must instruct on a permissive lesser included offense, if requested, if the information alleges all the statutory elements of the permissive lesser included offense and there is some evidence adduced at trial establishing all of these elements. McKee v. State, 1D2023-0607 (11/13/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443273/opinion/Opinion_2023-0607.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant's postconviction claim that prosecution for capital sex battery must be by indictment rather than by information is not cognizable under R. 3.800(a). R. 3.800 is not the correct procedural vehicle for attacking the merits of an underlying criminal conviction. Voegele v. State, 1D2024-0341 (11/13/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Claim that life sentences for sexual battery on a child violate the constitutional prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment is not cognizable under rule 3.800(a). And even if it were cognizable, it wholly lacks merit. Voegele v. State, 1D2024-0341 (11/13/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443289/opinion/Opinion_2024-0341.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: A claim that the trial court improperly departed from the recommended sentencing guidelines may not be brought pursuant to R. 3.800(a) if the departure sentence is within the legal maximum because it does not constitute an illegal sentence. Birdsong v. State, 1D2024-0516 (11/13/24)

HABEAS CORPUS-COMPETENCY-COMMITMENT: A defendant who has been involuntarily committed to state hospital as incompetent may seek pro se habeas corpus relief notwithstanding that he is represented by counsel on the underlying criminal case. McDaniel v. State, 2D2024-0672 (12/13/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel has a duty to make reasonable investigations or to make a reasonable decision, but a particular decision not to investigate must be directly assessed for reasonableness in all the circumstances, applying a heavy measure of deference to counsel's judgments. Lugo v. State, 3D23-0454 (11/13/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443286/opinion/Opinion_2023-0454.pdf

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: A motion to correct sentence to account for prison time is governed by R. 3.800(a), not R. 3.801. Lloyd v. State, 3D24-1150 (11/13/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443299/opinion/Opinion_2024-1150.pdf

CONFRONTATION-ZOOM: The right of confrontation is violated where U.S. Marshall testifies by Zoom from Texas. Staff shortages and convenience are legally insufficient justifications to satisfy the necessity analysis. The fact that a witness resides in a state other than Florida does not mean that the witness is beyond the territorial jurisdiction of Florida. But error here is harmless because the witness gave limited testimony, which the defense apparently did not find significant enough to merit cross examination. encounter. Lopez v. State, 4D2023-0104 (11/13/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443302/opinion/Opinion_2023-0104.pdf

CONFRONTATION (J. ARTAU, CONCURRING): "The Confrontation Clause 'comes to us on faded parchment' and has 'a lineage that traces back to the beginnings of Western legal culture[,]' at least as early as the Roman Empire. . .As the Roman Governor Festus put it, 'It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man up to die before the accused has met his accusers face to face'" Lopez v. State, 4D2023-0104 (11/13/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443302/opinion/Opinion_2023-0104.pdf

CONFRONTATION (J. ARTAU, CONCURRING): The word "confront" has two Latin roots: (1) "con" and (2) "frons." The prefix "con" is derived from "contra," meaning "against" or "opposed," and the noun "frons" means "forehead." Thus, the word "confront" necessarily requires a face-to-face encounter. Lopez v. JUROR MISCONDUCT: Defendant is entitled to a mistrial where a juror googled the defendant on the Internet, saw that he was a felon, and told other jurors that she had looked him up. Green v. State, 4D2023-0774 (11/13/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443313/opinion/Opinion_2023-0774.pdf

RESISTING LEO: To be guilty of unlawfully resisting an officer, an individual who flees must know of the officer's intent to detain him, and the officer must be justified in making the stop at the point when the command to stop is issued. The vague description from an untested CI that someone named "Nephew" was going to sell drugs does not justify the stop of someone whom officers believed to be "Nephew" without testimony as to why they believed that. Rivera v. State, 2D2023-2053 (11/8/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CLOSED CONTAINER: Warrantless search of closed containers removed from detainee's person is unlawful. Even if the arrest is lawful, search of an item from which a defendant has been physically separated cannot be upheld as a search incident to the defendant's arrest. Rivera v. State, 2D2023-2053 (11/8/24)

APPEAL-JURISDICTION-RESTITUTION: Trial court lacks jurisdiction to enter a restitution order wile an appeal of the underlying conviction is open. Lutgens v. State, 5D2023-1924 (11/8/24)

APPEAL: Defendant may not file a motion to correct sentencing error while an appeal is pending after the party's first brief is served, nor may he strike his initial brief to circumvent the rule. Ashford v. State, 5D2024-0070 (11/8/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-ODOR OF MARIJUANA-GOOD FAITH: Although the odor of cannabis alone can no longer be the sole basis supporting reasonable suspicion for an investigatory detention, because the deputy reasonably relied on binding precedent at the time of the arrest, the search of the back seat passenger upon officer's smell of marijuana comes within the good-faith exception and is not properly subject to the exclusionary rule. Leggett v. State, 5D2024-0527 (11/8/24)

COMPETENCY: Where defense counsel's motion for a competency evaluation does not provide reasonable grounds to believe that Defendant is not mentally competent to proceed, failing to hold a competency hearing is not fundamental error. Richardson v. State, 1D2022-1743 (11/6/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442996/opinion/Opinion_2022-1743.pdf

ISSUE PRESERVATION: Defendant may not appeal the admission into evidence of a video where he had not moved to exclude or otherwise objected to its admission. Acosta v. State, 3D23-0434 (11/6/24)
https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443011/opinion/Opinion_2023-0434.pdf

EVIDENCE: Videos of Defendant's Trump flags were admissible to show motive where Defendant yelled at the victim that Biden was a child molester, called him a Mexican child rapist, tore down his Biden flag, chased him at 60 MPH on jet skis, shot at him and, after the victim fell in the water, pointed the gun at him while commanding him to admit that he was a child molester. And then he took his jet ski. Acosta v. State, 3D23-0434 (11/6/24)
https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443011/opinion/Opinion_2023-0434.pdf

ROBBERY: Defendant may be convicted of robbery of the victims' jet ski when he took it after the victims were thrown off it and left treading water, and when it was floating away from them. Property is taken from the person or custody of another if it is sufficiently under the victim's control so that the victim could have prevented the taking if she had not been subjected to the violence or intimidation by the robber. The State presented sufficient evidence showing that the Defendant–he shot at them--instilled fear in the victims and this fear prevented them from swimming back to the jet ski. Acosta v. State, 3D23-0434 (11/6/24)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443011/opinion/Opinion_2023-0434.pdf

JOA-AFTERTHOUGHT DEFENSE: Defendant is not entitled to a judgment of acquittal on the basis of an"afterthought" defense where it was reasonable for the jury to find that the Defendant's goal was to take the jet ski. "The Defendant ripping the Biden flag off the victims' jet ski and his comments disparaging Biden could reasonably indicate he did not want the victims driving the jet ski around the island flying the Biden flag ever again." Acosta v. State, 3D23-0434 (11/6/24)
https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443011/opinion/Opinion_2023-0434.pdf

APPEAL-VIDEO REVIEW: A court can independently review a video and find that testimony allegedly contradicting that video is incompetent and insufficient in first-tier review of a DUI license suspension, but the law in Florida is currently unsettled as to whether, in other contexts, a court can review a video and independently find that it completely invalidates other evidence. Acosta v. State, 3D23-0434 (11/6/24)
https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443011/opinion/Opinion_2023-0434.pdf

VIDEO-EVIDENCE: "[T]he extent to which a video can ever conclusively show intent is questionable. Particularly here where the video is taken from far away and is grainy. The splash the Defendant claims was the result of the bullet landing, could also be the result of any number of things, including a fish jumping out of the water. Even if the splash was from the bullet hitting the water, its location merely suggests that the Defendant's aim was off. It does not indicate whether he intended to pull the trigger." Acosta v. State, 3D23-0434 (11/6/24)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443011/opinion/Opinion_2023-0434.pdf

APPEAL-REVIEW: The validity of the jury's finding on a question of fact that triggers a mandatory sentence (whether Defendant discharged a firearm) is not a technical issue and is reviewable on direct appeal. Acosta v. State, 3D23-0434 (11/6/24)
https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443011/opinion/Opinion_2023-0434.pdf

ASSAULT: The fact the victim did not testify, and thus could not describe or articulate any fear, does not bar a conviction for assault. Instead, if the circumstances are such as would ordinarily induce fear in the mind of a reasonable person, then the victim may properly be found to have been in fear. Richards v. State, 3D23-0957 (11/6/24)
https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442956/opinion/Opinion_2023-0957.pdf

JOA-OBSTRUCTION: Officer was in the lawful execution of a legal duty at the time he ordered Child to stop running away where the Child matched the description of a suspect in an armed robbery three days earlier and who had shown a gun in his pocket. The element of lawful execution of a legal duty is satisfied if an officer has either a founded suspicion to stop the person or probable cause to make a warrantless arrest. T.I.J., a Juvenile v. State, 3D23-1268 (11/6/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-REASONABLE SUSPICION: Reasonable suspicion is a less demanding standard than that for probable cause, and considerably less than proof of wrongdoing by preponderance of the evidence. When

Defendant, who matched the description of the suspect from an armed robbery in the area three days earlier, removed a concealed firearm from inside the pocket of his hoodie, threw it into the air and started to run away, there is reasonable suspicion. T.I.J., a Juvenile v. State, 3D23-1268 (11/6/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443009/opinion/Opinion_2023-1268.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-FWC: FWC has authority to stop boats to inspect licenses, registration, and safety equipment. A person's expectation of privacy in a motorboat is less than the same expectation of privacy in an automobile. State v. Vinokurov, 3D23-1930 (11/6/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2443041/opinion/Opinion_2023-1930.pdf

RESENTENCING-HFO: Upon resentencing, Court may take judicial notice of the testimony presented at the original sentencing hearing in support of a Habitual Offender sentence. Gilbert v. State, 4D2023-1359 (11/6/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442974/opinion/Opinion_2023-1359.pdf

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: A trial court's decision to grant a downward departure is a two-step process. First, the court must determine whether it can depart, i.e., whether there is a valid legal ground and adequate factual support for that ground in the case pending before it (step 1). Second, the trial court "must determine whether it should depart, i.e., whether departure is indeed the best sentencing option for the defendant. Coniglio v. State, 4D2023-1484 (11/6/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442975/opinion/Opinion_2023-1484.pdf

DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Court errs in finding that there is no legal reason to depart where two mental health experts testified that the defendant suffered from multiple psychiatric disorders, including PTSD from childhood sexual, and was determined to be 100% disabled by the VA as a result of these disorders. Defendant who is treated for both his psycho-sexual mental disorder and substance abuse qualifies for a downward departure. These are two separate treatments. Thus, his psycho-sexual mental disorder is unrelated to his alcohol abuse. Coniglio v. State, 4D2023-1484 (11/6/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442975/opinion/Opinion_2023-1484.pdf

DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: A court cannot refuse to consider a downward departure in child pornography cases as a general policy. Court's statements that "I find these child porn cases and child porn pictures to be a truly heinous crime creating multiple child victims" and that earlier cases caused him loss of sleep and appetite show lack of impartiality. "[T]rial judges are required to rise above the disturbing nature of these and other crimes and to provide every defendant a fair opportunity to be heard by an impartial judge who will consider only the evidence presented to the court within that case. Reversed and remanded for resentencing before another judge. Coniglio v. State, 4D2023-1484 (11/6/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442975/opinion/Opinion_2023-1484.pdf

COSTS OF PROSECUTION: Assessment of prosecution costs need not be supported by evidence if the defendant affirmatively agrees to pay the requested amount. Brown v. State, 4D2023-2886 (11/6/24)

PRO SE DEFENDANT-DEPOSITIONS: Upon good cause, pro se Defendant may conduct depositions. Court may not prohibit all discovery depositions by pro se defendant on the basis of R. 3.220(h)(7), which prohibits defendants' physical presence at depos, without discussing good cause or any particular witnesses. Gallagher v. State, 4D2024-1289 (11/6/24)

SAFETY VALVE: Defendant who cooperated, but was caught trafficking in narcotics again while sentencing remained pending, is eligible for safety valve. Under the plain text of the safety valve statute, a defendant's cooperation need not be disregarded because it was prompted by a government investigation or because it was not provided all at one time. The tell-all provision is not coextensive with acceptance of responsibility or substantial assistance. USA v. Maisonet, No. 22-13124 (11th Cir. 11/5/24)

SAFETY VALVE: The safety valve statute does not condition a defendant's eligibility on whether he has been caught in a lie or whether he has continued his criminal activity. The statute merely requires that the defendant provide all the information he has not later than the time of the sentencing hearing. USA v. Maisonet, No. 22-13124 (11th Cir. 11/5/24)

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT: ACCA mandates a 15-year minimum sentence for any defendant who possesses a firearm in violation of §922(g) and is an "armed career criminal," meaning they have 3 prior convictions for "violent felonies" or "serious drug offenses" committed on separate occasions. See § 924(e)(1). USA v. Lightsey, No. 20-13682 (11th Cir. 10/31/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013682.pdf

CATEGORICAL APPROACH: The categorical approach is applied to determine whether a defendant's prior state conviction is a predicate offense under ACCA, looking at the statutory definition of the state offense, not the facts of the crime as committed. A state conviction qualifies as a "serious drug offense" or "violent felony" only if the state statute of conviction defines the offense in the same way as, or more narrowly than, ACCA's definition. In other words, the least culpable conduct prohibited by the state statute must fall within ACCA's definition of the qualifying predicate offenses. USA v. Lightsey, No. 20-13682 (11th Cir. 10/31/24)

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT-CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE: ACCA defines a "serious drug offense," as "an offense under State law, involving manufacturing, distributing, or possessing with intent to manufacture or distribute, a controlled substance." The definition incorporates the law in effect at the time of the prior drug conviction—as to both the state statute and the federal drug schedules—and not the law in effect at the time of the subsequent § 922(g) conviction. A prior state drug conviction may constitute an ACCA predicate if the drugs on the federal and state schedules matched when the state drug offense was committed. USA v. Lightsey, No. 20-13682 (11th Cir. 10/31/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013682.pdf

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT-CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE-IOFLUPANE: Because at the time of his predicate conviction, both Florida

law and federal law criminalized ioflupane, it is an ACCA predicate offense. USA v. Lightsey, No. 20-13682 (11th Cir. 10/31/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013682.pdf

CATEGORICAL APPROACH-ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT-VIOLENT FELONY: ACCA defines a "violent felony" as any crime punishable by more than one year in prison and which "has as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the person of another." This definition comprises the "elements clause." Attempted armed robbery qualifies as a categorical crime of violence under ACCA's elements clause. USA v. Lightsey, No. 20-13682 (11th Cir. 10/31/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013682.pdf

PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE: Under the prior-panel precedent rule, a holding is binding on all subsequent panels unless and until it is overruled or undermined to the point of abrogation by the Supreme Court or by this court sitting en banc, even if the reasoning of an intervening high court decision is at odds with a prior appellate court decision. The Supreme Court holding that attempted Hobbs Act robbery (18 U.S.C. § 1951) is not a "crime of violence" under ACCA's elements clause is not a holding that Florida's attempted robbery is not a crime of violence. USA v. Lightsey, No. 20-13682 (11th Cir. 10/31/24)

CREEPILY DISCORDANT: "And, while Taylor's reasoning may creep towards that which we applied in Joyner, discordant reasoning provides an insufficient basis for departure from our precedent." USA v. Lightsey, No. 20-13682 (11th Cir. 10/31/24)

RULES-BAR-AMENDMENT-CLE/PRO BONO: R 6-10.3 is modified to allow lawyers to earn one hour of general CLE credit for every hour of pro bono service, up to five credit hours of CLE during a three-year reporting cycle, and no CLE credit will be awarded for monetary donations. In Re: Amendments to Rules Regulating the Florida Bar – Rule 6-10.3, SC2024-0964 (10/31/24) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442770/opinion/Opinion_SC2024-0964.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: AEDPA establishes a highly deferential standard for evaluating state-court rulings and demands that state-court decisions be given the benefit of the doubt. A federal habeas court cannot grant a state petitioner habeas relief on any claim that was adjudicated on the merits in state court unless the state court's adjudication of the claim: (1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or (2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding. "Clearly established Federal law" means the holdings, as opposed to the dicta, of the Supreme Court's decisions as of the time of the relevant state-court decision. Davis v. Commissioner, Alabama D.O.C., No. 18-14671 (11th Cir. 10/30/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201814671.pdf ub/files/201814671.pdf

AEDPA-DOUBLY DEFERENTIAL: Establishing that a state court's application of Strickland was unreasonable under AEDPA is all the more difficult because the standards created by Strickland and §2254(d) are both highly deferential, and when the two apply in tandem, review is doubly so. Davis v. Commissioner, Alabama D.O.C., No. 18-14671 (11th Cir. 10/30/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201814671.pdf ub/files/201814671.pdf

APPEAL: A party may not raise, and the Court will not consider, arguments not raised in a party's initial brief and made for the first time at oral argument. Davis v. Commissioner, Alabama D.O.C., No. 18-14671 (11th Cir. 10/30/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201814671.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: In death penalty case, even though counsel failed to discover or present significant mitigation evidence, it was not objectively unreasonable for the state court to conclude that there was no reasonable probability of a different outcome. Davis v. Commissioner, Alabama D.O.C., No. 18-14671 (11th Cir. 10/30/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201814671.pdf

INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE-DEATH PENALTY (J. BRANCH, CONCURRING): Counsel is not constitutionally required to go on a fishing expedition and scour a defendant's background to look for potential abuse when the defendant fails to mention such abuse to counsel. An attorney does not render ineffective assistance by failing to discover and develop evidence of childhood abuse that his client does not mention to him. Davis v. Commissioner, Alabama D.O.C., No. 18-14671 (11th Cir. 10/30/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201814671.pdf

INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE-DEATH PENALTY (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): "Counsel made two serious errors that may well have changed the outcome of the penalty phase. . .from life imprisonment to death. Neither error stemmed from a strategic choice. Rather, they both resulted directly from counsel's ignorance of the law and failure to investigate as a competent attorney would have." Davis v. Commissioner, Alabama D.O.C., No. 18-14671 (11th Cir. 10/30/24)

INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE-DEATH PENALTY (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): "Based solely on the fact that Davis and his abusive mother did not affirmatively volunteer that she had abused him, the state courts went so far as to accuse Davis of deliberately misleading trial counsel and participating in a 'conspiracy of silence' with his mother and family to hide his abuse. . .The Concurring Opinion endorses this fiction, again blaming Davis, his abusive mother, and his family members. . .But this conspiracy theory is like something out of another universe. . .[I]t is absurd to suggest. . .that Davis is somehow to blame for Lillie's failure to affirmatively volunteer the horrific abuse she inflicted upon Davis. . .Even if I wore a tin-foil hat, I couldn't understand how the Concurring Opinion and state courts' conclusion. . .—based on an implausible and outlandish conspiracy theory—is not unreasonable." Davis v. Commissioner, Alabama D.O.C., No. 18-14671 (11th Cir. 10/30/24)

APPEAL-POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Where there is no contemporaneous objection during a sentencing hearing and where the error does not qualify as a sentencing error that can be raised in a R. 3.800(b) motion, the error can still be considered and remedied on appeal if the error is fundamental. But even then, before a defendant can challenge on appeal that the plea was involuntary, he must first move to withdraw the plea in the trial court. Parker v. State, 1D2023-0760 (10/30/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442645/opinion/Opinion_2023-0760.pdf

CONSTITUTIONALITY: R. 3.800(b) can be used to allege that a sentencing statute was unconstitutional or to preserve Eighth Amendment claims. Parker v. State, 1D2023-0760 (10/30/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442645/opinion/Opinion_2023-0760.pdf

SENTENCING: Court's comparison of relative culpability of co-defendants does not deprive Defendant of her right to an individualized sentence determination. Parker v. State, 1D2023-0760 (10/30/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442645/opinion/Opinion_2023-0760.pdf

APPEAL-ISSUE PRESERVATION: The Statewide Prosecutor is not a principal prosecuting attorney of a political subdivision, and therefore lacks authority to procure a wiretap under the Federal Wiretap Act. But although Defendant raised the issue in his motion to suppress, he did not preserve it. "In both the plea colloquy and in the written plea agreement Wallace gave up his right to appeal anything. . .other than the legality of sentence yet to be imposed. Neither the transcript of his plea hearing, nor the written plea agreement included any reservation of Wallace's right to appeal the denial of the motion to suppress." Wallace v. State, 1D2024-1862 (10/30/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442656/opinion/Opinion_2024-1862.pdf

RECLASSIFICATION-FIREARM: Attempted premeditated murder and attempted felony murder are first-degree felonies but become life felonies if Defendant personally uses a firearm. If he discharges the firearm there is a 25-year mandatory minimum. Ragan v. State, 3D23-1042 (10/30/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442714/opinion/Opinion_2023-1042.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Dual convictions for attempted felony murder and attempted premeditated murder of a single victim is permissible under the Blockburger test and in light Maisonet-Maldonado, which eliminated the "single homicide victim" rule from Florida's double jeopardy jurisprudence. Unlike double jeopardy, the "single homicide rule" or related merger doctrine is not a principle of constitutional law but rather a principle of statutory construction. Ragan v. State, 3D23-1042 (10/30/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442714/opinion/Opinion_2023-1042.pdf

EVIDENCE-COLLATERAL CRIMES: Where Defendant used the same firearm in other crimes committed a week earlier and two weeks later, the evidence of those collateral crimes is admissible to prove identity. Ragan v. State, 3D23-1042 (10/30/24)

EVIDENCE-COLLATERAL CRIMES: Collateral crime evidence may not become a feature of the trial, but there is no singular test to determine when collateral crime evidence becomes an impermissible feature of trial. Considerations are the number of references the prosecution made to such evidence; whether the collateral crimes evidence was a focus of closing argument; and how the trial court, through its instructions, guided and limited the jury's consideration and use of this evidence. Collateral crimes evidence becomes an impermissible feature of the trial when the evidence transcends the bounds of relevancy to the charge being tried and the prosecution devolves from development of facts pertinent to the main issue of guilt or innocence into an assault on the character of the defendant. Ragan v. State, 3D23-1042 (10/30/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: In first-degree felony murder and aggravated child abuse case, Defendant is entitled to a hearing on the claim that victim had asthma. Beer v. State, 4D2023-1314 (10/30/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: To state a facially sufficient ineffective assistance claim based on counsel's failure to call a witness, the defendant must (1) identify the witness, (2) specify the content of their testimony, (3) allege that they were available to testify at trial, and (4) sufficiently allege that the failure to call them to testify resulted in prejudice. Beer v. State, 4D2023-1314 (10/30/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: In first-degree felony murder and aggravated child abuse case, Defendant is entitled to a hearing on the claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to preserve for appeal the claim that his due process rights were violated when he was convicted of an offense that was neither charged nor a necessarily lesser included offense of first-degree felony murder. Beer v. State, 4D2023-1314 (10/30/24)

HABEAS CORPUS-TIMELINESS-NUNC PRO NUNC-INESS: AEDPA creates a 1-year period of limitation to apply for a writ of habeas corpus from the date on which the judgment becomes final. When a state court issues an amended judgment or sentence nunc pro tunc to the date of the original judgment, her petition for writ of habeas corpus filed 12 years after the original judgment is untimely. The federal court must accept that designation and refrain from evaluating whether it was proper under state law. An amended sentence issued nunc pro tunc does not constitute a new judgment because it relates back to the date of the original judgment. Because the state court unambiguously issued Batson's amended sentences nunc pro tunc, her petition is untimely. Batson v. Florida D.O.C., No. 23-13367 (11th Cir. 10/28/24)

HABEAS CORPUS-TIMELINESS-NUNC PRO NUNC-INESS (J. HULL, CONCURRING): The clear intent of the state court was for the amended sentence to be nunc pro tunc because in two places the state court dated it as "done and ordered on August 8, 2012," the date of his original sentencing. But the words "nunc pro tunc" are required. Cassidy v. Sec'y, Florida D.O.C, No. 21-14257 (11th Cir. 10/28/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Where Court in its Order alluded to points raised in, and exhibits attached, to a State response hundreds of pages long, but did not attach any records conclusively demonstrating that Defendant was not entitled to relief to its order, it must attach these records if they exist or conduct an evidentiary hearing. Nicholas v. State, 6D2023-0681 (10/25/24)

REMOVAL TO FEDERAL COURT: Defendants indicted for interfering in the certification of the 2020 presidential election by issuing fraudulent elector certificates and claiming to be "contingent Republican Presidential Electors" acting with federal authority at the direction of Trump are not entitled to remove their state criminal prosecutions to federal court under the federal-officer removal statute. Even if nominated electors could be considered federal officers under the removal statute, the statute does not apply to former officers. The federal-officer removal statute applies only to current federal officers. State of Georgia v. Shafer, No. 23-13360 (11th Cir. 10/24/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202313360.pdf

REMOVAL TO FEDERAL COURT (J. ROSENBAUM, Concurring): Defendants—who assert they were "contingently elected presidential electors"—can't remove their Georgia criminal case to federal court because, they "were not 2020 presidential Electors, no matter the modifiers they add to the title. The people of Georgia did not vote for them to be Electors. Nor does the purported position of 'contingently elected presidential elector' exist in the Constitution or federal or state law. And Defendants were no more presidential Electors simply because they give themselves the title than Martin Sheen was ever the President because he went by President Bartlet." State of Georgia v. Shafer, No. 23-13360 (11th Cir. 10/24/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202313360.pdf

REMOVAL TO FEDERAL COURT: Former Acting Assistant Attorney General charged with state RICO for his role attempting to overturn presidential election is not entitled to removal to federal court as a "high-ranking U.S. Justice Department official." A former officer has no right of removal to federal court. The removal statute applies only to current officers. State of Georgia v. Clark, No. 23-13360 (11th Cir. 10/24/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202313368.pdf

REMOVAL TO FEDERAL COURT (J. ROSENBAUM, Concurring): "The federal-officer removal statute is not a get-out-of-state court-free card for federal officers." It allows a federal officer to remove his criminal prosecution from state court to federal court only if the action is for or relating to any act under color of office. But a defendant conspiring to interfere with the results of the 2020 Presidential election in violation of Georgia's RICO Act bears no connection to his positions at the United States Department of Justice. State of Georgia v. Clark, No. 23-13360 (11th Cir. 10/24/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: There are three separate guarantees embodied in the Double Jeopardy Clause. It protects against a second prosecution for the same offense after acquittal, against a second prosecution for the same offense after conviction, and against multiple punishments for the same offense. Dettle v. State, SC2022-0417 (10/24/24) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442452/opinion/Opinion_SC2022-0417.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: The holding in Lee--to determine whether multiple convictions of solicitation of a minor, unlawful use of a two-way communications device, and traveling after solicitation of a minor are based upon the same conduct for purposes of double jeopardy, the reviewing court must review only the charging document--does not apply retroactively. Dettle v. State, SC2022-0417 (10/24/24) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442452/opinion/Opinion_SC2022-0417.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-RETROACTIVITY: New rules of law announced by the Florida Supreme Court or the United States Supreme Court generally do not, normally, apply retroactively, unless the change: (a) emanates from this Court or the United States Supreme Court, (b) is constitutional in nature, and (c) constitutes a development of fundamental significance. Lee does not constitute a development of fundamental significance. Dettle v. State, SC2022-0417 (10/24/24) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442452/opinion/Opinion_SC2022-0417.pdf

JUROR INTERVIEW: Defendant is time-barred from conducting a post-conviction juror interview forty years later upon learning that the juror is the second cousin of a person who was married to the victim's sister. Rule 3.575 requires that a motion seeking to interview a juror be filed within 10 days after

https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442453/opinion/Opinion_SC2023-1683.pdf

DISCOVERY-RICHARDSON HEARING: When faced with an allegation of a discovery violation, the trial court is required to make an adequate inquiry into the totality of the circumstances, including whether the violation was inadvertent or willful, whether it was trivial or substantial, and most important, whether it prejudiced the opposition's ability to prepare for trial. Montgomery v. State, 2D202203874 (10/23/24)

SENTENCING-PREDETERMINATION: Court did not predetermine the sentence by commenting that it would put Defendant on probation but did not say for how long (court sentenced her to 330 days in county jail followed by two years of community control and two years of probation). Taylor v. State, 4D2023-1079 (10/23/24)

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-22 POINTS: A sentence of 330 days in county jail followed by two years of community control and two years of probation does not violate §775.082(10) (if the total sentence points are 22 points or fewer, the court must sentence the offender to a nonstate prison sanction). Taylor v. State, 4D2023-1079 (10/23/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to call an alibi witness. Holland v. State, 4D2024-0382 (10/23/24)

APPEAL: Where State appeals Defendant's motion for mistrial with prejudice, Defendant's attorney's motion to withdraw in the trial court does not relieve him from the responsibility of representation in the appellate court. Mercado v. Sec'y, DOC, No. 22-11903 (10/21/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211903_(2).pdf

AEDPA-INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE OF APPELLATE COUNSEL: AEDPA permits a district court to grant habeas relief on a claim that was adjudicated on the merits by a state court only if its decision was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as deter whommined by the Supreme Court of the United States. The phrase "clearly established Federal law" refers to the holdings, not the dicta. Petitioner must show far more than that the state court's decision was merely wrong or even clear error; the decision must be objectively unreasonable. Mercado v. Sec'y, DOC, No. 22-11903 (10/21/24)

AEDPA-INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE OF APPELLATE COUNSEL: Defendant/appellant's attorney's failure to file an answer brief in State's appeal of a judgment of acquittal does not entitle him to federal habeas corpus relief. Because the Supreme Court has never held that counsel's failure to file an answer brief is presumptively prejudicial, under AEDPA Petitioner is not entitled to habeas corpus relief. Mercado v. Sec'y, DOC, No. 22-11903 (10/21/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211903_(2).pdf

AEDPA (J. PRYOR, CONCURRING): "Mercado fell through the cracks in Florida's criminal justice system. After he secured a mistrial and an order barring retrial from the state trial judge who presided over his criminal trial, the State of Florida appealed. Mr. Mercado's counsel filed no brief or other response on Mr. Mercado's behalf because counsel believed that he had withdrawn from representing Mr. Mercado. In fact, he had not. Florida's Fifth District Court of Appeal then decided the State's appeal of the trial court's order barring retrial without any input whatsoever from Mr. Mercado. . .[I]t is beyond dispute that Mr. Mercado's Sixth Amendment rights were violated because he was denied the assistance of counsel at a critical stage in his criminal proceedings. . .But our review of Mr. Mercado's post-conviction challenge is circumscribed by. . .AEDPA. Mercado v. Sec'y, DOC, No. 22-11903 (10/21/24)

FIFTH DCA SCOLDED/DEFENDANT SCREWED (J. PRYOR, CONCURRING): "In the State's appeal, there was no adversarial testing of its argument at this critical stage that determined whether Mr. Mercado would be retried. The fact that there was "No Appearance for Appellee" in the appeal should have given the Florida appellate court pause—yet it proceeded to the merits anyway. . .By considering the State's appeal without any response from Mr. Mercado, the Florida Fifth District Court of Appeal allowed the State to point to and put its own gloss on any contradictory evidence, without any opposition from the defense to argue against its position and direct the court toward the evidence that led two trial court judges to conclude that the State intentionally provoked a mistrial by violating the trial court's redaction ruling. The appellate court thus 'deprived both [Mr. Mercado] and itself of the benefit of an adversary examination and presentation of the issues.'" Mercado v. Sec'y, DOC, No. 22-11903 (10/21/24)

DEATH PENALTY: The indictment does not need to allege the aggravating factors for imposition of the death penalty. Boatman v. State, SC2022-1547 (10/17/24)

JURY SELECTION-PUBLICITY: Individual voir dire to determine juror impartiality in the face of pretrial publicity is constitutionally compelled only if the trial court's failure to allow it renders the trial fundamentally unfair. Boatman v. State, SC2022-1547 (10/17/24)

VOIR DIRE-EVIDENCE: Court did not abuse its discretion in denying Defendant's motion to show a representative sample of crime scene and autopsy photographs to prospective jurors during voir dire and to question prospective jurors about their ability to deliberate fairly and impartially after viewing those photographs. STRIKING JURY PANEL: Defendant is not entitled to have the entire jury panel stricken when jury selection extended until 10:00 p.m., particularly where Defendant agreed to extending the voir dire into the night and the panel was given the choice to stay late or break for the night. Boatman v. State, SC2022-1547 (10/17/24)

CHALLENGE FOR CAUSE-APPEAL: Where Defendant supports his appeal of the denials of his challenges for cause with a transcript citation to where defense counsel, based on his recollection of the individual's responses, indicated the basis for the cause challenges, but does not mention the judge's differing recollection or provide citations to the individuals' actual responses, he waives the issue. Boatman v. State, SC2022-1547 (10/17/24)

STARE DECISIS-OMINOUS FORESHADOWING-DEATH PENALTY-CONFRONTATION: "This Court has broadly stated on several occasions that hearsay in the penalty phase must also satisfy the right to confrontation. . .Indeed, this Court has described as 'uncontroverted' the 'proposition that the Sixth Amendment right of confrontation applies to all three phases of the capital trial.'. . .We have no occasion here to reexamine our precedent, but we note that other courts disagree with that broad proposition." DEATH PENALTY-PREMEDITATION: Murder videos showing that Defendant procured two shanks in advance of the murder, blocked the dayroom door, and viciously attacked Victim for more than ten minutes before stomping on a shank in the back of his neck, along with his statement that he decided days earlier to kill him at the earliest opportunity, shows premeditation. SPEEDY TRIAL: Court improperly dismissed re-filed charges after State nolle prossed the original case due to witness unavailability and after Court denied its motion to continue. In view of the State's "right to nolle prosse," its actions could not be considered improper. State v. Oliff, 1D2023-1964 (10/16/24)

APPEAL-TIMELINESS: Rule 2.514(b) (when service is made by mail, 5 days are added to the times to act) does not apply to the 30-day period within which the notice of appeal must be filed because that period commences upon rendition of the challenged order rather than service of the order. Scott v. State, 1D2023-2978 (10/16/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-BOLO: Stop is lawful where citizen informant described the suspects as "four black males wearing shorts but no shirts" but Defendant was of mixed race and had a shirt on. State v. L.C., 2D2023-0634 (10/16/24)

CONTINUANCE: Where State filed an amended information adding a new charge of witness tampering five days before trial, on the Friday before jury selection, Defendant is entitled to a continuance. Defense counsel must be afforded an adequate opportunity to investigate and prepare any applicable defense. Santiago v. State, 2D2023-1150 (10/16/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-DUI MANSLAUGHTER-BLOOD DRAW: State is not entitled to draw blood without a warrant on exigent circumstances/inevitable discovery grounds. In DUI cases the dissipation of blood alcohol levels alone is not a legally cognizable exigency. State v. Harris, 2D2023-1430 (10/16/24)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442014/opinion/Opinion_2023-1430.pdf

QUARTERMAN AGREEMENT: Where Defendant entered a Quarterman agreement that the Court would not be bound by the plea agreement if Defendant failed to appear for sentencing, a non-willful failure to appear will not vitiate a plea agreement and permit the trial court to impose some greater sentence. The trial court must make a factual determination as to whether the failure to appear was willful. "[N]othing in the record contradicts Matos's explanation that she missed her originally scheduled sentencing hearing because she was suicidal, had sought help, and had been hospitalized that day. Given the lack of evidence that her failure to appear was willful and of any findings by the trial court as to willfulness, . . .the court erred in imposing a longer sentence than called for in the plea agreement." Matos v. State, 2D2023-2501 (10/16/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL-COVID: A crisis or emergency such as COVID constitutes a constitutionally valid reason for postponing trial. The fourfold balancing test in assessing potential speedy trial violations weighs the length of the delay between arrest and trial; the reasons for the delay; the timely assertion of speedy trial; and whether the defendant was prejudiced by delay attributable to the State. McCartney v. State, 3D22-1527 (10/16/24)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442036/opinion/Opinion_2022-1527.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVED ISSUE: Defendant may not argue on appeal that the item used did not constitute a firearm where he never made this argument to the trial court, either by motion for JOA or new trial. Azin v. State, 3D22-1622 (10/16/24)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442102/opinion/Opinion_2022-1622.pdf

JOA-PRESERVED ISSUE: A generalized motion for judgment of acquittal that State failed to establish a prima facie case is not enough. "Such boilerplate motions are of course legally insufficient." Azin v. State, 3D22-1622 (10/16/24)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442102/opinion/Opinion_2022-1622.pdf

JOA-FIREARM: The fact that no firearm was recovered does not compel a Judgment of Acquittal where victim testified he was slapped in the face with a pistol. Azin v. State, 3D22-1622 (10/16/24)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442102/opinion/Opinion_2022-1622.pdf

ARGUMENT-VOUCHING: State's argument that the victims "told the truth" is not improper vouching where the prosecutor was responding to defense counsel's theory of defense, which focused on attacking the victims' credibility and motives, including directly suggested one of the victims was lying to the jury. Azin v. State, 3D22-1622 (10/16/24)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2442102/opinion/Opinion_2022-1622.pdf

IMPROPER ARGUMENT-ISSUE PRESERVATION: Where State implied that Defendant had intimidated witnesses into not testifying, the defense objected and the court sustained the objection and directed the State to "move on," any issue of improper argument was not preserved in the absence of a motion for mistrial. A defendant who objects to prosecutor's comment in final argument must make a motion for mistrial at some point during closing argument or, at the latest, at the conclusion of the prosecutor's argument. Azin v. State, 3D22-1622 (10/16/24)

ISSUE PRESERVATION: In order to preserve a Confrontation Clause challenge for appeal, a defendant must object on Confrontation Clause grounds in the trial court. To preserve an error for appeal, three requirements must be met: First, a litigant must make a timely, contemporaneous objection. Second, the party must state a legal ground for that objection. Third, in order for an argument to be cognizable on appeal, it must be the specific contention asserted as legal ground for the objection, exception, or motion below. Burnell v. State, 3D22-1901 (10/16/24)

RECROSS EXAMINATION: Court has discretion whether to allow recross examination. Discretion is abused only when the judicial action is arbitrary, fanciful, or unreasonable, which is another way of saying that discretion is abused only where no reasonable person would take the view adopted by the trial court. Burnell v. State, 3D22-1901 (10/16/24)

JURY DELIBERATIONS: Videotaped out-of-court interviews with child victims introduced into evidence under §90.803(23) shall not be allowed into the jury room during deliberations. But there is no reviewable order where parties agreed to allow the jury to review the video alone in the empty courtroom. "Undoubtedly, the judicial best practice would have been for the trial judge to expressly inform Salgado-Mantilla of this right. . .The cases, however, do not go so far as holding that the failure to expressly inform the defendant on the record always constitutes fundamental error if other circumstances in the record indicate the waiver was knowing and voluntary." Defendant may seek R. 3.850 relief. Salgado-Mantilla v. State, 3D22-2151 (10/16/24)

APPEAL-INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE: Based on the plain language of section §924.051(3), unpreserved claims of ineffective assistance of counsel cannot be raised or result in reversal on direct appeal because the statute requires the more demanding showing of fundamental error. Felder v. State, 3D23-0634 (10/16/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: A motion to correct illegal sentence under R. 3.800(a) is not cognizable where the defendant seeks to challenge the validity of the conviction and, only by extension, the legality of the resulting sentence. An attack on the sufficiency of the evidence for the probation revocation is not cognizable in a R. 3.800(a) motion. Utile v. State, 3D23-2130 (10/16/24)

HABEAS CORPUS: Habeas corpus may not be used to raise issues which would be untimely if considered as a motion for postconviction relief under rule 3.850. The manifest injustice exception to revive otherwise procedurally barred claims applies only to an extraordinarily narrow category of claims and merely incanting the term does not make it so. LoCascio v. State, 3D23-2292 (10/16/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: The rationale for permitting brief, warrantless seizures is, after all, that it is impractical to demand strict compliance with the Fourth Amendment's ordinary probable-cause requirement in the face of ongoing or imminent criminal activity demanding swift action predicated upon the on-the-spot observations of the officer on the beat. Davis v. State, 3D24-0382 (10/16/24)

INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE-APPELLATE COUNSEL: There is a two-year limitation to file a petition for ineffective assistance of appellate counsel on direct review or four-year limitation where a petition alleges under oath with a specific factual basis that the petitioner was affirmatively misled about the results of the appeal by counsel. Milian v. State, 3D24-1676 (10/16/24)

INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE-APPELLATE COUNSEL: The requirements for establishing a claim based on ineffective assistance of appellate counsel parallel the standards announced in Strickland, i.e., petitioner must show 1) specific errors or omissions which show that appellate counsel's performance deviated from the norm or fell outside the range of professionally acceptable performance and 2) the deficiency of that performance compromised the appellate process to such a degree as to undermine confidence in the fairness and correctness of the appellate result. Milian v. State, 3D24-1676 (10/16/24)

INVESTIGATIVE COST: $50 Investigative cost may not be imposed unless the defendant affirmatively agrees to pay the requested amount, and the State is not authorized to request costs on behalf of an agency without that agency's request. Peterson v. State, 4D2023-2754 (10/16/24)

STAND YOUR GROUND: A person is immune from criminal prosecution for the use of deadly force against an animal where the person has a reasonable belief that such force is necessary to prevent imminent death or great bodily harm to himself or herself or another. §776.012(2)'s plain, unambiguous text does not require that the deadly force be used against a person, rather than against an animal. "And we will not add words limiting section 776.012(2)'s application to force solely against persons and not animals SYG immunity applies in cruelty to animals where Defendant shot an aggressive pit bull while defending himself and his own dog. STATUTORY INTERPRETATION-RULE OF THE LAST ANTECEDENT (J. ARTAU, CONCURRING): In holding that one is entitled to SYG immunity against an attacking dog, majority errs in applying the rule of lenity; it should have applied the rule of the last antecedent, a traditional canon of statutory construction under which relative and qualifying words, phrases and clauses are to be applied to the words or phrase immediately preceding, and are not to be construed as extending to, or including, others more remote. Either way, you can shoot the dog. Gabriel v. State, 4D2024-1502 (10/16/24)

EVIDENCE: Admitting a hearsay statement is not prejudicial when the out-of-court declarant is called as a witness and cross-examined at trial. Any error in admitting deputy's statement about what witness said was cured by the witness's subsequent testimony. USA v. Varazo, No. 23-11461 (11th Cir. 10/10/24)

EVIDENCE-CHAIN OF CUSTODY: Challenges to the chain of custody generally go to the weight rather than the admissibility of evidence. USA v. Varazo, No. 23-11461 (11th Cir. 10/10/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202311461.pdf

COMPETENCY: A defendant does not have a constitutional right to an adjudication on competency unless the trial court has reasonable grounds to believe that the defendant is incompetent to proceed. It is the violation of the right not to be tried when there are reasonable grounds to question the defendant's competency—not the right to have a hearing and competency determination—that deprives a defendant of due process. Failure to hold a competency hearing is not fundamental error. Davis v. State, 1D2021-3341 (10/9/24)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2441759/opinion/Opinion_2021-3341.pdf

APPEAL-ISSUE PRESERVATION: Defendant may not raise on appeal an issue different than that raised in the trial court. Where Appellant argues that on appeal that the charging documents, jury instructions, and general verdict form used disjunctive language allowing a non-unanimous conviction, but at trial argued the information was "duplicative" and unclear, the issue is not preserved. Bates v. State, 1D2022-3199 (10/9/24)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2441760/opinion/Opinion_2022-3199.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Defendant is not entitled to suppression of inages found on computer where he failed to establish a legitimate expectation of privacy in the laptop because he declined to assert that the computer was his. A defendant who disclaims ownership lacks standing to challenge its search and seizure. Bates v. State, 1D2022-3199 (10/9/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-EXCLUSIONARY RULE: The exclusionary rule does not apply when officers obtain evidence in reasonable reliance on a search warrant even if it is later found that the warrant was unsupported by probable cause. Suppression is reserved as a remedy only in cases where a warrant is based on an affidavit so lacking in any indicia of probable cause as to render an officer's belief in its existence entirely unreasonable. Bates v. State, 1D2022-3199 (10/9/24)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2441760/opinion/Opinion_2022-3199.pdf

OTHER BAD ACTS: Where Defendant is charged with possession of 50 images of child pornography and, at trial, around 500 child pornography images were mentioned, error is not fundamental. "Although we recognize that collateral crime evidence is often extremely prejudicial and presumptively harmful,. . .[t]he mention of additional images did not tip the scales." Bates v.

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2441760/opinion/Opinion_2022-3199.pdf

VOIR DIRE: Court's failure to sua sponte declare a mistrial based on prospective juror/correctional officer's comment during jury selection that "the defendant, I don't know if he was at the Bay County Jail when I worked there," if error, is not fundamental. "Even if we assume the comment suggests that Grigges had, at some point, been in custody at the jail, the comment tells the jury nothing beyond that which it can already reasonably infer. It is unextraordinary and entirely reasonable for a jury to assume a defendant charged with first-degree murder was arrested and booked into the jail when first charged. There is no prejudice in such a mundane comment. . .[I]t is not a shock to a criminal trial jury to hear that the defendant has been charged with a crime." Grigges v. State, 1D2022-4069 (10/9/24)

COSTS/FINES: A defendant has a right to have discretionary fines orally pronounced at sentencing because such costs may not be imposed without affording the defendant notice and an opportunity to be heard. Defendant may waive oral pronouncement of the breakdown of the costs and fines in open court. The effect of prohibiting waiver could incentivize a defendant to say nothing about fees even when given an opportunity to be heard. Defendants are not prohibited from waiving the oral pronouncement of fees and costs. "We do not intend to be overly formalistic." Grigges v. State, 1D2022-4069 (10/9/24)

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: Written sentencing order including a paragraph for the trial court to indicate the time served in jail between the date of arrest for the violation of probation and the date of resentencing, followed by a direction to the DOC to compute and apply the appropriate credit for the time he previously served in prison along with the original jail time credit is lawful, provided the judge remembers to check that box. SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Once a driver has been lawfully stopped for a traffic violation, police officers may order the driver out of the vehicle for officer safety reasons without violating the Fourth Amendment's prohibition of unreasonable searches and seizures. Jones v. State, 1D2023-1403 (10/9/24)

SEX OFFENDER PROBATION: Sex offender probation can be imposed as a special condition of probation so long as a factor in Biller is satisfied. A special condition is invalid as not reasonably related to rehabilitation if it (1) has no relationship to the crime of which the offender was convicted, (2) relates to conduct which is not in itself criminal, and (3) requires or forbids conduct which is not reasonably related to future criminality. COMPETENCY-CHILD WITNESS: Judge questioning child witness about her competency to testify in presence of jury is not per se reversible error, but the better practice is to conduct this examination outside the presence of the jury. McGrady v. State, 4D2023-2600 (10/9/24)

FREE SPEECH: Restrictions on personally directed and abusive speech at school board meetings violate the First Amendment. School board meetings qualify as limited public forums. Prohibiting calling people "names that are generally accepted to be unacceptable" is constitutionally problematic because it enables school board to shut down speakers whenever their message is deemed offensive. "No one likes to be called evil, but it is not 'abusive' to use that term. . .[H]ere, the ban on 'abusive' speech is an undercover prohibition on offensive speech." PROBATION-MODIFICATION: Court must modify or continue probation where Defendant meets all four conditions of §948.06(2)(f) (The term of supervision is probation, the probationer does not qualify as a violent felony offender of special concern, the violation is a low-risk technical violation, and the court has not previously found the probationer in violation). POST CONVICTION RELIEF: A court should not deny a postconviction claim as insufficiently pleaded without giving the movant one chance to amend the claim—assuming he can do so in good faith. But the court does not need to order an amendment when denial of the motion was not based on insufficiency in pleading. Bunch v. State, 5D2924-1691 (10/8/24)

PLEA: A plea conference is not a meaningless charade to be manipulated willy-nilly after the fact; it is a formal ceremony, under oath, memorializing a crossroads in the case. What is said and done at a plea conference carries consequences. Postconviction movants are bound by their sworn statements. Bunch v. State, 5D2924-1691 (10/8/24)

RIOT: Florida's amended criminal riot statute is not impermissibly vague and does not criminalize peaceful protest activity. A peaceful protestor, under the most natural reading of the statute, is no rioter. The statute does not apply to a person who is present at a violent protest, but neither engages in, nor intends to assist others in engaging in, violent and disorderly conduct. Merely attending a violent protest, without more, falls outside the statute's reach. The touchstone of liability under the riot statute is violence. This violence may not be incidental; it must be intentional. Dream Defenders v. Governor, No. 21-13489 (10/7/24)

theft of government property for drawing disability while helping run a janitorial business. A conviction for theft of government property requires the government prove (1) that the money or property belonged to the government; (2) that the defendant fraudulently appropriated the money or property to his own use or the use of others; and (3) that the defendant did so knowingly and willfully with the intent either temporarily or permanently to deprive the owner of using the property. USA v. Hill, No. 23-10289 (10/4/24)

MAKING A FALSE CLAIM: Receiving direct deposits can satisfy the "making or presenting" actus reus of 18 U.S.C. §287. Receiving a direct deposit disability payment to which one is not entitled can constitute a false claim against the government. "[E]very time Hill received an RRB payment via direct deposit to his bank account while failing to disclose his involvement with SparClean, he presented a false claim." USA v. Hill, No. 23-10289 (10/4/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202310289.pdf

INVITED ERROR: Accepting the deliberate avoidance pattern instruction at the charge conference and not objecting after the charges were read to the jury constitutes invited error and a waiver of the right to it upon appeal. USA v. Hill, No. 23-10289 (10/4/24)

DICTA: "[T]here is dicta and then there is dicta, and then there is Supreme Court dicta." Johnson v. Terry, No. 23-11394 (11th Cir. 10/3/24)

APPEAL-REHEARING: A petition for rehearing en banc also functions as a petition for rehearing before the original panel. Johnson v. Terry, No. 23-11394 (11th Cir. 10/3/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202311394.op2.pdf

BIVENS CLAIMS: Bivens claims are claims for money damages against federal officials and employees who have committed constitutional violations. In all but the most unusual circumstances. Plaintiff may not raise a Bivens claim against federal prison officials, doctors, a nurse, and a kitchen supervisor alleging that they violated his constitutional rights by using excessive force, by failing to protect him from other inmates, and by being deliberately indifferent to his serious medical needs. Johnson v. Terry, No. 23-11394 (11th Cir. 10/3/24)

BIVENS CLAIMS: Bivens may not be used to recognize new constitutional-claim causes of action. In the last 44 years, the Supreme Court has over and over again refused to extend Bivens to any new context or new category of defendants. Recognizing a cause of action under Bivens outside of the three contexts already allowed by the Supreme Court is a disfavored judicial activity and should be avoided in all but the most unusual circumstances. "[T]hose 'most unusual circumstances' are as rare as the ivory-billed woodpecker." Johnson v. Terry, No. 23-11394 (11th Cir. 10/3/24)

BIVENS CLAIMS: "Theoretically, we may someday see more Supreme Court decisions confirming and extending Bivens. Barring that unlikely event, for the time being the decision will remain on the judiciary's equivalent of an endangered species list, just like its natural history analogue, the ivory-billed woodpecker. Both the decision and the bird are staring extinction in the face." Johnson v. Terry, No. 23-11394 (11th Cir. 10/3/24)

WOODPECKERS-A COINCIDENCE OF RARITY: Ornithologists almost pronounced Ivory-billed Woodpeckers extinct, but there may be three of them in bottomland forests of Louisiana. "If that's true, the number of the birds that exist will exactly match the number of Supreme Court decisions that have confirmed and applied Bivens in the last forty-three years: three live ivory-billed woodpeckers and three live Bivens decisions. A coincidence of rarity." Johnson v. Terry, No. 23-11394 (11th Cir. 10/3/24)

SENTENCING GUIDELINES-SEX OFFENDER: The "repeat and dangerous sex offender against minors" enhancement does not apply when the Defendant had previously been convicted for the state offense of traveling to meet a minor. In determining whether the Florida conviction is a predicate, the categorical approach, not Defendant's course of conduct, is used. The least culpable conduct that could sustain a conviction under this statute appears to be traveling to meet a minor for the purpose of contributing to the delinquency of a child. That is plainly not a sex offense. USA v. Lusk, No. 22-12078 (11th

Cir. 10/3/24)

SENTENCING-SUBSTANTIVE REASONABLENESS: A district court's unjustified reliance on any one §3553(a) factor may be indicative of an unreasonable sentence. The imposition of a sentence well below the statutory maximum penalty is an indicator of reasonableness. USA v. Lusk, No. 22-12078 (11th Cir. 10/3/24)

ATTEMPTING TO ENTICE A MINOR: Defendant may be convicted of attempting to entice a minor even where his conduct did not involve an actual minor. USA v. Lusk, No. 22-12078 (11th Cir. 10/3/24)

APPEAL WAIVER: An appeal waiver bars a defendant from challenging the constitutionality of the oral pronouncement of his sentence. Defendant who had signed the plea waiver may not appeal the Court's failure to describe the standard discretionary conditions of supervised release in detail. USA v. Read, No. 23-10271 (11th Cir. 10/3/24)

CONDITIONS OF SUPERVISED RELEASE-ORAL PRONOUNCEMENT: District court may impose standard conditions of supervised release adopted by the Court in the Middle District without orally describing each condition. A reference to a written list of conditions is enough to afford a defendant the opportunity to challenge the conditions of supervised release, which is all that due process requires. USA v. Hayden, No. 19-14780 (11th Cir. 10/3/24)

RE-SENTENCING-SCORESHEET: In general, when the vacation of a conviction would result in changes to the defendant's scoresheet, the defendant is entitled to be resentenced using a corrected scoresheet unless the record conclusively shows that the trial court would have imposed the same sentence using a corrected scoresheet. Jones v. State, 2D2023-0522 (10/2/24)

HEARSAY-EXPERT-BAKER ACT: Evidence from the treating physician that she had reviewed subject's medical records and that he had admitted that he previously failed to comply with treatment is insufficient to support involuntary commitment. An expert's testimony may not merely be used as a conduit for the introduction of the otherwise inadmissible evidence. In the absence of personal knowledge of the witness, or admission of T.M.'s relevant medical records via a records custodian or a business records affidavit, a surrogate expert's testimony is insufficient. HEARSAY-BOLO: The contents of a BOLO are generally inadmissible, but when the victim testifies to the same information during the trial, courts have often considered the admission of the BOLO's contents cumulative in nature, and, therefore, harmless. Solivan v. State, 3D23-0665 (10/2/24)

DNA TESTING: It is the defendant's burden to explain, with reference to specific facts about the crime and the items requested to be tested, how the DNA testing will exonerate the defendant of the crime or will mitigate the defendant's sentence. A trial court does not err in denying a motion for DNA testing where the defendant cannot show that there is a reasonable probability that the absence or presence of DNA at a crime scene would exonerate him or lessen his sentence. FARETTA: An accused has the right to self-representation, but the trial court has an obligation to ensure that a defendant who elects to waive counsel does so "with eyes open" by making the defendant "aware of the dangers and disadvantages of self-representation. STATEWIDE PROSECUTOR-PERJURY: Statewide prosecutor has jurisdiction in multiple counties. Where jurors in multiple counties convened virtually (COVID), the Statewide prosecutor has jurisdiction to prosecute a witness for perjury before that a grand jury so assembled. HEARSAY-COCONSPIRATORS: Excluded from the definition of hearsay are out-of-court statements made by the party's coconspirator during and in furtherance of the conspiracy. The word "conspiracy" means an arrangement to work together toward a shared goal. There must be evidence of a conspiracy before a court can admit coconspirator statements, but it need not find that the conspiracy was unlawful before admitting those statements. USA v. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-INEVITABLE DISCOVERY: Whether the Government employs its own surveillance technology or leverages the technology of a wireless carrier, an individual maintains a legitimate expectation of privacy in the record of his physical movements as captured through CSLI. Because acquisition of CSLI data is a search, the Government must generally obtain a warrant supported by probable cause before acquiring such records, but where Defendant was ultimately found with his cell phone without the use of CSLI, the inevitable discovery doctrine applies. CSLI only confirmed to law enforcement that appellant's phone was present at the address, which law enforcement had already ascertained through lawful means, and to which they were already headed. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-FACEBOOK RECORDS: In murder case, after police were denied a search warrant for Defendant's Facebook records for lack of probable cause, review of the same Facebook records, which had been lawfuly acquired in an unrelated fraud case, for evidence on the homicide constituted an unlawful search. A warrant authorizing officers to search through a large amount of Facebook data for evidence relevant to proving only theft or fraud does not give officers authority to search the Facebook records for evidence of homicide. Good faith exception does not apply." Young v. State, 4D2023-1056 (9/25/24)

SEARCH WARRANT: To obtain a search warrant, an officer must submit an affidavit setting forth facts establishing two elements: (1) the commission element—that a particular person has committed a crime; and (2) the nexus element—that evidence relevant to the probable criminality is likely to be located in the place searched. Further, a search warrant must contain a particular description of the items of property it authorizes the officers to seize. A warrant authorizing officers to search through a large amount of Facebook data for evidence relevant to proving only theft or fraud does not give officers authority to search the Facebook records for evidence of homicide." Young v. State, 4D2023-1056 (9/25/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-EXCLUSIONARY RULE: State's argument that the Exclusionary Rule should not apply because the law was unsettled is wrong. "Were we to agree with this argument. . .we would effectively be holding that when the law is unsettled, an officer or the prosecutor is free to make an independent conclusion concerning the legality of a search or seizure, and even if a court subsequently disagrees with that conclusion, the illegally obtained evidence will not be suppressed. Under this approach, an officer would have an incentive not to seek a warrant when caselaw is unclear because the request might be denied. Young v. State, 4D2023-1056 (9/25/24)

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT: Defendant's post-Miranda confession was not voluntary where officers had threatened to take his truck if he did not talk ("So, either you cooperate with us, or we take your truck. Permanently. . .[B]ecause it was used in the commission of the crime."). In order for a confession or an incriminating statement of a defendant to be admissible in evidence, it must be shown that the confession or statement was voluntarily made, i.e., the product of free will and rational choice, and not elicited by direct or implied promises, however slight. STEALING-INTENT: Defendants charged with violating 18 U.S.C. §661, which prohibits taking and carrying way, "with intent to steal or purloin, any personal property of another" are not entitled to a jury instruction that the jury must find that defendants took the fishing gear with the intent to keep the gear for themselves or to convert it to their own use. The text of §661 does not explicitly include any language requiring a lucri causa element. USA v. Moore, No. 23-10579 (9/23/24)

STEALING-INJUSTICE (J LAGOA, J., CONCURRING): "John Moore, Jr., and Tanner Mansell are felons because they tried to save sharks from what they believed to be an illegal poaching operation. They are the only felons I have ever encountered. . .who called law enforcement to report what they were seeing and what actions they were taking in real time. They are felons who derived no benefit, and in fact never sought to derive any benefit, from the conduct that now stands between them and exercising the fundamental rights from which they are disenfranchised. What's more, they are felons for having violated a statute that no reasonable person would understand to prohibit the conduct they engaged in." USA v. Moore, No. 23-10579 (9/23/24)

LES MISERABLES (J LAGOA, J., CONCURRING): "For reasons that defy understanding, Assistant United States Attorney Tom Watts Fitzgerald . . .—taking a page out of Inspector Javert's playbook—. . .decided to pursue this indictment despite the following undisputed facts: Moore and Mansell (1) called law enforcement to report what they were doing, (2) were comfortable involving their tourism customers in their actions, (3) encouraged Kuehl to record what was happening, and (4) returned the gear to the marina dock as instructed. INJUSTICE (J LAGOA, J., CONCURRING): Assume that Hypothetical Bob disarms a robber who was holding up an old woman and turns the gun over to the police. "Has Bob stolen from the robber? . . .[B]ased on the government's theories and the instructions given in our case, Bob's conduct would be criminally 'willful' because he intended to do the thing the law forbids: he intended to take the gun from its owner to prevent the owner from using it, and that is forbidden under §661." EVIDENCE-OTHER BAD ACTS: Evidence of uncharged or past crimes is not admissible to prove a person's character in order to show that on a particular occasion the person acted in accordance with the character, but may be admissible for another purpose, such as proving motive, opportunity, intent, preparation, plan, knowledge, identity, absence of mistake, or lack of accident. The government must offer prior notice of its intent to present the evidence, including an explanation of its permitted purpose unless the evidence is intrinsic to the charged crime. USA v. EVIDENCE-OTHER BAD ACTS: In Possession of a Firearm by Felon case, Defendant's prior felon-in-possession convictions are admissible to prove intent. SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-COMMENTARY: Guidelines commentary may only be used to construe a guideline if, having exhausted all the traditional rules of statutory interpretation, the guideline's main text is ambiguous. USA v. Cenephat, No. 22-1374 (11th Cir. 9/23/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: When a defendant brings any claim in a successive motion more than one year after the judgment and sentence became final, he must meet an exception to the time-limit rule. Where Defendant could have discovered that a witness against him expected a favorable deal from the State, his claim is time barred. Stein v. State, SC2022-1787 (9/19/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212798.pdf

REVOCATION OF RIGHT SELF-REPRESENTATION: Court may revoke a defendant's right of self-representation and to dispense with a lawyer's help where a defendant deliberately engages in serious and obstructionist misconduct such as frequently interrupting and insulting the court, walking out of hearings, refusing to attend other proceedings, and threatening not to show up at the trial itself. An "attorney with the combined skill of John Adams, Clarence Darrow, and Louis Brandeis could not have satisfied Mr. Butler." Cooperation and respect in the courtroom are not mere formalities. They are necessary components of the judicial process. USA v. Butler, No. 22-12798 (11TH Cir. 9/18/24)

YOUTHFUL OFFENDER: For youthful offender sentencing for crimes committed before October 1, 2024, Defendant must have been under 21 at the time of sentencing. His age at the time of the offense under the statute then in effect is irrelevant. The amendment to the statute making YO sentencing available for defendants who were under 21 at the time of the offense is not retroactive. Hutchinson v. State, 1D2022-2988 (9/18/24)

COSTS: For second degree murder, Court improperly imposed the $3 cost under §318.13(11)(b)(2) and the $2 cost under §938.15. Hutchinson v. State, 1D2022-2988 (9/18/24)

RIGHT TO TESTIFY: Defendant is not deprived of his right to testify where 3 times he declined to testify, then changed his mind during the reading of jury instructions Thomas v. State, 1D2023-1856 (9/18/24)

MOTION TO WITHDRAW PLEA: Defendant is not entitled to withdraw a plea more than 30 days after its original imposition but fewer than 30 days after its correction. The striking of the mandatory condition of a sentence already served for technical reasons while the defendant is serving much longer concurrent sentences is an act ministerial in nature that does not rise to the level of a sentence rendition re-starting the deadlines in R. 3.170(l). MOTION TO WITHDRAW PLEA: Once a sentence has been imposed, a defendant must demonstrate manifest injustice or prejudice in order to withdraw a guilty plea. JUROR-CHALLENGE FOR CAUSE: Juror who indicated he had strong feelings about theft cases because several of his family members were robbery victims, and that "I don't know how it would affect my opinion on this. I don't think it would, but just going through that. . .I can't say for sure I wouldn't think of it. But I would try not to" should have been removed for cause. When a juror's last response indicates that the juror is potentially prejudiced, and the response is not retracted or modified, the juror must be stricken for cause. Sciallo v. State, 3D23-2078 (9/18/24)

QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: Officers do not have qualified immunity for detaining in handcuffs a driver on a no-flight list. Qualified immunity shields public officials from liability for civil damages when their conduct does not violate a constitutional right that was clearly established at the time of the challenged conduct, but the right not to be unlawfully detained like this was clearly established. Meshal v. Commissioner, Georgia Dep't of Public Safety, (No. 23-10128 (11th Cir. 9/16/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PROLONGED DETENTION: Temporary detention of individuals during the stop of an automobile, even if only for a brief period and for a limited purpose, constitutes a Fourth Amendment seizure. Calling the FBI during a routine traffic stop to see if detainee is on the no-fly list is not reasonably related to the mission of writing a ticket or warning. "But even assuming [it were], the call extended Meshal's detention beyond what the Fourth Amendment allows. . .The officers maintain that the length of the detention was dictated by the timing of the FBI's response and therefore justified. But what if the FBI had taken two hours to respond? Or six hours? Or a whole day? It cannot be that any length of detention was permissible until the officers received an all-clear from the FBI. . .The logical implication of the officers' argument is that individuals on the No Fly List can be subjected to prolonged detention any time they travel to or from a public place. We cannot countenance that result." Meshal v. Commissioner, Georgia Dep't of Public Safety, (No. 23-10128 (11th Cir. 9/16/24)

SUPERSEDEAS BOND: In considering superseas bond, Court must consider the following factors: (1) whether the appeal is taken for delay or in good faith on grounds not frivolous but fairly debatable; (2) the habits of the individual regarding respect for the law; (3) local attachments to the community by way of family ties, business or investment; (4) the severity of the sentence imposed, and circumstances relevant to the question of whether the defendant would remove himself from the jurisdiction of the court. Conclusory findings unsupported by the record or a mere verbatim recital of the considerations are insufficient. Torolopez v. State, 3D23-2255 (9/16/24)

TESTIMONY-FEDERAL OFFICIAL (J. WARNER, CONCURRING): Deputy

serving on U.S. Marshals Service Fugitive Task Force cannot be compelled to testify for defendant on a motion to suppress as to whether cell phone illegally used to arrest him. 28 C.F.R. § 16.22(a) provides that in any case where the United States is not a party, no employee or former employee of Department of Justice shall, in response to a demand disclose any information or produce any material acquired as part of the performance of that person's official duties or because of that person's official status without prior approval of the proper Department official. Nevertheless, the Justice Department's refusal to allow this witness to testify to whether he used CSLI to locate appellant and whether he secured a warrant does not seem to comport with its own regulations. "What one gleans from this record is an effort to hide the fact that the deputy acted without a warrant, thus making the search for appellant illegal. Although the officer may not be held in contempt for following the directions of his superiors, that does not preclude the superior from being held in civil contempt." Walker v. JUROR MISCONDUCT: Where Defendant moved for a new trial, and while that was pending received a report of potential juror misconduct but did not seek to amend his original motion, but instead later filed a second motion for new trial, the second motion was untimely. DEATH PENALTY-COSTS OF DEFENSE: A trial court's decision to deny a motion for funds for a PET scan and travel expenses for mitigation specialist in preparation for the penalty phase of a death case will be upheld absent an abuse of discretion. Sexton v. State, SC2023-0079 (9/12/24)

JUDGE DISQUALIFICATION: Court need not be disqualified for ordering defense counsel not to persist in heated language ("[P]erhaps. . .we should just go out to the nearest tree and hang Mr. Sexton."). Sexton v. State, SC2023-0079 (9/12/24)

JUDGE DISQUALIFICATION (J. LABARGA, CONCURRING): "The trial court's response to defense counsel's improper comment was insufficient to demonstrate the requisite bias for granting a motion to disqualify. However, I must note that considering the trial court's strong response to defense counsel's comment, the court did not offer a sufficient response to improper prosecutorial comments that preceded those made by defense counsel. .

.[R]eferring to certain court proceedings as 'a racket,' questioning the legitimacy of experts, and accusing those experts of 'fleec[ing] the public'—in a death penalty case, no less—were also deserving of the trial court's rebuke." Sexton v. State, SC2023-0079 (9/12/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is not entitled to postconviction relief in DUI manslaughter case for counsel's alleged failure to adequately object to some of the prosecutor=s comments in closing argument, failure to seek a mistrial concerning a sustained golden rule objection, and failure to object to the voluntary intoxication instruction for general intent crimes. To prove ineffective assistance of counsel, a defendant must demonstrate a reasonable probability that, but for counsel's errors, the result of the proceeding would have been different. Weber v. WITHDRAWAL OF PLEA: Where, before sentencing, Defendant filed a pro se motion to withdraw his guilty plea, alleging that trial counsel had not visited Appellant in a year, had not deposed certain witnesses, and had not raised other challenges to the charges, he is entitled to conflict-free counsel. Counsel's statement that he did not agree that the motion to withdraw plea had any merit sufficiently demonstrated an adversarial relationship between Appellant and his trial counsel. Morrow v. APPEAL-POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant may not raise for the first time on appeal from the denial of a motion for postconviction relief that her life sentence was disproportionate in light of her co-defendants' term-of-years sentences. There is no manifest injustice exception to the rules for preservation of issues for appeal. Vowell v. State, 1D2022-3840 (9/11/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel was not ineffective for failing to prepare Defendant to testify at the proffer and trial where he had told her to be honest in her proffer, warned her that half-truths would be discovered, and told her to try not to get upset, but she had disregarded this advice. "Given the 'cocktail of pills' she was continually ingesting, the postconviction court reasonably questioned what amount of preparation would have been sufficient to overcome her own behavior." DISCHARGE OF ATTORNEY: A Nelson hearing is required (1) when the defendant makes a clear and unequivocal statement that he wishes to discharge appointed counsel; (2) the reason for the requested discharge is a claim of incompetence; and (3) the alleged ineffectiveness arises from the current representation by counsel, not past indiscretions. The fact that the pro se motion for appointment of substitute counsel did not contain a completed certificate of service is not dispositive. Hoskins v. State, 1D2023-0422 (9/11/24)

HEARSAY: A text message, sent before the shooting, from the victim to a third party noting that Defendant had a firearm is not hearsay where it was offered into evidence not for the truth of the matter asserted but to show the victim's state of mind to explain the victim's actions before the shooting. McGowan v. State, 1D2023-0578 (9/11/24)

MOTION/APPEAL: Where Defendant simultaneously files both a timely motion to withdraw plea with the trial court and a notice of appeal, the appeal, not the motion, must be held in abeyance. Brown v. State, 1D2023-0888 (9/11/24)

JOA-LEWD AND LASCIVIOUS MOLESTATION: Defendant touching "[n]ear [her] vagina" and "[n]ot far above it" is sufficient to convict for lewd and lascivious molestation. The version of §800.04 in effect on the date of the offense did not define "genital area" or "genitals." Because the legislature has not defined lewd or lascivious behavior, whether the defendant's behavior violated the statute is a question of fact that must be decided by the jury. White v. POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: A claim that the trial court misunderstood its sentencing options is not cognizable under R. 3.800(a). Martinez v. State, 1D2024-0451 (9/11/24)

APPEAL: Trial court has the authority to reconsider an order granting a new trial, deny it, and reinstate the original sentence. A motion for a new trial (R.

3.800) falls under the portion of the rules governing the trial, and conceptually occurs before the postconviction proceedings. An order granting a new trial is not considered a final order. "It would create an absurd result if we were to read into the law a prohibition on the trial court's inherent ability to set aside an order that was rendered incorrect based on a subsequent change in law." Kinley v. State, 3D20-1725 (9/11/24)

EVIDENCE-EXPERT-PTSD: Expert testimony that Defendant suffered from PTSD in support of his self-defense claim is inadmissible. The peculiarity of a defendant=s mental state is not germane to the question of whether a reasonably cautious and prudent person under the same circumstances would have believed that the danger could be avoided only through the use of that force. The self-defense test is not a subjective one, and it does not follow that a defendant's misperceptions—his misunderstanding of reality as altered by a disorder such as PTSD—are relevant. Conflict certified. Cowins v. State, 4D2023-2364 (9/11/24)

SENTENCE-CORRECTION: Although R. 3.800(a)'s plain language does not expressly prohibit defendants from seeking to correct unlawfully lenient sentences, they are not entitled to such relief under the rule absent a showing of prejudice. Careaga v. State, 4D 023-2728 (9/11/24)

COMPETENCY: A Defendant can have a mental illness and still be competent to stand trial. Mental illness alone isn't enough to be incompetent; the key is a defendant's ability to assist counsel and understand the charges. USA v. Wall, No. 20-10730 (11th Cir. 9/6/24)

RICO: To establish a RICO conspiracy, the government must prove that the defendants objectively manifested, through words or actions, an agreement to participate in the conduct of the affairs of the enterprise through the commission of two or more predicate crimes. Agreement to participate in a RICO conspiracy can be proven in one of two ways: (1) by showing an agreement on an overall objective or (2) by showing that a defendant agreed personally to commit two predicate acts. An agreement on an overall objective may be proven by circumstantial evidence showing that each defendant must necessarily have known that others were also conspiring to participate in the same enterprise through a pattern of racketeering activity. USA v. Wall, No. 20-10730 (11th Cir. 9/6/24)

RICO-JURY INSTRUCTION: The general statutory maximum sentence under the RICO is twenty years, but if the violation is based on a racketeering activity for which the maximum penalty includes life imprisonment, life imprisonment may be imposed. Where the Court instructed the jury to consider whether the defendants had engaged in "acts involving murder," defined to "include[] murder, attempted murder, and/or conspiracy to murder"—and the special verdict form contained the language "involve[d] murder," the instruction does not imply that attempted murder (a non-life-sentence offence) applies. Critically, the district court specifically defined "murder" to include only actual murder under Georgia law, which is "a racketeering activity for which the maximum penalty includes life imprisonment." The verdict form asked whether the conspiracy involved "murder," not "acts involving murder." USA v. Wall, No. 20-10730 (11th Cir. 9/6/24)

RICO-JURY INSTRUCTION: The jury instruction that in order to find RICO "you must unanimously decide whether the Defendant joined or remained in the RICO conspiracy knowing that the enterprise engaged in this type of racketeering activity" did not mirror the substantive conspiracy element instruction, but any Apprendi error is harmless. It is clear beyond a reasonable doubt that a rational jury would have found the facts necessary for the enhanced sentencing provision to apply to the defendants, absent the alleged knowledge-versus-intent error. USA v. Wall, No. 20-10730 (11th Cir. 9/6/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010730.pdf

JURY INSTRUCTION-RICO LESSER INCLUDED: Defendant is not entitled to a lesser included voluntary manslaughter finding in the special verdict form. Lesser-included-offense instructions for predicate crimes are not applicable in the context of a RICO conspiracy. USA v. Wall, No. 20-10730 (11th Cir. 9/6/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010730.pdf

EVIDENCE: Any error in admitting evidence of guilty pleas and convictions for the limited purpose of explaining why certain individuals were not part of the trial was harmless because it was merely cumulative. Several Gangster Disciples witnesses testified that they had pleaded guilty, and the knowledge that a few more people had been convicted would not have appreciably changed the jury's assessment of the evidence. USA v. Wall, No. 20-10730 (11th Cir. 9/6/24)

EVIDENCE-OPINION: An agent presented as an expert may not interpret or speculate about the meaning of unambiguous conversations. But an agent who is not presented as an expert may. A lay witness may offer an opinion that is (1) rationally based on the witness's perception, (2) helpful to the jury, and (3) not founded on scientific or expert knowledge A lay witness also may offer “opinion testimony based on his professional experiences. USA v. Wall, No. 20-10730 (11th Cir. 9/6/24)

VOP-JURISDICTION: Court’s order that "[i]f no written objection is received by March 21, 2022, the Court will grant the motion [for early termination of probation] on without further notice" is not an order termination probation. Where a day before the deadline Defendant committed a new crime, and a month later a VOP affidavit was filed, Court retains jurisdiction to revoke probation. The earlier order was not self-executing. Hart v. State, 2D2022-3992 (9/6/24)

FINE: A discretionary fine must be orally pronounced. Where Court orally imposed imposed only "a one thousand dollar fine," and "all mandatory court costs,” the written fee order which included a $4,500 fine must be stricken.

COSTS-WEIRD: In DUI Manslaughter/Vehicular Homicide case, Court erred in assessing recording costs of $9 and $10 pursuant to §28.24(12), which deals with "examining, certifying, and recording plats and . . . recording condominium exhibits larger than 14 inches by 8 ½ inches." HABEAS CORPUS: Court in the county properly dismissed Petitioner's petition for writ of habeas filed in the county of his conviction, not the county where he is serving a life sentence. The circuit court of the county in which a defendant is incarcerated has jurisdiction to consider a petition for writ of habeas corpus when the claims raised in the petition concern issues. But to the extent that the petition also included a claim that the life sentence was illegal because it exceeded the applicable statutory maximum, the court of conviction and sentence should have considered the petition as a mislabeled motion for relief under R. 3.800(a), and denied it on the merits. WITHHELD ADJUDICATION: Adjudication of guilt may not be withheld on second degree felonies unless the state attorney so requests in writing or the court makes written findings that the withholding of adjudication is reasonably justified based on the same statutory criteria for a downward departure sentence. PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE: "Our prior-precedent rule requires us to follow Eleventh Circuit precedent—even if we disagree with it or think that prior panels have overlooked important arguments—unless and until the Supreme Court or our court sitting en banc abrogates the precedent." USA v. Deleon, No. 23-10478 (9/5/24)

GUIDELINES-ENHANCEMENT-PHYSICAL RESTRAINT: Where Defendant walked into a store, pointed a gun at the cashier while demanding money from the register, received the money, and then left, all within about one minute, he is subject to the two-level enhancement for physically restraining the victim. Defendant's argument that pointing a gun is not a physical restraint may have merit, but "our precedent binds us to conclude that the enhancement applies to conduct like Deleon's, and 'we have categorically rejected an overlooked reason or argument exception to the prior-panel-precedent rule.'. . .End of story." But en banc review suggested. USA v. Deleon, No. 23-10478 (9/5/24)

PHYSICAL RESTRAINT ENHANCEMENT-DOUBLE COUNTING: Imposing the two-level enhancement for physical restraint during a robbery is not impermissible double counting. USA v. Deleon, No. 23-10478 (9/5/24)

GUIDELINES-ENHANCEMENT-PHYSICAL RESTRAINT (J. ROSENBAUM CONCURRING): "The issue in this case is ripe for en banc review. . . Quite simply, a plain reading of the text of section 2B3.1(b)(4)(B) does not support our precedent's standard or application of that guideline here." A restraint that is solely mental or psychological in nature should not qualify under section 2B3.1(b)(4)(B)'s plain text. Not only does a non-physical restraint fail to comport with the definition of "physically," but construing "physically restrained" to include non-physical restraints—no matter how intimidating a non-physical restraint may be—makes "physically" meaningless in the guideline. USA v. Deleon, No. 23-10478 (9/5/24)

STARE DECISIS (J. ROSENBAUM CONCURRING): Appellate court must reconcile prior panel decisions whenever possible. Only the holdings of prior decisions are binding; legal principles set forth outside of the decision's holding do not. USA v. Deleon, No. 23-10478 (9/5/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202310478.pdf

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION-ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE (J. NEWSOM, CONCURRING): "Those, like me, who believe that 'ordinary meaning' is the foundational rule for the evaluation of legal texts should consider—consider—whether and how AI-powered large language models like OpenAI's ChatGPT, Google's Gemini, and Anthropic's Claude might—might—inform the interpretive analysis." USA v. Deleon, No. 23-10478 (9/5/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202310478.pdf

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION-ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE (J. NEWSOM, CONCURRING): Statutory interpretation of a composite, multi-word phrase poses a challenge because the entire phrase—"physically restrained"—isn't defined in any reputable dictionary, the tool to which plain-language interpreters typically turn. Sometimes a phrase really is just the sum of its parts, but that's not uniformly true. "In those instances where a phrase is more than the sum of its component parts, I think that LLMs [Large Language Models] may well help to fill the gaps left by word-centric dictionaries." USA v. Deleon, No. 23-10478 (9/5/24)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION-ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE (J. NEWSOM, CONCURRING): "I continue to believe—perhaps more so with each interaction—that LLMs have something to contribute to the ordinary meaning endeavor. . . [I]t would be myopic to ignore them. . .No one should mistake my missives for a suggestion that AI can bring scientific certainty to the interpretive enterprise. . .I'm not advocating that we give up on traditional interpretive tools—dictionaries, semantic canons, etc. But I do think—and increasingly so—that LLMs may well serve a valuable auxiliary role as we aim to triangulate ordinary meaning. Again, just my two cents. I remain happy to be shouted down." USA v. Deleon, No. 23-10478 (9/5/24)

CHILD PORN: Statute prohibiting visual depiction -- including a drawing or cartoon -- of a minor engaging in sexually explicit conduct is not overly broad or vague. USA v. Ostrander, No. 22-14160 (11th Cir. 9/5/24)

CHILD PORN: Obscene material is not protected by the First Amendment, but the First and Fourteenth Amendments prohibit making mere private possession of obscene material a crime. The First Amendment does not include a right to possess child pornography, even in the privacy of one's home. USA v. Ostrander, No. 22-14160 (11th Cir. 9/5/24)

CHILD PORN: The First Amendment does not protect the distribution or transportation of obscene material, but the mere possession of obscene material in a private home cannot be criminalized. This does not extend to the possession of obscene material involving real children, because of the state's powerful interest in protecting children victimized by obscenity. But this exception does not apply to virtual child pornography because there are no children victimized by these images. The First Amendment protects the private possession in one's own home of obscene material depicting virtual minors, so long as no real children are victimized. Defendant is properly convicted where he possessed the pornographic cartoon images in a public place. And perhaps the acquisition of the cartoon child porn is not protected even in one's home. USA v. AUGUST 2024

JURY SELECTION-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE-PRESERVATION: The three-step process for handling race-based objections to the use of peremptory challenges: A party objecting to the other side's use of a peremptory challenge on racial grounds must: a) make a timely objection on that basis, b) show that the venireperson is a member of a distinct racial group, and c) request that the court ask the striking party its reason for the strike. If these initial requirements are met (step 1), the court must ask the proponent of the strike to explain the reason for the strike. At this point, the burden of production shifts to the proponent of the strike to come forward with a raceneutral explanation (step 2). If the explanation is facially race-neutral and the court believes that, given all the circumstances surrounding the strike, the explanation is not a pretext, the strike will be sustained (step 3). JURY SELECTION-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE-RESERVATION: To preserve its Melbourne challenge for appellate review, the objecting party must affirmatively challenge and obtain adverse rulings on the race-neutrality and genuineness of the reason given by the proponent for the strike. Where State strikes a jury for a facially race neutral reason (the juror wore torn shorts and a hat), Defendant must object that the reason is pretextual and seek a ruling on the genuineness of the reason. APPEAL-ISSUE PRESERVATION: In order for an issue to be preserved for appellate review, it must be presented to the lower court and the specific legal argument or ground to be argued on appeal must be part of that presentation. The issue raised on appeal–that there was not a factual basis to find him to be a VFOSC–is different from the issue raised below of the Court's failure to make written findings. Booker v. DANGEROUSNESS FINDING: The holding in Brown that a jury must make a

DEATH PENALTY-INTELLECTUAL DISABILITY-RETROACTIVITY: Death is not a constitutionally suitable punishment for a mentally retarded criminal. But Hall, clarifying the standards for determining mental retardation and requiring them to be applied retroactively, was later overturned. Even though Defendant's case was remanded for a hearing on competency to be executed before Hall was overturned by Phillips, he is not entitled to a hearing. The rule that once a mandate requiring a hearing is issued the hearing must be held does not apply. Phillips was an intervening change in the law, so no hearing is required. \AEDPA: The Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act gives a state prisoner one chance to bring a federal habeas challenge to his conviction, but disallows a second or successive application unless he shows that a claim has not been raised before and that it is either based on a new rule of constitutional law or newly discovered evidence proving factual innocence, and then only after obtaining approval from the federal court of appeals. When a federal habeas petitioner files a motion to amend a petition while an appeal from the denial or dismissal of it is pending, even when based on evidence adduced at the hearing, the motion is properly characterized as second or successive. Boyd v. Secretary, D.OC., No 22-10299 (8/28/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-FWC: The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission has authority to stop boats to inspect licenses, registration, and safety resource equipment. PRETRIAL DETENTION: §907.041(5)(d), which requires pretrial detention If a defendant is arrested for a dangerous crime that is a capital felony, a life felony, or a felony of the first degree, and the court determines there is a substantial probability that he committed the offense and no conditions of release or bail will be adequate, is constitutional. PRETRIAL DETENTION: Court errs in ordering pretrial detention under §907.041(5)(d) where its order did not contain both findings of fact and conclusions of law to support it. The judge who heard and granted the motion for pretrial detention did not make any findings of fact and a second judge who heard and denied Defendant's related motion for pretrial release merely referred to his predecessor's ruling without making any findings based upon the evidence presented to him at the subsequent hearing over which he presided. DEATH PENALTY-POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Florida's recently acknowledged atrocities at the Dozier School for Boys combined with Defendant's recently recovered repressed memories of abuse he suffered and witnessed there do not constitute recently discovered mitigation evidence in a death penalty case. DEATH PENALTY-POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant's claim of postconviction neglect and mistreatment in prison as an Eighth Amendment violation warranting relief of the death penalty is untimely filed, and even if it were, it would not provide a basis for relief. Cole v. State, SC2024-1170 (8/23/24)

DEATH PENALTY-LETHAL INJECTION: Defendant's Parkinson's disease, which may make placing the intravenous lines necessary to carry out lethal injection difficult or painful, does not make imposition of the death penalty cruel and unusual punishment. DEATH PENALTY-POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Denial of Defendant's requests for records related to lethal injection protocol is not an abuse of discretion because the constitutionality of Florida's current lethal injection protocol had been upheld, and the records therefore were unlikely to lead to a colorable claim for postconviction relief. POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Sixth Amendment does not require a lawyer to make arguments based on predictions of how the law may develop. Counsel was not ineffective for failing to advise Defendant that in order to have been "used" within the meaning of § 2251(a), a child must have actually engaged in sexually explicit conduct, rather than merely present, where case law so holding did not yet exist at the time of her plea. Ritchie v. USA, No. 22-12117 (11th Cir. 8/21/24)

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL: Court did not abuse its discretion in finding that conflicts in Victim's statements and testimony, and conflicting testimony from the defense's witnesses were not sufficient to undermine other evidence presented. McBride v. State, 1D2022-3231 (8/21/24)

APPEAL AFTER PLEA: Failure of a plea colloquy to comport with Rule 3.172 is not an authorized ground for appeal. A defendant cannot complain about an insufficient plea colloquy unless it rendered the plea involuntary.

"Evans maintains that he must make a claim that is prohibited from being raised on direct appeal by the rules of procedure, or he will be barred from making the same claim in a procedurally correct manner by postconviction motion. Thankfully, no such rule of law exists." Evans v. State, 1D2023-0916 (8/21/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Convictions for both lewd or lascivious exhibition and indecent exposure do not violate double jeopardy. Harvill v. State, 1D2023-1355 (8/21/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439419/opinion/Opinion_2023-1355.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Defendant can be convicted of multiple counts of lewd or lascivious exhibition arising out of a single incident. The allowable unit of prosecution is the number of victims, not the number of lewd acts. But Defendant cannot be convicted of multiple counts of indecent exposure arising out of a single incident. For indecent exposure, the allowable unit of prosecution is the number of lewd acts, not the number of victims. Harvill v. State, 1D2023-1355 (8/21/24)
https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439419/opinion/Opinion_2023-1355.pdf

EVIDENCE-IDENTIFICATION: Officer's testimony that he is familiar with the Defendant as the resident of a neighborhood the officer patrols does not, by itself, imply the resident committed a prior bad act. "I knew it was you, Maurice. I knew it was you." is properly admitted as a statement of identification. Struggs v. State, 1D2023-1738 (8/21/24)

EVIDENCE-OTHER BAD ACTS: For obstruction, officers may testify that they pursued Defendant because "We had probable cause to make an arrest for multiple – for cases" and "We were there for a previous case, so –." Testimony is admissible because the lawfulness of the arrest was an element of resisting an officer without violence. Martinez v. State, 3D22-2145 (8/21/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439407/opinion/Opinion_2022-2145.pdf

SIX-PERSON JURY: Florida's use of six-member jury in non-capital cases does not violate the Sixth Amendment right to trial by jury. Kain v. State, 3D23-1189 (8/21/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439443/opinion/Opinion_2023-1189.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel is not ineffective for not moving to disqualify judge because of the Judge's expressions of impatience, dissatisfaction, annoyance, and even anger, which are within the bounds of what imperfect men and women sometimes display. Mitchell v. State, 2D23-1755 (8/21/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439447/opinion/Opinion_2023-1755.pdf

APPEAL-EXTENSION OF TIME: Denial of a motion for extension of time to file a R. 3.850 motion for postconviction relief is not an appealable final order. Kovacs v. State, (8/21/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439436/opinion/Opinion_2023-2983.pdf

FIREARM-MANDATORY MINIMUM: A dripping wet gun under a dry bed in Defendant's efficiency apartment is sufficient to establish Defendant, a felon, possessed it, but is insufficient to establish actual possession. Mandatory minimum vacated. Rock v. State, 4D2023-2996 (8/21/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Probable cause for a traffic stop does not turn on whether a traffic violation occurred, but rather whether, whether viewed under an objective lens, the totality of the facts known to the officer at the time would cause a reasonable person to believe that an offense has been committed. A finding of probable cause does not require absolute certitude. A patrol officer who observed a vehicle in a turn-only lane cut in front of a line of traffic when the stoplight turned green has probable cause to stop the vehicle for careless driving. Staten v. Crume, 6D2023-2304 (8/21/24)

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: "[T]here is no separate written order entered by the trial court. Rather, the trial court 'checked' one of the boxes on the guidelines scoresheet . . and no separate order was entered by the trial court. To be clear, . . .Florida trial courts must enter a written order. . .when imposing a departure sentence." State v. Hauter, 5D2022-2997 (8/19/24)

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Neither Defendant's emotional stability not being the greatest, his thirteen months of abiding by the rules of pretrial release, nor the 39 months of a life sentence he had previously served are valid grounds for a downward departure. State v. Hauter, 5D2022-2997 (8/19/24)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439226/opinion/Opinion_2022-2997.pdf

IMPEACHMENT-HEARSAY: Where Defendant introduces his exculpatory hearsay statements through another witness, his prior convictions are admissible as impeachment. But Defendant's statement, adduced through another witness, that their wives were in the bathroom and that they intended to leave were offered to prove that Defendant was trying to diffuse the situation, and therefore were not hearsay. Impeachment by prior convictions was improper. Fernandez v, State, 2D2022-1630 (8/16/24)

VFOSC: A violent felony offender of special concern is a probationer who has committed an enumerated offense. Court may not dismiss a VFOSC VOP without a hearing and must make written findings as to whether or not he poses a danger to the community. Jackson v. State, 2D2023-2441 (8/16/24)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439160/opinion/Opinion_2023-2441.pdf

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF-ADVISE: Defendant, a VFOSC, is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for not learning that Defendant had had a new offense that had been dismissed on technical grounds and not warning him that the Judge would likely find him to be a danger to the community because of it. Jackson v. State, 2D2023-2441 (8/16/24)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439160/opinion/Opinion_2023-2441.pdf

JOA-UNLAWFUL INTERCEPTION OF ORAL COMMUNICATION: Defendant cannot be convicted of interception of oral communication by secretly recording phone calls with police officers. Officers do not have an actual subjective expectation of privacy, along with a societal recognition that the expectation is reasonable, in official phone calls. Waite v. State, 5D2023-1354 (8/16/24)

APPEAL-ISSUE-PRESERVATION: Where Defendant failed to appear for sentencing and when caught was sentenced to more than the original agreement, he may not argue on appeal that he FTA'ed because he was in the hospital but at the trial level he merely asked for leniency (he's just "a kid" who "made a stupid, stupid decision not to show.".) To be preserved for appeal, the specific legal ground upon which a claim is based must be raised at trial and a claim different than that will not be heard. Jones v. State, 5D2023-2204 (8/16/24)

QUARTERMAN AGREEMENT (J. MAKAR, CONCURRING): Beyond the preservation issue, the lessons learned in this case are fourfold. First, criminal defendants must assiduously adhere to the terms of a Quarterman agreement, particularly the requirement that they timely appear for sentencing or risk drastic results, such as here, where a five-year sentence . . .was transformed into a twenty-four-year sentence. . .Second, the law erects a high hurdle for voiding a Quarterman agreement: proof that a defendant willfully failed to show up at sentencing. This standard isn't met when a defendant had a reason beyond his control for non-appearance. . .Third, if the State seeks to void a Quarterman agreement it should formally move to do so and demonstrate that the defendant's non-appearance was willful. . .Fourth, the State should shoulder the evidentiary burden of proving a breach. Jones v. State, 5D2023-2204 (8/16/24)

INCARCERATION COSTS: According to D.O.C., it costs an average of $84.61 per day to house an inmate in Florida. Jones v. State, 5D2023-2204 (8/16/24)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439178/opinion/Opinion_2023-2204.pdf

COSTS OF INVESTIGATION: Court may not impose $100 of investigation costs because that were neither part of the plea agreement nor requested by the State. Streeter v. State, 5D2023-3211 (8/16/24)

https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439186/opinion/Opinion_2023-3211.pdf

JURISDICTION DURING APPEAL-MODIFICATION: Trial court lacks jurisdiction to correct sentence by adding statutorily required no contact condition while appeal is pending. While the State may move to correct sentence during a defendant's appeal, its scope is limited to correcting errors benefitting the defendant or scrivener's errors. Dixon v, State, 6D2023-0708 (8/16/24)

https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439216/opinion/Opinion_2023-0708.pdf

PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER/HABITUAL FELONY OFFENDER: For a third degree felony, a ten-year HFO sentence running concurrently with a five-year PRR sentence would be legal, but Court cannot impose consecutive PRR and HFO sentences for a single offense. A sentence of five years as a PRR followed by five years as an HFO is illegal. Lovett v. State, 6D2023-2137 (8/16/24)

https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439175/opinion/Opinion_2023-2137.pdf

PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER/HABITUAL FELONY OFFENDER: Court can impose both PRR and HFO sentences for a single offense, but it cannot impose equal PRR and HFO sentences if it runs them concurrently; the PRR sentence must be longer. A sentence of five years as a PRR followed by five years as an HFO is illegal. Lovett v. State, 6D2023-2137 (8/16/24)

https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439175/opinion/Opinion_2023-2137.pdf

FRAUD: Foreign currency vendors who deceived investors about a core attribute of the Iraqui dinar--the odds of its appreciation, leaving them to believe that it would imminently skyrocket in value, are properly convicted of fraud. A deception need not have a calculable price difference or result in a different tangible good or service being received to constitute fraud. "We have never held that the federal fraud statutes are categorically inapplicable to fraudulent inducement schemes." USA v. Bell, No. 22-12750 (11th Cir. 8/14/24)

FALSE STATEMENT: One cannot be convicted of perjury based on an ambiguous question because of the unfairness when the questions forming the basis of the charge are vaguely and inarticulately phrased by the interrogator. But the distinction between ambiguous questions and ambiguous answers is crucial: a criminal defendant cannot wriggle out of the same charge through an evasive answer. USA v. Bell, No. 22-12750 (11th Cir. 8/14/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212750.pdf

EVIDENCE: News reports and press releases known to Defendant that dinar sales were a scam are admissible to prove that the sellers were on notice of the wrongfulness of their conduct. Evidence admitted to prove the listener's state of mind is not hearsay. USA v. Bell, No. 22-12750 (11th Cir. 8/14/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212750.pdf

EVIDENCE: Court did not abuse its discretion by permitting witnesses to read from exhibits about which they had no personal knowledge. Anyone can state what a document says or read from it if it has been admitted into evidence. USA v. Bell, No. 22-12750 (11th Cir. 8/14/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212750.pdf

SENTENCING-ENHANCEMENT-OBSTRUCTION OF JUSTICE: Court may apply the two level obstruction-of-justice enhancement based on Defendant's false testimony during a suppression hearing. USA v. Bell, No. 22-12750 (11th Cir. 8/14/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212750.pdf

SENTENCING-ENHANCEMENT-EX POST FACTO: The Ex Post Facto Clause bars a defendant from being sentenced under a version of the guidelines that would provide a higher sentencing range than the version in place at the time of his criminal conduct. But applying the six-level enhancement for causing substantial financial hardship to 25 or more victims here is not plain error because the earlier version allowed for the same enhancement where there 250 or more victims. Although Government highlighted only 32 of the over 600 victims, Defendant would likely have qualified for the six-level enhancement available under the earlier version. USA v. Bell, No. 22-12750 (11th Cir. 8/14/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212750.pdf

MURDER-YOUTH: "EIghteen is the dividing line between adult privileges and responsibilities and the privileges and responsibilities of children. We decline the invitation to treat this adult murderer as a child." Stoddard v. State, 1D2023-2017 (8/14/24)

ORGANIZED FRAUD: Any person who engages in a scheme to defraud and obtains property thereby is guilty of organized fraud. Vento v. State, 3D23-0120 (8/14/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF-PLEA: Where Defendant alleges ineffective assistance in advising client as to a plea, Defendant must demonstrate a reasonable probability, defined as a probability sufficient to undermine confidence in the outcome, that (1) he or she would have accepted the offer had counsel advised the defendant correctly, (2) the prosecutor would not have withdrawn the offer, (3) the court would have accepted the offer, and (4) the conviction or sentence, or both, under the offer's terms would have been less severe than under the judgment and sentence that in fact were imposed. Rivera v. State, 3D23-0723 (8/14/24)
https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2439065/opinion/Opinion_2023-0723.pdf

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS: Defendant is not entitled to a continuance charged to the State and a speedy trial discharge where State filed an amended information correcting the defendant's name and modifying the language of the charge after the Defendant filed a notice of expiration of speedy trial but within the recapture period. Restating and clarifying the same battery charge contained in the initial information does not allege a new charge. A defendant is not prejudiced by an amended information that clarifies an already existing charge and does not substantively change the elements of the charged offense. State v. Beach, 3D23-1444 (8/14/24)

CYBER STALKING: Cyber stalking can include communications with third parties, including social media postings that are not sent directly to an individual but may nonetheless be directed at an individual in a number of ways. Hollis v. State, 3D23-1530 (8/14/24)

JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION: Judge may not be disqualified for being married to the executive director of the State Attorney's Office with supervisory capacity over non-attorney staff, but not over any assistant state attorney. When a trial judge's spouse or immediate family member is employed by a government entity such as the State Attorney's Office in the same judicial circuit where the trial judge is presiding over criminal cases and the spouse or immediate family member does not have supervisory authority over prosecutors appearing before the judge, recusal of the trial judge is not required. ARGUMENT: Prosecutor's repeated argument that the defendant did not seize the opportunity to dispel the officers' suspicions that he was driving while impaired improperly shifted the burden of proof. Sheely v.State, 4D2023-2171 (8/14/24)

RECORD: Appellant has the vital obligation of demonstrating error, and this obligation necessarily includes the burden of making, preserving, and presenting an adequate record for appellate review. "Unfortunately, some of what the parties said at sidebar during trial was unintelligible and could not be transcribed by the court reporter. . .Consequently, we decline to find the trial court erred in admitting the body camera recording into evidence." CONSPIRACY-HOBBS ACT ROBBERY: §924(c) imposes a mandatory minimum consecutive sentence for possession of a firearm for Carrying a Firearm During a Drug Trafficking Crime or a Crime of Violence. Its residual clause (a felony that by its nature, involves a substantial risk that physical force against the person or property of another may be used in the course of committing the offense) is unconstitutionally void for vagueness. Neither Conspiracy to Commit not Attempting to Commit Hobbs Act Robbery are predicate crimes of violence under the residual clause. Fernandez v. USA, No. 21-12915 (11th Cir. 8/13/24)

CONSPIRACY-HOBBS ACT ROBBERY: Conspiracy or Attempt to commit Hobbs Act robbery is not a "crime of violence" under the elements clause, either. Fernandez v. USA, No. 21-12915 (11th Cir. 8/13/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112915.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Petitioner, who had been convicted of conspiracy to commit Hobbs Act Robbery and Possession of a Firearm in Furtherance of a Crime of Violence (§924(c)) must prove by contemporaneous precedent from when the conviction occurred that his §924(c) conviction rested solely on §924(c)'s residual clause to obtain habeas corpus relief from hIs required consecutive sentence. Because the district court could have—wrongly—believed that attempted Hobbs Act robbery was a valid predicate under the elements clause, and because the appellate court is bound by the prior panel precedent rule, even if convinced that its precedent is also wrong, Petitioner is not entitled to relief. Fernandez v. USA, No. 21-12915 (11th Cir. 8/13/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112915.pdf

CRIME OF VIOLENCE: For § 924(c), neither conspiracy to commit Hobbs Act robbery nor attempted Hobbs Act robbery qualify as a "crime of violence" under the elements clause. Fernandez v. USA, No. 21-12915 (11th Cir. 8/13/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112915.pdf

PRIOR PRECEDENT RULE (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "Luis Fernandez stands convicted of and will spend twenty five years in prison for something that Congress did not make a crime. That is so even though Congress enacted a mechanism by which we can correct this error—28 U.S.C. § 2255. We must affirm this result because. . .our prior-precedent rule. . .requires us to deny Fernandez's habeas petition. . . .Beeman demands that we set our legal flux capacitors to the moment of the petitioner's conviction and place ourselves in the legal landscape as it existed then. And if we misunderstood the law at the time of the petitioner's conviction to authorize that conviction, we must leave that conviction in place. We must do that even if the Supreme Court has since found our understanding of the law to be wrong and has held that the statute of conviction does not now and has not ever covered the petitioner's conduct." Fernandez v. USA, No. 21-12915 (11th Cir. 8/13/24)

AEDPA: For habeas claims resolved in state court, appellate court reviews the last state-court adjudication on the merits. Guardado v. Secretary, D.O.C., No. 22-10957 (11th Cir. 8/12/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210957.pdf

AEDPA: AEDPA requires that the state-court decision be given the benefit of the doubt and precludes federal habeas relief unless the state court's adjudication of the claim resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court. A prisoner must show far more than that the state court's decision was merely wrong or even clear error, but rather that the state court's decision was so obviously wrong that its error lies beyond any possibility for fairminded disagreement. Guardado v. Secretary, D.O.C., No. 22-10957 (11th Cir. 8/12/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210957.pdf

INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE OF COUNSEL: In penalty phase of death case, Defendant failed to show prejudice by counsel's failure to present cumulative or background information by lay witness testimony and letters. Guardado v. Secretary, D.O.C., No. 22-10957 (11th Cir. 8/12/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210957.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS-DEATH PENALTY: Mental health experts' different characterizations of Defendant's diagnoses do not warrant habeas corpus relief from the death penalty where "the circumstances described were largely the same—Guardado decided to murder while suffering from emotional stress and under the influence of crack cocaine." Guardado v. Secretary, D.O.C., No. 22-10957 (11th Cir. 8/12/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210957.pdf

AEDPA-PREJUDICE: To be entitled to AEDPA deference, the state court must apply the correct standard for ineffective assistance of counsel as set out in Strickland. Court applied an incorrect standard for prejudice in exercising juror challenges–actual bias rather than a reasonable probability that, absent counsel's errors the result would have been different. Strickland's prejudice standard applies to a habeas claim that counsel failed to challenge for cause or strike a juror. Guardado v. Secretary, D.O.C., No. 22-10957 (11th Cir. 8/12/24)

SENTENCING GUIDELINES CALCULATION-CATEGORICAL APPROACH: §2K2.1(a)(1) requires a base-offense level of 26 if defendant committed any part of the instant offense subsequent to sustaining at least two felony convictions for a crime of violence. Under the categorical approach, which looks to 'the elements of the statute of conviction' and determines if the least of the acts criminalized qualifies as a crime of violence, armed robbery would not be a crime if violence because it includes sudden snatching, which can be non-violent. But because robbery is a "divisible" statute--one which has multiple, alternative elements, and so effectively creates 'several different crimes in one provision--the modified categorical approach applies and a limited class of documents may be looked at, These Shepard documents show the predicate robberies were crimes if violence. USA v. Brooks, No. 22-11456 8/9/24)

SENTENCING GUIDELINES-RELEVANT CONDUCT-FIREARM: Defendant is subject to a two-level enhancement under U.S.S.G. §2K2.1(b)(4)(A) because his relevant conduct included possessing another stolen pistol three months later. USA v. Brooks, No. 22-11456 8/9/24)

SENTENCING GUIDELINES--FIREARM-IN CONNECTION WITH: Defendant convicted of possession of a firearm by a felon who was found with a different, stolen, firearm three months later is subject to a four-level increase under §2K2.1(b)(6)(B) for use of a firearm in connection with another felony offense. A felon possesses a firearm "in connection with" theft by receiving the stolen firearm itself. USA v. Brooks, No. 22-11456 8/9/24)

DEATH PENALTY-EX POST FACTO: §921.141(2)(c), which became effective April 2023, requires the jury to recommend a sentence of death if

eight or more jurors determine that death is the appropriate sentence. Retroactive application of the amended statute does not violate the Ex Post Facto Clauses of the United States and Florida Constitutions. The amendment to §921.141 is a quintessentially procedural change that has no substantive effect. Lyons v. State, 2D2023-2358 (8/9/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2438819/opinion/Opinion_2023-2358.pdf

BINDING PRECEDENT: The decisions of the district courts of appeal represent the law of Florida. The proper hierarchy of decisional holdings demands that in the event the only case on point on a district level is from a district other than the one in which the trial court is located, the trial court is required to follow that decision. That a decision of the district court of appeal is not yet final when a trial court rules on an issue does not affect the binding nature of the appellate decision. Lyons v. State, 2D2023-2358 (8/9/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2438819/opinion/Opinion_2023-2358.pdf

ESCAPE-MENS REA-DURESS: Court improperly instructed jury that §751(a) required Governmnent to prove that Defendant knew he was not allowed to leave the facility without permission but intentionally left the facility anyway, and not that he did not know leaving the facility, even without permission. Instruction failed to account for willfulness. "Although the instruction stated that Bush had to have known that he was 'not allowed' to leave Keeton 'without permission,' it didn't specify that he had to have acted 'unlawfully,' or with an intent to do something 'that the law forbids.' In fact, it said just the opposite." USA v. Bush, No. 22-13867 (8/8/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202213867.pdf

DEFINITION-"WILLFULLY": The term "knowingly" merely requires proof of knowledge of the facts that constitute the offense whereas the term "willfully" requires proof of "knowledge that the conduct was unlawful. USA v. Bush, No. 22-13867 (8/8/24)

MENS REA: "It's difficult to imagine an issue more central to a finding of criminal responsibility than mens rea. If the government can't prove that the defendant acted with the requisite state of mind, the defendant is entitled to an acquittal." USA v. Bush, No. 22-13867 (8/8/24)

DENATURALIZATION: Where Defendant was granted citizenship by falsely swearing that he had never sold narcotics and was later convicted for having done so before becoming a citizen, he may be denaturalized and deported, but he is not estopped from challenging the factual basis. USA v. Munoz, No 22-11574 (11th Cir. 8/7/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211574.pdf

COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL: Collateral estoppel forecloses relitigation of an issue of fact or law that has been litigated and decided in a prior suit. Collateral estoppel is not available unless four conditions are met: (1) the relevant issue must be identical to the issue involved in the prior proceeding, (2) the issue must have been actually litigated in the prior proceeding, (3) the issue's determination must have been a critical and necessary part of the prior proceeding, i.e. the final outcome hinges on it, and (4) the party against whom the earlier decision is asserted must have had a full and fair opportunity to litigate the issue in the prior proceeding. USA v. Munoz, No 22-11574 (11th Cir. 8/7/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211574.pdf

DENATURALIZATION-COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL: The Defendant's stipulation in the factual basis of his plea to the date he sold narcotics does not collaterally estop him in his denaturalization case because the starting date was unnecessary to the conspiracy conviction. Subject may litigate whether his participation in the conspiracy began after he became a citizen. USA v. Munoz, No 22-11574 (11th Cir. 8/7/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211574.pdf

JUDICIAL ESTOPPEL: Judicial Estoppel prevents the perversion of the judicial process and protects its integrity by prohibiting parties from deliberately changing positions according to the exigencies of the moment. For judicial estoppel, a party prove 1) that the other party's position was clearly inconsistent with his earlier position, 2) the adverse party succeeded in persuading a court to accept his earlier position, so that judicial acceptance of an inconsistent position in a later proceeding would create the perception that either the first or the second court was misled, and 3) the adverse party would derive an unfair advantage or impose an unfair detriment if not estopped. USA v. Munoz, No 22-11574 (11th Cir. 8/7/24)

DENATURALIZATION-JUDICIAL ESTOPPEL: The Defendant's stipulation in the factual basis of his plea to the date he sold narcotics does not judicially estop him in his denaturalization case. Subject may litigate whether his participation in the conspiracy began after he became a citizen. USA v. Munoz, No 22-11574 (11th Cir. 8/7/24)

RENEWAL OF OFFER OF COUNSEL: Where Defendant dismissed appointed counsel and proceeded to trial pro se, Court erred in failing to renew the offer of counsel before hearing his motion for new trial. After a trial court finds that a defendant has waived his right to counsel, the offer of assistance of counsel shall be renewed by the court at each subsequent crucial stage of the proceedings, which includes any stage that may significantly affect the outcome of the proceedings. Bryan v. State, 1D2022-0957 (8/7/24)

CONSECUTIVE HFO SENTENCES: When multiple sentences for offenses committed during a single criminal episode have been enhanced under the Habitual Felony Offender statute, the total penalty cannot be further increased by imposing consecutive sentences, absent specific legislative authority. Bryan v. State, 1D2022-0957 (8/7/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Inadmissible hearsay cannot establish the value of the damage. Trial counsel was deficient in failing to object to based on an estimate she was given. Cooper v. State, 1D2022-4074 (8/7/24)

FAILURE TO REGISTER-JOA:. A prerequisite to finding a violation of §943.0435(4)(b)1--failing to establish or maintain a residence or failing to report a change in residences—is that the sexual offender establish one of the three types of statutorily-defined residences in the first place. Where State established only that Defendant never lived at the address that he registered but failed to present any evidence that he ever established a permanent, temporary, or transient residence and thereafter changed his residence or vacated his residence without establishing another permanent, temporary, or transient residence, JOA is required. Dennis v. State, 1D2023-0866 (8/7/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Court did not err in finding that trial counsel was not ineffective for failing to properly cross-examine child sex abuse victim on inconsistencies, i.e. never saw his penis vs. it had freckles on it, because counsel did not want to risk inflaming the jury. Wendell v. State, 1D2023-2478 (8/7/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel was not ineffective for not asking the trial court to order the victim to undergo a medical examination where Defendant cited no authority that would have authorized the trial court to order such an examination and the victim did not report the abuse until months afterward. BELATED APPEAL: Access to a prison law library is not necessary to prepare and transmit a simple notice of appeal and lack of that access did not demonstrate a right to a belated appeal. Greene v. State, 1D2023-3354 (8/7/24)

TWELVE-PERSON JURY-CAPITAL SEX BATTERY: Although sexual battery of a child is labeled a "capital" offense, it is not a "capital case" requiring a twelve-person jury. Death was not a permissible penalty at the time of the offenses. Recent legislation now permits imposition of the death penalty for capital sexual battery of a child committed on or after October 1, 2023. Serrano-Delgado v. State, 2D2023-1086 (8/7/24)

TWELVE-PERSON JURY: Florida's use of a six-person jury does not violate the Sixth or Fourteenth Amendment. U.S. Supreme Court has denied cert on this issue over Justice Gorsuch's dissent ("If there are not yet four votes on this Court to take up the question whether Williams should be overruled, I can only hope someday there will be."). "With all due respect, Justice Gorsuch is but one voice on the Supreme Court. We are bound by precedent, not by what one Supreme Court Justice wishes." Serrano-Delgado v. State, 2D2023-1086 (8/7/24)

DISCOVERY: Even if the State committed a discovery violation by failing to disclose the two vulgar words the juvenile yelled at his mother while threatening to kill her, charging at her, and brandishing a metal pipe. HABEAS CORPUS: When an inmate seeks immediate release from custody, he should seek a writ of habeas corpus from the circuit court in the county where his institution is located. Mane v. State, 3D24-0116 (8/7/24)

DEADLY WEAPON: The question of whether a particular weapon is to be classed as "deadly" is a factual question to be resolved by the jury, based upon evidence or reasonable inferences therefrom of the likelihood to produce death or great bodily injury. The jury may consider the character of the assault and the way the weapon is used. Jones v. State, 3D24-0484 (8/7/24)

JURY INSTRUCTION-REASONABLE DOUBT: The omission of Standard Jury Instruction 3.7, including its instruction on reasonable doubt, missed by the prosecutor, defense counsel, and the trial judge, is fundamental error. "We find no support for the State's argument that giving instructions on the presumption of innocence and reasonable doubt during jury selection in combination with similar instructions given sporadically throughout the course of the trial is a proper substitute for giving the complete instructions during the final charge to the jury." PRR-FLEEING AND ELUDING: Fleeing or eluding does not qualify for PRR sentencing. Ramirez v. State, 4D2023-0508 (8/7/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2438718/opinion/Opinion_2023-0508.pdf

BILL OF PARTICULARS: Where the State charged ongoing sexual abuse of a child over an eight month period, no error existed in having charged the incidents as having occurred on one or more occasions as long as each charge contained only a single ongoing offense against the child. State may charge one count for each type of sexual act, where the victim had been continually abused and could not remember specific dates or narrow the time period. Gracia v. State, 4D2023-0750 (8/7/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2438729/opinion/Opinion_2023-0750.pdf

SUPERSEDEAS BOND: In considering supersedeas bond, Court must consider (1) whether the appeal is taken for delay or in good faith on grounds not frivolous but fairly debatable; (2) the habits of the individual regarding respect for the law; (3) local attachments to the community by way of family ties, business or investment; (4) the severity of the sentence imposed, and circumstances relevant to the question of whether the defendant would remove himself from the jurisdiction of the court. Court must state in writing its reasons for the denial. Torolopez v. State, 3D23-2255 (8/6/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2438631/opinion/Opinion_2023-2255.pdf

SUPERSEDEAS BOND: The fact that Defendant is an immigrant from Cuba should not be a reason to deny a suprsedeas bond. Torolopez v. State, 3D23-2255 (8/6/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2438631/opinion/Opinion_2023-2255.pdf

SUPERSEDEAS BOND: Court may not analyze whether appeal is likely ti be successful in considering whether it is taken in good faith. Good faith does not mean there is probable cause to believe the judgment will be reversed, but simply that the appeal is not vexatious and the defendant has assigned errors that are open to debate and about which reasonable questions exist. The good-faith requirement establishes a relatively low threshold. "The fact that Torolopez can make a colorable argument. . .renders the merits of the appeal 'fairly debatable.'" Torolopez v. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-ODOR OF MARIJUANA: Because the "plain smell" of cannabis is no longer clearly indicative of criminal activity, it alone cannot provide reasonable suspicion to support an investigatory detention. A potentially lawful activity cannot be the sole basis for a detention. If this were allowed, the Fourth Amendment would be eviscerated. "The incremental legalization of certain types of cannabis at both the federal and state level has reached the point that its plain smell does not immediately indicate the presence of an illegal substance. As a result, the smell of cannabis cannot on its own support a detention." Conflict certified. Baxter v. State, 5D2023-0118 (8/2/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-ODOR OF MARIJUANA: Asking Defendanr after he was detained whether he had a marijuana card (he did not) is too late to cure the unlawful detention. Baxter v. State, 5D2023-0118 (8/2/24)

APPEAL-PRESERVED ISSUE (J. EISNAUGLE, CONCURRING): There are three elements of a properly preserved argument. First, the party must make a timely, contemporaneous objection at the time of the alleged error. Second, the party must state a legal ground for that objection. Third, argument on appeal must be the specific contention asserted as legal ground below. Although this case was "hardly a model of preservation," the " rule on preservation does not require an eloquent presentation. Baxter v. State, 5D2023-0118 (8/2/24)

NEOLOGISM-"ENBANCWORTHINESS": "Assuming that Baxter's supplemental memorandum meets the minimum bar for preservation, however, the convolution and tardiness in his presentation of the issue both weigh against enbancworthiness. CONTEMPT: Courtt erred in finding Defendant in contempt of court 22 days after he allegedly "yelled" at the court. Court's failure to scrupulously follow the requirements of R. 3.830 constitutes fundamental error. Beyond a perfunctory request whether there was just cause not to hold Petitioner in contempt, the trial court did not provide Petitioner with the opportunity to present evidence of excusing or mitigating circumstances. This is fundamental error. Gillespie v. State, 5D2023-0888 (8/2/24) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2438536/opinion/Opinion_2023-0888.pdf

SENTENCING-ORAL PRONOUNCEMENT: Written order for $150 in restitution to be paid to the Division of Victim Services in a child porn case must be stricken where not orally pronounced. ODOR OF MARIJUANA: Even if smoking marijuana were legal altogether, the officers would have had probable cause based on the fact that Defendant was operating a car. STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT: Miranda warnings are not required where co-Defendant willingly and at his own suggestion assists officers in eliciting incriminating and secretly recorded statements by Defendant. Miranda warnings are not required when the suspect is unaware that he is speaking to a law enforcement officer and gives a voluntary statement. Miranda forbids coercion, not mere strategic deception by taking advantage of a suspect's misplaced trust in one he supposes to be a fellow prisoner. A casual conversation is not the functional equivalent of interrogation. Marotta v. State, 4D2023-0448 (7/31/24)

BRIBERY-GRATUITIES: Government official who steered a contract to a company which gave her $10,000, a diamond ring, free landscaping, and, later, a new job is properly convicted of bribery. The key difference between a gratuity and a bribe is whether the official and the payer agreed to a payment for the official act. The timing of the agreement, not of the payment, is the key. Defendant is not entitled to a jury instruction that a payment received after the act is a gratuity, not a bribe. USA v. Macrina, No. 23-10734 (7/30/24) x USA v. Macrina, No. 23-10734 (7/30/24)

RULE OF COMPLETENESS: The Rule of Completeness (R.106) provides that when a party introduces only part of a writing or recorded statement, the opposing party may introduce other portions of that in fairness ought to be considered at the same time, regardless of the kind of writings or recorded statements. It is not limited to custodial statements. But the objecting party must point to the specific portions she wants admitted. USA v. Macrina, No. 23-10734 (7/30/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-STANDING-GEOFENCE WARRANT: A geofence warrant is a specific type of warrant used to collect information on the presence of a cell phone or other device within a specific area during a set time frame. Defendant lacks Fourth Amendment standing to challenge a geofence warrant identifying his girlfriend's phone in the vicinity of robberies because he had no privacy interest in the search of his girlfriend's phone or her daughter's Google account. Even if a person has a privacy interest in the data on his own phone, he does not have that interest in the data on someone else's phone. USA v. Davis, No. 23-10184 (11th Cir. 7/30/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: "Until now, neither we nor the Supreme Court has explicitly defined the standard for strip searches of a free person visiting a jail or prison. We now hold that correctional officers must have at least reasonable suspicion that a visitor is concealing contraband (e.g., drugs or weapons) before they may strip-search that visitor." But Prison officials had qualified immunity from suit for highly intrusive strip search of prison visitors because their Fourth Amendment right to be free from strip searches without reasonable suspicion was not clearly established at the time of the search. "[W]e do not look to persuasive authority—even a 'robust consensus' of it—to determine whether the law was 'clearly established.'" Gilmore v. Georgia D.O.C., No. 23-10343 (11TH Cir. 7/29/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-QUALIFIED IMMUNITY (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "For more than a quarter of a century, the Supreme Court has repeatedly directed that 'a robust 'consensus of cases of persuasive authority' can 'clearly establish' a constitutional violation for qualified-immunity purposes. . .Yet we have consistently dodged that directive. It's time to bring our precedent into the twenty-first century." Gilmore v. Georgia D.O.C., No. 23-10343 (11TH Cir. 7/29/24)

PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE-QUALIFIED IMMUNITY (J. NEWSOM, CONCURRING): "[I]f a court concludes that a defendant's conduct violated the Constitution, but then goes on to hold that the law wasn't clearly established at the time he acted and that he is therefore entitled to qualified immunity, its merits holding is effectively dictum." "It's just weird. . .It may be that. . .the time is coming (has come?). . .,for [the Supreme] Court to consider a major league reassessment of its qualified-immunity jurisprudence." Gilmore v. SENTENCING-UNREASONABLENESS: Miscalculation of Criminal History Category and upward variance from guidelines recommended range does not render the sentence substantively nor procedurally unreasonable where Court's comments show it would have varied upward regardless of the miscalculations. JIMMY RYCE: Petitioner fails to show probable cause that he is no longer a dangerous sex offender, and thus to be entitled to a trial on continued commitment, where his personality disorder continues to drive his actions and he continues to resist treatment. Donovan v. State, 5D2022-2978 (7/26/24)

SELF-INCRIMINATION: Defendant's hesitation before giving a DNA sample does not constitute exercising his right to remain silent. Testimony about it is not improper. "While he may have initially 'balked' in response to one question—in the context of consenting to the buccal swab—that did not transform his willing cooperation with Detective Caswell into the exercise of his right to remain silent. . .[H]esitating before speaking is not the same as staying quiet." ISSUE PRESERVATION-SUPPRESSION: Where Defendant's pretrial motion to suppress his confession was denied, and his counsel said "no objection" when the State sought to admit it at trial, he failed to preserve the issue for appeal. §90.104(1) says that when a "court has made a definitive ruling on the record admitting or excluding evidence, either at or before trial, a party need not renew an objection or offer of proof to preserve a claim of error for appeal." But the Florida Supreme Court has held otherwise. Under §90.104(1), "Xolo seemingly preserved for appeal a challenge to the admission of his confession at trial. But under the precedent, he did not." Xolo v. State, 6D2023-0846 (7/26/24)

ISSUE PRESERVATION-CONUNDRUM: "To be sure, someone in. . .Xolo's position faces a conundrum. . [W]hat should the response be when the court again asks whether there is any objection? A party either objects or does not. If the response is yes, then the party has necessarily renewed the objection. But that is what section 90.104(1) states is unnecessary to preserve the claim of error. If the response is no, then under Carr the objection is abandoned and not preserved even though—once again—the statute explicitly says that 'a party need not renew an objection to preserve a claim of error for appeal.' . . .Qualifying the response with "pursuant to my prior objection" or "subject to my prior objection" does not resolve this conundrum." "The most we can do here is flag the tension between the statute and the precedent for another look by

PLEA WITHDRAWAL: When a motion to withdraw plea is filed by an unrepresented defendant, trial courts are obligated to renew the offer of counsel prior to addressing the merits of the motion Court must inform the Defendant of his right to the assistance of counsel in preparing and presenting a motion to withdraw plea. WIRETAP-STATEWIDE PROSECUTOR: The Federal Wiretap Act only authorizes the (1) the "principal prosecuting attorney of any State" or (2) the "principal prosecuting attorney of any political subdivision to apply to state courts for wiretaps. It preempts the field of wiretapping and electronic surveillance and limits a state's authority to legislate in this area. Fla. Stat. §934.07 grants the statewide prosecutor power to apply for a search warrant, but the Statewide prosecutor is not the "principal prosecuting attorney of any political subdivision" so it may not request a wiretap under that provision. The issue of whether the Statewide prosecutor is authorized under the "principal prosecuting attorney of any State" provision is a "more interesting issue" but was not properly raised nor preserved. WIRETAPS-STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: "The State argues that reading the statute the way the Defendant does would lead to an absurd result, noting it would basically brush aside almost 40 years of practice. There was no testimony regarding how long the Statewide Prosecutor has been authorizing wiretaps, but the Court cannot see how it would matter. Interpreting a federal law clearly designed to preempt state laws, having been held to preempt state laws, and having been applied to override portions of Florida's law to again override the state law is not an absurd result. Instead, the State is simply arguing that a result contrary to its view is absurd." State v. Rogers, 1D2023-0506 (7/24/24)

OBSTRUCTION: The element of lawful execution of a legal duty is satisfied if an officer has either a founded suspicion to stop the person or probable cause to make a warrantless arrest. McNeill v. State, 3D23-0106 (7/24/24)

DNA TESTING: In order to be entitled to postconviction DNA testing, a defendant's motion must lay out with specificity how the DNA testing of each item requested to be tested would give rise to a reasonable probability of acquittal or a lesser sentence. Rodriguez v. State, 3D24-0951 (7/24/24)
https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2438073/opinion/Opinion_2024-0951.pdf

JURY INSTRUCTION-SEXUAL BATTERY: Court erred in instructing the jury with the 2022 amended, expanded definition ("genital female penetration" rather than the earlier definition ("vaginal penetration"). Flores v. State, 4D2023-1837 (7/24/24)

ISSUE PRESERVATION-FUNDAMENTAL ERROR: A tactical decision to stand mute regarding an erroneous instruction will not support fundamental error. "[W]e caution that parties will not be rewarded for standing mute and permitting an erroneous instruction to go to the jury because of counsel's tactical inaction." Flores v. State, 4D2023-1837 (7/24/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2438092/opinion/Opinion_2023-1837.pdf

FUNDAMENTAL ERROR-TRIPARTITE DUTY: "A tripartite duty exists within the judicial system to ensure a defendant receives due process within the framework of a fair trial. Regrettably, the State, defense counsel, and the trial court did not meet their responsibility in this regard. The State injected fundamental error into the trial by requesting a jury instruction it either knew or should have known was based on the incorrect version of the statute. . .This obvious error was then compounded by the ineffective assistance of defense counsel, whose failure to object. . .allowed the jury to be charged under a less stringent standard. . . Finally, the trial court had the ultimate responsibility as the backstop to ensure the correct jury instruction was given. . .This lack of due attention by all these participants will now require a new trial, which was entirely preventable." Flores v. State, 4D2023-1837 (7/24/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2438092/opinion/Opinion_2023-1837.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS: Before filing a second or successive §2254 petition in the district court, a state prisoner must move in the court of appeals for an order authorizing the district court to consider the application. A second-in-time §2254 petition raising Brady and Giglio claims is a second or successive petition, even though Petitioner had not known of the grounds at the time of the original petition. Jennings v. Florida, DOC, 20-12555 (11th Cir. 7/22/24)

RESTITUTION-KICKBACKS: Restitution must be based on actual loss, not on the total amount of kickbacks paid. The purpose of restitution is not to provide a windfall for crime victims, nor to punish the defendant, but rather to ensure that victims, to the greatest extent possible, are made whole for their losses. "So barring a very good reason not to construe the statute to mean what it says, we must conclude that the government bears the burden of showing loss. Government cannot show loss without also establishing that the prescriptions were not medically necessary or were fraudulently obtained." USA v. Young, No. 20-13091 (7/22/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013091.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-LOITERING AND PROWLING: The Fourth Amendment does not require a misdemeanor to occur in an officer's presence to conduct a warrantless arrest. A common law rule is not a constitutional rule. USA v. Grandia Gonzalez, No. 23-10578 (11th Cir. 7/19/24)

FIREARMS: The 2011 amendment to the Joe Carlucci Uniform Firearms Act (§790.33) preempted all agency regulation regarding firearms. "For lack of a better term, we characterize the 2011 amendments to the statute as 'un-delegating' (rather than preempting) some of the regulatory power previously provided [to FDLE]". The 2011 amendments withdrew all legislative authority for future firearms or ammunition regulations when such regulations are based only on the general language of an agency's enabling statute. FDLE's implementation of the three-day waiting period for firearms purchases may be challenged under the preemption statute. Pretzer v. Swearingen, 1D2022-1863 (7/19/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: An officer need not know, for sure, that the item is contraband in order to seize it. White powder in a sandwich bag is identifiable as contraband. Ferrell v. State, 2D2023-0521 (7/19/24)

JURY INSTRUCTION-SELF-DEFENSE: Defendant is entitled to have the jury instructed on his or her theory of defense if there is any evidence to support this theory, so long as the theory is recognized as valid under the law of the state, no matter how weak or flimsy. A Defendant is entitled to a justifiable use of deadly force instruction where he thought the Victim had a gun regardless of whether he actually did. "Although the evidence that Cabrera was armed with a deadly weapon as he approached Greenlee's vehicle was slight, it was sufficient under Florida law to obligate the trial court to include. . .the jury instruction on the justifiable use of deadly force." Espichan v. State, 6D2023-0921 (7/19/24)

COMPETENCY: Where a trial court authorizes a competency evaluation, and the evaluation report determines a criminal defendant is competent to stand trial, there is no legal error, much less fundamental error, where a further hearing on the report is not conducted, no evidence or argument is presented that the defendant is not competent, and the trial record reveals no indication raising any reasonable doubt of the defendant's competency. Hicks v. State, 1D2022-0701 (7/17/24)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2437354/opinion/Opinion_2022-1259.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-REASONABLE SUSPICION: A citizen tip may provide a basis for approaching a person dozing in a car, but if the officer's initial investigation reveals no medical emergency or drug use, there is no reasonable suspicion to hold Defendant for an additional 10 minutes to wait for the K-9 to arrive. There is no de minimis exception to an unlawful detention. Ridgeway v. State, 1D2022-275 (7/17/24)

APPEAL: The absence of any objection at the time of disposition followed by the failure to file a motion to correct a disposition error precludes consideration even of fundamental disposition errors on direct appeal. M.P., a child v. State, 2D2022-4209 (7/17/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-ABANDONED PROPERTY: Abandoned property does not fall under the aegis of the Fourth Amendment. Defendant who left his car with the door open and the engine running when he fled the scene of a shootout abandoned the car, allowing the police to find the drugs inside it. Muhammad v. State, 2D2023-0502 (7/17/24)

VOTER FRAUD-STATEWIDE PROSECUTOR: Defendant filled out a voter registration Dade County and voted there, but the registration was transmitted to the Secretary of State in Leon County for approval. Registering to vote in Dade County and subsequently voting in Dade County invokes the jurisdiction of the Office of Statewide Prosecution. Statewide Prosecutor has authority to bring charges of voter fraud because the alleged acts occurred in two or her more judicial circuits as part of a related transaction. While Defendant himself acted only in one jurisdiction, the chain of events that led to the consummation of the crime necessarily occurred in two or more jurisdictions. State v. Miller, 3D2022-2180 (7/17/24)

EVIDENCE-INEXTRICABLY INTERTWINED: Evidence is inextricably intertwined if the evidence is necessary to (1) adequately describe the deed; (2) provide an intelligent account of the crime(s) charged; (3) establish the entire context out of which the charged crime(s) arose; or (4) adequately describe the events leading up to the charged crime(s). JUDGE-WITNESS: A judge may advise a witness of his or her rights when the witness is potentially exposing himself of herself to criminal liability such as perjury. However, the judge may not threaten or effectively drive the witness off the stand. Almaguer v. State, 3D23-0555 (7/17/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: A defendant may not claim a sentence is illegal based on an alleged discrepancy between an oral pronouncement and a written sentence without a transcript of the sentencing hearing or other indisputable evidence of record to support the claim. COMPETENCY: Once a trial court has reasonable grounds to believe that a criminal defendant is not competent to proceed, the trial court has no choice but to conduct a competency hearing. Perkins v. State, 4D2022-3276

VOTER FRAUD-STATEWIDE PROSECUTOR: The participation in Leon County by the Secretary of State in the approval process of a Florida voter application in Broward County and the later certification of the vote makes unlawful registration to vote and voting a multi-county offense, thereby conferring jurisdiction on the Office of Statewide Prosecution. Submitting a fraudulent voter registration in Broward County is an act which requires subsequent involvement of the Secretary of State in Leon County. So too does voting in an election in Broward County. Hubbard v. State, 4D2022-3429 (717/24)

OFFICE OF STATEWIDE PROSECUTION (J. MAY, DISSENTING): "During the incubation period of the constitutional and statutory authority for the OSP, there were expressed concerns that the OSP 'could be used to harass political enemies and centralize prosecutorial authority away from local elected state attorneys.' . . . For this very reason, the Commission and the legislature narrowly tailored the OSP's jurisdiction. . .Yet, the OSP now seeks to extend its reach into the local discretion afforded the Office of the State Attorney for single judicial circuit crimes. The OSP is not some Marvel superhero that can magically extend its long arm of the law into a single judicial circuit and steamroll over the local state attorney. In short, this is a stretch the majority is willing to condone, but I am not." Hubbard v. State, 4D2022-3429 (717/24)

OFFICE OF STATEWIDE PROSECUTION (J. MAY, DISSENTING): "One need only follow a simple logical syllogism: (1) The OSP was created to prosecute multi-judicial circuit crimes. (2) The Information does not allege a multi-judicial circuit crime. (3) The OSP does not have jurisdiction to prosecute the defendant for these charges." Hubbard v. State, 4D2022-3429 (717/24)

COLLATERAL CRIME EVIDENCE: Evidence of Defendant's fraudulent transfer of property shield it from creditors in a bankruptcy case is not admissible in a theft case. Evidence of a collateral crime is inherently prejudicial because it creates the risk that a conviction will be based on the defendant's bad character or propensity to commit crimes, rather than on proof the defendant committed the charged offense. The improper admission of Williams rule evidence is presumed to be harmful error, especially, but not only, when the State relies on the improper evidence in its closing argument. Soto Gutierrez v. State, 4D2023-0106 (7/17/24)

TWELVE-PERSON JURY: The Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments to the United States Constitution do not require a twelve person jury. Harris v. State, 4D2023-0869 (7/17/24)

SENTENCING CONSIDERATIONS: In sentencing, the Court erred by considering the injuries a victim sustained at the hands of a co-defendant despite the Defendant being acquitted of causing the injuries. It is a violation of due process for the court to rely on conduct of which the defendant has actually been acquitted when imposing a sentence. Harris v. State, 4D2023-0869 (7/17/240

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE-KIDNAPPING: Kidnapping is not a capital felony for which the defendant would be ineligible for consideration of a downward departure. Harris v. State, 4D2023-0869 (7/17/24)

COSTS OF PROSECUTION: Court may not impose a $746 prosecution cost exceeding where the state had not presented any evidence to impose such costs in excess of $100. Harris v. State, 4D2023-0869 (7/17/24)

VICTIM-DOMESTIC VIOLENCE: Under §741.28, a person cannot be considered a current domestic violence victim, or have an objectively reasonable fear of becoming one, based on actions that are too remote in time and therefore stale. Thomas v. Linglong LI, 4D2023-1437 (7/17/24)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2437388/opinion/Opinion_2023-1437.pdf

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: To determine whether a downward departure sentence is appropriate, the trial court follows a two-step process. First, the court must determine whether there is a valid legal ground for the departure sentence, set forth in statute or case law, supported by facts proven by a preponderance of the evidence. The second step requires the trial court to determine whether the departure is the best sentencing option for the defendant. Henderson v. State, 4D2023-1593 (7/17/23)
https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2437393/opinion/Opinion_2023-1593.pdf

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE-COOPERATION: Where police were already aware of the defendant's crimes at the time they questioned him, his cooperation is not grounds for a downward departure. Henderson v. State, 4D2023-1593 (7/17/23)

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS: Court''s gratuitous comments regarding the effect which other child pornography cases had upon the circuit court's views and/or feelings towards that crime are inappropriate but did not warrant resentencing. "We. . .caution the circuit court—and other courts throughout our district and the state—that generalized comments such as those which the circuit court voiced here as part of its gratuitous second-step analysis, undermine the appearance that the defendant is being sentenced by an impartial judge who will consider only the evidence presented to the court within that case." Henderson v. State, 4D2023-1593 (7/17/23)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Court abuses its discretion when it has determined the initial R. 3.850 motion to be legally insufficient but then fails to allow the defendant at least one opportunity to amend. Loveland v. State, 6D2023-0057 (7/17/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Under the "mailbox rule, a petition, notice, or motion from a pro se inmate is deemed filed at the moment in time when the inmate loses control over the document by entrusting its further delivery or processing to agents of the state. Loveland v. State, 6D2023-0057 (7/17/24)
https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2437419/opinion/Opinion_2023-0057.pdf

SENTENCING-REASONS: When a defendant does not object to a district court's failure to explain its sentence in violation of §3553(c), plain error review applies on appeal, not automatic reversal. USA v. Steiger, No. 22-10742 (7/16/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210742.op2.pdf

SENTENCING-PROCEDURAL REASONABLENESS: A district court commits a significant procedural error in imposing a sentence if it fails to calculate the guidelines range, calculates the range incorrectly, or fails to consider the §3553(a) factors. However, the district court is not required to state on the record that it has explicitly considered each of the §3553(a) factors or to discuss each of them. USA v. Steiger, No. 22-10742 (7/16/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210742.op2.pdf

SENTENCING-SUBSTANTIVE REASONABLENESS: Although there is no proportionality principle in sentencing, a major variance does require a more significant justification than a minor one. A twenty-year sentence on the VOP, concurrent with the state court sentence of life imprisonment, for defendant who planned and carried out the murder of his girlfriend on her child's first birthday and in the child's presence and stashed her body in a barrel for months is substantively reasonable. USA v. Steiger, No. 22-10742 (7/16/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210742.op2.pdf

MURDER FOR HIRE-JURY INSTRUCTION: The federal offense of murder for hire, which requires "intent that a murder be committed in violation of the laws of any State," does not require that the jury be instructed on excusable or justifiable homicide when neither is supported by evidence. There is no need to prove an actual state law crime as an essential element of the federal murder for trial charge. The gravamen of a federal murder-for-hire prosecution is the violation of federal law, not state law. USA v. Buselli, No. 23-10272 (11th Cir. 7/11/24)

RULES-APPELLATE-AMENDMENT: Orders in death penalty postconviction proceedings must be served on the judge who issued the order to be reviewed, rather than a copy of the petition simply being furnished to the judge. DEATH PENALTY-MITIGATION: The nonstatutory mitigator of "early signs of dementia" implies progressive dementia. Static dementia may properly be rejected as a mitigating factor. Cox v. State, No. SC2022-1553 (7/11/24)

DEATH PENALTY-ARGUMENT: A prosecutor's argument that recommending death would be the easy thing to do, if error, is not fundamental. Executing certain defendants with brain damage does not violate the Eighth Amendment. Cox v. State, No. SC2022-1553 (7/11/24)

EVIDENCE-INTERROGATION: A jury may hear an interrogating detective's statements about a crime when they provoke a relevant response from the defendant being questioned. APPEAL-PRESERVED ISSUE: Where State made sure that witness (who had testified in death penalty phase that Defendant had not been abused as a child) "was aware of the risk of criminal liability if he elected to change his earlier sworn testimony," Defendant may not raise on appeal the claim that the threat of perjury for recanting the earlier testimony violated the Fourteenth or Eighth Amendments To be preserved for appeal, the specific legal ground upon which a claim is based must be raised at trial and a claim different than that will not be heard on appeal. Defendant's motion for new trial never mentioned the Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments or the "threat" of perjury. Johnson v. State, SC2023-0055 (7/11/24)

DEATH PENALTY-MITIGATOR-"IMPAIRED CAPACITY": Court did not err in assigning little weight to Defendant's impairment of his ability to conform his conduct to the requirements of the law because of his lack of prior criminal history and his years of military service and work at various jobs. Johnson v. State, SC2023-0055 (7/11/24)

DEATH PENALTY-MITIGATOR-"NO SIGNIFICANT HISTORY": A trial court may not factor a contemporaneous conviction for the other murder into the "no significant history" mitigator and give it only moderate weight. But error is harmless. Johnson v. State, SC2023-0055 (7/11/24)

EVIDENCE-OTHER CRIMES: Court did not abuse its discretion when it denied Defendant's mistrial motion after officer speculated that a $100 bill in Defendant's wallet was counterfeit. The spontaneous, non-responsive statement was objectionable, but in context was not "so prejudicial as to vitiate the entire trial. Johnson v. State, SC2023-0055 (7/11/24)

PRESERVED ISSUE-MISLEADING ARGUMENT: State's closing argument that Defendant failed to prove diminished capacity ("But you have not heard a mental health defense. You have not heard insanity. There's been no doctor who's. . .told you that he was insane...") Is misleading because diminished capacity is not a viable defense. But the issue was not preserved and is not fundamental error. VICTIM IMPACT: Court did not abuse its discretion by allowing the State to show a victim impact video of the child victim that included the voice of his mother, the other victim. EIGHTH AMENDMENT-DELIBERATE INDIFFERENCE: The Cruel and Unusual Punishments Clause prohibits government officials from exhibiting deliberate indifference to the serious medical needs of prisoners. A deliberate-indifference plaintiff must prove that the defendant acted with subjective recklessness, i.e. that the defendant/prison official actually knew of a substantial risk of serious harm, not just that he should have known. Plaintiff must show that the defendant was subjectively aware that his own conduct put the plaintiff at substantial risk of serious harm—with the caveat that, in any event, a defendant who responds reasonably to a risk, even a known risk, cannot be found liable under the Eighth Amendment. COMPETENCY: Defense counsel, when raising concerns about a defendant's competency, must be conscientious in bringing an issue of competency before the trial court and preserving the issue for appeal. Awolowo v. State, 1D2022-2062 (7/10/24)

COMPETENCY: A trial court's decision to order a psychological evaluation does not create a constitutional entitlement to a competency hearing, regardless of whether the information available to the trial court met the evidentiary threshold for invoking the R. 3.210 competency procedures in the first place. Failure to hold a competency hearing in such circumstances is not fundamental error. Question certified. Awolowo v. State, 1D2022-2062 (7/10/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that trial counsel was ineffective. RESTITUTION: Where Defendant was charged with dealing in stolen property (jewelry), not with burglary or theft, the $2.500 taken from Victim's jug should not have been included in the restitution order. "[N]o mention of the $2,500 in cash contained in the stolen jug appears in the affidavits or the information, and it does not appear in the record at all until the restitution hearing itself." Error was fundamental. Franklin v. State, 2D2023-0710 (7/10/24)

RESTITUTION-DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Where at the sentencing hearing State said there was no restitution, Double Jeopardy precludes the court from ordering restitution days later. Once the court has entered an order setting the amount of restitution, jeopardy attaches, notwithstanding that its entry was the result of faulty information. "It is clear from the record that Lopez's sentence was not incomplete. The trial court inquired about restitution, the State effectively waived it, and the court imposed Lopez's sentence without further addressing the issue." Lopez v. State, 2D2023-0809 (7/10/24)

VOP: A probationer may not validly invoke a Fifth Amendment privilege to refuse to answer questions at a probation violation hearing regarding non-criminal conduct alleged to constitute the violation of probation, and the trial court may infer a probationer's silence, or refusal to answer questions, as evidence of noncompliance with the terms of his probation. APPEAL-PRESERVED ISSUE: Where a defendant fails to contemporaneously object to the written revocation order or fails to file a motion to correct sentence, the order will not be reversed on appeal (absent fundamental error) but is subject to an appropriately filed postconviction motion. POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: In determining whether a reasonable probability exist that the defendant would have insisted on going to trial, a court should consider the totality of the circumstances surrounding the plea, including factors such as whether a particular defense was likely to succeed at trial, the colloquy between the defendant and the trial court at the time of the plea, and the difference between the sentence imposed under the plea and the maximum possible sentence the defendant faced at trial. DNA TESTING: In order to be entitled to postconviction DNA testing, a defendant's motion must 1) include a description of the physical evidence containing DNA to be tested and, if known, the present location or last known location of the evidence and how it originally was obtained, 2) allege that the evidence was not previously tested or that the results of such testing were inconclusive and 3) explain how the DNA testing will exonerate the defendant or mitigate the sentence. MISTRIAL-OPENING STATEMENT: Defendant is not entitled to mistrial based on State's assertion in opening statement that Defendant's B.A.L. was .17 based on retrograde extrapolation where the testimony of the State's expert witness was less conclusive and more nuanced. VICTIM INJURY-VAGUENESS: The Portions of the Criminal Punishment Code describing victim injury as "Severe," "Moderate," and "Slight" are not unconstitutionally vague. VICTIM INJURY-RULE OF LENITY: "Severe," "moderate," and "slight" victim injury are not defined by the Criminal Punishment Code, but are defined by Merriam-Webster's dictionaries. Any uncertainty as to the application of these

SENTENCE STACKING-FIRST STEP ACT: The First Step Act, §403(a), prohibits district courts from engaging in sentence "stacking" (for a §924(c) conviction, 5-year and 20-year consecutive mandatory sentences), but §403(b) provides that the modified stacking rule does not apply if a sentence for the offense had already been imposed as of the date of enactment of the First Step Act. A criminal sentence that was pronounced before the First Step Act's effective date but was later vacated counts as "a sentence" that "has … been imposed." "We hold that. . . a sentence that was pronounced pre-Act but thereafter vacated does qualify as "a sentence" that "has … been imposed" for § 403(b) purposes. If that's not the result that Congress intended, it is of course free to amend the statute. We are not." USA v. Hernandez, No. 22-13311 (11th Cir. 7/8/24)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION-"SENTENCE": A "sentence" is the judgment that a court formally pronounces after finding a criminal defendant guilty." That "definition fits Hernandez's original sentence to a T. . .Had Congress wanted to specify the sorts of 'sentence[s]' to which §403(b) applies or otherwise limit that term's reach, it could have done so in any number of ways—for instance, by referring to 'a final sentence' or 'a valid sentence'" or perhaps even to 'the sentence.' Conspicuously, it did none of those things." USA v. Hernandez, No. 22-13311 (11th Cir. 7/8/24)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION-"HAS NOT BEEN": "Next up, 'has not been.' For reasons we'll explain, . . .that phrase is best read to refer to a completed act. . .Here, though, Hernandez and the government . . .insist that Congress's use of the phrase "has not been" rather than "had not been". . .indicates that it meant to refer to a sentence that 'continues up to the present'—i.e., one that has continuing validity. . .We disagree." USA v. Hernandez, No. 22-13311 (11th Cir. 7/8/24)

EVANESCING: "The construction pressed by Hernandez and the government envisions that a criminal sentence can pass into and out of existence. On that view, the target is always moving—and always capable of evanescing. But that's tough to square with the concrete, point-in-time benchmark denoted by §403(b)'s 'date of enactment" language, in that it provides no way of knowing in real time, as of the 'date of enactment,' whether or not 'a sentence has … been imposed.'" USA v. Hernandez, No. 22-13311 (11th Cir. 7/8/24)

DEFINITION-"IMPOSED": When used in reference to a criminal sentence, the term "imposed" in §403(b) refers to the historical fact of pronouncement. "[Precedent dictates that a sentence is 'imposed,' somewhat unsurprisingly, when the district court imposes it. . .Needless to say, the pronouncement of a sentence is something that occurs at a particular point in time and space: A district judge enters a courtroom, faces the defendant and his lawyer, and orally delivers remarks that constitute the criminal sentence. That oral pronouncement. . .is a historical fact. For better or worse, it happened, and nothing—not even the sentence's later vacatur—can erase the historical record." USA v. Hernandez, No. 22-13311 (11th Cir. 7/8/24)

VACATUR (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): Sentence vacatur happens. When it does, we have been very clear about any effect the original sentence might have: zero, zilch, nada. . .[A]s far as the law recognizes, upon sentence vacatur, no sentence has ever been imposed. . .So the question is, for purposes of §403(b), has 'a sentence' been "imposed" if it is later vacated? The answer is no. And no amount of textual parsing can change that." USA v. Hernandez, No. 22-13311 (11th Cir. 7/8/24)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION-"SENTENCE" (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): "Everyone understands that 'touchdowns' that are called back legally don't count. And that's precisely how we also understand 'sentences' that have been vacated: they don't count." USA v. Hernandez, No. 22-13311 (11th Cir. 7/8/24)

TEXTUALISM (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): "[T]he Majority Opinion never explains why our 'plain and ordinary meaning' understanding of 'sentence' doesn't apply to the First Step Act. Instead, it woodenly parrots Black's Law Dictionary's definition of 'sentence' and then assumes that definition includes a vacated sentence, even though we've said that vacated sentences are nullities. The Majority Opinion never engages with our jurisprudence that vacated sentences are void from the outset and wipe the slate clean. . . Textualism is not so one-dimensional." USA v. Hernandez, No. 22-13311 (11th Cir. 7/8/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202213311.pdf

SENTENCE STACKING-FIRST STEP ACT (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): "The question before this Court is whether Section 401 applies where a prior sentence has been vacated and the case remanded for plenary resentencing. The answer, unequivocally, is yes. . .§403(a)'s non-stacking rule should be applied at all sentencings that occur after enactment of the First Step Act—regardless of whether those are initial sentencings or resentencings because a pre-Act sentencing was vacated. Any other reading abandons the Act's text, purpose, and common sense." USA v. Hernandez, No. 22-13311 (11th Cir. 7/8/24)

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT: Where during questioning Defendant asked for an attorney, but then said, "Hold on, hold on. If I get an attorney do I gotta wait?" followed by "I don't want an attorney," his statements are admissible. When a suspect unequivocally invokes the Miranda right to counsel, the officers must immediately stop questioning. But if the suspect reinitiates contact with the police; and then knowingly and voluntarily waives his earlier-invoked Miranda rights, interrogation can proceed. Herard v. STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT-VOLUNTARINESS: When the voluntariness of a confession is in dispute, it is the State's burden to prove voluntariness by a preponderance of the evidence. Interrogation over twelve hours is not coercive where he was fed, was allowed to take at least three naps totalling 3.5 hours, with at least two bathroom breaks. "While this Court found it unsettling that Defendant urinated twice in his McDonald's cup, he was in fact afforded bathroom breaks." Herard v. State, No. SC2015-0391(7/3/24)

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT-RIGHT TO COUNSEL: Executing a "Notice of Defendant's Invocation of His/Her Right to Remain Silent and Right to Counsel" at first appearance does not prevent police questioning him anout a different crime. A claim of rights form is ineffective to invoke a suspect's Miranda right to counsel if signed before custodial interrogation has begun or is imminent. ANDERS BRIEF: An Anders brief is deficient if it fails to refer to every legal point in the record that might support an appeal. An Anders brief is not compliant simply because it states an appeal would be frivolous. The brief may not say that the appellate Court "should determine whether the trial court erred when it denied Appellant's motion for judgment of acquittal." POST CONVICTION RELIEF-ILLEGAL SENTENCE: A claim that the charging document did not allege the facts necessary to support the enhanced sentence (actual possession of a firearm) is not cognizable in a rule 3.800(a) motion. Louis v. State, 3D23-2021 (7/3/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: R. 3.800(a) is designed for judges to correct an improperly imposed sentence. It is not intended to remedy later errors by the agencies charged with administering the sentence imposed. If the agency incorrectly administers a sentence legally imposed so that the prisoner spends more time in prison than the sentence provides, his remedy is within the agency first and, if not corrected by the agency, on judicial review by extraordinary writ." MOTION TO DISMISS: On a R. 3.190(c)(4) motion to dismiss, the state is not only entitled to receive the most favorable construction of the evidence but also to have all inferences resolved against the defendant. In considering whether driving at the speed at issue constitutes recklessness, each case turns on its specific facts. A vehicle travelling 100 miles per hour on an interstate highway does not pose the same level of wanton conduct as does a vehicle travelling ninety miles an hour on a street with various side streets, driveways entering the street, and overall additional congestion. The rate of speed of a vehicle can be firmly shown by the evidence to be so excessive under the circumstances that to travel that fast under the conditions is by itself a reckless disregard for human life or the safety of persons exposed to the speed. PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY: President has absolute immunity from criminal prosecution for actions performed within the outer perimeter of his official responsibilities. The nature of Presidential power requires that a former President have some immunity from criminal prosecution for official acts during his tenure in office. In the exercise of his core constitutional powers, this immunity must be absolute. As for his remaining official actions, he is also entitled to immunity. "[W]e need not and do not decide whether that immunity must be absolute, or instead whether a presumptive immunity is sufficient." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-939_e2pg.pdf

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY: Seeking to overturn the legitimate results of a presidential election, conspiring to obstruct the congressional counting of electoral votes, and attempting to leverage the Justice Department's power and authority to convince certain States to replace their legitimate electors with fraudulent slates of electors fall within the scope of presidential immunity. When a president attempts to pressure the Vice President to throw out legitimate electoral votes, he is at least presumptively immune from prosecution. Exhorting supporters to storm the Capitol falls within the President's power of the "bully pulpit." "[M]ost of a President's public communications are likely to fall comfortably within the outer perimeter of his official responsibilities." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-939_e2pg.pdf

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. THOMAS, CONCURRING): "In this case, there has been much discussion about ensuring that a President 'is not above the law.' But. . .the President's immunity from prosecution for his official acts is the law." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-939_e2pg.pdf

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. BARRETT, CONCURRING): "Properly conceived, the President's constitutional protection from prosecution is narrow. . .Though I agree that a President cannot be held criminally liable for conduct within his 'conclusive and preclusive. authority and closely related acts, . . .the Constitution does not vest every exercise of executive power in the President's sole discretion. . .Congress. . .may sometimes use [its] authority to regulate the President's official conduct, including by criminal statute. Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. BARRETT, CONCURRING): "[T]he indictment alleges that the President 'asked the Arizona House Speaker to call the legislature into session to hold a hearing' about election fraud claims. . .The President has no authority over state legislatures or their leadership, so it is hard to see how prosecuting him for crimes committed when dealing with the Arizona House Speaker would unconstitutionally intrude on executive power." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR): Today's decision. . .makes a mockery of the principle, foundational to our Constitution and system of Government, that no man is above the law. . . Because our Constitution does not shield a former President from answering for criminal and treasonous acts, I dissent." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-939_e2pg.pdf

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "The Court now confronts a question it has never had to answer in the Nation's history: Whether a former President enjoys immunity from federal criminal prosecution. The majority thinks he should, and so it invents an atextual, ahistorical, and unjustifiable immunity that puts the President above the law.". . .Whether described as presumptive or absolute, under the majority's rule, a President's use of any official power for any purpose, even the most corrupt, is immune from prosecution. That is just as bad as it sounds, and it is baseless." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "[T]his majority's project will have disastrous consequences for the Presidency and for our democracy. . .The main takeaway of today's decision is that all of a President's official acts, defined without regard to motive or intent, are entitled to immunity that is 'at least. . . presumptive,' and quite possibly 'absolute.' . . .Whenever the President wields the enormous power of his office, the majority says, the criminal law (at least presumptively) cannot touch him. . .No matter how you look at it, the majority's official-acts immunity is utterly indefensible." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY-TEXTUALISM (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "The majority calls for a 'careful assessment of the scope of Presidential power under the Constitution.'. . . For the majority, that 'careful assessment' does not involve the Constitution's text. I would start there. The Constitution's text contains no provision for immunity from criminal prosecution for former Presidents." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-939_e2pg.pdf

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "Alexander Hamilton wrote that former Presidents would be 'liable to prosecution and punishment in the ordinary course of law. . .For Hamilton, that was an important distinction between 'the king of Great Britain,' who was 'sacred and inviolable,' and the 'President of the United States,' who 'would be amenable to personal punishment and disgrace.'" Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-939_e2pg.pdf

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "In sum, the majority today endorses an expansive vision of Presidential immunity that was never recognized by the Founders, any sitting President, the Executive Branch, or even President Trump's lawyers, until now. Settled understandings of the Constitution are of little use to the majority in this case, and so it ignores them." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-939_e2pg.pdf

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "There is a twisted irony in saying, as the majority does, that the person charged with 'tak[ing] Care that the Laws be faithfully executed' can break them with impunity." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-939_e2pg.pdf

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "Not content simply to invent an expansive criminal immunity for former Presidents, the majority goes a dramatic and unprecedented step further. It says that acts for which the President is immune must be redacted from the narrative of even wholly private crimes committed while in office. They must play no role in proceedings regarding private criminal acts. Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-939_e2pg.pdf

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): Even though the majority's immunity analysis purports to leave unofficial acts open to prosecution, its draconian approach to official-acts evidence deprives these prosecutions of any teeth. If the former President cannot be held criminally liable for his official acts, those acts should still be admissible to prove knowledge or intent in criminal prosecutions of unofficial acts.". . .Imagine a President states in an official speech that he intends to stop a political rival from passing legislation that he opposes, no matter what it takes to do so (official act). He then hires a private hitman to murder that political rival (unofficial act). Under the majority's rule, the murder indictment could include no allegation of the President's public admission of premeditated intent to support the mens rea of murder." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): Today's decision to grant former Presidents immunity for their official acts is deeply wrong. . . First, the majority declares all of the conduct involving the Justice Department and the Vice President to be official conduct, . . .Second, the majority designates certain conduct immune while refusing to recognize anything as prosecutable. . .Remarkably, the majority goes further and declines to deny immunity even for the allegations that Trump organized fraudulent elector slates, pressured States to subvert the legitimate election results, and exploited violence at the Capitol to influence the certification proceedings." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "The Court effectively creates a law-free zone around the President, upsetting the status quo that has existed since the Founding. This new official-acts immunity now 'lies about like a loaded weapon' for any President that wishes to place his own interests, his own political survival, or his own financial gain, above the interests of the Nation. . .Orders the Navy's Seal Team 6 to assassinate a political rival? Immune. Organizes a military coup to hold onto power? Immune. Takes a bribe in exchange for a pardon? Immune. Immune, immune, immune. Let the President violate the law, let him exploit the trappings of his office for personal gain, let him use his official power for evil ends. . .That is the majority's message today." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "With fear for our democracy, I dissent." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. Ct. 7/1/24)

PRESIDENTIAL IMMUNITY (J. JACKSON, DISSENTING): "[T]he seeds of absolute power for Presidents have been planted. And, without a doubt, absolute power corrupts absolutely. . .I worry that, after today's ruling, our Nation will reap what this Court has sown." Trump v. United States, No. 23–939 (U.S. S. JUNE 2024

HOMELESSNESS-CRUEL AND UNUSUAL PUNISHMENT: A public camping ordinance outlawing using streets, sidewalks, parks, or public places for camping does not violate the Cruel and Unusual Punishments Clause. The Cruel and Unusual Punishments Clause focuses on the question what method or kind of punishment a government may impose after a criminal conviction, not on whether a government may criminalize particular behavior in the first place or how it may go about securing a conviction for that offense. None of the sanctions qualifies as cruel because none is designed to superadd terror, pain, or disgrace, nor are they unusual. City of Grants Pass, Oregon v. Johnson, No. 23–175 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/28/24)

EIGHTH AMENDMENT (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "Sleep is a biological necessity, not a crime. For some people, sleeping outside is their only option. The City of Grants Pass jails and fines those people for sleeping anywhere in public at any time, including in their cars, if they use as little as a blanket to keep warm or a rolled-up shirt as a pillow. For people with no access to shelter, that punishes them for being homeless. That is unconscionable and unconstitutional. Punishing people for their status is 'cruel and unusual' under the Eighth Amendment." City of Grants Pass, Oregon v. Johnson, No. 23–175 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/28/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-175_19m2.pdf

EIGHTH AMENDMENT (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "Under the majority's logic, cities cannot criminalize the status of being homeless, but they can criminalize the conduct that defines that status. The Constitution cannot be evaded by such formalistic distinctions." City of Grants Pass, Oregon v. Johnson, No. 23–175 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/28/24)

EIGHTH AMENDMENT (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "The majority countenances the criminalization of status as long as the City tacks on an essential bodily function—blinking, sleeping, eating, or breathing. That is just another way to ban the person." City of Grants Pass, Oregon v. Johnson, No. 23–175 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/28/24)

OBSTRUCTION OF OFFICIAL PROCEEDING: 18 U. S. C. §§1512(c)(1) and (2), which impose criminal liability on anyone who corruptly alters, destroys, mutilates, or conceals a record, document, or other object, or attempts to do so, with the intent to impair the object's integrity or availability for use in an official proceeding and on anyone who "otherwise obstructs, influences, or impedes any official proceeding, or attempts to do so" does not prohibit rioters from storming the Capitol to prevent the certification of the presidential election. Fischer v. United States, No. 23–5572 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/26/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-5572_l6hn.pdf

OBSTRUCTION OF OFFICIAL PROCEEDING: To prove a violation of Section 1512(c)(2), the Government must establish that the defendant impaired the availability or integrity for use in an official proceeding of records, documents, objects, or other things used in the proceeding, or attempted to do so." January 6th rioter cannot be convicted of violating §1512(c)(2). Fischer v. United States, No. 23–5572 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/26/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-5572_l6hn.pdf

DEFINITION-"OTHERWISE": The "otherwise" clause should be read in light of the limited reach of the specific provision that precedes it. "[W]e should not give this 'otherwise' provision the broadest possible meaning. . . Although the Government's all-encompassing interpretation may be literally permissible, it defies the most plausible understanding of why (c)(1) and (c)(2) are conjoined, and it renders an unnerving amount of statutory text mere surplusage." Fischer v. United States, No. 23–5572 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/26/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-5572_l6hn.pdf

OBSTRUCTION OF OFFICIAL PROCEEDING (J. BARRETT, DISSENTING): "Fischer allegedly joined a mob of rioters that breached the Capitol on January 6, 2021. At the time, Congress was meeting in a joint session to certify the Electoral College results. . .The Court does not dispute that Congress's joint session qualifies as an 'official proceeding'; that rioters delayed the proceeding; or even that Fischer's alleged conduct. . .was part of a successful effort to forcibly halt the certification of the election results. Given these premises, the case that Fischer can be tried for 'obstructing, influencing, or impeding an official proceeding' seems open and shut. So why does the Court hold otherwise? Because it simply cannot believe that Congress meant what it said. . .The Court. . .does textual backflips to find some way—any way—to narrow the reach of subsection (c)(2)." Fischer v. United States, No. 23–5572 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/26/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-5572_l6hn.pdf

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION (J. BARRETT, DISSENTING): The noscitur a sociis and ejusdem generis canons "are valuable tools. But applying either to (c)(2) is like using a hammer to pound in a screw—it looks like it might work, but using it botches the job." Fischer v. United States, No. 23–5572 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/26/24)

CHEVRON RULE: The Chevron doctrine–that courts must defer to an agency's interpretation of statutes administered by it if it is based on a permissible construction of the statute–is abolished. Courts, not agencies, decide legal questions by applying their own judgment, even those involving ambiguous laws, and are directed to set aside any action inconsistent with the law as they interpret it. Agency interpretations of the law are not entitled to deference. Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: "It. . .makes no sense to speak of a 'permissible' interpretation that is not the one the court. . .concludes is best. In the business of statutory interpretation, if it is not the best, it is not permissible." Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

STARE DECISIS: "The only question left is whether stare decisis, the doctrine governing judicial adherence to precedent, requires us to persist in the Chevron project. It does not. Stare decisis is not an 'inexorable command.'" Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

CHEVRON: "Because Chevron in its original, two-step form was so indeterminate and sweeping, we have instead been forced to clarify the doctrine again and again. Our attempts to do so have only added to Chevron's unworkability, transforming the original two-step into a dizzying breakdance." Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

STARE DECISIS (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "Today, the phrase 'common law judge' may call to mind a judicial titan of the past who brilliantly devised new legal rules on his own. The phrase 'stare decisis' might conjure up a sense that judges who come later in time are strictly bound to follow the work of their predecessors. But neither of those intuitions fairly describes the traditional common-law understanding of the judge's role or the doctrine of stare decisis." Historical roots of stare decisis discussed. Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

STARE DECISIS (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "I see at least three lessons about the doctrine of stare decisis. . .Each concerns a form of judicial humility. First, a past decision. . .provides this Court no authority in future cases to depart from what the Constitution or laws of the United States ordain. . .Second, . . .[w]hile judicial decisions may not supersede or revise the Constitution or federal statutory law, they merit our 'respect as embodying the considered views of those who have come before.' . . .Third, it would be a mistake to read judicial opinions like statutes. . ." Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

STARE DECISIS (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "Stare decisis's true lesson today is not that we are bound to respect Chevron's 'startling development,' but bound to inter it." Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

CHEVRON (J. KAGAN, DISSENTING): The majority gives courts the power to make all manner of scientific and technical judgments. It gives courts the power to make all manner of policy calls. It puts courts at the apex of the administrative process as to every conceivable subject. Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

CHEVRON (J. KAGAN, DISSENTING): Under Chevron, a court uses all its normal interpretive tools to determine whether Congress has spoken to an issue. If the court finds Congress has done so, that is the end of the matter. . . But if. . .Congress has left an ambiguity or gap, then a choice must be made. Who should give content to a statute when Congress's instructions have run out? Should it be a court? Or should it be the agency Congress has charged with administering the statute? The answer Chevron gives is that it should usually be the agency, within the bounds of reasonableness. That rule has formed the backdrop against which. . .all have operated for decades. . .It has become part of the warp and woof of modern government, supporting regulatory efforts of all kinds—to name a few, keeping air and water clean, food and drugs safe, and financial markets honest. And the rule is right. . .Today, the Court flips the script: It is now 'the courts (rather than the agency)' that will wield power when Congress has left an area of interpretive discretion. A rule of judicial humility gives way to a rule of judicial hubris." Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

STARE DECISIS (J. KAGAN, DISSENTING): "Just my own defenses of stare decisis—my own dissents to this Court's reversals of settled law—by now fill a small volume." Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

AMBIGUITY (J. KAGAN, DISSENTING): "There are ambiguity triggers all over the law. Somehow everyone seems to get by." Loper Bright Enterprises v. Raimondo, No. 22–451 (U.S. S.Ct., 6/28/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-451_7m58.pdf

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: A trial court's decision whether to depart from the guidelines is a two-part process. First, the court must determine whether it can depart, i.e., whether there is a valid legal ground and adequate factual support for that ground. Second, the trial court further must determine whether departure is indeed the best sentencing option. The decision to depart is a judgment call within the sound discretion of the court. District courts of appeal have divided over their authority to review a trial court's discretionary decision to deny a downward-departure request; the issue is pending before the Florida Supreme Court. Nelson v. State, 5D2022-0703 (6/28/24)

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS-FUNDAMENTAL ERROR: Trial court's consideration of unsubstantiated allegations of misconduct in sentencing constitutes a due process violation. Where State at sentencing presented photos of firearms found in Defendant's home, alluded to unrelated homicides in the area and the Court stated that this factor was "what hurts you the most," the Court probably considered an improper factor ("We can think of few more direct ways to indicate that a factor motivated a sentence than to say. . .that the factor is what hurts the defendant the most."). But error is not fundamental because the sentence was at the bottom of the sentencing guidelines range. Nelson v. State, 5D2022-0703 (6/28/24)

STAND YOUR GROUND: Trial court's initial failure to apply the correct standard in SYG hearing is cured by the jury's guilty verdict. State v. Boutiette, 5D2022-1598 (6/28/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-ODOR OF MARIJUANA: The smell of marijuana emanating from a vehicle continues to provide probable cause for a warrantless search of a vehicle. No recent case law has affirmatively held that marijuana odor alone is insufficient to establish probable cause. Hoehaver v. State, 5D2023-1188 (6/28/24)

APPEAL: §924.051(3) precludes appellate review of unpreserved claims of ineffective assistance of trial counsel on direct appeal. Gary v. State, 6D23-2452 (6/28/24)
https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2436559/opinion/Opinion_2023-2452.pdf

BRIBERY: Federal bribery statute does not make it a crime for state and local officials to accept commonplace gratuities that may be given as a token of appreciation after the official act. A $13,000 check to a mayor is a gratuity. 18 U. S. C. §666 is a bribery statute and not a gratuities statute. §666 requires a corrupt state of mind and the intent to be influenced in the official act. Snyder v. United States, No. 23–108 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/26/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-108_8n5a.pdf

BRIBERY: "In sum, . . .[a] state or local official can violate §666 when he accepts an up-front payment for a future official act or agrees to a future reward for a future official act. . . But a state or local official does not violate §666 if the official has taken the official act before any reward is agreed to, much less given." Snyder v. United States, No. 23–108 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/26/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-108_8n5a.pdf

RULE OF LENITY (J. GORSUCH CONCURRING): "Lenity may sometimes, as it does today, go unnamed. It may be deployed under other guises, too. 'Fair notice' or 'fair warning" are especially familiar masks. . .But make no mistake: Whatever the label, lenity is what's at work behind today's decision, just as it is in so many others. Rightly so. I am pleased to join." Snyder v. United States, No. 23–108 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/26/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-108_8n5a.pdf

BRIBERY (J. JACKSON, DISSENTING): "James Snyder, a former Indiana mayor, was convicted by a jury of violating §666 after he steered more than $1 million in city contracts to a local truck dealership, which turned around and cut him a $13,000 check. He asks us to decide whether the language of §666 criminalizes both bribes and gratuities, or just bribes. And he says the answer matters because bribes require an upfront agreement to take official actions for payment, and he never agreed beforehand to be paid the $13,000 from the dealership. Snyder's absurd and atextual reading of the statute is one only today's Court could love." Snyder v. United States, No. 23–108 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/26/24)

FREE SPEECH-STANDING: States and social media users lack standing to seek to enjoin government from pressuring or encouraging social media companies (Facebook, Twitter, and YouTube) from disseminating disinformation (COVID, election fraud propaganda). A federal court cannot redress injury that results from the independent action of some third party not before the court. Murthy v. Missouri, No. 23-411 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/26/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-411_3dq3.pdf

TRUTH-STANDING: "[T]he plaintiff cannot rest on 'mere allegations,' but must instead point to factual evidence. . .The primary weakness in the record of past restrictions is the lack of specific causation findings with respect to any discrete instance of content moderation. "[T]he plaintiffs. . .have not pointed to any past restrictions likely traceable to the Government defendants. . . These plaintiffs. . .are thus particularly ill suited to the task of establishing their standing." Murthy v. Missouri, No. 23-411 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/26/24)

STANDING-FREE SPEECH: "The plaintiffs, without any concrete link between their injuries and the defendants' conduct, ask us to conduct a review of the years-long communications between dozens of federal officials, across different agencies, with different social-media platforms, about different topics. This Court's standing doctrine prevents us from 'exercis[ing such] general legal oversight' of the other branches of Government." Murthy v. Missouri, No. 23-411 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/26/24)

VERDICT-LEGAL INCONSISTENCY: Convictions for assault on two adults and child abuse (Defendant had shot into a home) are not legally inconsistent because the child abuse offenses are not dependent upon the jury's finding that Appellant shot into the home or committed aggravated assault with a firearm on either of the adults. A true inconsistent verdict requires more than just factual or logical inconsistency. Instead, in a "true" inconsistent verdict an acquittal on one count negates a necessary element for conviction on another count. Wodford v. State, 1D 2022-3949 (6/26/24)

APPEAL: An issue is dispositive only if, regardless of whether the appellate court affirms or reverses the lower court's decision, there will be no trial of the case. Jackson v. State, 1D2023-0065 (6/26/24)

APPEAL-PLEA WITHDRAWAL: An appeal following a plea should never be a substitute for a motion to withdraw a plea. If the record raises issues concerning the voluntary or intelligent character of the plea, that issue should first be presented to the trial court as a motion to withdraw that plea, and if the trial court denies the motion, then it would be subject to review on direct appeal. Jackson v. State, 1D2023-0065 (6/26/24)

CONTINUANCE: Court does not abuse its discretion in denying a motion to continue the hearing for postconviction relief where a witness had not been personally subpoenaed to appear at the hearing. Williams v. State, 3D22-1753 (6/26/24)

STATEMENTS OF DEFENDANT-MIRANDA: Where Defendant said, "I think I should have a lawyer," officers said "If at any point you think we're being mean to you or anything like that, then you can just tell us you don't want to talk to us anymore, okay?", and Defendant then asked, "[i]f I want a lawyer later on, can I get one?" and the interrogation continued, the confession is admissible. In context with his subsequent questions about getting a lawyer "later on," Defendant's "I think I should have a lawyer" statement constituted, at best, an equivocal statement. Police are not required to stop a custodial interrogation unless the suspect has made an unequivocal and unambiguous request for counsel. State v. Myers, 3D22-2019 (6/26/24)

APPEAL-EVIDENCE-STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT: Appellate court's applies a less deferential standard to factual findings made by the trial court where the Appellate court has the video. When findings are based mainly on review of a videotape, the trial court has no superior vantage point from that of the appellate court. Whether Defendant made an unequivocal request to invoke his right to counsel is not a factual determination, credibility determination, weighing of the evidence, or the like. Trial court did not perform a fact-finding function, but rather a legal function. Review is de novo. State v. Myers, 3D22-2019 (6/26/24)

ATTORNEY-NELSON: Whether a trial court conducted an adequate Nelson 's review for harmless error. Where Defendant proceeded to trial with his court-appointed counsel, and made no additional attempt to dismiss counsel or request self-representation, and there is no evidence in the record of any conflict or lack of communication during the trial. Any error in the Nelson inquiry is harmless. Wilson v. State, 3D23-0089 (6/26/24)

EVIDENCE-INEXTRICABLY INTERTWINED: Evidence of uncharged crimes which are inseparable from the crime charged, or evidence which is inextricably intertwined with the crime charged, is admissible under §90.402 because 'it is a relevant and inseparable part of the act which is in issue Evidence is inextricably intertwined if the evidence is necessary to (1) adequately describe the deed, (2) provide an intelligent account of the crime(s) charged; (3) establish the entire context out of which the charged crime(s) arose; or (4) adequately describe the events leading up to the charged crime(s)." RESENTENCING-PRESENCE OF DEFENDANT: Where resentencing does not involve the consideration of any additional evidence, and where the trial court does not have any discretion in the new sentence it imposes, resentencing is a ministerial act. Resentencing a defendant in his absence will be harmless where it involves only a ministerial act. Bernard v. State, 3D23-2132 (6/26/24)

COSTS OF SUPERVISION: Monthly costs of supervision are statutorily mandated by §948.09 and need not be orally pronounced. However, because no statutory authority sets that cost amount, an evidentiary hearing on the proper amount is required. Frank v. JURY-RECIDIVISM STATUTE-ACCA: For the purposes of ACCA sentencing, the Fifth and Sixth Amendments require that the issue of whether predicate offenses occurred on different occasions or during a single criminal episode must be decided by a unanimous jury beyond a reasonable doubt or freely admitted in a guilty plea. Judges may not assume the jury's factfinding function for themselves, let alone purport to perform it using a mere preponderance-of-the-evidence standard. "Really, this case is as nearly on all fours with Apprendi and Alleyne as any we might imagine." Erlinger v. United States, No. 23–370 (U.S. S/ Ct. 6/21/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-370_i4dj.pdf

5TH/6th AMENDMENT: "There is no efficiency exception to the Fifth and Sixth Amendments." The Fifth and Sixth Amendments' jury trial rights provide a defendant with entirely complementary protections at a different stage of the proceedings by ensuring that, once a jury is lawfully empaneled, the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt to a unanimous jury the facts necessary to sustain the punishment it seeks. Erlinger v. United States, No. 23–370 (U.S. S/ Ct. 6/21/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-370_i4dj.pdf

JURY-RECIDIVISM STATUTE-ACCA (J. JACKSON): "Today, the Court concludes that. . .under Apprendi, for sentencing purposes, facts that relate to a defendant's prior crimes cannot be determined by judges but instead must be found by juries. I disagree for several reasons, including my overarching view that Apprendi was wrongly decided. . .I recognize, of course, that Apprendi is a binding precedent of this Court. . .[and] untangling the knots

Apprendi has tied is probably infeasible at this point in our Court's jurisprudential journey. But. . .I cannot join today's effort to further extend Apprendi's holding." Erlinger v. United States, No. 23–370 (U.S. S/ Ct. 6/21/24)

HEARSAY-CONFRONTATION: The Confrontation Clause applies to forensic reports. Use of a "substitute expert"—who had not participated in any of the relevant drug testing—violates the Confrontation Clause. State may not introduce the testimonial out-of-court statements of a forensic analyst at trial through a surrogate analyst who did not participate in their creation. And nothing changes if the surrogate presents the out-of-court statements as the basis for his expert opinion. A defendant has the right to cross-examine the person who made them. Smith v. Arizona, No. 22–899. (U.S. S. Ct. 6/21/24)

CONFRONTATION CLAUSE (J. THOMAS, CONCURRING): "I continue to adhere to my view that 'the Confrontation Clause is implicated by extrajudicial statements only insofar as they are contained in formalized testimonial materials, such as affidavits, depositions, prior testimony, or confessions.'" SECOND AMENDMENT: Statute prohibiting a person subject to a domestic violence restraining order from possessing a firearm does not violate the Second Amendment. When an individual poses a clear threat of physical violence to another, the threatening individual may be disarmed. United States v. Rahimi, No. 22-915 (6/21/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-915_8o6b.pdf

SECOND AMENDMENT (J. SOTOMAYOR, CONCURRING): "In short, the Court's interpretation permits a historical inquiry calibrated to reveal something useful and transferable to the present day, while the dissent would make the historical inquiry so exacting as to be useless, a too-sensitive alarm that sounds whenever a regulation did not exist in an essentially identical form at the founding." United States v. Rahimi, No. 22-915 (6/21/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-915_8o6b.pdf

CONSTITUTIONAL INTERPRETATION (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "Discerning what the original meaning of the Constitution requires in this or that case may sometimes be difficult. Asking that question, however, at least keeps judges in their proper lane, seeking to honor the supreme law the people have ordained rather than substituting our will for theirs. And whatever indeterminacy may be associated with seeking to honor the Constitution's original meaning in modern disputes, that path offers surer footing than any other this Court has attempted from time to time. Come to this Court with arguments from text and history, and we are bound to reason through them as best we can. . .Allow judges to reign unbounded by those materials, or permit them to extrapolate their own broad new principles from those sources, and no one can have any idea how they might rule. . .Faithful adherence to the Constitution's original meaning may be an imperfect guide, but I can think of no more perfect one for us to follow." United States v. Rahimi, No. 22-915 (6/21/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-915_8o6b.pdf

ORIGINALISM (J. BARRETT, CONCURRING): "[I]t is worth pausing to identify the basic premises of originalism. The theory is built on two core principles: that the meaning of constitutional text is fixed at the time of its ratification and that the 'discoverable historical meaning . . . has legal significance and is authoritative in most circumstances.'" United States v. Rahimi, No. 22-915 (6/21/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-915_8o6b.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-TERRY STOP: Officer may not perform a Terry stop of a person for wearing an inside-the-waist firearm holster. Neither carrying a concealed weapon nor ignoring the officer's questions are sufficient to permit involuntary detention. Approaching suspect and commanding him to keep his hands away from his waist is a seizure. To warrant an investigatory stop, the law requires not just a mere suspicion of criminal activity, but a reasonable, well-founded one. Carrying a concealed firearm is not sufficient, without more, to justify a Terry stop. Carter v. State, 2D2022-3275 (6/21/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-TERRY STOP: In the absence of a reasonable suspicion of criminal activity or probable cause to arrest, an individual asked questions by an officer has a right to ignore the police and go about his business. "Any other rule would make a mockery of the reasonable suspicion and probable cause requirements, as well as the consent doctrine." Carter v. State, 2D2022-3275 (6/21/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-TERRY STOP: Neither possession of a concealed firearm nor presence in a high crime area nor ignoring officer inquiries are sufficient, standing alone or in combination, establish a reasonable suspicion justifying a Terry stop. Carter v. State, 2D2022-3275 (6/21/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL: The Court's administrative order extending speedy trial due to a hurricane closure is effective, even if it was issued after the Child's right to discharge had vested. D.W. v. State, 2022-3494 (6/21/24)

DISCOVERY VIOLATION: Where state provided a police report describing the existence of several photographs, but not the photographs themselves (except for a noticed that "Photograph(s) is furnished via Evidence.com"), Child is entitled to a full Richardson hearing. Although the State had noticed the report, it never disclosed that it intended to rely upon the photographs mentioned—but not included—therein. The failure to give pretrial notice of its intent to rely on these photographs at trial was a violation of the plain language of rule 8.060(a)(2)(K). D.W. v. State, 2022-3494 (6/21/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Dismissal of a motion for postconviction relief for failure to comply with an order to acknowledge the postconviction court's warnings is not authorized by R. 3.850. While nothing prohibits a postconviction court from advising a movant of the ramifications of a successful postconviction motion or warning a movant of the postconviction court's authority to impose sanctions, the rule simply does not allow for dismissal, let alone dismissal with prejudice, should a movant not expressly acknowledge that there may be adverse consequences to prevailing on his motion. There is no requirement that a defendant verify or otherwise certify anything other than the initial motion itself. Zuniga-Mejia v. State, 2D2023-1001 (6/21/24)

RETALIATORY ARREST CLAIM: As a general rule, a plaintiff bringing a retaliatory-arrest claim must plead and prove the absence of probable cause for the arrest. But if she produces objective evidence that she was arrested when similarly situated individuals not engaged in the same sort of protected speech had not been, the suit may go forward. Gonzalez v. Trevino, No. 22-1025 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/20/24)

RETALIATORY ARREST CLAIM: Candidate for office who was arrested for intentionally removing a government record–a petition to remove the city manager from office for misfeasance of office– is entitled to pursue her suit for retaliatory arrest where she showed that the anti-tampering statute had never before been used in the county to criminally charge someone for trying to steal a nonbinding or expressive document. Plaintiff is not required to proffer comparative evidence of similarly situated individuals who engaged in the same criminal conduct but were not arrested. The only express limit on the sort of evidence a plaintiff may present for that purpose is that it must be objective. Gonzalez v. Trevino, No. 22-1025 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/20/24)

RETALIATORY ARREST CLAIM (J.THOMAS, DISSENTING): "I . . .remain 'skeptical that 42 U. S. C. §1983 recognizes a claim for retaliatory arrests under the First Amendment.'" Gonzalez v. Trevino, No. 22-1025 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/20/24)

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION: To succeed on a Fourth Amendment malicious-prosecution claim under 42 U. S. C. §1983, a plaintiff must show that a government official charged him without probable cause, leading to an unreasonable seizure of his person. When the official brings multiple charges, only one of which lacks probable cause, the valid charges do not insulate the official from a Fourth Amendment malicious-prosecution claim relating to the invalid charge. The valid charges do not create a categorical bar. Chiaverini v. City of Napoleon, No. 23–50 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-50new_2co3.pdf

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION (J. THOMAS, DISSENTING): "I continue to adhere to my belief that a 'malicious prosecution claim cannot be based on the Fourth Amendment. . .' [A]n unreasonable seizure under the Fourth Amendment requires a seizure; a malicious-prosecution claim does not." Chiaverini v. City of Napoleon, No. 23–50 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-50new_2co3.pdf

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "Section 1983 performs vital work by permitting individuals to vindicate their constitutional rights in federal court. But it does not authorize this Court to expound new rights of its own creation. . .§1983 does not turn the Constitution into a 'font of tort law.'. . Despite that settled rule, the Court today doubles down on a new tort of its own recent invention—what it calls a 'Fourth Amendment malicious-prosecution' cause of action. . .Respectfully, it is hard to know where this tort comes from. Stare for as long as you like at the Fourth Amendment and you won't see anything about prosecutions, malicious or otherwise." Chiaverini v. City of Napoleon, No. 23–50 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-50new_2co3.pdf

EXPERT-ULTIMATE ISSUE: Agent may testify that most couriers know that they are transporting drugs, provided he does not testify that the defendant on trial knew. An expert's conclusion that "most people" in a group have a particular mental state is not an opinion about the defendant" and thus does not violate Rule 704(b). Diaz v. United States, No. 23–14 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-14_d1o2.pdf

ULTIMATE ISSUE: An opinion is not objectionable just because it embraces an ultimate issue, except that in a criminal case, an expert witness must not state an opinion about whether the defendant did or did not have a mental state or condition that constitutes an element of the crime charged or of a defense. "Although the ultimate-issue rule's exact origins are unclear, legal scholars agree that several States had adopted it by the late 1800s. . .'The mist the gods drew about them on the battlefield before Troy was no more dense than the one enshrouding the origins of the [ultimate-issue] rule.'"). Diaz v. United States, No. 23–14 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-14_d1o2.pdf

ULTIMATE ISSUE (J. JACKSON CONCURRING): "I write separately to emphasize that. . .Rule 704(b) is party agnostic. Neither the Government nor the defense can call an expert to offer her opinion about whether the defendant had or did not have a particular mental state at the time of the offense. . .But a corollary is also true. Both the Government and the defense are permitted. . .to elicit expert testimony 'on the likelihood' that the defendant had a particular mental state, 'based on the defendant's membership in a particular group.'" Diaz v. United States, No. 23–14 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-14_d1o2.pdf

ULTIMATE ISSUE (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "There's no Rule 704(b) problem, the Court holds, as long as the government's expert limits himself to testifying that most people like the defendant have the mental state required to secure a conviction. The upshot? The government comes away with a powerful new tool in its pocket. Prosecutors can now put an expert on the stand—someone who apparently has the convenient ability to read minds—and let him hold forth on what 'most' people like the defendant think when they commit a legally proscribed act. Then, the government need do no more than urge the jury to find that the defendant is like 'most' people and convict. What authority exists for allowing that kind of charade in federal criminal trials is anybody's guess." Diaz v. United States, No. 23–14 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-14_d1o2.pdf

JUNK SCIENCE (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "The problem of junk science in the courtroom is real and well documented. . . And perhaps no 'science' is more junky than mental telepathy. Diaz v. United States, No. 23–14 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-14_d1o2.pdf

ULTIMATE ISSUE (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "No one, at least outside the fortuneteller's den, can yet claim the power to conjure reliably another's past thoughts." Diaz v. United States, No. 23–14 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24)

ULTIMATE ISSUE (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "Observe, as well, where today's tiptoeing around the Rule promises to lead. The Court adopts the government's muddled view that an expert cannot offer a probabilistic opinion about the mental state of the defendant explicitly but can offer a probabilistic opinion about the mental state of a group that includes the defendant. So what happens next?. . .We will draw some as-yet unknown line and say an expert's probabilistic testimony went too far. Or we will hold anything goes and eviscerate Rule 704(b) in the process. Rather than face either of those prospects, how much easier it would be to follow where the Rule's text leads." Diaz v. United States, No. 23–14 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-14_d1o2.pdf

MENS REA (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "Why does our law generally insist not just on a bad act but also a culpable state of mind? A significant part of it has to do with respect for the individual and his liberty in a free society." Diaz v. United States, No. 23–14 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-14_d1o2.pdf

DEFINITION-"ABOUT" (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): The word "about" means "concerning, regarding, with regard to, in reference to; in the matter of." Diaz v. United States, No. 23–14 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/20/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/23-14_d1o2.pdf

CONSPIRACY-EVIDENCE: Evidence of multiple firearms and almost two kilograms of heroin found in Defendant's home more than two years after the end of the charged drug-dealing conspiracy is inadmissible as evidence of the conspiracy itself. It is admissible as 404(b) evidence, but only with a limiting instruction. USA v. Harding, No 23-10479 (11th Cir. 6/20/24)

FREE SPEECH-PROHIBITING RIOT: A person does no commit the crime of riot (§870.01(2)) if he attends a protest and the protest comes to involve a violent public disturbance, but the person does not engage in, or intend to assist others in engaging in, violent and disorderly conduct. To obtain a conviction, the State must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant intended to engage or assist two or more other persons in violent and disorderly conduct. DeSantis v. Dream Defenders, SC2023-0053 (6/20/24)

RIOT: "Riot" is generally understood as a crime against the public peace and not necessarily against a specific victim or victims. A riot often, but not always, had a point. Crucially, violence is intrinsic to a riot. To protest passionately, without more, is not to "riot" in the historic sense of the term. DeSantis v. Dream Defenders, SC2023-0053 (6/20/24)

DEFINITION-"INVOLVING": "Involving" connotes not a smaller component of a larger thing, but a necessary feature of the thing described, to have as a necessary feature or consequence. DeSantis v. Dream Defenders, SC2023-0053 (6/20/24)

DEFINITION-"VIOLENT PUBLIC DISTURBANCE": A "violent public disturbance" is "a tumultuous disturbance of the peace" that is carried out in "a violent and turbulent manner" and "involving an assembly of three or more persons, acting with a common intent to assist each other in violent and disorderly conduct." DeSantis v. Dream Defenders, SC2023-0053 (6/20/24)

JUDGE-DISCIPLINE: Referring to oneself as "conservative" in a judicial election campaign does not violate Canon 7's prohibition on partisanship. The statement "I am a conservative" is not partisan, either inherently or (when made during an election campaign in a predominantly Republican community. VOP: In probation revocation proceedings for failure to pay a monetary obligation, the trial court must find that the defendant's failure to pay was willful—i.e., that he had the ability to pay the obligation and purposefully did not do so. Defendant who spent $70,605 on various things, including restaurants, bars, clothing, Uber, Lyft, Amazon, and liquor had the ability to pay more than $1,1535 in restitution over six years. Noel v. SUBSTANTIAL EMOTIONAL DISTRESS: To be substantial, the emotional distress must be greater than just an ordinary feeling of distress. A reasonable person does not suffer substantial emotional distress easily. Ford v. State, 1D2022-0102 (6/19/24)

TOO WEIRD: "To be fair, . . Ford has a documented foot fetish and an extensive history of calling 911 to ask female dispatch officers about their feet. He eventually racked up over one hundred and eighty misdemeanor convictions, mostly related to 911 misuse." Ford v. State, 1D2022-0102 (6/19/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: When both counts involve felonies of the same degree, the proper remedy for a double jeopardy violation is to vacate the count with the lower scoresheet level. Richardson v. State, 1D2022-0617 (6/19/24)

POUTING JUDGE (J. KELSEY, DISSENTING): "To hasten disposition of this case, I will not belabor my dissent, which after all is of no real legal effect." Richardson v. State, 1D2022-0617 (6/19/24)

STAND YOUR GROUND: Although Defendant may have been engaged in a crime and may have been in a place where he did not have a right to be, that just means that he had a duty to retreat—if he reasonably could—before he could use deadly force to defend himself. But since he was huddled in a corner of the motel room behind the inward-opening door, shielding himself from the deceased's repeated punches, he had exhausted all reasonable means of escape before shooting his assailant 8 times, and therefore has SYG immunity. Decedent was beating him up to take away his gun because Defendant had talked about shooting his cheating girl. Smith v. State, 1D2022-3034 (6/19/24)

WILLIAMS RULE-CAPITAL SEX BATTERY: Williams Rule evidence of sexual abuse on a different child similar in age, with shared similar experiences, and the occurring at the same location is admissible. When a defendant is charged with child molestation, relevant evidence of the defendant's commission of other crimes, wrongs, or acts of child molestation is admissible if the trial court first finds that the State proved the prior acts by clear and convincing evidence, i.e., the evidence is credible; the facts distinctly remembered; and the testimony precise and explicit. The child witness responding "yes" to several of the State's specific questions about the sexual conduct is sufficient. Simmons v. State, 1D2022-3059 (6/19/24)

LEADING QUESTION: A question is not leading simply because it calls for a yes or no answer. Instead, a question is leading when it points out the desired answer. A question which suggests only the answer yes is leading; a question which suggests only the answer no is leading; but a question which may be answered either yes or no, and suggests neither answer as the correct one, is not leading. Simmons v. State, 1D2022-3059 (6/19/24)

WILLIAMS RULE-CAPITAL SEX BATTERY: Similar-act evidence is admissible notwithstanding that the State nolle prossed the criminal charges related to the other child victim. Florida law is clear that even when the State nolle prosses charges, the facts supporting the dismissed charges may be admissible. This is because unlike an acquittal, the State's decision to nolle pros charges is not necessarily related to the strength of the evidence. Simmons v. State, 1D2022-3059 (6/19/24)

HAPPY FAMILY: "Webb then saw Heath shooting an AR-15 out of the back window of the truck. Johnson was jumping up and down with excitement saying, "shoot, daddy, shoot." Heath v. State, 1D2022-4126 (6/19/20) CONTINUANCE: Court did not abuse its discretion in denying a continuance in a 16 month old murder case. When ruling on a motion to continue based on an assertion of insufficient time to prepare for trial, a trial court should consider the McKay factors: 1) the time available for preparation, 2) the likelihood of prejudice from the denial, 3) the defendant's role in shortening preparation time, 4) the complexity of the case, 5) the availability of discovery, 6) the adequacy of counsel actually provided and 7) the skill and experience of chosen counsel and his pre-retention experience with either the defendant or the alleged crime. Heath v. State, 1D2022-4126 (6/19/20)

COLLATERAL CRIME EVIDENCE: Past incidents of abuse or violence between Defendant and co-Defendant in a love triangle homicide are admissible as inextricably intertwined with the charged offenses. The testimony about domestic violence between the two provided context for the events leading to the shooting and explained her involuntary participation in the shooting. Heath v. State, 1D2022-4126 (6/19/20) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2436113/opinion/Opinion_2022-4126.pdf

COLLATERAL CRIME EVIDENCE: There are two categories of admissible evidence of uncharged crimes: similar fact evidence and dissimilar fact evidence. Similar fact evidence is governed by the requirements and limitations of §90.404, and dissimilar fact evidence is governed by the general rule of relevancy in §90.402. Dissimilar fact evidence is admissible to establish the relevant context in which the charged criminal acts occurred, including evidence of uncharged crimes which are inseparable from the crime charged, or evidence which is inextricably intertwined with the crime charged. The State is allowed to admit dissimilar fact evidence that paints an accurate picture of the events surrounding the crimes charged. Heath v. State, 1D2022-4126 (6/19/20) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2436113/opinion/Opinion_2022-4126.pdf

SPEEDY TRIAL: Court improperly struck Defendant's notice of expiration of speedy trial based on its mistaken belief that he had waived his speedy trial rights during earlier hearings. The Clerk's minutes contained check boxes reflecting a speedy trial waiver, but review of the transcripts establishes that Defendant did not waive them. Defendant is entitled to discharge. Gonzalez-Hernandez v. State, 3D22-1124 (6/19/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2436130/opinion/Opinion_2022-1124.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PROBATION: A warrantless search of a probationer's home, based on reasonable suspicion and a probation condition allowing warrantless searches is reasonable under the Fourth Amendment, and is not rendered unreasonable because the home was occupied by another person (a girlfriend) who knew about the probation. The reasonable expectation of privacy inside the probationer's home is similar to what it would be if the home was not occupied by another person—it is diminished. USA v. Harden, No. 20-14004 (11th Cir. 6/18/24)

JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION: Judge's effort in his order to refute some of the facts alleged in the motion to disqualify him compels disqualification. "To be clear, we specifically take no position as to whether the motion [itself] was legally sufficient. . .for the disqualification of the trial judge." Holt v. Nelson, 6D24-966 (6/17/24)

FELONIES CLAUSE-MDLEA-EEZ: The Maritime Drug Law Enforcement Act ("MDLEA") makes it a crime to engage in drug trafficking on board a vessel subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. It is a valid exercise of Congress's power under the Felonies Clause of of the Constitution (Article I, §8, Clause 10), not limited by international law. Any stateless vessel on the high seas may be boarded by the United States under the Felonies Clause. A nation's Exclusive Economic Zone ("EEZ") is part of the "high seas." The modern recognition of the EEZ in the twentieth century has no bearing on the original meaning of "high seas" in the Felonies Clause. USA v. Alfonso, No 22-10576 (11th Cir. 6/14/24)

EEZ: An Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) is the area of water just beyond a nation's territorial waters but within 200 miles of the coastal baseline where coastal nations have certain rights to natural resources and jurisdiction over marine research and protection of the marine environment. But "[a]ny allocation of economic rights. . .is a far cry from conferring on a nation the exclusive authority. . .to define and punish criminal violations." USA v. Alfonso, No 22-10576 (11th Cir. 6/14/24)

HIGH SEAS-CANNON SHOT RULE: In the eighteenth century, the concept took root that a nation could exercise sovereignty over waters within the range of its on-shore artillery , between 1 to 3 miles (the "Cannon Shot Rule"). Thomas Jefferson considered the utmost range of a cannon ball to be 3 miles (a league). USA v. Alfonso, No 22-10576 (11th Cir. 6/14/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210576.pdf

MINIMUM FINE-CRIMINAL ENTERPRISE-MODIFICATION: Court may not amend the sentence imposed a year earlier to add the omitted $500,000 minimum fine for engaging in a criminal entrprise. The omission of the fine did not result in an "illegal sentence" under R. 3.800(a), so it is not correctable. The trial court lacked authority to add the $500,000 fine more than a year after issuing his original judgment and sentence. Further, the imposition of the $500,000 fine is discretionary §893.20(2). Generally, a trial court has no authority to modify a sentence after a defendant has begun serving it. Islaam v. State, 2D2023-0419 (6/14/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435897/opinion/Opinion_2023-0419.pdf

MINIMUM FINE-CRIMINAL ENTERPRISE-CRIMINAL ENTERPRISE-MODIFICATION: "The State did not cite any provision of rule 3.800—or, indeed, any legal authority—in its motion to correct Mr. Islaam's sentence or at the hearing that followed. . . The motion seemed to sound in the key of rule 3.800(b), asking the court to 'correct' a sentence that the State described merely as 'incomplete.' But the correction the State sought would have neither fixed a mere scrivener's error nor benefitted Mr. Islaam, so rule 3.800(b) would have been inapplicable." Islaam v. State, 2D2023-0419 (6/14/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435897/opinion/Opinion_2023-0419.pdf

MINIMUM FINE-CRIMINAL ENTERPRISE-MODIFICATION: §893.20 provides that a person who commits the offense of engaging in a continuing criminal enterprise is guilty of a life felony, punishable by a fine of $500,000. "Punishable by" does not mean "punished in every case by"; it means "able to be punished by." Islaam v. State, 2D2023-0419 (6/14/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435897/opinion/Opinion_2023-0419.pdf

NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Where Defendant filed a successful motion to suppress under the substantive case one month after his VOP hearing, suppression of the same evidence that was used to revoke his probation constitutes newly discovered evidence. DUI-BREATH TEST-COLOR OF OFFICE: Outside his or her territorial jurisdiction, a municipal officer may not assert official authority to gather evidence not otherwise obtainable by a private citizen. City police officer outside city limits at the county jail may not request/procure a DUI breath test. Courts cannot grant extraterritorial police power to municipalities. Conflict certified. State v. COLOR OF OFFICE: When an officer obtains evidence by using the appearance of official power, in a jurisdiction where the officer has no power, the officer is said to act under the “color of office.” The first known use of this expression comes from a thirteenth century English statute prohibiting King

Edward's sheriffs from acting without authority. State v. Repple, 6D23-1448 (6/14/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Postconviction claims under R. 3.851 are legally insufficient or procedurally barred if filed more than a year after the judgment and sentence became final. When a newly discovered evidence claim is brought as a successive claim, the defendant must demonstrate an exception to the rule's time limitations, of which there are 3: (A) the facts on which the claim is predicated were unknown and could not have been ascertained with due diligence, or (B) the fundamental constitutional right asserted was not established within 1 year after the judgment and sentence became final and has been held to apply retroactively, or (C) postconviction counsel, through neglect, failed to file the motion. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-ENHANCEMENT: Whether a defendant convicted of a permissive lesser included offense, which was not properly charged in the information is not an issue of sentencing enhancement and therefore does is not present a sentencing error that can be raised under R. 3.800(b). BURGLARY-ENHANCEMENT: Burglary of an occupied structure is a not a sentencing enhancement to the crime of burglary of a structure. An alleged error regarding the existence or propriety of one of the elements of burglary, as set forth in §810.02, is not an alleged sentencing error pursuant to Rule 3.800(b). Melton v. MARSY'S LAW: "Marsy's Law" is a colloquial reference to a Florida constitutional amendment that provides crime victims with meaningful and enforceable rights and protections. Marsy's Law applies to VOP sentencing. At VOP sentencing hearing, Court may consider Victim's sworn statement to police as a victim impact statement under Marsy's Law. Camel v. ORAL PRONOUNCEMENT: Where Court orally pronounced that "you'll get credit for 129 days on each of those counts" but the written judgment only awarded the credit on the first count, the oral pronouncement controls. Whipple v. State, 1D202204117 (6/12/24)

COSTS OF PROSECUTION: The $100 cost for the state attorney is a mandatory minimum cost and is not an investigative' cost incurred by an agency, which can only be imposed if requested by the agency. Roberts v. State, 1D2023-0464 (6/12/24)

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT-RIGHT TO REMAIN SILENT: Police must stop a custodial interrogation if the suspect unequivocally invokes any Miranda rights during the interrogation, but need not stop the interview or ask any clarifying questions if a defendant makes only an equivocal or ambiguous request to terminate an interrogation after having validly waived his Miranda rights. Defendant softly uttering "Listen man, 'cause it don't matter, shit, 'cause I feel like I'm being tricked into it. I just don't want to say nothing, you feel me?" is an equivocal invocation of the right to remain silent. Officers were nor required to seek clarification and were entitled to continue the interrogation. "Mr. Denson did not make the statement at the beginning of the substantive questioning or when being asked about whether he wished to talk. . .Mr. Denson did not make repeated statements or clear desires to stop the discussion entirely." State v. Denson, 1D2023-0919 (6/12/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435779/opinion/Opinion_2023-0919.pdf

EVIDENCE-REPUTATION FOR PEACEFULNESS: Court did not abuse its discretion in denying the defense motion to present the testimony about Defendant's general reputation for peacefulness where he threatened to kill the victim, admitted to the act itself and multiple witnesses saw it. "On these facts, 'general reputation' was worthless as a defense against guilt; and even if it had been error to exclude the evidence, it would be harmless." Atkins v. POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Court erred in finding that Counsel was ineffective and defendant entitled to a new trial where Counsel had failed to object to the witness's allusion to Defendant's release from prison, in violation of an order in limine, where it was unclear whether the witness was alluding to himself or the defendant and the witness had not been speaking loudly or clearly. Had trial counsel moved for a mistrial, it is not apparent that the court would have granted it. It cannot be said that trial counsel's decision not to object or move for a mistrial was unreasonable or that no competent trial attorney would have made the decision that counsel made here. State v. HARMLESS ERROR: The harmless error test requires the State to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the error complained of did not contribute to the verdict or, alternatively stated, that there is no reasonable possibility that the error contributed to the conviction. The overwhelming evidence of a defendant's guilt may be considered in the harmless-error analysis. Rivera v. State, 3D22-1307 (6/12/24)

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED-VOP: Defendant is entitled to receive credit for the time he spent in the Florida county jail prior to the original sentence. MARCHMAN ACT: Upon the filing of a petition under Florida's Marchman Act, one of the qualified professionals who executed the involuntary services certificate must be a witness. As such, it is reversable error for the trial court to grant a petition without the testimony of a qualified professional who executed the involuntary services certificate. C.W.R.K., v. SMA, 5D2024-0354 (6/12/24)

days but the Clerk erroneously entered a judgment that she serve 220 days, the Court should treat the motion as one filed under R. 3.850. George v. State, 2D2024-0384 (6/7/24)

VOP-JUDGMENT: The trial judge must specify, in the written order or judgment, which conditions of probation or community control have been violated. Collins v. State, 5D2023-0299 (6/7/24)

PLEA WITHDRAWAL: Where a defendant files a pro se motion to withdraw a plea which contains specific allegations that give rise to an adversarial relationship, such as misadvise, affirmative misrepresentations, or coercion that led to the entry of a plea, the trial court must hold a limited hearing to determine whether an adversarial relationship exists between the defendant and defense counsel that would entitle the defendant to appointment of conflict-free counsel. If an adversarial relationship exists, it must appoint conflict-free counsel to represent the defendant on his motion to withdraw plea. Where Defendant's motion is insufficient, but he supplements it with allegations of misadvise, counsel must be appointed. Mathis v. State. 5D2023-1980 (6/7/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: A rule 3.850 motion cannot be used to go behind representations the defendant made to the trial court, and the court may summarily deny post-conviction claims that are refuted by such representations. Post-conviction movants are bound by the statements they make under oath in plea colloquies. Hastings v. State, 5D2023-3296 (6/7/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Double jeopardy principles bar dual convictions for possessing a drug and possessing that same drug with the intent to sell it, but double jeopardy is not implicated by dual convictions for possessing a drug and selling it. Hastings v. State, 5D2023-3296 (6/7/24)

JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION: All judges in a county need not be disqualified where Defendant is charged with threatening one of them. The fact that the victim had been a judge in the county does not mean that all judges in that county have to be disqualified. Watkins v. State, 5D2023-3374 (6/7/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on his claim that counsel was ineffective for advising him to plead notwithstanding his claim that the threatening letter he allegedly sent to the judge was a forgery. The Motion is timely notwithstanding that Defendant did not file it until after he had been arrested for violating probation. "Although Appellant is challenging the underlying conviction, not the revocation proceedings, the motion is nonetheless timely from both judgments." Watkins v. State, 5D2023-3374 (6/7/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on his claim that his plea was involuntary because he was never informed that he could be sentenced up to the statutory maximum and he was also unaware he would later be designated a violent felony offender of special concern. PROBATION-TOLLING: Probation is tolled of Defendant's warrantless arrest for violation of probation and the filing of an affidavit alleging a violation of her probation and the issuance of a warrant thereon, But Defendant cannot be found in violation of probation for any expired terms. QUO WARRANTO-STATE ATTORNEY-SUSPENSION: Governor may suspend the elected State Attorney for being "clearly and fundamentally derelict as to constitute both neglect of duty and incompetence" by "permitt[ing] violent offenders, drug traffickers, serious juvenile offenders, and pedophiles to evade incarceration when otherwise warranted under Florida law." The Governor's Executive Order only needs to show that it "contains allegations that bear some reasonable relation to the charge made" against the State Attorney. Where the executive order of suspension contains factual allegations relating to an enumerated ground for suspension, the Constitution prohibits the courts from examining or determining the sufficiency of the evidence supporting those facts. Worrell v. DeSantis, SC2023-1246 (6/6/24)

DEMOCRACY (J. LABARGA, DISSENTING): "Where the suspension involves an elected official not subject to impeachment, such as Worrell, the Florida Constitution in effect authorizes the governor to override the will of the majority of voters who elected the official and to appoint a replacement of the governor's choosing. Because the bedrock of our democracy is the right to elect our public officials in fair and open elections, the suspension of a duly elected constitutional officer must be viewed as an enormous undertaking that requires clear justification. At the very least, the allegations must be confined to the specific grounds permitted by article IV, section 7(a), and the official in question should be apprised of the specific allegations giving rise to the suspension to ensure an opportunity to mount a meaningful defense. . .An executive order which presents only general or conclusory allegations will not suffice. This is not a demanding standard, but it is nonetheless a substantive requirement imposed by the Florida Constitution, and this Court is obligated to vacate any suspension which does not satisfy it." QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: Officers do not have qualified immunity for tasing then shooting someone's dog. An official clearly violates the Fourth Amendment when he uses deadly force against a dog that is incapacitated and incapable of harming anyone. "We have never addressed the specific question whether shooting a domestic animal constitutes a seizure under the Fourth Amendment. Now, we join with almost every other circuit in holding that it does." Plowright v. Miami Dade County, No. 23-10425 (11th Cir. 6/5/24)

DOGS: "Even as living creatures—and often, beloved members of the family—domestic animals qualify as 'effects' for the purposes of the Fourth Amendment. An officer may not use deadly force against a domestic animal unless that officer reasonably believes that the animal poses an imminent threat to himself or others. Plowright v. Miami Dade County, No. 23-10425 (11th Cir. 6/5/24)

DOGS: "Although Niles was barking when the officers approached the residence, and he 'sensed [the officers'] aggressive tone,' he was 'wagging his tail' when Rondon tased him and was 'incapacitated' by the taser and 'incapable of harming anyone' when Cordova fired the fatal shots. . .[T]he fact that a dog is barking and unrestrained is hardly enough by itself to convince a reasonable officer that he is in imminent danger. "[N]o reasonable officer could ever believe that it was appropriate to shoot an incapacitated, non-threatening domestic animal during a 911 investigation." Plowright v. Miami INTENTIONAL INFLICTION OF EMOTIONAL DISTRESS: To state a valid claim for intentional infliction of emotional distress, a plaintiff must plausibly allege that the defendant's conduct was outrageous, beyond all bounds of decency, and odious and utterly intolerable in a civilized community. Whether conduct is outrageous enough is a question of law, defined as the sort of thing that would make an average member of the community to exclaim, 'Outrageous!'" RESENTENCING-SCORESHEET ERRORS: Defendant is not entitled to resentencing because he received an unlawful downward departure based on an improperly calculated scoresheet and the errors all benefitted him. Boyd v. State, 1D2022-0351 (6/5/24)

See, you take the number of times a man been at bat, and you divide that by the number of times a man got a hit. Like me, I been at bat a hundred times, I got twenty-five hits. That's simple, right? Twenty-five go into a hundred four times. Gives me a batting average of four! That's wrong. That ain't no way to do that. What you gotta do is the number of times a man's been at bat and got a hit. Divide that by the number of times he swung. See I been at bat a lot, and I swung a lot! Let me see, seventy-five into a hundred... no. That would give me a batting average of two! Couldn't have a batting average of two! Nobody could have a batting average that bad. Could they?"*

was an error of .15 months for an improperly included prior misdemeanor (24 months vs. 24.15 months). Actually, Defendant should have scored 159 months. Errors included listing the wrong primary offense, scoring it as a Level 6 instead of 7, not including 40 Victim Injury points for Sexual Contact, and omitting the enhancement for an"Adult-on-Minor Sex Offense." JURY INSTRUCTION-LACK OF KNOWLEDGE: Knowledge of the illicit nature of a controlled substance is not an element of trafficking in methamphetamine or heroin. But it is an affirmative defense. Absent Defendant's testimony or other evidence of lack of knowledge of the nature of the substance, an instruction that Defendant did not know what the drug was is not warranted. Goldsby v. ILLEGAL SENTENCE-ESTOPPEL: Where a defendant has already served his sentence and he has reaped the benefit of an illegal sentence, he is estopped from challenging the sentence, especially in the context of a negotiated plea. Hamilton v. State, 3D23-1878 (6/5/24)

STAND YOUR GROUND-WRIT: Prohibition does not lie where a defendant claims that the trial court applied the wrong procedure, rather than asserting on the merits that a defendant is entitled to immunity against further prosecution. Rather, a petition for writ of certiorari would be the remedy. But the appellate court lacks jurisdiction to consider a petition for writ of certiorari when it was filed more than thirty days after rendition of the trial court's order. Bembridge v. State, 3D23-2050 (6/5/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: A traditional double jeopardy challenge attacks both the conviction and, by default, the sentence, while R. 3.800(a) is limited to claims that a sentence itself is illegal, without regard to the underlying conviction. Fleurimond v. State, 3D23-2181 (6/5/24)

HFO/PRR-CONSECUTIVE SENTENCES: Court lawfully sentenced Defendant to an enhanced ten-year sentence as an HFO for Resisting with Violence with the first five years as a PRR, and to five years for Battery on a LEO consecutively, non-enhanced, for an aggregate sentence of fifteen years. The trial court is not authorized to both enhance the defendant's sentence as a habitual offender and make each of the enhanced habitual offender sentences consecutive, but the second count is not enhanced, so it may be imposed consecutively. Toombs v. State, 4D2022-2978 (6/5/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435449/opinion/Opinion_2022-2978.pdf

HFO/PRR-CONSECUTIVE SENTENCES (J. WARNER, CONCURRING): "I concur because I believe, under Cotto, the sentences imposed are legal. But I think. . .Cotto has gutted Hale's holding in cases such as this, where even though the trial court finds a defendant an HFO, a court can sentence some charges with the HFO enhancement but not apply that same enhancement to others, so that the unenhanced sentence can run consecutive to the HFO sentence. . .I do not understand how a court could consider that the HFO designation was appropriate for some charges within a single criminal episode but not others. If the court could, it would have to find that an HFO sentence was not necessary for one charge but was necessary for others, which makes no sense. . .[But] Cotto appears to allow this, and I must concur with the affirmance of the sentences in this case." Toombs v. State, 4D2022-2978 (6/5/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435449/opinion/Opinion_2022-2978.pdf

HFO/PRR-CONSECUTIVE SENTENCES: Court lawfully sentenced Defendant as both a Habitual Felony Offender and Prison Releasee Reoffender to 25 years for robbery, but must designate that only the first fifteen years are to be served as a PRR. Pollock v. State, 4D2023-1310 (6/5/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435455/opinion/Opinion_2023-1310.pdf

RE-CROSS-DNA: Court did not abuse discretion in disallowing re-cross of State's DNA expert on Defendant's father where the original cross had already covered the Defendant's hypothetical brother. "Here, the trial court did not abuse its discretion because the questions the defendant wanted to ask raised a new matter. Namely, the defendant wanted to ask about the defendant's father. All prior questioning concerned the defendant's brothers—not his father." Lange v. State, 4D2023-1717 (6/5/24)

ANIMAL ABANDONMENT: Simply knowing that an animal is confined with an insufficient quantity of good and wholesome food and water, or is in an enclosure without wholesome exercise and change of air does not make one guilty of animal abandonment. The statute requires one's participation in the confining or keeping of an animal in an enclosure in violation of the statute. Defendant is entitled to a JOA where there is no evidence that the outside dogs were even owned by her and the evidence was undisputed that her husband was responsible for their care. Moore v. ANIMAL ABANDONMENT-ARGUMENT: State's argument that "Ms. Moore . . .knew it was wrong for these dogs to be in these cages, but she did nothing about it." and "[S]he wasn't legally obligated to do so, except she was because this was not okay" misstates the law. Moore v. State, 4D2023-2151 (6/5/24)

QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: No cause of action is available for continuing to shoot a detainee well after he is unconscious and unresponsive after the initial flurry of shots. Recognizing a cause of action for money damages against a federal task force member could impact cooperation among law enforcement agencies and the operation of these task forces, and allowing such claims could chill recruitment for the task forces. Mother of decedent should submit a grievance by filling out an online form or file a complaint with DOJ Office of Inspector General. Robinson v. Sauls, No. 23-10719 (11th Cir. 6/4/24)

IMPERSONATING AN OFFICER: For impersonating an officer, evidence is sufficient to convict if it shows that the defendant falsely assumed and pretended to be a federal officer and committed any overt act in keeping with that assumed character. Presenting a fake badge and claiming to be a senior air marshal to get out of a speeding ticket is sufficient. USA v. Diamond, No. 21-13528 (11th Cir. 6/4/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113528.pdf

IMPERSONATING AN OFFICER: The Defendant is not entitled to a special jury instruction that "acts as such" means ""committed some overt act involving an assertion of claimed authority derived from the office he pretended to hold." The proposed instruction is superfluous and questionable; it seems to require some separate or distinct secondary act to be taken that was derived from the impersonated office a defendant pretended to hold. But there is no such derivative second-act requirement. USA v. Diamond, No. 21-13528 (11th Cir. 6/4/24)

EVIDENCE-OTHER BAD ACTS: When intent is a material issue, prior bad act evidence may be admissible to prove intent, but it must be established by sufficient proof and] the probative value of the evidence must not be substantially outweighed by its undue prejudice. Defendant's prior impersonation of a federal officer, attested to by his wife, is admissible to show that Defendant impersonated a senior air marshal to get out of a speeding ticket. USA v. Diamond, No. 21-13528 (11th Cir. 6/4/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113528.pdf

LESSER INCLUDED: An elements test is used for evaluating whether one offense is a lesser-included offense of another offense. For an offense to be a lesser-included offense of a parent offense, its elements must be contained within the elements of the parent offense. Possessing a false official ID is not a lesser included of Impersonating an officer. §912 does not require that a defendant possess any type of badge at all as part of his impersonation. USA v. Diamond, No. 21-13528 (11th Cir. 6/4/24)

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: In deviating from the statutorily enumerated mitigating factors, the trial court cannot rely on a non-statutory factor when that factor is encompassed within a listed statutory factor. A finding that Defendant was substantially impaired because of the combination of his upbringing, the poor environment in which he was raised, the abuse he has suffered, and his prior addictions is a finding of diminished capacity. But evidence in the form of letters from his family do not prove a diminished capacity. Caulkins v. State, 2D2023-0152 (5/31/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435258/opinion/Opinion_2023-0152.pdf

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: The parameters of nonstatutory mitigation are largely undefined, but potentially valid nonstatutory mitigators include enticement, sentencing manipulation, sentencing entrapment, and a lower sentence of an equally or more culpable codefendant. Caulkins v. State, 2D2023-0152 (5/31/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435258/opinion/Opinion_2023-0152.pdf

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: A defendant is not required to offer expert medical testimony to establish a lack of capacity, but such testimony is often critical in making that showing. Caulkins v. State, 2D2023-0152 (5/31/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435258/opinion/Opinion_2023-0152.pdf

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: The trial court's personal observations that Defendant appeared overwhelmed or confused in court are not sufficient alone to constitute competent substantial evidence of Mr. Caulkins' diminished capacity and ability to conform his conduct to the requirements of the law. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Summary denial of a motion for postconviction relief is rarely appropriate if the trial court needs to assess the credibility of the new testimony. A newly discovered evidence inquiry typically requires an evidentiary hearing. The mere fact that an affidavit is contradicted by trial testimony is not necessarily grounds for a summary denial. Harold v. State, 5D2023-2891 (5/31/24) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435259/opinion/Opinion_2023-2891.pdf

APPEAL-ISSUE PRESERVATION-WRITTEN THREAT: Whether §836.10 is a specific, intent crime–Child had sent a text with a gun emoji and "ima run from 22" to a classmate who had called his girlfriend "cute"--is not preserved for appeal, notwithstanding State's concession that it is. EX POST FACTO-DEATH PENALTY-TRIAL PROCEDURE: Amended statute concerning jury's recommendation as to imposition of the death penalty–a super majority of 8-12 rather than unanimity is enough, and the Court must enter a written order explaining its decision–does not violate the ex post facto clause. New statute applies. Trial court's ruling that it does not is quashed. State v. Lobato, 6D23-3201 (5/31/24) https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2435280/opinion/Opinion_2023-3201.pdf

EX POST FACTO-DEATH PENALTY-TRIAL PROCEDURE (J. WHITE, DISSENTING): The trial court ruled that the new statute "would violate the ex post facto clause of the United States Constitution and the ex post facto clause of the Florida Constitution." Neither State's petition for certiorari nor the majority opinion addressed the ex post facto clause of the Florida constitution, only that of the U.S. constitution. The State fails to cite the Florida Ex Post Facto Clause or point to a single binding decision interpreting the Florida Ex Post Facto Clause that the trial court departed from when it rendered the challenged order. Without such controlling precedent, we cannot conclude that the court violated a clearly established principle of law. State v. Lobato, 6D23-3201 (5/31/24)

COMPETENCY-INTELLECTUAL DISABILITY: The only way a trial court may stave off dismissal of the case of a Defendant who has remained incompetent for more than two years because of intellectual disability is if its order specifies its reasons for believing that the defendant will become competent to proceed within the foreseeable future and specifies the time within which the defendant is expected to become so. Reina v. State, 6D23-3738 (5/31/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DEATH PENALTY: In death penalty case, where federal Court of Appeals downplayed the serious aggravating factors and overstated the strength of mitigating evidence that differed very little from the evidence presented at sentencing, it erred in reversing the District Court's decision denying habeas relief. Thornell v. Jones, No. 22–982 (U.S. S.Ct. 5/30/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DEATH PENALTY: When an ineffective-assistance-of-counsel claim is based on counsel's performance at the sentencing phase of a capital case, a defendant is prejudiced only if there is a reasonable probability that, absent counsel's errors, the sentencer would have concluded that the balance of aggravating and mitigating circumstances did not warrant death. There must be a substantial, not just conceivable, likelihood of a different result. Court must take into account any weighty aggravating circumstances and must assess the relative strength of expert witness testimony. Thornell v. Jones, No. 22–982 (U.S. S.Ct. 5/30/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-982_bq7d.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DEATH PENALTY: Defendant's mental illness, mental impairment, or claim of childhood abuse are not weighty mitigating evidence when no causal connection between these factors and his conduct on the night of the murders is shown. Evidence of causation is required before these can be considered to be significant mitigating factors. Thornell v. Jones, No. 22–982 (U.S. S.Ct. 5/30/24)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-982_bq7d.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DEATH PENALTY (J. JACKSON, DISSENTING): "In its search for legal error in this capital habeas case, the Court makes many mistakes of its own. . .To be sure, the Ninth Circuit's discussion of the aggravating factors was concise. But there is no benchmark length for any such discussion. Indeed, this Court has granted habeas relief after similarly succinct evaluations of aggravating factors. . .We can hardly fault the Ninth Circuit for using the same approach that this Court itself has previously used. Thus, to me, the Court's claim that the Ninth Circuit 'all but ignored' the aggravators. . .rings hollow. . .[W]e are not the right tribunal to parse the extensive factual record in this case." VOP-PLEA AGREEMENT: Where the original plea agreement expressly provided that if the trial court found he violated probation again, Defendant could be sentenced to thirty years with a twenty-five year minimum mandatory sentence for the underlying conviction, he had notice of the potential sentence and was subject to it once probation was revoked. Balbin v. State, 3D21-1770 (5/29/24)

VOP: The standard of review for the trial court's decision to revoke probation is abuse of discretion. JUROR-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE: When a party challenges the opponent's exercise of a peremptory strike, the trial court must follow the three-step Melbourne procedure:

•Step 1--A party objecting to the other side's use of a peremptory challenge on racial grounds must: a) make a timely objection on that basis, b) show that the venire person is a member of a distinct racial group, and c) request that the court ask the striking party its reason for the strike. If these initial requirements are met, the court must ask the proponent of the strike to explain the reason for the strike.

•Step 3--If the explanation is facially race-neutral and the court believes that, given all the circumstances surrounding the strike, the explanation is not a pretext, the strike will be sustained. Hastings v. State, 4D2023-0379 (5/29/24)

JUROR-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE: Defense counsel's explanation for its use of a peremptory challenge on an Indian-American–the juror considers police to be generally trustworthy and he likes to watch CSI–is race neutral. Court improperly relieved the State of its burden to show that the proffered reasons were not genuine. No record was made of the collective failure at the trial level to make a sufficient record of factors relevant to genuineness, such as the racial make-up of the venire, prior strikes exercised against the racial group of the challenged juror, or whether the reason proffered for the strike was equally applicable to unchallenged jurors. FIRST-DEGREE MURDER-PREMEDITATION: Premeditation is a fully formed conscious purpose to kill that may be formed in a moment and need only exist for such time as will allow the accused to be conscious of the nature of the act about to be committed and the possible result of that act. Whether a premeditated design to kill was formed prior to a killing is a question of fact for the jury that may be established by circumstantial evidence. Defendant's admission that he did not like his daughter's abusive boyfriend, told her to leave him, wore a hoodie with the hood upon a very hot day, and told the victim "I promise you to the death, you will not hurt my child again" before shooting him show premeditation, as does his flight from the scene afterwards. JURY INSTRUCTION-JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE: Defendant's objection to the standard jury instruction on the justifiable use of deadly force for including the phrase "necessarily done" fails. The standard jury instructions, viewed as a whole, fairly state the applicable law. Hamilton v. State, 4D2023-0870 (5/29/24)

JURY INSTRUCTION-JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE: Jury instruction 7.2 is adequate. Its omission of the definition of premeditation as a "settled and fixed purpose to take the life of a human being" does not render it inadequate. Hamilton v. State, 4D2023-0870 (5/29/24)

SPECIAL JURY INSTRUCTION: Defendant is not entitled to special additional instructions on intent that "Extremely reckless behavior is an insufficient basis from which to infer any premeditation. Moreover, an impulsive overreaction to an attack or injury is itself insufficient to prove premeditation." (First degree murder) or "Extremely reckless behavior is an insufficient basis from which to infer any malice. Moreover, an impulsive overreaction to an attack or injury is itself insufficient to prove ill will, hatred, spite or evil intent." (Second degree murder). Hamilton v. State, 4D2023-0870 (5/29/24)

COMPETENCY HEARING: Once an issue of competency is raised, a hearing is required. On remand, if the court is able to make a nunc pro tunc finding as to competency based upon evaluations performed contemporaneously with trial and without relying solely on a cold record, and can do so in a manner which abides by due process guarantees, it should do so. Jones v. State, 4D2023-1226 (5/29/24)

COSTS OF INCARCERATION: DOC is entitled to liquidated damages for Defendant's incarceration costs, notwithstanding that the restitution lien was not imposed at sentencing. Court retains continuing jurisdiction over the convicted offender for the sole purpose of entering civil restitution lien orders for the duration of the sentence and up to 5 years from release from incarceration or supervision, whichever occurs later. A civil restitution judgment is not a component of criminal punishment and therefore does not violate equal protection or substantive due process when imposed by the court after sentencing. PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE-BACKSTRIKE: Before the jury is sworn, a trial judge has no authority to infringe upon a party's right to challenge any juror, either peremptorily or for cause. Where a defendant has accepted the jury panel but has not exhausted his peremptory strikes, the trial court abuses its discretion when it refuses to entertain a peremptory challenge before the jury is sworn (defense counsel noticed that a juror who he thought had been dismissed had not). The right to challenge any juror before the jury is sworn includes the right to retract acceptance of the panel and backstrike a prospective juror using an available peremptory challenge. CERTIFICATE OF APPEALABILITY: A party who seeks to appeal the denial of a motion for relief from a judgment denying habeas relief must obtain a certificate of appealability, which may be issued only if the applicant has made a substantial showing of the denial of a constitutional right. The applicant must establish that jurists of reason could disagree with the resolution of his constitutional claims or that jurists could conclude that the issues presented are adequate to deserve encouragement to proceed further. Mills v. Commissioner, Alabama D.O.C., No. 24-11661 (11th Cir. 5/28/24)

CERTIFICATE OF APPEALABILITY-DEATH PENALTY: A motion for a certificate of appealability must be made no more than a year after the entry of the judgment or order from which the movant seeks relief. Three-and-a-half years is "more than a year." The "fraud on the court" exception to the one-year time limit requires that the alleged fraud be "highly probable." Mills v. Commissioner, Alabama D.O.C., No. 24-11661 (11th Cir. 5/28/24)

CERTIFICATE OF APPEALABILITY-DEATH PENALTY: Where Defendant obtained an affidavit from the co-Defendant's trial attorney that the State had falsely affirmed that it did not offer the flipping co-defendant a promise or hint that she would receive a favorable plea should she testify, and circumstances support that such a deal existed, he is not entitled to a C.O.A. years after the trial. DEATH PENALTY-ACCESS TO COURT: Strapping a condemned prisoner to the gurney in the execution chamber for an undue length without access to counsel does not violate his right to access to the courts. Mills v. Hamm, No. 24-11689 (11th Cir. 5/28/24)

DEATH PENALTY-STAY OF EXECUTION: A court may grant a stay of execution only if the movant establishes that he is substantially likely to succeed on the merits, he will suffer irreparable injury absent the stay, and the stay would not substantially harm the opposing party or the public interest. DEATH PENALTY-STAY OF EXECUTION: Condemned prisoner should not move for a stay of execution "on the cusp of a three-day-holiday weekend. A reasonably diligent plaintiff would have sought a stay much sooner." Mills v. Hamm, No. 24-11689 (11th Cir. 5/28/24)

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT-SERIOUS DRUG OFFENSE: A state drug conviction counts as an ACCA predicate if it involved a drug on the federal schedules at the time of that conviction. A prior cocaine conviction, notwithstanding the removal of ioflupane from the federal statutory definition of cocaine, remains a predicate offense. ACCA requires sentencing courts to examine the law as it was when the defendant violated it, even if that law is subsequently amended. Brown v. United States, No. 22–6389 (U.S. S.Ct. 5/23/24)

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT- SERIOUS DRUG OFFENSE: A state crime constitutes a "serious drug offense" if it involved a drug that was on the federal schedules when the defendant possessed or trafficked in it but was later removed. The fact that the federal cannabis statute was amended in 2018–hemp was removed from the definition–and no longer matched the state definition does not mean that the Defendant's prior possession of cannabis with intent to sell does not qualify as a predicate offense. Brown v. United States, No. 22–6389 (U.S. S.Ct. 5/23/24)

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT-CATEGORICAL APPROACH: ACCA imposes a 15-year mandatory minimum sentence on defendants who are convicted of the illegal possession of a firearm and have a criminal history that is thought to demonstrate a propensity for violence. ACCA requires an enhanced penalty if, among other things, they have three previous convictions for a serious drug offense, i.e. an offense carrying a maximum sentence of at least 10 years' imprisonment and involving a controlled substance. Brown v. United States, No. 22–6389 (U.S. S.Ct. 5/23/24)

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT- SERIOUS DRUG OFFENSE (J. JACKSON, CONCURRING): ACCA's "serious drug offense" definition necessarily directs sentencing courts to consult the current federal drug schedules, rather than some earlier version of those lists. "When it comes time to interpret a statute, courts typically plug the referenced provision. . .into the statutory text. . .[But] [t]he Government rejects the foregoing description of how statutory cross-references operate. . .The Government insists that, instead of merely calling for insertion of the referenced law, the appearance of a cross-reference in a statute can have 'different temporal branches depending on context.'. . .That cannot be right. We have never viewed statutory cross-references as a gateway to the multiverse." Brown v. United States, No. 22–6389 (U.S. S.Ct. 5/23/24)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION (J. JACKSON, CONCURRING): The majority "has taken a strange and unwarranted departure from this Court's ordinary interpretive practices. Before today, we have consistently used all aspects of a statute's text to ascertain its meaning, including the verbs that Congress chooses. . .Any other approach risks chaos." Brown v. United States, No. 22–6389 (U.S. S.Ct. 5/23/24)

PROFFER LETTER: If the government breaches a proffer agreement at sentencing, the defendant must either be resentenced by a new judge or allowed to withdraw his plea, regardless of whether the judge was influenced. USA v. Guerra Blanco, No. 22-10419 (11th Cir. 5/23/24)

PROFFER LETTER: The government's use of a video threatening the assassination of a Spanish judge—with English subtitles inserted by Defendant--did not constitute a breach of the proffer agreement. Statements concerning violent acts, or violence in any form, were excluded from the proffer agreement not to use information derived from the proffer. Threatening the assassination of a Spanish judge falls squarely within the violence exclusion. USA v. Guerra Blanco, No. 22-10419 (11th Cir. 5/23/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Once a driver has been lawfully stopped for a traffic violation, police officers may order the driver out of the vehicle for officer safety reasons without violating the Fourth Amendment's prohibition of unreasonable searches and seizures. A K-9 officer who arrives midway through a lawful traffic stop to perform a dog sniff sweep of a vehicle's exterior may order occupants to get out of the car for officer safety reasons. State v. Crelier, SC2022-0524 (5/23/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE (LABARGA, DISSENTING): "Creller's right to personal security carries more weight than the majority affords it. An exit order is not an innocuous request. While police search the vehicle, the driver must stand on the side of the road in view of all passersby. The implications heighten when. . . the scene involves two or more police cars with lights glaring and with an active K-9 unit. . .The stigma associated with the exit order jeopardizes the driver's reputation in the community. This is especially the case in our contemporary social media environment in which videos are constantly uploaded with little or no context given. A driver forced to exit the vehicle for a K-9 sweep may be viewed not only by passersby, but also by anyone around the world." State v. Crelier, SC2022-0524 (5/23/24)

does not create a constitutional entitlement to a subsequent competency hearing if the information available to the trial court did not meet the evidentiary threshold for invoking R. 3.210 competency procedures. It is the violation of the right not to be tried when there are reasonable grounds to question the defendant's competency—not the right to have a hearing and competency determination—that deprives a defendant of due process. Awolowo v. State, 1D2022-2062 (5/22/24)

COMPETENCY: "Failure to hold a competency hearing is not fundamental error. And so, when the record does not show reasonable grounds for the trial court to have believed that the defendant was incompetent to proceed, the trial court does not fundamentally err by failing to hold a competency hearing and failing to enter a written order on the defendants' competency. This is so even if the trial court has ordered an expert evaluation of the defendant's competency." Prior precedents receded from. Awolowo v. State, 1D2022-2062 (5/22/24)

COMPETENCY: Defense counsel must recite facts in the motion for competency evaluation that would support counsel's belief that there are reasonable grounds to doubt the defendant's competency. A boilerplate motion "good faith belief that the Defendant suffer[ed] from mental illness or disability and that as a result he/she may be incompetent to proceed" is not nearly enough. Awolowo v. State, 1D2022-2062 (5/22/24)

COMPETENCY: "We remind counsel that when a trial court has ordered a competency evaluation of the defendant, as an officer of the court, counsel has a duty to bring to the trial court's attention the need for a competency hearing and determination. . .Defense counsel, when raising concerns about a defendant's competency, must be conscientious in bringing an issue of competency before the trial court and preserving the issue for appeal. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-FINDINGS: Court must provide sufficient factual findings to support its ruling on motion to suppress. Conclusory findings--"[a]fter hearing testimony of the witnesses, argument of the attorneys, this Court finds that the State has not met its burden"--fail to provide an adequate record for appellate review. State v. Dennard, 1D2023-0083 (5/22/24)

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED-CORRECTION: Court may not sua sponte eliminate the jail credit originally applied to each term of consecutive prison sentences on multiple charges. A trial court has inherent authority to sua sponte correct sentencing documents that overreport the amount of jail time served by a defendant, but only within the framework and time limits of and in compliance with rule 3.800(b), and only if the errors constituted scrivener's errors. Coffin v. State, 1D2023-1287 (5/22/24)

VOIR DIRE: No fundamental error occurs when trial court offers "prosecution-friendly" hypotheticals during voir dire. However, the trial judge should rely

APPEAL-MOTION TO CORRECT: As a defendant has thirty days to file a notice of appeal of a judgment and sentence, chronologically, a R. 3.800(a)(1) motion cannot be filed within the first 30 days of sentencing. DEPORTATION-LEWD AND LASCIVIOUS-CATEGORICAL APPROACH: A Florida conviction for lewd and lascivious battery under the 2008 version of Fla. Stat. §800.04(4)--statutory rape–does not constitutes the sexual abuse of a minor, and is therefore not an aggravated felony under the INA. The generic federal definition of "sexual abuse of a minor," requires an age difference of at least one year between the perpetrator and the victim. Applying the categorical approach, the least culpable conduct under the statute is consensual sexual activity between adolescents who are 12 to 15 years old, with no minimum age required for the perpetrator and no age differential between the participants. The statute therefore sweeps more broadly than the generic federal definition of "sexual abuse of a minor. Leger v. US Attorney General, (11th Cir. 5/20/24)

DEPORTATION-CATEGORICAL APPROACH: "We realize that this short summary may be unintelligible to those who are unversed in the intricacies of immigration law and unfamiliar with the Supreme Court's categorical approach for determining which state offenses constitute aggravated felonies—and maybe even to those who profess some expertise. In the pages that follow, we'll do our best to explain." Leger v. US Attorney General, (11th Cir 5/20/24)

CATEGORICAL APPROACH: Under the categorical approach, courts ask whether the state statute defining the crime of conviction categorically fits within the generic federal definition of a corresponding aggravated felony. Courts must presume that the state conviction rested upon the least of the acts criminalized by the statute, and then determine whether that conduct would fall within the federal definition of the crime. The Defendant's actual conduct is not considered. Leger v. US Attorney General, (11th Cir 5/20/24)

SEXUAL ABUSE: "The generic federal offense of sexual abuse of a minor requires some age differential between the perpetrator and the victim. . . [W]e do not go as far as. . .declaring that the age differential must be at least four years. Instead, we hold only that the age differential must be at least one year, and leave for another day whether the required age differential is any more than that." Leger v. US Attorney General, (11th Cir 5/20/24)

DEPORTATION-MARIJUANA: A conviction for marijuana possession does not constitute a controlled substance offense under the INA. Not all substances that §893.02(3) proscribes are federally controlled." Because §893.02(3) includes all parts of the marijuana plant, while 21 U.S.C. § 802(16) does not, a Florida conviction for possession of marijuana is not a controlled substance offense as defined under federal law. Leger v. US Attorney General, (5/20/24)

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION-QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: Officers have qualified immunity for procuring an arrest warrant for the person who they wrongly identify as the man in the surveillance video using a stolen debit card. "None of us is perfect. . . [T]he Fourth Amendment does not require a perfect investigation before an arrest is made or a charge is brought. DEFINITION-

"PROBABLE CAUSE": Probable cause does not require proof beyond a reasonable doubt or even proof by a preponderance of the evidence that the person arrested for a crime is guilty. Probable cause only requires substantial chance of criminal activity. Sufficient probability, not certainty, is the touchstone of reasonableness under the Fourth Amendment. Harris v. Hixson, No. 22-12493 (11th Cir. 5/17/24)

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION/FALSE ARREST: There are differences between a §1983 malicious prosecution claim arising from a warrant-based arrest and a §1983 false arrest claim arising from a warrantless arrest. Warrantless arrests concern whether the facts known to the arresting officer establish probable cause. Warrant-based arrests, by contrast, concern whether the judicial officer who approved the seizure had sufficient information to find probable cause. In most, but not all, circumstances if the arrest affidavit doesn't independently establish probable cause, it cannot be rehabilitated by relying on information that the officer had but didn't disclose to the judicial officer when he sought the warrant. But if the period of detention after arrest is brief, information known to the officers but not communicated to the judicial officer may be considered to uphold the seizure. Harris v. Hixson, No. 22-12493 (11th Cir. 5/17/24)

CONTEMPT-INDIRECT: Court erred in finding that subject violated the order entered in a dependency case that he treat "everyone in the System" with respect by spraying disinfectant on a mirror of a transport van. Indirect criminal contempt must be based on an affidavit of a person having personal knowledge of the facts. APPEAL-PRESERVED ERROR: Acquiescing to an incorrect instruction constitutes a failure of preservation that does not preclude fundamental-error review. It is not necessarily invited error. Cooper v. State, 1D2022-2143 (5/15/24)

JURY-DEADLOCK: Any error in Court giving an Allen charge when jury did not declare itself deadlocked but rather asked to re-convene in the morning was not fundamental error. Without an objection to an Allen charge being given to a jury that is not deadlocked, there can be no reversible error. Cooper v. State, 1D2022-2143 (5/15/24)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2434512/opinion/Opinion_2022-2143.pdf

JURY-DISCHARGE: The trial judge did not err by bringing back the jurors, after they had been discharged, to re-poll them once the judge realized that he had made a mistake in his reading of the verdict form to the jurors in connection with the first poll. While a discharged jury cannot be recalled, a trial court does not err by doing so after it simply uses the term "discharged." A jury may remain undischarged and retain its functions, though the word "discharge" may have been spoken by the court, if, after such announcement, it remains an undispersed unit, within control of the court, with no opportunity to mingle with or discuss the case with other. Cooper v. State, 1D2022-2143 (5/15/24)

HABEAS CORPUS: Habeas corpus may not be used as a means to seek a second appeal or to litigate issues that could have been or were raised in a motion under R. 3.850. Lowe v. State, 1D2023-1351 (5/15/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-RIGHT TO TESTIFY: Counsel was not ineffective for advising client not to testify where he intended to say some other dude did it and he was not even there when he had earlier told his attorney that he was there and was the shooter. Trial counsel properly advised Defendant that he should not testify because he was not going to allow him to lie on the stand. Parks v. State, 2D2022-0987 (5/15/24)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2434498/opinion/Opinion_2022-0987.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVED ISSUE: An argument on appeal which differs from the argument in the postconviction court is not preserved. Parks v. State, 2D2022-0987 (5/15/24)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2434498/opinion/Opinion_2022-0987.pdf

FALSE TESTIMONY (LaROSE, CONCURRING): Regardless of the client's wishes, defense counsel must refuse to aid the defendant in giving perjured testimony and also refuse to present testimony that he knows is fabricated. "Trial counsel was truly stuck in the 'worst dilemma,' facing a legal and ethical Catch-22. Trial counsel handled this tricky situation with aplomb, and. . .was not deficient for advising Mr. Parks not to testify at trial." Parks v. State, 2D2022-0987 (5/15/24)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2434498/opinion/Opinion_2022-0987.pdf

SEARCH WARRANT: The statement in the affidavit for the search warrant that Defendant showed pornographic Disney videos to a child was not false or misleading. The chid's omitted statement attributing the videos popping up due to a "glitch" was not a material fact that would create substantial possibility that, if aware of the fact, the magistrate would not have issued the search warrant. The omitted facts are only material if there is a substantial possibility that had the magistrate been aware of the omission he would not have found probable cause. Andrews v. State, 2D2022-1981 (5/15/24)

APPEAL-PRESERVED ISSUE: For appellate review, an issue can only be preserved if the objection is sufficiently precise. On appeal, Defendant may not argue that the admittance of 7,119 URLs related to porn sited is improper character evidence or unduly cumulative where those grounds were not sufficiently articulated as the basid for the objection. An objection on relevance grounds only will not preserve an argument of unfair prejudice on appeal. "We will not entertain a modified claim of prejudice based on the apparent salacious nature of the URLs." Andrews v. State, 2D2022-1981 (5/15/24)

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL: Defendant is not entitled to a JOA for showing pornography to a child when the girl said it "popped up" due to a "glitch" where Defendant then asked to girl to perform the acts shown on him. Andrews v. State, 2D2022-1981 (5/15/24)

ARGUMENT: Prosecutor stating that his personal belief that Defendant was "guilty of all counts" is improper, but is not fundamental error. Andrews v. State, 2D2022-1981 (5/15/24)

ARGUMENT: State's closing arguments emphasizing the leading questions nature of the cross-examination did not improperly denigrate the defense. The prosecutor did not imply that defense counsel's cross-examination was improper or attack defense counsel for asking leading questions, but merely highlighted that the child was vulnerable to shutting down on cross-examination. Andrews v. State, 2D2022-1981 (5/15/24)

POSTCONVICTION RELIEF: Generally, defense counsel is obligated to advise the defendant of all pertinent matters bearing on the choice of which plea to enter, including the strength of the case brought by the State against the defendant. However, an erroneous strategic prediction about the outcome of a trial is not necessarily deficient performance. Cobb v. State, 3D22-1140 (5/15/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-ISSUES-REMAND: On appellate remand, Court may not consider new issues beyond the scope of the mandate. A trial court does not have discretionary power to alter or modify the mandate of an appellate court in any way, shape or form. Cobb v. State, 3D22-1140 (5/15/24)

DISMISSAL: Court may not sua sponte dismiss a case based on the prosecutor's absence from the first appearance hearing. City of Miami Beach v. Guyton, 3D22-1875 (3/15/24)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2434535/opinion/Opinion_2022-1875.pdf

RESTITUTION: Court may not impose restitution to the Sexual Assault Treatment Center (SATC) because the SATC is not a victim of a crime within the statutory definition. To get restitution, a government agency must be both a "direct victim" of a crime and not be merely providing public services in response to the crime. Lucas v. State, 4D2022-2497 (5/15/24)

TWELVE PERSON JURY: The Constitution does not require a twelve person jury. Lucas v. State, 4D2022-2497 (5/15/24)

EVIDENCE: Detective testified that a mark on the victim's back looked like it came from an iron; an iron with blood on it was found on the scene. The detective's testimony that the "markings on the decedent that would be consistent with an iron" would have been within the permissible range of lay observation and ordinary police experience. Moore-Bryant v. State, 4D2023-0855 (5/15/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL: Where Court consolidated a homicide case with the possession of a firearm by a felon case, both based on the same incident but separate informations, and Defendant thereafter moved to continue the consolidated case, Defendant is not entitled to a speedy trial discharge on latter count (he had not been charged with possession of a firearm until 520 days after the homicide arrest). A continuance motion filed after the 175-day speedy trial period constitutes an ongoing waiver to all charges arising out of the same criminal episode forming the continued case, except where that continuance is a nullity. And the continuance was not a nullity because Defendant was not entitled to an automatic discharge. A motion for discharge is not a substitute for a notice of expiration, which provides the State a 15-day recapture period to fix any delays. State v. Jenkins, 4D2023-1745 (5/15/24)

APPEAL-PRESERVED ISSUE: Issues not properly raised in the lower tribunal are typically waived on appeal. State v. Major, 4D2023-1923 (5/15/24)

ABSENCE FROM TRIAL: Argumentative defendant who refuses to remain in the courtroom during trial is not entitled to a warning that he could return to the courtroom if he agreed to behave. A defendant may lose his right to be present at trial by disruptive behavior, express waiver, or voluntarily absenting himself from trial by leaving the trial or failing to appear. Seay v. State, 2D2-2022-3757 (5/10/24)

PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: In designating Defendant a PRR, Court may not take judicial notice of records that the State used in a different case to establish his PRR Status without including them in the court file for the case at issue. Dupree v. State, 2D2023-1114 (5/10/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to claim stand-your-ground immunity, notwithstanding that his theory of defense at trial was that he was not the shooter. Carver v. State, 5D2023-1877 (5/10/24)

FORFEITURE (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "Why does a Nation so jealous of its liberties tolerate expansive new civil forfeiture practices that have 'led to egregious and well-chronicled abuses'? . . .Perhaps it has something to do with the relative lack of power of those on whom the system preys. Perhaps government agencies' increasing dependence on forfeiture as a source of revenue is an important piece of the puzzle." Culley v. Marshall, No. 22–585 (U.S. S.Ct. 5/9/24)

FORFEITURE (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "In this Nation, the right to a jury trial before the government may take life, liberty, or property has always been the rule. Yes, some exceptions exist. But perhaps it is past time for this Court to examine more fully whether and to what degree contemporary civil forfeiture practices align with that rule and those exceptions." Culley v. Marshall, No. 22–585 (U.S. S.Ct. 5/9/24)

FORFEITURE (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "[I]n future cases, with the benefit of full briefing, I hope we might begin the task of assessing how well the profound changes in civil forfeiture practices we have witnessed in recent decades comport with the Constitution's enduring guarantee that '[n]o person shall . . . be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law.'" WORD OF THE DAY-"DEODAND" (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING: T]he archaic common-law deodand. . . required the forfeiture of any object esponsible for a death—say, a knife, cart, or horse—to the Crown. . .Today, the idea seems much the same even if the practice now sweeps more broadly, requiring almost any object involved in almost any serious offense to be surrendered to the government in amends. The hardships deodands often imposed seem more than faintly familiar, too. . . Not infrequently, the practice left impoverished families without the means to support themselves. . .[H]as something not wholly unlike it gradually reemerged in our own lifetimes?" Culley v. CHILD HEARSAY: R. 90.803(23), which renders admissible reliable hearsay statements of a "child victim," can be used to introduce evidence to prove a collateral sex offense. The child victim need not be the victim of the charged offense. A victim is a victim regardless of any charging document. Had the child been merely a witness to the assault on the named victim, her hearsay statements would be inadmissible. But as the child witness was herself a victim, and she was the victim of the sexual assault that was recounted in her out-of-court statements, the child hearsay was admissible. Aboagye v. SECOND-DEGREE MURDER-DEPRAVED MIND: Defendant initiating an altercation with his girlfriend's ex-boyfriend and killing by a gunshot to the back of the head is suffcient evidence of ill will, malice, hatred, spite, or evil intent to sustain a conviction for second-degree murder. Ford v. State, 1D2022-1409 (5/8/24)

SECOND-DEGREE MURDER-DEPRAVED MIND: "[W]e write to discuss the difficulty posed by the elements necessitated to show 'depraved mind," as required to convict for second-degree murder." Defendant who shot victim because he "got under [his] skin" and later performed an original rap song about the shooting is sufficient to show a depraved mind. "Depraved mind" is not limited to ill will, hatred, or evil intent; it includes an inherent deficiency of moral sense and rectitude, or a wicked and corrupt disregard of the lives and safety of others, a failure to appreciate social duty. Porter v. State, 1D2022-2132 (5/8/24)

TRESPASS: A teacher lacks authority to issue a trespass warning to the visiting team's head coach after his ejection from the game and refusal to leave the field. But as a reserve deputy, he does, if the principal had authorized him to do so. The warning person's status as a law enforcement officer or school security guard is not enough. But "although Deputy Rimes' testimony was ambiguous, the jury could infer that his authority was authorized by the Union High School principal." Rollins v. State, 1D2022-3288 (5/8/24)

COST OF PROSECUTION: The $100 cost for the state attorney is a minimum cost that need not be requested. Wood v. State, 1D2023-0276 (5/8/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel was ineffective for failure to contact a witness supplied to him, but there is no prejudice where there is no showing that the outcome of the trial would have been different had he testified. Given the lack of evidence that the witness's trial testimony would have contradicted the prosecution's theory of the case, Defendant suffered no prejudice. Lofton v. State, 1D2023-0571 (5/8/24)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2434117/opinion/Opinion_2023-0571

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel was not ineffective for failure to include in his motion for a new trial--based on an allegation that a juror had overheard witnesses discussing whether to give exculpatory evidence--the name of the juror or an affidavit from him where, despite reasonable attempts, defense counsel did not have that information available to include in his motion. Davidson v. State, 1D2023-0797 (5/8/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-FALSE AFFIDAVIT: Where officer makes false statements in the warrant affidavit, but the false statements are not necessary to the finding of probable cause, the Fourth Amendment does not require suppression. If the affidavit's false material are set to one side, and the affidavit's remaining content is sufficient to establish probable cause, the search warrant is lawful. "[W]e need not analyze every statement in detail to parse all of the accuracies from falsehoods, or dissect and piece back together a Frankenstein-like version of the affidavit, in order to [find]. . . that the trial court erred by excluding the multitude of files containing child pornography." State v. Domenech, 2D2022-3005 (5/8/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-FALSE AFFIDAVIT: "While the temptation to advance the prophylactic purpose of the exclusionary rule by disincentivizing heedless and irresponsible law enforcement conduct may be understandable, in this case the falsities in the affidavit do not negate a finding of probable cause." State v. Domenech, 2D2022-3005 (5/8/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim counsel had rendered ineffective assistance by failing to advise him that the victim denied during the forensic interview that anyone had touched her inappropriately. In determining whether a reasonable probability exists that the defendant would have insisted on going to trial, a court should consider the totality of the circumstances surrounding the plea. Jenkins v. State, 2D2023-1547 (5/8/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-PLEA: Two part test for ineffective assistance of counsel requires a showing of material errors and that such deficient performance prejudiced the defense amounting to a deprivation of the right to a fair trial. To show prejudice after Defendant pleas, he must demonstrate a reasonable probability that (1) he or she would have accepted the plea offer had counsel advised the defendant correctly, (2) the prosecutor would not have withdrawn the offer, (3) the court would have accepted the offer, and (4) the conviction or sentence, or both, under the offer's terms would have been less severe than under the judgment and sentence that in fact were imposed. Davis v. State, 3D22-2035 (5/8/24)

CRIMINAL MISCHIEF-TRANSFERRED INTENT: The criminal mischief statute requires that when a defendant acts with malice toward another person, rather than toward property, that malice does not transfer to the property. The doctrine of transferred intent does not satisfy the requirement of scienter. Silva v. State, 3D22-2140 (5/8/24)

CRIMINAL MISCHIEF: In escalating road rage episode, in which 70-year old Dr. Silva, the defendant, threatened to "defile" the 86 year old's mother, and then tried to hit him with a golf club but instead hit his car, he may be convicted of criminal mischief. "Silva persuasively argues that he first struck the vehicle while unsuccessfully attempting to hit Martin. . . But. . .Silva [struck] the vehicle three times. Because the first swing made contact, it was reasonable for the trial court to infer that Silva intended to achieve the same result with each successive swing. . .even though Martin retreated after the first swing." CRIMINAL MISCHIEF: Criminal mischief is a general intent crime, notwithstanding that the injury or damage must be done willfully and maliciously. "Willfully" means "intentionally, knowingly, and purposely." "Maliciously" means "wrongfully, intentionally, without legal justification or excuse, and with the knowledge that injury or damage will or may be caused to another person or the property of another person." JUDGE-NEUTRALITY: While it bears reminding that every trial judge owes a duty of neutrality, he has broad discretion afforded to the court to manage and regulate the course of the trial. A.L.M., a Juvenile, v. State, 3D23-0937 (5/8/24)

CONCEALED FIREARM: A firearm need not be absolutely invisible in order to be concealed, so long as the weapon was concealed from the casual and ordinary observation of another in the normal associations of life, and the weapon was physically on the person or readily accessible to its bearer. A.L.M., a Juvenile, v. State, 3D23-0937 (5/8/24)

ATTORNEY'S FEES-CONFLICT ATTORNEY: Court may not order hourly attorney fees to conflict attorney at the rate of $100 per hour rather than $75 per hour in this non-capital case. The rate is statutorily and contractually limited to $75 per hour where State did not file a notice of intent to seek the death penalty. The JAC Registry Contract clearly and unambiguously defines a capital death case as one requiring the State to file a notice of intent to seek death. The JAC Registry Contract is an enforceable contract. Justice Administrative Comm'n v. Wahid, 3D23-2209 (5/8/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-JURISDICTION: Trial court lacks jurisdiction to adjudicate a post-conviction motion for relief while the defendant's direct appeal is pending. Drayton v. State, 3D24-0165 (5/8/24)

TAMPERING WITH EVIDENCE-SPECIFIC INTENT: Defendant merely taking the knife from the homicide scene, without any evidence that his purpose in doing so was to impair the knife's availability for a criminal trial or investigation, is insufficient to establish the crime of tampering with physical evidence, regardless of the fact that the police never recovered the knife. Evidence tampering is a specific intent crime. Magneson v. State, 4D2022-3409 (5/8/24)

SEVERANCE-SEX CRIMES: Defendant is entitled to severance of charges relating to sexual abuse involving 2 victims at different times over a three-to-four-year period. The rules do not warrant joinder of criminal charges based on similar but separate episodes, separated in time, which are connected only by similar circumstances and the accused's alleged guilt in both or all instances. Trader v. State, 4D2023-0538 (5/8/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to investigate and impeach eye witness/victim of shooting, who claimed to know Defendant from middle school and to have had a sexual relationship with him, which Defendant disputes. Her positive identification of him as the shooter may have carried more weight with the jury based on their prior history than if the two had never met. The reliability of her testimony may have been adversely impacted if her stated basis of knowing him since middle school had been impeached for being untrue. Dennis v. State, 5D2025-2570 (5/3/24) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2431334/opinion/Opinion_2023-2570.pdf

STATEMENTS OF DEFENDANT-MIRANDA: When a defendant voluntarily reinitiates contact with law enforcement, there is no per se requirement that an officer remind or readvise an accused of his Miranda rights. Contrary precedent overruled. But "[a]s best as we can tell, Shelly based its categorical rule on the federal constitution. For his part, Penna has not asked us to consider whether a higher standard should be adopted as a matter of Florida constitutional law." State v. STATEMENTS OF DEFENDANT-MIRANDA (J. LABARGA, DISSENTING): Our state constitution provides protection against self incrimination and states that '[n]o person shall . . . be compelled in any criminal matter to be a witness against oneself.' . . .Notwithstanding the majority's conclusion that this Court's interpretation in Shelly constitutes an 'improper[] expan[sion]' of decisions from the United States Supreme Court and this Court, . . .state courts are absolutely free to interpret state constitutional provisions to accord greater protection to individual rights than do similar provisions of the United States Constitution. . .Because the majority has not chosen to do so, I respectfully dissent." State v. Penna, SC2022-0458 (5/2/24) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/2427776/opinion/Opinion_SC2022-0458.pdf

HEARSAY: The hearsay rule does not prevent a witness from testifying as to what he has heard; it is rather a restriction on the proof of fact through extrajudicial statements. The hearsay objection is unavailing when the inquiry is not directed to the truth of the words spoken, but, rather, to whether they were in fact spoken. Jones v. State, 1D2023-0496 (5/1/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2425774/opinion/Opinion_2023-0496.pdf

HEARSAY-IMPEACHMENT: A party generally cannot call a witness solely for the purpose of impeaching that witness with inconsistent prior statements. But in a case where a witness gives both favorable and unfavorable testimony, the party calling the witness should usually be permitted to impeach the witness with a prior inconsistent statement. Jones v. State, 1D2023-0496 (5/1/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2425774/opinion/Opinion_2023-0496.pdf

INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE OF COUNSEL: Defendant is not entitled to relief on claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to object to hearsay that a different suspect was not the shooter because he gave a post-Mirandized statement where he admitted to shooting the victim. As a result, the alleged ineffectiveness of counsel did not prejudice him. Jones v. State, 1D2023-0496 (5/1/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2425774/opinion/Opinion_2023-0496.pdf

MANDAMUS-PAROLE REVIEW: Ordinarily, for a court to issue a writ of mandamus, a plaintiff must establish that he has a clear legal right to the performance of a clear legal duty by a public officer and that he has no other legal remedies available to him. Although in limited circumstances mandamus may be used as a tool of judicial review of the constitutional sufficiency of a quasi-judicial prison or parole commission proceeding, a petition seeking an order directing the Commission to conduct a new parole interview is a request for traditional mandamus relief. Only the legal sufficiency of the petition's allegations are reviewable. Coto v. Florida Commission on Offender Review, 1D 2023-0798 (5/1/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2425776/opinion/Opinion_2023-0798.pdf

DISCOVERY VIOLATION: Where discovery included a police report which directed the reader to "see supplement" in reference to the confession, but there was no supplement attached or provided, a mid-trial Richardson hearing is required. T.M. v. State, 2D2023-0025 (5/1/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2425694/opinion/Opinion_2023-0025.pdf

VOP-BASIS: The fact that Defendant was acquitted of the substantive charge by a jury does not mean that his probation cannot be revoked based on the same facts. Johnson v. State, 2D2023-1482 (5/1/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2425695/opinion/Opinion_2023-1482.pdf

VOP-HEARING: In the absence of stipulation or consent, the trial of the criminal case should not be construed as a probation revocation hearing but can be treated as such upon stipulation or consent made before or after the trial. Johnson v. State, 2D2023-1482 (5/1/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2425695/opinion/Opinion_2023-1482.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Claims of trial court error are not cognizable in a R 3.850 motion. Johnson v. State, 2D2023-1482 (5/1/24) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2425695/opinion/Opinion_2023-1482.pdf

OFFICIAL MISCONDUCT: In order to establish a prima facie case of official misconduct, the State must present evidence sufficient to establish that

Defendant/police officer falsified an official record or document. Officer's description in the arrest affidavit "painted with too broad a brush" but did not rise to the level of knowing or intentional falsification. No objective, concrete facts were patently false or inaccurate. Whether the loud and argumentative tone and other actions of the ironically named lady he arrested constituted "causing a scene" and "disruptive behavior" is a matter of degree and perception. [Editor's note: It is lawful to use an adjective instead of an adverb–"Ms. Loving began acting belligerent"–but it shouldn't be.] Giraldo v. State, 3D22-1276 (5/1/24)

DWLS: For driving while license suspended, the element of knowledge is satisfied if the person has been previously cited, admits to knowledge of the cancellation, suspension, or revocation, or received notice. There is a rebuttable presumption that the knowledge requirement is satisfied if a judgment or order appears in the department's records for any case except for one involving a suspension for failure to pay a traffic fine or for a financial responsibility violation. A driving record showing a license suspension is sufficient to prove that a defendant had notice that his or her license was suspended. Ramirez v. State, 3D22-2192 (5/1/24)

JIMMY RYCE-APPEAL: in a Jimmy Ryce case, the appellate court lacks jurisdiction to hear an appeal of the denial of the Detainee's motion challenging probable cause and the Court's failure to conduct an adversarial probable cause hearing. Because Jimmy Ryce Act proceedings are civil in nature, appeals are limited to final orders that end judicial labor in the case. The trial court's order's language that detainee had thirty days to appeal does not confer jurisdiction. Irizarry v. State, 3D23-1418 (5/1/24)

PRIVACY-CELL PHONE: The right to privacy is implicated by the production of a broad sweep of cell phone records. Requiring the imaging and production of the entire contents of one's cell phone cannot be justified merely because it is the quickest and most efficient method to obtain the discovery sought. "Requiring that the entire contents of a cellphone be imaged by a forensic expert (consisting of every photo, video, text, email, note, download, and all data and metadata, including every deleted item) and requiring disclosure of it to Roque's own attorney, is simply insufficient, without more, to protect Roque's privacy rights and ensure that she is not compelled to disclose to anyone the entirety of her life's experiences and innermost thoughts as captured, created, uploaded or stored on her cell phone." DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Dual convictions for Medicaid Provider Fraud, with a value of $50,000 or more and Grand Theft with a value of $100,000 violate Double Jeopardy. A defendant is placed in double jeopardy when, based upon the same conduct, the defendant is convicted of two offenses, each of which does not require proof of a different element. The crime of Medicaid Provider Fraud requires specific intent to submit a false claim for payment thereby depriving another of money. Although worded differently, the statutory elements of Grand Theft are included in the offense of Medicaid Provider Fraud. State v. Courts, 4D2022-2855 (5/1/24)

BURGLARY: State established prima facie evidence of intent to commit a crime where Defendant made an unconsented early morning entry into the victim's home, stood over her bed with his hand inside his pants, and appeared to masturbate, notwithstanding that she did not see his penis when she woke up, nor had he committed any other crime before he jumped out of the bedroom window. COSTS: Court may not impose a $5,000 public defender fee, where the defendant had received the assistance of a private conflict attorney, but the Court had not given the defendant the defendant an opportunity to contest the fee, nor had the private conflict attorney made a showing of sufficient proof of the higher fees incurred or the Court made factual findings warranting the higher fees. The private conflict attorney's statement at sentencing that "$5,000…is the flat fee," and the Court's response "[I]f that's [the] fixed amount…I will assess $5,000" do not justify the fee in excess of $100. APRIL 2024

ACCA-VIOLENT FELONY: ACCA's definition of "violent felony" requires that the offense involves the use, or attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against another. "Use" requires active employment of physical force, which means violent force, i.e. force capable of causing physical pain or injury. A prior Georgia conviction for threatening physical harm to a witness qualifies as a "violent felony." USA v. Ferguson, No. 22-12013 (11th Cir. 4/30/24)

GUIDELINES-CRIME OF VIOLENCE: A prior Georgia conviction for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon qualifies as a crime of violence when calculating the total offense level. Aggravated assault with a deadly weapon qualifies as a crime of violence under the enumerated offenses clause because it has substantially the same elements as generic aggravated assault. USA v. Ferguson, No. 22-12013 (11th Cir. 4/30/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212013.pdf

CATEGORICAL APPROACH: Under the categorical approach, a court must ask whether the least of the acts criminalized by the statute of conviction has an element requiring the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force. A court must look only to the elements of the statute of conviction rather than the specific conduct of a particular offender. If the offense is divisible–one which lists multiple, alternative elements, and thus creates several different crimes--courts apply the modified categorical approach. Under the modified categorical approach, the court looks beyond the elements enumerated in the statute to Shepard documents—the indictment, jury instructions, plea agreement, and plea colloquy—to determine which specific crime the defendant committed. USA v. Ferguson, No. 22-12013 (11th Cir. 4/30/24)

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE: Defendant's mere presence at a drug deal is insufficient to sustain a conviction. But evidence that he engaged in frequent and suspicious communications before the deal, then drove the car with a briefcase full of narcotics to the site and stood watchfully across the parking lot while his associate dealt with the CI is enough to show his knowing participation. USA v. Morley, No. 22-12988 (11th Cir. 4/30/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212988.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-AUTOMOBILE EXCEPTION: Officers may search Defendant's car and seize the cocaine inside it after he drove to a drug deal and loitered some distance away while his associate and the CI did the deal. The automobile exception to the Fourth Amendment's warrant requirement allows law enforcement to conduct a warrantless search of a vehicle if the vehicle is readily mobile and law enforcement has probable cause, i.e., a fair probability that evidence of a crime will be found. USA v. Morley, No. 22-12988 (11th Cir. 4/30/24)

SAFETY VALVE: Safety valve eligibility has a three-prong test: (A) no more than four criminal history points, excluding any points from one-point offenses, (B) no prior three-point offense, and (C) no prior two-point violent offense. Any prior three-point offense disqualifies a defendant from safety valve relief, regardless of whether he qualifies under the other two prongs. The trial court would have been in error in denying Defendant's eligibility, but Pulsifer, a later Supreme Court decision, overruled previous precedents. USA v. Morley, No. 22-12988 (11th Cir. 4/30/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212988.pdf

PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE: A prior panel's holding binds subsequent panels unless and until it is overruled or undermined to the point of abrogation by the Supreme Court or by this court sitting en banc. There is no overlooked reason or argument, or a perceived defect in the prior panel's reasoning or analysis, exception to the prior-panel-precedent rule. USA v. Hicks, No. 23-10280 (11th Cir. 4/30/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202310280.pdf

SENTENCE-REASONS: Court must articulate its reasons for imposing a particular sentence. But a district court's failure to explain its reasons for the chosen sentence does not affect the defendant's substantial rights. The failure to explicitly state the reasons for an upward variance is not plain error where the reasons are apparent on the face of the record. The reasons for an upward variance to twenty years in prison are apparent where on his baby's first birthday, two months after being placed on federal probation for wire fraud, Defendant strangled his girlfriend with their baby in her arms then stashed her body in a 55-gallon barrel. The 11th Circuit's previous per se rule of reversal for failure to explain the reasons for a sentence is overruled. USA v. Steiger, No. 22-10742 (11th Cir. 4/29/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210742.enb.pdf

baby in her arms then hides her body in a big barrel out of fear of losing custody if it were found, the Court's failure to explain its reason for an upward variance is harmless error. If someone can understand the reasons for the sentence imposed, then a district court's technical violation does not warrant reversal. "A remand in this circumstance would be a wasteful formality for the district court to state on the record what everyone already knows." USA v. Steiger, No. 22-10742 (11th Cir. 4/29/24)

EASY CASES-BAD LAW (J. JORDAN, CONCURRING): "Justice Holmes once remarked that 'hard cases' can 'make bad law.'...But easy cases sometimes bring difficulties of their own. . . EQUAL JUSTICE: The notion that '[n]o man is above the law and no man is below it' is fundamental to our democratic republic's continuing viability." USA v. Hill, No. 23-10934 (11th Cir. 4/29/24)

EIGHTH AMENDMENT: In any custodial setting, officials may not use gratuitous force against a prisoner who has already been subdued or incapacitated. Force, including passive restraints, is excessive if it is not rationally related to a legitimate nonpunitive governmental purpose. Restraint chairs are "force." USA v. Hill, No. 23-10934 (11th Cir. 4/29/24)

EIGHTH AMENDMENT: Sheriff is properly convicted of willfully depriving detainees of their constitutional right to be free from excessive force where multiple times he had ordered nonviolent detainees into a restraint chair with their hands cuffed behind their backs for hours, causing open and bleeding wounds, lasting scars, and nerve damage (When one detainee asked for a lawyer. Sheriff replied, "You think you're a big badass. . .Put his ass in the chair."). Such use of force was clearly established as constitutionally excessive. USA v. Hill, No. 23-10934 (11th Cir. 4/29/24)

JUROR: Court did not err either in twice questioning a juror during deliberations and leaving him on jury, nor in requiring further deliberations, after the foreperson complained that the juror was inarticulate or crazy, could not recall a large chunk of testimony, was having difficulty construing sentences, exhibited the inability to understand the court's instructions, displayed general confusion with basic words, altered meanings of words to conform with personal opinion, and stated that the Sheriff and the President are above the law and are not required to follow the Constitution. J. Marcus, concurring: "[Q]uestioning a juror repeatedly is not a path that should be taken lightly or without meticulous care. The terrain is dangerous and the traveler must proceed with great caution." USA v. Hill, No. 23-10934 (11th Cir. 4/29/24)

MOTION TO MITIGATE: Because a trial court's adjudication of a criminal defendant's motion seeking to mitigate a sentence is purely discretionary, orders denying such motions are not subject to appeal. Gonzalez v. State, 3D23-2188 (4/24/24)

COST OF SUPERVISION: Court may not impose a cost of supervision in excess of $40, the amount authorized by section §948.09(1)(b) Mobley v.

JURY TRIAL: To obtain a valid oral waiver of a defendant's right to jury trial, the trial court must conduct a colloquy that focuses a defendant's attention on the value of a jury trial and makes a defendant aware of the likely consequences of the waiver. Defense counsel's statement to the court that the defendant has agreed to a non-jury trial is not a valid oral waiver in the absence of the court's requisite inquiry, even if the statement is made in the defendant's presence and with the defendant's oral confirmation. Error is fundamental. Baker v. State, 2023-2642 (4/24/24)

JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION: Disbelief in the witness's testimony, as evidenced by a trial judge's discomforting inquiry, are ordinarily no basis for disqualification. Disqualifying a judge because his examination of a witness on relevant matters gives a clue as to how he may be inclined to rule at the end of the evidence would wreak administrative havoc by inviting mid-hearing motions for recusal. SECOND-DEGREE MURDER: Defendant is not entitled to a judgment of acquittal for second-degree murder when he was found just off his front porch with a bloody butcher knife in his hand and a a body at his feet in a pool of blood. Gonzalez v. State, 6D23-509 (4/19/24)

JURY INSTRUCTION-SELF-DEFENSE: Defendant is entitled to a full jury instruction on self-defense based on his statement to police that the drunk victim grabbed him by the throat and and punched him in the jaw. Court erred by not giving Instruction 3.6(f) ("The use of deadly force is justifiable if defendant reasonably believed that the force was necessary to prevent imminent death or great bodily harm to himself while resisting any attempt to commit [applicable felony]). Instruction 7.1 alone is insufficient. Gonzalez v. State, 6D23-509 (4/19/24)

JURY INSTRUCTION-SELF-DEFENSE: In most cases, a person in a fist fight lacks a sufficient justification to use deadly force, but the question of self-defense is one of fact and is one for the jury to decide where the facts are disputed. Gonzalez v. State, 6D23-509 (4/19/24)

JURY INSTRUCTION-SELF-DEFENSE (J. MIZE, CONCURRING): A defendant is entitled to a jury instruction on self-defense as a matter of right if there is any evidence at all to support the instruction, no matter how weak or flimsy. A defendant is not required to testify at trial to receive a jury instruction on self-defense. Gonzalez v. State, 6D23-509 (4/19/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-ABANDONMENT: Defendant abandoned the backpack he threw into someone's parked car in his flight from the checkpoint set up in response to a residential burglary. A person who voluntarily abandons property lacks standing to challenge its search and seizure. A defendant's subjective intent as to the property does not play a dominant role; whether abandonment occurred is determined using an objective test. Hargrove v. State, 6D23-1787 (4/19/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: A law enforcement officer's subjective intent in stopping a driver is irrelevant to the determination of whether probable cause existed to support the stop. An apparent window tint violation alone provided probable cause for a stop. Probable cause exists where an officer trained in narcotics surveillance, sees an apparent drug buy. State v. FORFEITURE: Failure to enter a preliminary order of forfeiture does not bar a judge from ordering forfeiture at sentencing. R. 32.2(b)(2)(B), which requires a preliminary order in advance of sentencing, is a time-related directive, rather than a jurisdictional deadline or a mandatory claim-processing rule. If missed, it does not deprive the judge of her power to order forfeiture against the defendant. McIntosh v. United States, No. 22–7386. (U.S. S.Ct. 4/17/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Recantation by a witness called on behalf of the prosecution does not necessarily entitle a defendant to a new trial, but usually requires an evidentiary hearing. Victim's affidavit may be materially inconsistent with his trial testimony, but "this is the very nature of a recantation, and it would be circular reasoning to suggest that summary denial is appropriate simply because a witness' recantation is inconsistent with his trial testimony." Defendant is entitled to an evidentiary hearing. Palmer v. State, 3D22-0693 (4/17/24)

CORPUS DELICTI-CONFESSION (J. ATKINSON, DISSENTING): §92.565, which creates a bright-line exception to the corpus delicti rule for victims under the age of twelve, requires the State to prove that there is sufficient corroborating evidence that tends to establish the trustworthiness of the statement made by the defendant for it to be admissible. The memorialized confession or admission cannot corroborate itself, but the corroborating evidence can take the form of other statements made by the defendant, which themselves might be confessional in nature or constitute admissions to crimes. "More simply put, not every statement made by the defendant constitutes a 'memorialized confession or admission' subject to the trustworthiness analysis." Defendant's Facebook and controlled call statements were sufficient corroboration. State v. Jackson, 2D23-0212 (4/12/24)

VOP-SENTENCING: Defendant is entitled to resentencing where Court sentenced him to prison under the misconception that it was required to impose the full term of the suspended sentence originally imposed. PRETRIAL RELEASE-REVOCATION: First appearance judge may not revoke the bond from an earlier case at the request of the judge presiding over it. Rule only provides for the judge who initially set bail to authorize the first appearance judge to modify or set conditions of release; it says nothing about the assigned trial judge authorizing the first appearance judge in a subsequent case involving the defendant to revoke bail in the defendant's prior, assigned case. Sarac v. Gualtieri, Sheriff, 2D24-0338 (4/12/24)

mental disorder (here,PTSD and depression) does not constitute competent, substantial evidence supporting a downward departure. A psychological report that ppears to recite Defendant's own self-reporting and does not specify the source of the information, cites no documentation of past diagnoses, and does not state that the psychologist made any full, formal diagnoses herself is insufficient. State v. Avery, 5D22-1603 (4/12/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PORCH: An enclosed porch—encased with opaque black vinyl and furnished and used like an interior room—is a constitutionally protected area of the home for which a warrant (or warrant exception) is required to enter. The Fourth Amendment's protection against unreasonable searches and seizures includes a home and its curtilage. A front porch permanently attached to a home—whether enclosed or open air—is normally within the home's curtilage. Rudolph v. State, 5D22-2108 (4/12/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CURTILAGE: Four factors that relate to curtilage: the proximity of the area claimed to be curtilage to the home, whether the area is included within an enclosure surrounding the home, the nature of the uses to which the area is put, and the steps taken by the resident to protect the area from observation by people passing by. Rudolph v. State, 5D22-2108 (4/12/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE- FLASHLIGHT- CURTILAGE: Officers conducting a neighborhood canvas in investigating a homicide, violated Defendant's 4th Amendment rights by using a flashlight to look inside his enclosed front porch where they observed him with the murder weapon on his lap. Rudolph v. State, 5D22-2108 (4/12/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: When an ineffective assistance of counsel claim is raised on direct appeal and the appellant's conviction and sentence are affirmed without a written opinion, the law of the case does not establish that the claim was rejected on the merits. Lafortune v. State, 5D22-2281 (4/12/24)

WIRETAPPING: Under Florida's wiretapping statute, it is unlawful for any person to intentionally intercept or endeavor to intercept any wire, oral, or electronic communication. The statute does not apply to citizens recording telephone conversations with police officers acting in their official capacities. There is a First Amendment right to record police officers conducting their official duties in public. It cannot be said that any of the deputies exhibited a reasonable expectation of privacy that society is willing to recognize. All conversations concerned matters of public business, occurred while the deputies were on duty, and involved phones utilized for work purposes. Deputies do not have a reasonable expectation of privacy when talking to a citizen over the phone in their official capacities as law enforcement officers regarding public business; such recordings do not fall within the definition of "oral communication" in §934.02(2). Waite v. State, 5D23-1354 (4/12/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: When a defendant files a facially insufficient motion, he is entitled to one opportunity to amend the motion. Claim that trial counsel was ineffective for advising him to enter the plea when he had a defense to the requires a hearing, if Defendant properly alleges prejudice. McCorvey v. State, 5D23-2658 (4/12/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant's motion for postconviction relief alleging the violation of a plea agreement was improperly filed under R. 3.800, and if filed now under R.3.850 would be untimely. But Court should have treated the motion as filed under R.350, and accordingly must afford Defendant a hearing or attach records showing no entitlement to relief. Sanchez v. State, 5D23-3268 (4/12/24)

COMPETENCY-CERTIORARI: Court's conclusion that the Defendant is competent to proceed may be raised on direct appeal, not by certiorari. Fleming v. State, 5D23-3328 (4/12/24)

VOP-PLEA: An admission to an alleged probation violation is not formally a "plea." "Confusion arises when courts persist in the loose use of the term 'plea' in the context of VOP proceedings. There simply is no such thing as a plea to a charged VOP." Pleas do not occur after disposition in a criminal case. "To say that a trial court took a plea from a defendant after disposition of a criminal case. . .makes no sense." Maxwell v. State, 1D2022-0478 (4/10/24)

APPEAL-TIMELINESS- PLEA WITHDRAWAL-VOP: Because the admission of the violation of probation is not technically a "plea," the motion to withdraw the "plea" did not toll the rendition date of the revocation and sentencing orders. Ergo, the notice of appeal was untimely. Maxwell v. State, 1D2022-0478 (4/10/24)

SEARCH WARRANT-KNOCK AND ANNOUNCE: Where officers knock, announce their authority and purpose, and then enter with such haste that the occupant does not have a reasonable opportunity to respond, the search violates §933.09. State v. Times, 1D2022-0887 (4/10/24)

before entry, an officer stated: 'police department, search warrant, step away from the door to avoid injury.' Whether the phrase 'police department' landed on the sixth or seventh second of time before the entry, or whether the phrase 'search warrant' landed on the sixth or seventh second of time before the entry,. . .neither Times nor other occupants had time to respond to the door is supportable by the evidence." State v. Times, 1D2022-0887 (4/10/24)

SEARCH WARRANT-KNOCK AND ANNOUNCE: Nobody is required to answer their door just because somebody knocks on it. There's no requirement to answer the door just because the police officers are at the door. State v. Times, 1D2022-0887 (4/10/24)

STARE DECISIS (J. NORDBY, CONCURRING): "[W]e are wary of any invocation of multi-factor stare decisis tests or frameworks. . .They are malleable and do not lend themselves to objective, consistent, and predictable application. They can distract us from the merits of a legal question and encourage us to think more like a legislature than a court. And they can lead us to decide cases on the basis of guesses about the consequences of our decisions, which in turn can make those decisions less principled. We believe that the proper approach to stare decisis is much more straightforward. In a case where we are bound by a higher legal authority—whether it be a constitutional provision, a statute, or a decision of the Supreme Court—our job is to apply that law correctly to the case before us. When we are convinced that a precedent clearly conflicts with the law we are sworn to uphold, precedent normally must yield." State v. Times, 1D2022-0887 (4/10/24)

12 PERSON JURY-FIRST PBL: There is no right to a 12 person jury for a first-degree felony punishable by life. "[T]he Sixth Amendment's drafters removed language in the initial draft specifying that the jury-trial right in the Sixth Amendment must include its 'accustomed requisites,'—language which likely would have eliminated any grounds for deviating from a twelve-member jury." Salmon v. State, 1D2022-1135 (4/10/24)

CONFESSION-COERCION: The confession by Defendant/school administrator that she had participated with her daughter in a fake elector Homecoming Queen election scheme is not suppressible on grounds of being coerced. For immunity for incriminatory statements provided to her employer, she must show she was threatened with an adverse employment action if she failed to answer her employer's questions. The threat of an adverse employment action may be direct or implied, but defendant's subjective fear is not enough. The belief has to be objectively reasonable. Carroll v. JURY INSTRUCTION: Failure to give a jury instruction on a foreign language recording translation is not fundamental error because such an instruction would not go to an essential element of the offenses charged. Buddoo v. State, 3D22-1587 (4/10/24)

DISCOVERY-RICHARDSON: Court erred in mid-trial because the State failed too provide a discovery a one-page supplemental report containing almost nothing, and certainly nothing contradictory, from the reports already provided. State v. Denninghoff, 3D23-0464 (4/10/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL: If the State fails to file formal charges against the defendant within the 90-day (or, for a felony, 175-day) period, the defendant can seek final discharge without first filing the Notice of Expiration, but the uniform traffic citation constitutes a formal charge. (Note: a pending proposed rule change would change this). Patino v. State, 3D23-1702 (4/10/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL-WRIT OF PROHIBITION-DELAY: A petition for writ of prohibition (filed following the denial of Defendant's 1st motion for speedy trial discharge) does not delay the trial. Where Defendant later files a notice of speedy trial expiration, even while the first petition for writ of prohibition remains pending, Defendant must be brought to trial within 15 days or be discharged. "Because this court did not issue an order to show cause or otherwise impose a stay of the trial court proceedings during the pendency of the petition, and because the trial court retained jurisdiction to proceed, the petition for writ of prohibition did not delay Patino's trial and the speedy trial period continued to run during the pendency of the prohibition proceeding in this court." SPEEDY TRIAL-WRIT OF PROHIBITION-APPEAL: "More recent opinions. . .have called our decisions [that a petition for writ of prohibition does not constitute an appeal] into question. . .In any event, we need not reach the question. . ., since, as explained, it is undisputed that Patino's trial was not delayed by the earlier prohibition proceeding in this court. STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION: A fundamental canon of statutory construction is that courts must endeavor to give meaning to each word and phrase contained in a statute or rule, and courts should avoid readings that would render part of a statute meaningless. Words cannot be meaningless, else they would not have been used. If possible, every word and every provision is to be given effect (verba cum effectu sunt accipienda). Patino v. State, 3D23-1702 (4/10/24)

COSTS Of INVESTIGATION: Court may not impose costs investigation where there is no agency requests or evidence of the amount. Costs may not be reimposed on remand. Pannier v. State, 4D2022-1361 (4/10/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Once a sentence has been imposed and the person begins to serve the sentence, that sentence may not be increased without running afoul of double jeopardy principles. But where the trial court's pronouncements at the original sentencing hearing were unclear and inconsistent, clarification is permitted. State v. Coello, 4D2022-1699 (4/10/24)

RESENTENCING- PRESENCE OF DEFENDANT: Where the trial court had no discretion but to impose his original sentence of life with the possibility of parole for juvenile offender, based upon the decisional law at the time of resentencing, Defendant's presence is not required. A full resentencing hearing is not necessary when the resentencing is a ministerial act. McCoggle v. State, 4D2023-1267 (4/10/24)

life with possibility of parole after twenty-five years are not entitled to resentencing under Miller and the 2014 amendments. Juvenile offenders' sentences of life with the possibility of parole after 25 years under Florida's parole system do not violate Graham's requirement that juveniles have a meaningful opportunity to receive parole. INVITED ERROR: The invited error doctrine precludes appellate review of an argument that a party expressly disclaimed before the district court. USA v. Boone, No. 22-11153 (11th Cir. 4/9/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211153.pdf

PATTERN OF ACTIVITY ENHANCEMENT: Where Defendant did not object to the procedural reasonableness the sentencing hearing he can prevail on appeal only by showing plain error. Plain error requires clear statutory language or controlling precedent establishing that an error has occurred. USA v. Boone, No. 22-11153 (11th Cir. 4/9/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211153.pdf

PATTERN OF ACTIVITY ENHANCEMENT: Pattern of activity enhancement applies if the defendant engages in prohibited sexual conduct on at least two separate occasions, regardless of whether the crimes were committed against the same victim or different victims. "Separate occasions" does not require two events that are unrelated. It requires only events that are independent and distinguishable from each other. USA v. Boone, No. 22-11153 (11th Cir. 4/9/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211153.pdf

SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVELY UNREASONABLE: 840-month sentence for recording and distributing his extreme sexual abuse of his 4-year-old daughter is not substantively unreasonable. A sentence within the advisory guidelines sentence is presumed to be reasonable. USA v. Boone, No. 22-11153 (11th Cir. 4/9/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211153.pdf

SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVELY UNREASONABLE: the fact that a sentence is longer than the Defendant's life expectancy does not render it substantively unreasonable. "Given the nature of Boone's offense—specifically, the fact that it involved planning and chatting about, engaging in, and recording the sexual abuse of his four-year-old child—the fact that Boone is not likely to outlive his sentence does not mean the sentence was substantively unreasonable." SENTENCING-MILITARY SERVICE: Military service may be a mitigating factor, but it also may be an aggravating factor as a violation of a position of trust and authority. USA v. Boone, No. 22-11153 (11th Cir. 4/9/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on his claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to call a police officer to impeach the victim. Duff-Porter v. State, 5D22-1055 (4/9/24)

QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: To defeat a qualified immunity defense on a motion to dismiss, the operative complaint must plausibly plead that the defendant violated the plaintiff's clearly established federal rights. Jackson v. City of Atlanta, No. 22-12946 (11th Cir 4/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212946.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-REASONABLE SUSPICION: Officer lacked reasonable suspicion to detain a lady who have moved a barricade a few feet so that she could leave a mall parking lot. Moving a barricade does not violate the law. "And it is no wonder why it doesn't. Presumably barricades are used to stop people from getting into private or otherwise restricted locations. Here, Jackson was moving the barricade so that she could get out of a private or otherwise restricted area." Jackson v. City of Atlanta, No. 22-12946 (11th Cir 4/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212946.pdf

QUALIFIED IMMUNITY-SEARCH AND SEIZURE-REASONABLE SUSPICION: Officer who told plaintiff to "[g]et out of the fucking car." called her stupid, pulled a gun on her, body slammed her into the pavement, and broke her clavicle is not entitled to sovereign immunity. But his partner is. Jackson v. City of Atlanta, No. 22-12946 (11th Cir 4/5/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212946.pdf

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL: Circumstantial evidence is sufficient to sustain a conviction for attempted smuggling of weapons into Iraq where Defendant failed to disclose the firearms on his bill of lading and is seen loading the container with the hidden guns. It is not necessary that the evidence exclude every reasonable hypothesis of innocence. USA v. Al Jaberi, No. 22-12852 (4/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212852.pdf

APPELLATE BRIEF: Brief which omits a distinct statement of facts section and fails to explain how the evidence is insufficient is inadequate. Appellate judges are not like pigs, hunting for truffles buried in briefs. USA v. Al Jaberi, No. 22-12852 (4/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212852.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Dual convictions for attempted smuggling charge and failure to notify a common carrier and submitting a false or misleading export information charge do not violate Double Jeopardy/Blockburger. USA v. Al Jaberi, No. 22-12852 (4/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212852.pdf

IMPROPER ARGUMENT: Misstating the caliber of a firearm the defendant was convicted of smuggling does not constitute prosecutorial misconduct, much less violate due process. USA v. Al Jaberi, No. 22-12852 (4/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212852.pdf

IMPROPER ARGUMENT: Prosecutorial misconduct justifies a new trial only if the remarks in question were both (a) improper and (b) prejudicial to the defendant's substantial rights. Statements logically inferred from supporting evidence are proper. USA v. Al Jaberi, No. 22-12852 (4/5/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212852.pdf

SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVELY UNREASONABLE: A district court's failure to specifically mention certain mitigating factors does not compel the conclusion that the sentence was substantively unreasonable. A sentence imposed well below the statutory maximum penalty is an indicator of a reasonable sentence. A 94-month sentence within the Guidelines' range and i26 months below the statutory maximum is reasonable. USA v. Al Jaberi, No. 22-12852 (4/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212852.pdf

SENTENCE-PROCEDURALLY UNREASONABLE: A district court commits a procedural sentencing error when it imposes a sentence based on clearly erroneous facts, fails to calculate (or improperly calculates) the Guidelines range, fails to consider the §3553(a) factors, treats the Guidelines as mandatory, or fails to explain the chosen sentence. USA v. Al Jaberi, No. 22-12852 (4/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212852.pdf

RAPE SHIELD STATUTE-CROSS-EXAMINATION: The rape statute, by its express terms, only bars evidence of specific instances of prior consensual activity between the victim and any person other than the offender in sexual battery cases. Non-consensual molestation of the minor victim is not covered by the rape shield statute. Moreover, the rape shield statute does not exclude evidence that would otherwise be admissible. The fact that the Victim, in disclosing other instances of being sexually abused by Defendant's sister's boyfriend two other people, denied that anyone else had molested her is a fair subject of cross-examination to show bias against him. Lydecker v. State, 2D22-2489 (4/5/24)

COLLATERAL CRIMES EVIDENCE: The collateral crimes evidence instruction may be given where it pertains to acts charged in other counts of the information. The instruction is not limited to uncharged counts. Lydecker v. State, 2D22-2489 (4/5/24)

COSTS: Courts may only impose an amount higher than $100 for the cost of prosecution and the cost of the public defender upon showing of sufficient proof of higher fees or costs incurred. Brooks v. State, 5D22-1385 (4/5/24)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2302286/opinion/Opinion_22-1385.pdf

WILLIAMS RULE: Collateral-crime evidence of a sexual offense is admissible even if offered to show propensity, but the State must still demonstrate that the probative value of the evidence is not substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice, confusion of issues, misleading the jury, or needless presentation of cumulative evidence. Evidence of Defendant's earlier, similar sexual battery is admissible in his rape/murdertrial. The time lapse between the different crimes is important, but not so much when Defendant was in prison for 13 of the intervening years. Jackson v. State, 5D23-1169 (4/5/24)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2302290/opinion/Opinion_23-1169.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS: A habeas petition attacking the validity of a conviction and asserting issues related to the trial court proceedings, must be brought in the circuit court of the county that rendered the judgment of conviction. Trammell v. State, 5D23-3421 (4/5/24)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2302300/opinion/Opinion_23-3421.pdf

and the written sentence, the written sentence must be corrected to conform to the oral pronouncement. Rowan v. State, 6D23-590 (4/5/24) https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2302823/opinion/Opinion_23-0590.pdf

VOP: Negligence or ineptitude does not support a finding of a willful and substantial violation. A defendant's failure to comply with a probation condition is not willful where his conduct shows a reasonable, good faith attempt to comply and factors beyond his control, rather than a deliberate act of misconduct, caused his noncompliance. Bean v. State, 6D23-786 (4/5/24) https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2302825/opinion/Opinion_23-0786.pdf

VOP: A trial court is not permitted to revoke probation on conduct not charged in the affidavit of revocation. Bean v. State, 6D23-786 (4/5/24) https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2302825/opinion/Opinion_23-0786.pdf

VOP: Probation is improperly revoked where Defendant testified without contradiction that, Bean testified that he did not have the $55 for the psychological evaluation that was required for the anger management course and for this reason, the administrators told him not to come. Bean v. State, 6D23-786 (4/5/24) https://6dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2302825/opinion/Opinion_23-0786.pdf

COMPASSIONATE RELEASE: Compassionate release allows a court to reduce a defendant's term of imprisonment upon motion of the defendant after the defendant has fully exhausted all administrative rights, where the court has considered the §3553(a) factors, and found that extraordinary and compelling reasons warrant such a reduction. To award compassionate release, the court must also find the defendant not be a danger to the safety of any other person or to the community. USA v. Handlon, No. 22-13699 (11th Cir. 4/3/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202213699.pdf

COMPASSIONATE RELEASE: There are four categories of "extraordinary and compelling" reasons that could make a movant eligible for a sentence reduction: (1) the defendant's medical condition, (2) the defendant's age, (3) the defendant's status as the only potential caregiver for a minor child or spouse, or the incapacitation of the defendant's parent when the defendant would be the only available caregiver for the parent and (4) "other reasons" as determined by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons. That last "catch-all" category does not grant discretion to courts to develop other reasons. USA v. Handlon, No. 22-13699 (11th Cir. 4/3/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202213699.pdf

COMPASSIONATE RELEASE: The "extraordinary and compelling" reason of the incapacitation of the inmate's parent did not exist at the time of the filing of the motion for compassionate release and the amendment does not apply retroactively. SPEEDY TRIAL: A 35-month delay between indictment and arrest does not violate the Sixth Amendment right to a speedy trial where Defendant was not prejudiced by the delay and there were reasons for the delay, including COVID: USA v. Vargas, No. 22-10604 (11th Cir. 4/3/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210604.pdf

SPEEDY TRIAL: The analysis for whether the delay between indictment and arrest violates Speedy Trial starts by asking if the length of the delay has been long enough--typically about a year--to trigger a full-fledged constitutional analysis. If it is, the court then must decide whether a consideration of (1) the length of the delay, (2) the reason for the delay and (3) the defendant's assertion of his speedy-trial right weighs heavily against the government. If these factors uniformly do so, prejudice is presumed; if not, the defendant must establish actual prejudice from the delay in order to prevail. For a defendant to avoid making a showing of actual prejudice, all three factors must weigh heavily against the government. USA v. Vargas, No. 22-10604 (11th Cir. 4/3/24)

ISSUE PRESERVATION: Defendant's objection to recording which included cross-talk between officers can not be raised on appeal where there was no contemporaneous objection. Byrd v. State, 1D 2022-1460 (4/3/24)

EVIDENCE: No legal principle excludes statements or conduct of a party solely on the ground that such statements or conduct is self-serving. It would be the rare instance indeed, and a pointless act, when a party offers evidence which did not serve that party. Byrd v. State, 1D 2022-1460 (4/3/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2295374/opinion/Opinion_2022-1460.pdf

MISTRIAL: A declaration of mistrial is an act of last resort. A mistrial is appropriate only where the error is so prejudicial as to vitiate the entire trial and should be exercised only in cases of absolute necessity. Byrd v. State, 1D 2022-1460 (4/3/24) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2295374/opinion/Opinion_2022-1460.pdf

APPEAL-JURISDICTION: Timeliness of an appeal is jurisdictional. An order of dismissal of the petition for writ of prohibition is a final order. Appellate court lacks jurisdiction to hear appeal of the order filed more than 30 days after its rendition. When a notice of appeal has been untimely filed, dismissal is the only course of action. Peek v. Florida Commission on Offender Review, 1D2023-2258 (4/3/24)) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2295378/opinion/Opinion_2023-2258.pdf

RESENTENCING: Defendant is entitled to be present when his sentence is increased by imposition of a nondiscretionary fine because a sentencing proceeding in which a sentence is increased is a critical stage of trial at which the defendant's presence would contribute to the fairness of the procedure. RESENTENCING (J. LaROSE, CONCURRING): "With hesitation, I join the court's opinion. . . Of course, we know how the story will end. The trial court will impose a nondiscretionary fine. . .This strikes me as 'make-work.'. .

PLEA WITHDRAWAL-JURISDICTION: Where defendant files a pro se motion to withdraw plea after filing a notice of appeal, the trial court lacks jurisdiction and must dismiss rather than deny it. Navarro v. State, 2D23-974 (4/3/24)

HABEAS CORPUS-INVOLUNTARY COMMITMENT: A habeas petition challenging an involuntary commitment to a State mental treatment facility may be brought by the forensic client herself or a party acting on behalf of the client. Court improperly dismissed the petition on the grounds that the Defendant was represented by counsel on the underlying charge. Wood v. State, 2D23-1927 (4/3/24)

HEARSAY: Many courts have concluded that a hearsay statement made in a 911 call is not testimonial, because the statement is not made in response to police questioning, and because the purpose of the call is to obtain assistance, not to make a record against someone. JUDGMENT-DISQUALIFICATION: Allegation that judge refused to allow the presence of a court reporter at a hearing is legally sufficient to compel disqualification. Pimienta v. Rosenfeld, 3D23-0858 (4/3/24) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2294258/opinion/Opinion_2023-0858.pdf

PRR/HFO: Because the prison releasee reoffender statute only authorizes the court to deviate from Its sentencing scheme to impose a greater sentence of incarceration, a trial court is without authority to sentence a defendant to an equal sentence under the Habitual Felony Offender statute, even where such sentence is imposed concurrently with the PRR sentence. VOUCHING: Testimony and argument that CI would not be used or his services would be discontinued if he were unreliable is improper vouching. Improper vouching or bolstering of witness testimony occurs when the State places the prestige of the government behind the witness. Goldsmith v. State, 4D2022-1632 (4/3/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2297562/opinion/Opinion_2022-1632.pdf

COSTS OF PROSECUTION: To set a higher amount than the story minimum, the state attorney must demonstrate the amount spent on prosecuting the defendant and the trial court must consider the defendant's financial resources. Goldsmith v. State, 4D2022-1632 (4/3/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2297562/opinion/Opinion_2022-1632.pdf

COSTS-INVESTIGATION: A defendant must pay investigation costs only if theagency which incurs that cost requests it. Prosecutors are not authorized to request costs on behalf of an agency without that agency's request. Goldsmith v. State, 4D2022-1632 (4/3/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/2297562/opinion/Opinion_2022-1632.pdf

COMPETENCY: District courts have authority to order more than one competency evaluation and commitment order. §4241 places no limits on when or how often a participant in the case may seek competency proceedings for the defendant. USA v. Alhindi, No. 23-11349 (4/1/24)

DEFINITION-"ANY TIME": The phrase "any time" means "at whatever time." § 4241 places no limits on when or how often a participant in the case may seek competency proceedings for the defendant. USA v. Alhindi, No. 23-11349 (4/1/24)

COMPETENCY: Mental competency can be fluid during criminal proceedings, and courts must always be alert to changes in competency to ensure against trying incompetent defendants. USA v. Alhindi, No. 23-11349

COMPETENCY: "[W]e take a moment to emphasize the importance of district courts' continued close supervision of competency proceedings. Alhindi has been stuck in competency limbo for over twenty months, less than nine of which have been for hospital treatment. . .Adherence to Congress's enumerated procedures is critical to ensure that defendants whose trial proceedings are delayed because of competency issues are receiving the help they need so timely trial proceedings may occur." USA v. Alhindi, No. 23-11349 (4/1/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202311349.pdf

COMPETENCY (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "[Wh]ile we hold that the four-month time limit that §4241(d) expressly mandates applies to only the hospitalization period, it is equally clear that the statute does not authorize unreasonable prehospitalization wait times. USA v. Alhindi, No. 23-11349 (4/1/24)

RIGHT TO PRIVACY-ABORTION: There is no right to abortion in the Privacy Clause. Statute outlawing abortion if the gestational age of the fetus is more than 15 weeks[1], subject to certain exceptions, does not violate the Privacy Clause of the Florida Constitution. Planned Parenthood of Southwest and Central Florida v. State, SC2022-1050 (4/1/24)

STARE DECISIS: "[W]e recede from our prior decisions in which. . .we held that the Privacy Clause guaranteed the right to receive an abortion through the end of the second trimester." Planned Parenthood of Southwest and Central Florida v. State, SC2022-1050 (4/1/24)

RIGHT OF PRIVACY: Prior Supreme Court pronouncement on the Right of Privacy in abortion context "was flawed in several respects. . .T.W. did not look to dictionaries, contextual clues, or historical sources bearing on the text's meaning. . .Compounding these errors, the T.W. majority failed to apply longstanding principles of judicial deference to legislative enactments and failed to analyze whether the statute should be given the benefit of a presumption of constitutionality." Planned Parenthood of Southwest and Central Florida v. State, SC2022-1050 (4/1/24)

PRIVACY: The word "private" carries the idea of being secluded from the sight, presence, or intrusion of others, the chief example being "a private bathroom." An abortion does not involve privacy. "The decision to have an abortion may have been made in solitude, but the procedure itself included medical intervention and required both the presence and intrusion of others." PRIVACY-THE RIGHT TO BE LET ALONE: The right to be let alone has little to do with the autonomy of an individual to make decisions free from government control. Planned Parenthood of Southwest and Central Florida v. State, SC2022-1050 (4/1/24)

STANDING (J. SASSO, CONCURRING): Court should reconsider its standing precedent. We need to clarify the scope of any standing requirements, such as whether parties may assert both legal and factual injuries or whether only a legal injury will suffice, whether standing requirements are truly subject to waiver, or instead whether they are jurisdictional in nature, and we need to provide a principled methodology to help litigants understand which tests to apply when. STANDING (J. SASSO, CONCURRING): The Florida Constitution does not contain an explicit cases and controversies clause, yet courts sometimes adopt the federal test for standing. Standing standards in Florida have been "somewhat logically inconsistent." Planned Parenthood of Southwest and Central Florida v. State, SC2022-1050 (4/1/24)

RIGHT OF PRIVACY (J. LABARGA, DISSENTING): "I lament that what the majority has done today supplants Florida voters' understanding—then and now—that the right of privacy includes the right to an abortion. The majority concludes that the public understanding of the right of privacy did not encompass the right to an abortion. However, the dominance of Roe in the public discourse makes it inconceivable that in 1980, Florida voters did not associate abortion with the right of privacy. Because of this, and with deep dismay at the action the majority takes today, I dissent." Planned Parenthood of Southwest and Central Florida v. State, SC2022-1050 (4/1/24)

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT-BALLOT-ABORTION: Ballot initiative to create a right to abortion before viability is approved. The proposed amendment embraces but one subject—limiting government interference with abortion—and matter directly connected therewith. It does not violate the single-subject provision of Florida's Constitution. Advisory Opinion to the Attorney General Re: Limiting Government Interference with Abortion, SC2023-0682 (4/1/24)

basis in law or common sense to require a ballot summary to announce, as if in a warning label, 'caution: this amendment contains terms with contestable meanings or applications.' Voters can see and decide for themselves how the specificity of the proposal's terms relates to the proposal's merits." Advisory Opinion to the Attorney General Re: Limiting Government Interference with Abortion, SC2023-0682 (4/1/24)

QUOTE-AMBIGUITY: "Lawyers are adept at finding ambiguity. Show me the text and I'll show you the ambiguity. The predominant reasoning in the dissents would set this Court up as the master of the constitution with unfettered discretion to find a proposed amendment ambiguous and then to deprive the people of the right to be the judges of the merits of the proposal. It would open up a playground for motivated reasoning and judicial willfulness. . .We decline to encroach on the prerogative to amend their constitution that the people have reserved to themselves. Advisory Opinion to the Attorney General Re: Limiting Government Interference with Abortion, SC2023-0682 (4/1/24)

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT-BALLOT-SUMMARY (J. GROSSHANS, DISSENTING): "[O]ur statutory duty requires more than simply inspecting the summary for technical compliance. Instead, we determine if the summary clearly explains the chief purpose of the amendment. This will, at times, require the summary do more than simply echo the amendment's text. . .I disagree with the majority's suggestion that if the summary is an 'almost verbatim recitation of the text of the proposed amendment" it cannot be misleading. Advisory Opinion to the Attorney General Re: Limiting

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT-BALLOT-SUMMARY (J. FRANCIS, DISSENTING): "[T]he issue of abortion—far from the people settling the matter—will continue to be decided by each iteration of this Court. And the summary hides the ball as to the chief purpose of the proposed amendment: which, ultimately, is to—for the first time in Florida history—grant an almost unrestricted right to abortion. Because the summary only parrots the language of the proposed amendment, it explains nothing, and does not disclose its chief purpose. . . It is my view that while the constitution enshrines the reserved right of the people to amend their constitution, this Court also has a role in ensuring the people can exercise that right free of anything that would mislead them or present them with ambiguity. MARIJUANA-RECREATIONAL-BALLOT PROPOSAL: The "Adult Personal Use of Marijuana" initiative to modify Article X, §29 of the Florida Constitution, which would legalize personal use of marijuana by adults, may appear on the ballot. The amendment will immediately allow a Medical Marijuana Treatment Center (MMTC)—an entity already licensed to sell medical marijuana—to distribute cannabis for personal use. DEFINITION-"ONE" (J. MUÑIZ, CONCURRING): The word "one" means "being a single unit or entire being or thing and no more," or "existing alone in a specified sphere." Advisory Opinion to the Attorney General Re: Adult Personal Use of Marijuana, No. SC2023-0682 (4/1/24)

DEFINITION-"DIRECTLY" (J. Advisory Opinion to the Attorney General Re: Adult Personal Use of Marijuana, No. SC2023-0682 (4/1/24)

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT-SINGLE SUBJECT-HUH? (J. MUÑIZ, CONCURRING): "A narrow reading, I believe, best protects the people's right to self-governance by replacing the Court's nebulous 'oneness of purpose' analysis with a straightforward, analytical framework for examining these proposed amendments. By eliminating the malleable standard associated with 'oneness of purpose"—the definition of which can change depending on the makeup of the Court, and under which many subjects can be construed as one—we both guard electoral integrity, and shift power back to the voters by ensuring they are presented with a proposal that is not 'radically defective.'" Advisory Opinion to the Attorney General Re: Adult Personal Use of Marijuana, No. SC2023-0682 (4/1/24)

ONENESS (J. MUÑIZ, CONCURRING): "What may be 'oneness' to one person might seem a crazy quilt of disparate topics to another. 'Oneness,' like beauty, is in the eye of the beholder." Advisory Opinion to the Attorney General Re: Adult Personal Use of Marijuana, No. SC2023-0682 (4/1/24)

LEGALIZED MARIJUANA (J. SASSO, DISSENTING): Ballot initiative for legalized marijuana is deceptive for falsely claiming that it allows recreational marijuana use. A state has no power to authorize its residents to participate in conduct that would constitute a federal crime. Consequently, this initiative does not "allow" anything. Instead, whether Floridians are "allowed" to possess marijuana for recreational use will depend on the federal government. A marijuana user in Florida would remain exposed to potential prosecution under federal law. Advisory Opinion to the Attorney General Re: Adult Personal Use of Marijuana, No. SC2023-0682 (4/1/24)

EVIDENCE-OPINION-IDENTIFICATION: Expert testimony on eyewitness identification is generally disfavored. A district court does not abuse its discretion when it excludes it. USA v. Daniels, No. 13590 (11th Cir. 3/29/24)

PHOTO LINE UP: Whether a photo line up identification is reliable depends on (1) the witness's opportunity to view the accused; (2) the witness's degree of attention; (3) the accuracy of the witness's description; (4) the witness's level of certainty; and (5) the length of time between the crime and the identification. LESSER INCLUDED: Defendant, charged with burglary of a structure with assault or battery but convicted of burglary of an occupied structure may not challenge the conviction pursuant to R. 3.800(b) on the ground that the lesser was not properly pled. It may appear at first glance that a finding that a structure is occupied is an enhancement to the crime of burglary of an unoccupied structure, but it isn't. Error, if any, is not fundamental. DISCOVERY: No discovery violation occurred where State provided discovery to appointed counsel prior to Defendant choosing to proceed pro se, and even though it did not timely respond to his later discovery request. INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE-APPELLATE COUNSEL: Ineffective assistance of appellate counsel cannot be argued where the issue was not preserved for appeal. Parker v. State, 1D2022-4057 (3/27/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: A prematurely filed motion for postconviction relief should be dismissed by a trial court and may be refiled after the direct appeal is final. Moreno Mujica v. State, 2D23-2594 (3/27/24)

JURY INSTRUCTION: Appellate courts review the denial of a criminal defendant's request for a special jury instruction under an abuse of discretion standard. Defendant must establish (1) the special instruction was supported by the evidence; (2) the standard instruction did not adequately cover the theory of defense; and (3) the special instruction was a correct statement of the law and not misleading or confusing. Thomas v. State, 3D22-0785 (3/27/24)

EVIDENCE: Court did not err in excluding evidence that Defendant appeared disoriented during the crime and that the victim had met with the State's attorney prior to the trial. Ray v. State, 3D2022-3250 (3/27/24)

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Where the oral pronouncement is silent with regard to the terms and, more specifically, does not specify either a payment schedule or a time limit for paying costs, Defendant has the entire term of supervision to do so. Ray v. State, 3D2022-3250 (3/27/24)

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: A court's oral pronouncement of sentence controls over the written document. The oral announcement of conditions of probation--Defendant must "enroll" in a batterer's intervention program–controls over the written order--Defendant must "complete" a batterer's intervention program. RESENTENCING-MANDATE: Where appellate court issued a mandate requiring re-sentencing, the circuit court may not revive the original sentence unless the appellate court recalls the mandate, which it cannot do more than 120 days after it was issued. Intervening Supreme Court change to the law does not matter. Re-sentencing is required. German v. State, 4D2023-0118 (3/27/24)

COMPETENCY: Defendant is entitled to appointment of counsel in hearing for retroactive determination of competency. A nunc pro tunc competency hearing is a crucial stage of the proceedings. Ball v. State, 5D23-0617 (3/22/24)

CONSECUTIVE SENTENCES-MANDATORY MINIMUM: 25 year mandatory minimum for aggravated assault with a firearm (discharge) and 5 years with a 3 year mandatiry minimum consecutive for possession of a firearm by a felon is unlawful. Sentences under §775.087(2) must be concurrent where the two crimes were committed during a single criminal episode where there was one victim and with a single shot being discharged that did not strike the victim. There is no authority for imposition of a consecutive sentence for the conviction of possession of a firearm by a convicted felon in the course of the single criminal episode. Gullo v. CONSECUTIVE SENTENCES-MANDATORY MINIMUM (J. LAMBERT, CONCURRING): "I concur with the majority opinion because the cited binding precedent requires as much. My view, however, is that the text of section 775.087(2) permits Gullo's consecutive sentences, although I concede that the application of this statute to various factual scenarios has, at times, led appellate courts to conflicting views." Gullo v. State, 5D23-2434 (3/22/24)

HEARSAY: Where Defendant is charged, along with her sisters, with the ambush shooting of the victim to thwart child visitation, her statement that she owned an AR rifle is not hearsay and is admissible as an admission by a party opponent (Rule 801(d)(2)(A)) Admissions of a party opponent may be introduced as nonhearsay. USA v. Mapson, No. 22-11159 (11th Cir. 3/21/24)

ALPR: Court and lower court rulings have failed to directly address ALPR technology (camera systems that capture still photographs of the license plate numbers of vehicles traveling on the road) and whether aggregation of one's public travels implicates Fourth Amendment rights. USA v. Mapson, No. 22-11159 (11th Cir. 3/21/24)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-GOOD FAITH EXCEPTION-ALPR: There is very little in the caselaw and academic literature about whether the acquisition of ALPR data constitutes a Fourth Amendment search that requires a warrant. But evidence obtained during a search conducted in reasonable reliance on binding precedent is not subject to the exclusionary rule. "We need not decide whether Carpenter requires a search warrant for ALPR data because the good-faith exception to the exclusionary rule applies." Carpenter was fortuitously decided the day after the ALPR inquiries on Defendant's vehicle were conducted. USA v. Mapson, No. 22-11159 (11th Cir. 3/21/24)

EXPERT: Officer need not be an expert to testify about ALPR technology. A lay witness may offer opinion testimony if the testimony is (a) rationally based on the witness's perception; (b) helpful to clearly understanding the witness's testimony or to determining a fact in issue; and (c) not based on scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge. Testimony regarding ALPR data does not require expertise or specialized knowledge beyond that of a lay person. It's just a camera taking pictures. USA v. Mapson, No. 22-11159 (11th Cir. 3/21/24)

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE-CONSPIRACY: Participation in a criminal conspiracy need not be proved by direct evidence; a common purpose and plan may be inferred from a development and collocation of circumstances. USA v. Mapson, No. 22-11159 (11th Cir. 3/21/24)

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE-DISCHARGE OF FIREARM: Circumstantial evidence is sufficient to convict Defendant Charis of shooting the victim. She was the only Mapson sister who, as a former Marine had trained snipers and had once owned an AR rifle, and had the ability to shoot the victim from 200 yards away. USA v. Mapson, No. 22-11159 (11th Cir. 3/21/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211159.pdf

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE: Circumstantial evidence is sufficient to place Defendant at the scene of the sniper shooting where her truck was captured on the ALPR data; a similar vehicle was seen near the hill from which the shooting happened; her truck contained wig caps, gloves, earplugs, and a handgun; she had purchased two pairs of binoculars and sent a text referring to herself as "Halo," a video game assassin. CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE: Motive, communications with her homicidal sister on the day of the shooting, lying to the victim to keep him at the planned ambush site, and her elaborate and shifting statements to the authorities support conviction. RULES-AMENDMENTS-GENERAL PRACTICE: Under a new subdivision of R. 2.215, a party may prompt a judge to rule on a matter that has been pending for more than 60 days by filing a notice with the clerk and serving a copy on the judge. SENTENCING-UPWARD VARIANCE-PROCEDURAL REASONABLENESS: Court may impose an upward variance sentence of 120 months rather than the 60 month recommended sentence from the plea-bargain for possession of a firearm in furtherance of a drug trafficking crime where Defendant continued to deal in drugs, leading to at least one death, while in jail following his arrest. USA v. Owens, No. 22-11799 (3/20/24)

SENTENCING-UPWARD VARIANCE-PROCEDURAL REASONABLENESS: The district court abuses its discretion if the factual findings it uses in a sentencing enhancement are clearly erroneous. But a decision to vary upward from the Sentencing Guidelines' recommendation based on uncharged conduct can be based on evidence presented at the sentencing hearing and reasonable inferences therefrom. Court may conclude that the strips with which the Defendant was caught in jail was Suboxone without the production of a toxicology report. Where the government presents unrebutted, credible firsthand testimony and the defendant presents no evidence at all, the government has proved its version of events is more likely true than not. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-MARIJUANA-ODOR: The odor of fresh marijuana, fresh or burnt, and the officer's visual observations of marijuana establish probable cause to search a vehicle. §381.986(14)(a) requires that medical marijuana must remain in its original packaging. SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: The trial court's denial of a downward departure sentence is only appropriate when the trial court misapprehends its discretion to depart or refuses to exercise that discretion as a matter of policy. Baker v. State, 1D2022-3570 (3/20/24)

RESTITUTION: Victim is not entitled to restitution for lost wages corresponding to appointments lost in her illicit, unlicensed cosmetologist practice after Defendant stole her occupational supplies. "The expected income from the victim's illicit cosmetology appointments cannot serve as the basis for establishing a fair market value-based restitution award." S.L.L., a Child v. State, 1D2023-1253 (3/20/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-OOPS: After a lengthy, seven-claim, hand-written motion seeking to vacate his convictions and sentence, a "notice of inquiry," a "motion to hear and rule," a petition seeking a writ to compel, an amended motion and an emergency motion to expedite a ruling on his sentencing scoresheet claim, a supplement to that motion, another notice of inquiry, a petition for writ of habeas corpus, and another notice of inquiry, Defendant loses. "Mr. Morris, unfortunately, soon will learn that the sentencing scoresheet claim—which he is spending the most time needling the trial court about—is procedurally barred as an issue he could have raised on direct appeal." MOOTNESS-NO FLY LIST: Voluntary cessation of a challenged practice moots a case only if the defendant can show that the practice cannot reasonably be expected to recur. Removing the Plaintiff from a No Fly List does not render the case moot because he may be relisted. The Government's declaration that the plaintiff "will not be placed on the No Fly List in the future based on the currently available information" is not enough. A live case or controversy cannot be so easily disguised, and a federal court's constitutional authority cannot be so readily manipulated. "Put simply, the government's sparse declaration falls short of demonstrating that it cannot reasonably be expected to do again in the future what it is alleged to have done in the past." FBI v. Fikre, No. 22–1178 (U.S. S. Ct. 3/19/24)

PLEA: Defendant is not entitled to withdraw his plea for taking pornographic images of the sleeping minor girl on the rounds that the Court failing to advise him that the child needed to have volitionally participated in the sexual act. The statute (18 U.S.C. §2251(a)) does not so require. USA v. Wright, No. 22-12338 (11th Cir. 3/19/24)

HABEAS CORPUS: A petition for writ of habeas corpus is the appropriate vehicle for challenging an order denying pretrial release. The court may, on its own motion, revoke pretrial release and order pretrial detention if the court finds probable cause to believe that the defendant committed a new crime while on pretrial release, even if the new charge is No Info'ed. The statute contains no requirement that the State prosecute the new crime. Irizarry v. State, 6D24-27 (3/18/24)

SENTENCING-SAFETY VALVE-CRIMINAL HISTORY: To qualify for safety-valve relief, a defendant must not have more than 4 criminal history points, a 3-point offense, and a 2-point violent offense. A person fails to meet the requirement (and so cannot get relief) if he has any one of the three. A prior 3-point offense (a sentence exceeding 13 months) makes one ineligible for safety valve. Pulsifer v. United States, No. 22–340 (U.S. S. Ct. 3/15/24)

"AND": "'And,' in grammatical terms, is of course a conjunction—a word whose function is to connect specified items. Both parties here agree with that elementary proposition. . . The word 'and,' each might say, means . . . well, and. . . 'And,' they recite in concert, means 'along with or together with.' . . .Where things get more complicated is in figuring out what goes along or together with what." Pulsifer v. STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: "[W]e do not demand (or in truth expect) that Congress draft in the most translucent way possible." Pulsifer v. United States, No. 22–340 (U.S. S. Ct. 3/15/24)

SENTENCING-SAFETY VALVE-CRIMINAL HISTORY (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "Adopting the government's preferred interpretation guarantees that thousands more people in the federal criminal justice system will be denied a chance—just a chance—at an individualized sentence. For them, the First Step Act offers no hope. Nor, it seems, is there any rule of statutory interpretation the government won't set aside to reach that result. Ordinary meaning is its first victim. Contextual clues follow. Our traditional practice of construing penal laws strictly falls by the wayside too. Replacing all that are policy concerns we have no business considering. Respectfully, I would not indulge any of these moves." Pulsifer v. United States, No. 22–340 (U.S. S. Ct. 3/15/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-340_3e04.pdf

CANONS (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "Without question, the canon against superfluity can be a useful tool when seeking the meaning of a statute. It rests on the same principle as the canon of meaningful variation: the presumption that Congress is a careful drafter and each word it chooses 'is there for a reason.'. . .But that fact also makes the government's choice to rest its case on the superfluity canon a curious one. . . Sometimes, it seems, we are supposed to assume Congress was sloppy, other times careful. The only common thread seems to be what benefits the government in the moment." Pulsifer v. United States, No. 22–340 (U.S. S. Ct. 3/15/24)

RULE OF LENITY (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "[A] free nation operates against a background presumption of individual liberty." Pulsifer v. United States, No. 22–340 (U.S. S. Ct. 3/15/24)

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS: Where information was filed within the three years statute of limitations, but never executed until after its expiration, Defendant is entitled to discharge unless the delay can be justified. The term "executed" means completion of service on the defendant, and the filing of a detainer–Defendant was serving a separate prison sentence-- is not the equivalent of the process contemplated by §775.15. DISCOVERY-MEDICAL RECORDS : Government did not violate Brady by failing to disclose confidential medical records held by other medical service providers which were not in the possession of the Government. Although Brady requires the government to tender to the defense all exculpatory evidence in its possession, it establishes no obligation on the government to seek out such evidence. "In other words, the Due Process Clause. . .does not require the prosecution to conduct fishing expeditions for the defense." USA v. Markovich, No. 22-10978 (11th Cir. 3/14/24)

NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Evidence that witness had been taken to a hospital surely before the trial is not newly discovered evidence to impeach the witness's testimony that he had not used drugs for several months. ADVERSARY PRELIMINARY HEARING-CHILD HEARSAY: Inadmissible child hearsay may not be used to establish probable cause in a 21-day adversary preliminary hearing. Hearsay testimony (not falling within some exception to the rule excluding hearsay) does not, by itself, meet the state's burden at an adversary preliminary hearing under R. 3.133(b). The proper question is not whether the evidence offered is hearsay or nonhearsay, but whether it is admissible or inadmissible hearsay. Larioszambrno v. State, 3D23-0331 (3/14/24)

APPEAL: A defendant may appeal an issue following a no contest or guilty plea only when the issue is expressly reserved and legally dispositive, or if based on an asserted involuntariness of the plea if the Appellant first sought to withdraw the plea in the trial court. MOOTNESS: A case is “moot” when it presents no actual controversy or when the issues have ceased to exist. A moot case generally will be dismissed. Appellate court may dismiss an appeal on its own motion if it appears that under no circumstances can the relief prayed be made effective.

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: For postconviction claims for newly discovered evidence relating to guilty plea, first, the evidence must not have been known by the trial court, the party, or counsel at the time of the plea, and it must appear that the defendant or defense counsel could not have known of it by the use of diligence. Second, the defendant must demonstrate a reasonable probability that, but for the newly discovered evidence, the defendant would not have pleaded guilty and would have insisted on going to trial. JUVENILE OFFENDER: In conducting a sentencing hearing pursuant to related §921.1401, the trial court is not required to make factual findings of any statutory factor not relevant nor considered by the court, only that it must make specific findings on the record that all relevant factors have been reviewed and considered prior to imposing a sentence of life imprisonment or its functional equivalent. SCORESHEET-PRIOR RECORD: A "prior record" is "a conviction for a crime committed by the offender prior to the time of the primary offense. The only offenses that may be included under 'prior record' are those committed by the offender prior to the commission of the primary offense. Offenses which occurred after the Defender's primary offense should not be included on the scoresheet as a "prior record. ARREST WARRANT-AFFIDAVIT: Officer who wrote affidavit for arrest warrant which omitted material exculpatory facts (dash cams, security cameras, and cell phone location data confirming the suspect's alibi) violates the 14th Amendment. Officer who provides a probable cause affidavit which intentionally or recklessly makes misstatements or omissions necessary to support the warrant is civilly liable for malicious prosecution. DEPORTATION-AGGRAVATED FELONY: Domestic violence battery is an aggravated felony under the INA, which makes one removable and statutorily ineligible for both cancellation of removal and asylum. Edwards v. US Attorney General, (11th Cir. 3/6/24)

DEPORTATION-AGGRAVATED FELONY: An "aggravated felony" is a crime of violence for which the term of imprisonment is at least one year. An original sentence of 12 months confinement allowed to be served on probation is a term of imprisonment of at least one year, even if Defendant is permitted to serve part or all of that sentence on probation and even if the sentence is later reduced to under one year, unless the modification was because of a defect such as a violation of a constitutional right. DEPORTATION-INA: A "term of imprisonment" under the Immigration and Naturalization Act includes all parts of a sentence of imprisonment from which the sentencing court excuses the defendant, even if the court itself describes the excuse with a word other than "suspend." Edwards v. US Attorney General, (11th Cir. 3/6/24)

PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE: Each succeeding panel is bound by the holding of the first panel to address an issue of law, unless and until that holding is overruled en banc, or by the Supreme Court. Under the prior panel precedent rule, Court has a duty to reconcile, where possible, prior precedents that appear to be in tension and to distill from apparently conflicting prior panel decisions a basis of reconciliation and to apply that reconciled rule. Edwards v. US Attorney General, (11th Cir. 3/6/24)

JURISPRUDENCE: "Relying on and agreeing with a decision is not an all or nothing proposition. INDICTMENT: An indictment need not allege in detail the factual proof that will be relied upon to support the charges. An indictment which lists the essential elements of the offense, specifies the date, and the kind of controlled substance distributed is legally sufficient. An indictment does not need to lay out the Government's theory of the case. USA v. Gbenedio, No. 22-12044 (11th Cir. 3/6/24)

EVIDENCE: Testimony about other companies implicated in pill mill operations, offered to show how the investigation led to the Defendant, was admissible and not unfairly prejudicial where Defendant had raised the issue. The introduction of evidence about other people's convictions was not only invited by defense counsel; it was introduced by him. USA v. Gbenedio, No. 22-12044 (11th Cir. 3/6/24)

OPINION EVIDENCE: Lay opinion must be rationally based on the witness's perception; helpful to clearly understanding the witness's testimony or to determining a fact in issue; and not based on scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge. Lay opinion testimony cannot provide specialized explanations or interpretations that an untrained layman could not make if perceiving the same events. Expert opinion, by contrast, is opinion testimony based on scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge. The distinction sometimes blurs when testimony is based on professional work. USA v. Gbenedio, No. 22-12044 (11th Cir. 3/6/24)

IMPEACHMENT: Court did not err in excluding extrinsic evidence to impeach witness's testimony that he had not been arrested where ultimately the witness admitted that he had been. USA v. Gbenedio, No. 22-12044 (11th Cir. 3/6/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212044.pdf

IMPEACHMENT: Rule 608(b) prohibits extrinsic evidence for the purpose of attacking a witness's "character for truthfulness," not "credibility." The absolute prohibition on extrinsic evidence applies only when the sole reason for proffering that evidence is to attack or support the witness's character for truthfulness. Put differently, the absolute prohibition applies only when extrinsic evidence is offered to prove that a witness is a liar in general. But it does not bar extrinsic evidence offered to prove that a witness lied on the stand. USA v. Gbenedio, No. 22-12044 (11th Cir. 3/6/24)

FINE: A $200,000 fine is lawful where Defendant failed to prove inability to pay, in part by failing to cooperate with the probation officer's requests for financial information. CHILD HEARSAY: Child hearsay alone (the CPT interview) is sufficient to support a conviction for child molestation where the Child's trial testimony is that she did not remember some of the acts. Failing to remember is distinguishable from recantation. Scott v. State, 1D2021-3118 (3/6/24)

EVIDENCE-INFERENCE (J. TANENBAUM, CONCURRING): When a witness testifies as to a fact based not on personal observation, but on his or her own inference from personal observation, the testimony is of questionable competence to prove the fact. CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED-VOP: Where defendant's sentences were originally all running concurrently to each other, he is entitled to credit on each count for prior time served and sentenced to consecutive time on violation of probation. Brown v. State, 1D2022-0609 (3/6/24)

SENTENCE-JUVENILE OFFENDER: Mandatory without parole life or the functional equivalent of life sentences for juvenile homicide offenders violates the 8th Amendment. SECOND AMENDMENT: Second Amendment does not permit felons to possess a firearm. The right to possess a firearm extends only to law-abiding, responsible citizens. Felons are unqualified as a class because they are not law-abiding citizens. USA v. Dubois, No. 22-10829 (11th Cir. 3/5/24)

PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE: The prior-panel-precedent rule provides that 'a prior panel's holding is binding on all subsequent panels unless and until it is overruled or undermined to the point of abrogation by the Supreme Court or by the appellate court sitting en banc. An intervening Supreme Court decision abrogates our precedent only if the intervening decision is both clearly on point and clearly contrary to the earlier decision. To abrogate a prior-panel precedent, the later Supreme Court decision must demolish and eviscerate each of its fundamental props. USA v. Dubois, No. 22-10829 (11th Cir. 3/5/24)

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE: Fake names, addresses, and phone numbers for both himself and the recipient; the fact that Defendant falsely certified that this information was accurate; and that he paid for the transaction in cash are legally sufficient evidence that the Defendant had shipped the package contained firearms. SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE: A marijuana conviction is a predicate controlled substance offense under the Sentencing Guidelines. USA v. Dubois, No. 22-10829 (11th Cir. 3/5/24)

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE: A drug regulated by state law is a "controlled substance" for state predicate offenses, even if federal law does not regulate that drug. More precisely, state law defines which drugs qualify as a "controlled substance" if the prior conviction was under state law, and federal law defines which drugs qualify as a "controlled substance" if the prior conviction was under federal law. USA v. Dubois, No. 22-10829 (11th Cir. 3/5/24)

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE-CATEGORICAL APPROACH: The categorical approach requires the appellate court to compare the guideline definition of "controlled substance offense" with the state statute of conviction. Unless the least culpable conduct prohibited under the state law qualifies as a predicate controlled substance offense, the defendant's state conviction cannot be the basis of an enhancement under the guidelines, regardless of the actual conduct underlying the conviction. USA v. Dubois, No. 22-10829 (11th Cir. 3/5/24)

CONTROLLED SUBSTANCE: A "controlled substance" under §4B1.2(b)'s definition of "controlled substance offense" is, for prior state offenses, a drug regulated by state law at the time of the conviction, even if it is not federally regulated, and even if it is no longer regulated by the state at the time of federal sentencing. "We adopt a time-of-state-conviction rule: the term "controlled substance" . . . means a substance regulated by state law when the defendant was convicted of the state drug offense, even if it is no longer regulated when the defendant is sentenced for the federal firearm offense. SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-STOLEN GUN ENHANCEMENT: The two-level stolen-gun enhancement does not require proof that the defendant knew that the gun was stolen. USA v. Dubois, No. 22-10829 (11th Cir. 3/5/24)

PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE-EARLIEST CASE RULE: Under the earliest case rule, when prior panel precedents conflict, the earlier case controls. A later panel is bound by the reasoning of the first panel's ruling. USA v. Dubois, No. 22-10829 (11th Cir. 3/5/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210829.pdf

FINE: The guidelines require the district court to impose a fine in every case, unless the defendant establishes that he is presently unable to pay a fine and will not likely become able to pay one in the future. If the defendant did not object to the fine at sentencing, the sentencing court is not required to make specific findings of fact with respect to the Sentencing Guideline factors. USA v. Dubois, No. 22-10829 (11th Cir. 3/5/24)

FINE: Defendant must specifically and clearly object to any disputed facts listed in the presentence investigation report; otherwise, those facts are deemed admitted. FREE SPEECH: Florida companies may not be prohibited from holding mandatory meetings highlighting diversity, equity, and inclusion issues. Florida's Individual Freedom Act ("Stop W.O.K.E. Act) violates the First Amendment. "We. . .reject this latest attempt to control speech by recharacterizing it as conduct. Florida may be exactly right about the nature of the ideas it targets. Or it may not. Either way, the merits of these views will be decided in the clanging marketplace of ideas rather than a codebook or a courtroom." Honeyfund.com, Inc. v. https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202213135.pdf

FREE SPEECH: Florida's attempt to defend the Individual Freedom Act as a restriction on the conduct of holding the mandatory meeting, not a restriction on the speech that takes place at that meeting "reflects a clever framing,. . "[b]ut the fact that only mandatory meetings that convey a particular message and viewpoint are prohibited makes quick work of Florida's conduct-not-speech defense. . .In short, the disfavored "conduct" cannot be identified apart from the disfavored speech. That duality makes the Act a textbook regulation of core speech protected by the First Amendment." Honeyfund.com, Inc. v. Governor, State of Florida, No. 22-13135 (1th Cir. 3/4/24)

FREE SPEECH: 'Florida proposes. . .that even if speech defines the contours of the prohibition, so long as the resulting burden is on the conduct, that conduct is all the state is regulating. That, in turn, means the law does not regulate speech. Remarkable. Under Florida's proposed standard, a government could ban riding on a parade float if it did not agree with the message on the banner. The government could ban pulling chairs into a circle for book clubs discussing disfavored books. And so on. The First Amendment is not so easily neutered." Honeyfund.com, Inc. v. APPEAL-JURISDICTION: State may appeal an order dismissing a petition

APPEAL WAIVER: An appeal waiver does not bar a defendant's claim that the government breached the very plea agreement which purports to bar him from appealing. USA v. Tripodis, No. 22-12826 (11th Cir. 2/29/24)

PLEA AGREEMENT: When the plea agreement language is ambiguous, it is construed against the government because a plea agreement is a waiver of substantial constitutional rights requiring that the defendant be adequately warned of the consequences of it. APPEAL-ISSUE-PRESERVATION: A general objection to expert testimony ("I object to that as well") does not preserve the new argument on appeal that content analysis lacks sufficient scientific reliability. Miller v. State, SC2022-0745 (2/29/24)

MURDER-PREMEDITATION-DIMINISHED CAPACITY: Although a defendant is free to argue that premeditation is lacking, a defendant may not present "evidence of diminished mental capacity to negate the specific intent required to convict of first-degree premeditated murder. Argument that Defendant was mentally unwell and thus did not—or could not—form the specific intent to commit premeditated first-degree murder is not permitted. Miller v. State, SC2022-0745 (2/29/24)

DEATH PENALTY: Changes in the law–elimination of proportionality review, elimination of the reasonable hypothesis of innocence standard, and "aggravator creep"–do not unconstitutionally increase the risk of arbitrary infliction of death sentences. Miller v. State, SC2022-0745 (2/29/24)

DEATH PENALTY-VICTIM IMPACT: Introduction of victim impact videos-8 minute photo montage without music played in rebuttal just before jury deliberations--is not an abuse of discretion. There does not appear to be any authority for the proposition that victim impact information can only be presented in the State's case-in-chief. Miller v. State, SC2022-0745 (2/29/24)

SECOND AMENDMENT (J. TANENBAUM, CONCURRING): Only law-abiding citizens have the right to bear firearms under the Second Amendment. A convicted felon, by definition, is not a law-abiding citizen. Upon being convicted of a felony, a citizen's legal status changes. With this adjudicated change in status, the citizen automatically loses several liberties, including the liberty to possess a firearm. Gulley v. State, 1D 2022-2356 (2/28/24)

EVIDENCE-COLLATERAL CRIME: Evidence of a broken car window helped establish the entire context out of which the charged crime, violation of a domestic violence injunction, occurred and further helped to describe the events leading up to the violation. Aviles v. State, 3D22-1593 (2/28/24)

JUDGE-ADMONISHMENT: Although the better practice is to excuse the jury before admonishing an attorney in open court, reproving defense counsel in the jury's presence does not, in itself, constitute reversible error. Region v. State, 3D22-0685 (2/28/24)

CONTINUANCE: The general rule is that the granting or denial of a motion for continuance is within the discretion of the trial court. Moise v. State, 3D22-1610 (2/28/24)

APPEAL-PLEA: Appellate court lacks jurisdiction to hear appeal challenging the voluntariness of a plea where Appellant failed to file a motion to withdraw his plea in the trial court. There is no fundamental-error exception to the preservation requirement of R. 9.140(b)(2)(A)(ii)(c). Martinez-Ruiz v. State, 3D23-1178 (2/28/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL: If the State fails to file formal charges against the defendant within the 90-day (or, for a felony, 175-day) period, the defendant can seek final discharge without first filing the Notice of Expiration, but the uniform traffic citation constitutes a formal charge. (Note: a pending proposed rule change would change this). Patino v. State, 3D23-1702 (2/28/24)

SPEEDY TRIAL-WRIT OF PROHIBITION-DELAY: A petition for writ of prohibition (filed following the denial of Defendant's 1st motion for speedy trial discharge) does not delay the trial. Where Defendant later files a notice of speedy trial expiration, even while the first petition for writ of prohibition remains pending, Defendant must be brought to trial within 15 days or be discharged. "Because this court did not issue an order to show cause or otherwise impose a stay of the trial court proceedings during the pendency of the petition, and because the trial court retained jurisdiction to proceed, the petition for writ of prohibition did not delay Patino's trial and the speedy trial period continued to run during the pendency of the prohibition proceeding in this court." SPEEDY TRIAL-WRIT OF PROHIBITION-APPEAL: "More recent opinions. . .have called our decisions [that a petition for writ of prohibition does not constitute an appeal] into question. . .In any event, we need not reach the question. . ., since, as explained, it is undisputed that Patino's trial was not delayed by the earlier prohibition proceeding in this court. We therefore leave this separate question for another day." Patino v. State, 3D23-1702 (2/28/24)

STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION: A fundamental canon of statutory construction is that courts must endeavor to give meaning to each word and phrase contained in a statute or rule, and courts should avoid readings that would render part of a statute meaningless. Words cannot be meaningless, else they would not have been used. If possible, every word and every provision is to be given effect (verba cum effectu sunt accipienda). Patino v.

RECLASSIFICATION: Under the 10-20-Life statute, aggravated battery is reclassified to a first-degree felony when a weapon or firearm is used in committing the felony, except a felony in which the use of a weapon or firearm is an essential element. Aggravated battery is properly reclassified to a first-degree felony because firearm possession is not an essential element of the crime. In order to support the enhancement, the jury must be given the option of finding the defendant guilty of aggravated battery with great bodily harm without also finding the defendant guilty of aggravated battery with a deadly weapon. AGGRAVATED ASSAULT-MANDTORY MINIMUM: Aggravated assault is no longer subject to a mandatory minimum sentence under §775.087. The maximum sentence is five years. Garnes v. State, 4D2021-3219 (2/28/24)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1965920/opinion/Opinion_2021-3219.pdf

10-20-LIFE-MANDATORY MINIMUM: Under the 10-20-Life statute, where defendant discharged a firearm causing great bodily harm, he is subject to a minimum term of imprisonment of not less than 25 years and not more than life in prison, even if that mandatory minimum exceeds the statutory maximum. But in order to exceed the statutory maximum, the entire sentence must be a mandatory minimum. Garnes v. State, 4D2021-3219 (2/28/24)

RETROACTIVITY-AMENDED STATUTE: Savings Clause of the Florida Constitution allows amendments to criminal statutes to be applied retroactively to pending prosecutions or sentences. This means that, where Defendant's offense occurred prior to the amendment to the 10-20-Life statute, since he was sentenced after the amendment, he must be sentenced under the amended version of the statute, which omitted th4 mndatory minimum for aggravated assault. PRR-HFO: Court may impose a single sentence pursuant to both the Prison Releasee Reoffender and the habitual felony offender statutes, but the HFO portion of the sentence must be longer than the PRR portion of the sentence. STAND YOUR GROUND-CONDO: Condo owner has SYG immunity for throwing a roll of duct tape at the property manager and a code inspector, and swatting the cell phone out of the victim's hand, after they opened the private elevator door to her unit's foyer to take a picture. The men were not legally entitled to use a master key fob to override Defendant's exclusive access to her private home, nor were they legally entitled to hold the elevator door open so that the code inspector could continue to intrude on her privacy by taking photographs of its interior. DISSENSION ON THE COURT-TIPSY COACHMAN: "The dissent also incorrectly asserts that we have improperly used the tipsy coachman rule to grant relief. We have not. The tipsy coachman rule provides that 'if a trial court reaches the right result, but for the wrong reasons, it will be upheld if there is any basis which would support the judgment in the record.'. . .We do not conclude that the trial court reached the 'right result.' STAND YOUR GROUND (J. FORST, CONCURRING): "Paese. . .threw a roll of duct tape into the elevator, and she 'struck' the phone from the purported victim's hand. . .[She] used a minimal level of force, with no indication of an intent to cause pain or harm. She did not swing a bat or any other object, nor did she punch or bite or kick anybody. There is no claim that she threw the duct tape with the intent or ability to harm anybody (the defendant is named Paese, not Nolan Ryan or Sandy Koufax), or that her striking the hand of the individual taking photos/video had the force of a karate practitioner. . .This minimal force employed here was proportionate and reasonable." Paese v. State, 4D2023-1103 (2/28/24)

HEARSAY/NON-HEARSAY: A witness's out-of-court statement to a police officer may be admissible if offered for a relevant non-hearsay purpose—such as the effect a statement had on a listener—and the probative value of the evidence's non-hearsay purpose is not substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice. USA v. Kent, No. 22-13068 (11th Cir. 2/26/24)

HEARSAY/NON-HEARSAY: In a RICO case involving the predicate acts of murdering a cooperating witness and an earlier attempted murder, officer's testimony from a preliminary hearing that the cooperating witness had said that Defendant had been involved in the earlier attempted murder is admissible to show motive for the murder of the witness by other gang members, who had heard the testimony. The testimony was not hearsay because it was offered for the effect it had on the listeners–it is why they murdered the witness--and not for the truth of the matter asserted. USA v. Kent, 93 F.4th 1213 (11th Cir. 2024).

VOP-HEARSAY: Hearsay evidence that Defendant was discharged from a sex offender treatment program is insufficient to sustain a violation. While hearsay is admissible in a revocation proceeding, it may not be the sole basis for the revocation. But a new revocation proceeding is not required where, as here, it is clear that the Court have imposed the same sentence for other proven allegations. Gibson v. State, 2D22-2305 (2/23/24)

JUVENILE OFFENDER- LIFE SENTENCE: Attempted felony murder with a firearm requires a mandatory life sentence for a Prison Releasee Reoffender (PRR), but under the"10-20-Life" law, the trial court has discretion to sentence Defendant to anything between twenty-five years and life imprisonment day-for-day. The 8th amendment requires that a juvenile offender–including a P.R.R.-- may not be sentenced to a minimum mandatory life sentence for a nonhomicide crime without any possibility of release. Graham trumps the P.R.R. staute. Resentencing required. "Because we reverse for a full resentencing, we need not determine whether it is possible to harmonize the statutory prohibition against a defendant ever being released from a PRR life sentence and Graham's specific prohibition against imposing that very sentence for a nonhomicide offense committed by a juvenile." DISMISSAL-SEVERED OFFENSES: R. 3.151(c) requires dismissal of severed Possession of Cocaine and Resisting without Violence counts following Defendant's trial and acquittal on the Possession of a Firearm by a Felon count. DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Double Jeopardy bars court from setting aside the verdicts as logically inconsistent and ordering a retrial. where Defendant was found "not guilty by reason of insanity" with respect to a malice-murder count, but "guilty but mentally ill" for felony murder and aggravated assault. all based on one underlying homicide. ACQUITTAL-DEFINITION: An acquittal encompasses any ruling that the prosecution's proof is insufficient to establish criminal liability for an offense. Once rendered, a jury's verdict of acquittal is inviolate. An acquittal might reflect a jury's determination that the defendant is innocent of the crime charged, or be the result of compromise, compassion, lenity, or misunderstanding of the governing law. Whatever the basis, the Double Jeopardy Clause prohibits second-guessing the reason for a jury's acquittal. The jury holds an unreviewable power to return a verdict of not guilty even for impermissible reasons. McElrath v. Georgia, No. 22–721 (U.S. S.Ct. 2/21/24)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/23pdf/22-721_kjfl.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY (J. ALITO, CONCURRING): "[T]he situation here is different from one in which a trial judge refuses to accept inconsistent verdicts and thus sends the jury back to deliberate further. Some States follow this practice, and our decision does not address it. . .Nothing that we say today should be understood to express any view about whether a not-guilty verdict that is inconsistent with a verdict on another count and is not accepted by the trial judge constitutes an 'acquittal' for double jeopardy purposes. SEX OFFENDER REGISTRATION–JURY INSTRUCTIONS: Homeless offenders must report to the local Sheriff's office; Sexual offenders who have moved must report to the DMV. Where the information cites the statute number for homeless sexual offenders (§943.0435(4)(b)1.), but the language in the information mentions a failure to update an address (which suggests a violation of §943.0435(4)(a)), and the actual jury instruction was a hybrid which fit neither statute, error is not fundamental. Nava v. State, 1D2022-1820 (2/21/24)

FUNDAMENTAL ERROR: Failing to instruct on an element of the crime over which the record reflects there was no dispute is not fundamental error. If the jury instruction incorrectly defines an element in a manner that makes it easier for the State to obtain a conviction, no fundamental error occurs if the defendant does not dispute that element at trial. Defendant argued that he never changed his residence at all, and never disputed where he was required to report. Nava v. State, 1D2022-1820 (2/21/24)

FUNDAMENTAL ERROR: Appellate courts should find fundamental error in only the rarest of cases. To allow broad direct review of a criminal trial on the basis of fundamental error supplies no motivation whatsoever to a defense attorney to object when various errors occur throughout a trial in order to keep a "hip-pocket" appeal. Nava v. State, 1D2022-1820 (2/21/24)

MOTION IN LIMINE-SYG TESTIMONY: Where Defendant had testified at his Stand Your Ground hearing (believing he had the burden of proof), his testimony from that hearing is admissible at trial. "Although with hindsight the court and counsel's burden-of-proof mistake might have prompted Appellee to testify earlier than he wanted, nothing indicates that it was coerced or unintelligent as a constitutional matter." Without his testimony, Defendant surely would have lost the SYG hearing anyway; he had shot at an unarmed five-foot three woman 3 times while she was at least ten feet away from him and on the other side of a counter. TESTIMONY-PRETRIAL HEARING-SYG: The rule that a defendant may not be required to surrender one constitutional right to assert another right does

VOP-HEARSAY: A probation officer's hearsay testimony, by itself, that another person told him or her the probationer no longer lived at the residence is insufficient to support a change of residence violation, even coupled with the probationer's absence when the officer visited. Hand v. State, 1D 2023-0256 (2/21/24)

INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE- APPELLATE COUNSEL: Defendant may not claim ineffective assistance of appellate counsel for missing an issue in filing an Anders brief. "There simply cannot be a cognizable claim for ineffective assistance of appellate counsel in this situation because the panel in the underlying appeal presumably conducted its own 'full and independent review of the record to discover any arguable issues.'. . .[A]n affirmance by the appellate court in essence is the court's determination that the appellant has received his constitutionally guaranteed right to effective assistance from counsel." Mack v. State, 1D2023-0414 (2/21/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DISCOVERY: An order of the court deciding that Appellant is not entitled to postconviction discovery is not among the class of orders independently appealable by a defendant pursuant to F.R.App.Pr. 9.140(b)(1). Daniels v, State, 1D2023-1889 (2/21/24)

EVIDENCE-AUTHENTICATION-SILENT WITNESS: Authentication is a relatively low bar. It only requires evidence sufficient to support a finding that the matter in question is what its proponent claims. To overcome concerns regarding manipulation of photographic evidence, typically, the proponent of the evidence invokes a traditional foundation, commonly referred to as the "pictorial testimony" theory: "Does this photograph fairly and accurately depict [the subject]?" But under the "silent witness" method, a photograph may be admitted upon a showing of the reliability of the production process. R.V. a Juvenile v. State, 3D22-1697 (2/21/24)

EVIDENCE-AUTHENTICATION-SILENT WITNESS: Florida courts have developed a non-exhaustive list of guiding factors for use in determining the reliability of the production process. Relevant factors include: (1) whether the evidence establishes the date and time the image was captured; (2) evidence of image manipulation; (3) the condition and capability of the equipment that produced the image; (4) procedural consideration relating to the preparation, testing, operation, and security of the equipment involved; and (5) testimony identifying any participants depicted in the image. VOP-ASSOCIATING WITH CRIMINALS: Defendant properly found to be in violation of probation for associating with people engaged in criminal activity sitting in an alley with a guy smoking cocaine. Association exists if a defendant spends a reasonably long time with someone and the defendant is comfortable around the other person. For an association to be willful, a defendant needs to be aware that the individual he is associating with is engaged in criminal activity during the association. Orta v. State, 3D22-2024 (2/21/24)

VOP: Where parties resolved a violation of community control by announcing that Defendant would serve 364 days in jail, to be mitigated by enrolling and successfully completing boot camp, failure to complete boot camp is not a violation of supervision. The terms of the plea agreement did not include any such requirement. Golfin v, State, 3D23-0286 (2/21/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Convictions for both grand theft and defrauding a financial institution violate double jeopardy principles. Grand theft is a lesser included offense of organized fraud for double jeopardy purposes. Koerber v. State, 4D2022-3025 (2/21/24)

EVIDENCE-VIDEOS-SILENT WITNESS: Bank manager may authenticate video. Photographs and videos from unmanned cameras are tested for admissibility under the "silent witness" theory, which provides that photographic evidence may be admitted upon proof of the reliability of the process which produced it. Five factors for admissibility under the "silent witness" theory: (1) evidence establishing the time and date of the photographic evidence; (2) any evidence of editing or tampering; (3) the operating condition and capability of the equipment producing the photographic evidence as it relates to the accuracy and reliability of the photographic product; (4) the procedure employed as it relates to the preparation, testing, operation, and security of the equipment used to produce the photographic product, including the security of the product itself; and (5) testimony identifying the relevant participants depicted in the photographic evidence. COST OF SUPERVISION: $50 monthly cost of supervision as a condition of probation, unless orally pronounced, is unlawful. The appropriate costs supervision is $40 per month. Abernathy v. State, 4D2-2022-3318 (2/21/24)

SCORESHEET-VICTIM INJURY POINTS: Law in effect in 1988 permitted addition of victim injury points only once per victim per criminal episode.. Sentencing guidelines were later amended to require penetration points for each offense. Huston v. State, 4D2023-2221 (2/21/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-MANIFEST INJUSTICE: Collateral estoppel does not bar relitigation where failure to correct illegal life sentences would be manifestly unjust. Sentencing errors that depend upon the number of criminal episodes and result in an illegal sentence may be raised in a rule 3.800(a) motion if the number of episodes can be determined from the face of the record. RE-SENTENCING-NON-STATE PRISON: Where Court improperly sentenced Defendant (who scored non-state prison) to prison, upon remand the Court must impose a non-state prison sanction or, if requested by the State, empanel a jury to make the needed factual determinations. DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Double jeopardy precludes convictions on both grand theft of a motor vehicle and grand theft of the contents (the gun in the center console) when there is one act of taking (of the car and its contents) with no geographic or temporal separation between two acts of taking. Arroyo v. State, 6D23-0653 (2/16/24)

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: Under AEDPA, a federal court may not grant habeas relief to a state prisoner with respect to any claim that was adjudicated on the merits in State court, unless the adjudication (1) was contrary to, or unreasonably applied, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court, or (2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts. A state-court adjudication involves an "unreasonable application of" clearly established federal law only if the decision was so obviously wrong that its error lies beyond any possibility for fairminded disagreement. AEDPA constrains federal-court authority to correct all but the most obvious state-court errors. Bowen v. Sec'y, Florida DOC, No. 22-11744 (11th Cir. 2/15/24)

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: State court's determination that placing two juvenile co-defendants in a bugged room to record admissions while they talked to each other did not violate the Fifth Amendment is not so obviously wrong as to permit federal relief. Bowen v. Sec'y, Florida DOC, No. 22-11744 (11th Cir. 2/15/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211744.pdf

FIFTH AMENDMENT-JUVENILE (J. WILSON, CONCURRING): "[W]hat I do find troubling is how Bowen's age interplays with the voluntariness of his confession. . . I do not contend that age should be dispositive. I do however . . .contend that the 'greatest care' should be exercised to ensure that a juvenile's statements were voluntarily and freely given." Bowen v. Sec'y, Florida DOC, No. 22-11744 (11th Cir. 2/15/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211744.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: Where Defendant was convicted of felony murder based on the death of his passenger after a pursuing officer performed a 110 M.P.H. pit maneuver (Counsel did not request a proximate cause instruction, although Georgia law requires proximate cause), he is not entitled to federal habeas corpus relief. Because the Georgia Supreme Court held that the PIT maneuver and the manner in which it was performed was not an intervening cause, that is the final answer. What the Supreme Court of Georgia says is Georgia law is Georgia law. Calhoun v. Warden, Calhoun State Prison, No 22-10313 (11TH Cir 2/15/24)

HUH? WHAT? HUH?: "The proper prejudice standard [for ineffective assistance of counsel claims] is not preponderance. . .Instead of a probability of a different result, there need be only a 'reasonable probability' of a different result. The difference is whether it is more likely than not the result would have been different under the preponderance standard compared to whether there is enough possibility that there would have been a different result that the reviewing court's confidence in the outcome is undermined." Calhoun v. Warden, Calhoun State Prison, No 22-10313 (11TH Cir 2/15/24)

ARTICULATED NON-FLUBBERY: "A word of caution, or actually a full paragraph of it, is appropriate here: The Supreme Court's decision in Williams and our decision today should not be misread to mean that a state court decision isn't entitled to AEDPA deference unless the opinion quotes with precision, without shorthand references, and with flawless consistency the proper federal standard of reasonable probability of a different result. . .[A] perfectly articulated, non-flub, ambiguity-free discussion of the prejudice component is not required in a state court opinion for AEDPA deference to be due." AMENDMENT-RULE BAR: Rules amended to allow certified legal interns to practice up to 18 months after law school graduation, and to have up to three chances to pass the bar exam. In Re: Amendments to Rule Regulating The Florida Bar 11-1.8, SC2024-0053 (2/15/24)

J. LABARGA, J., DISSENTING IN PART: "I again dissent to the Court's adoption of this amendment on its own motion. . . Even where, as here, a rule change is unlikely to be controversial, I think the better practice in all but the most urgent instances is for this Court to publish proposed rule amendments for comment before adoption." HABEAS CORPUS: Trial court may dismiss, rather than transfer, a habeas petition when the petitioner seeks relief that "(1) would be untimely if considered as a motion for postconviction relief under rule 3.850, (2) raise claims that could have been raised at trial or, if properly preserved, on direct appeal of the judgment and sentence, or (3) would be considered a second or successive motion under R. 3.850 that either fails to allege new or different grounds for relief that were known or should have been known at the time the first motion was filed. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: In order to vacate a conviction after a plea based on newly discovered evidence, Movant must show that he would have reasonably withdrawn from his plea agreement and proceeded to trial. A court should consider the totality of the circumstances surrounding the plea, including such factors as whether a particular defense was likely to succeed at trial. Daise v. JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION: Judge may not be disqualified for exercising his discretion to reject a plea offer which waived PRR. A judge retains authority to alter a prior plea arrangement up until the time sentence is imposed, so long as the trial court provides the defendant an opportunity to withdraw any plea that was entered in reliance on the promised sentence. APPEAL-PRESERVED ISSUE: Defendant may not raise on appeal a conflict between an oral pronouncement and the written finding of a violation of probation absent a quantitative effect on the sentence without a contemporaneous objection or a motion to correct sentence. ANTI-SHOPLIFTING DEVICE-POCKETKNIFE: "Because the undisputed facts failed to establish that he used or attempted to use the pocketknife recovered from his person, let alone that the instrument itself satisfied the plain and unambiguous statutory definition of 'any item or device which is designed, manufactured, modified, or altered to defeat any antishoplifting or inventory control device,' we are constrained to reverse and remand with instructions to dismiss the challenged charge." MINOR OFFENDER: A defendant may be sentenced to life without parole for one homicide offense, consecutively followed by two concurrent life-without-parole sentences for related non-homicide offenses, because the defendant has an opportunity for a meaningful review after each (up to fifty years later). A State is not required to guarantee eventual freedom to a juvenile offender convicted of a non-homicide crime. Conflict certified. Johnson v. State,

PATIENT BROKERING: The allowable unit of prosecution for patient brokering (receiving payment for patient referrals) is each transaction, not the general arrangement between health care providers. Payments to different entities for referrals of the same patients on the same days can be charged as different violations of the Patient Brokering Act because the correct unit of prosecution is each payment made to induce the referral of patients or patronage. State v. DeSimone, 4D2022-2104 (2/14/24)

MOTION TO DISMISS: As a general rule, Court may not hold an evidentiary hearing on a R. 3.190(d) motion to dismiss based on disputed issues of fact (here, the unit of prosecution). Exceptions to the rule include motions to dismiss based on immunity, Stand Your Ground immunity, and prosecutorial misconduct. State v. DeSimone, 4D2022-2104 (2/14/24)

SENTENCING-NON STATE PRISON: Where Defendant scores non-state prison (under 22 points), one year in the county jail, to be followed by two years' community control is lawful. Nothing in §775.082(10) restricts the aggregate duration of all nonstate prison sanctions to one year. "[W]e are mindful that if the defendant was to violate his community control or probation, any resulting sentence to a state correctional facility, beyond the one year which the defendant will have already served in the county jail, raises the issue of whether such further incarceration would be illegally excessive. . .However, that issue is not ripe for consideration." RESISTING WITHOUT VIOLENCE-NON-UNANIMOUS VERDICT: Where the State does not affirmatively advise the jury that it can convict using any number of acts as the essential element of the crime, the possibility of a non-unanimous verdict does not constitute fundamental error. APPEAL WAIVER: Serial bomber whose plea agreement for multiple life sentences included an appeal waiver may not collaterally attack the sentences for not being for crimes of violence under the categorical approach. Rudolph v. USA, No. 21-12828 (11th Cir. 2/12/24)

HABEAS CORPUS: §2255 habeas actions are vehicles for attacking sentences, not convictions. §2255 cannot be used to challenge convictions, only sentences. "There may be mechanisms by which Rudolph can collaterally challenge his convictions, but 2255 is not one of them." Rudolph v. USA, No. 21-12828 (11th Cir. 2/12/24)

DICTA: As a rule, a statement that neither constitutes the holding of a case, nor arises from a part of the opinion that is necessary to the holding of the case is dicta. And dicta is not binding on anyone for any purpose. "Both of these points are crucial . . to avoiding the risk that stray language will take on importance in a new context that its drafters could not have anticipated." Rudolph v. APPEAL WAIVERS: There is no miscarriage of justice exception to the general rule that appeal waivers are enforceable. Even if there were, Rudolph would not qualify for relief for any number of reasons. Rudolph v. USA, No. 21-12828 (11th Cir. 2/12/24)

RISK PROTECTION ORDER: Court may not deny a petition for a Risk Protection Order without a hearing. "Simply put, section 790.401(3)(a) does not provide a trial court with discretion regarding whether a final hearing should be held on a petition for risk protection order." RELINQUISHMENT OF JURISDICTION: If Child is eligible to have his probation terminated pursuant to §985.435(7), appellate court may relinquish jurisdiction to the trial court. R. M. A., a juvenile v. State, 3D23-1110 (2/9/24)

CONFESSION-VOLUNTARINESS: "it's okay, sweetie, I'm just here to talk to you" and informed S.G. she was not in trouble. Detective's statements to child ("it's okay, sweetie, I'm just here to talk to you" and informing her that she was not in trouble) did not amount to an implied promise of leniency or coercion. HEARSAY-CO-CONSPIRATOR STATEMENTS: When a conspiracy is established, everything said, written, or done by any of the conspirators in execution furtherance of the common purpose is deemed to have been said, done, or written by every one of them and may be proved against each, but only if the conspiracy itself has been established by independent evidence, i.e., not adduced from the hearsay testimony. The requirement of independent evidence is a condition of admissibility. The Child's admissions can constitute that independent evidence. State v. S.G., 6D23-520 (2/9/24)

PLEA-PRESERVATION-STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS: A defendant waives the right to appeal a court's decision on a pretrial motion by entering a guilty plea. An unconditional guilty plea waives all non-jurisdictional defects, including a statute of limitations defense. USA v. Sanfilippo, No. 22-11175 (11th Cir 2/8/24)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211175.pdf

PLEA-PRESERVATION-STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS Government's comment at the end of the sentencing hearing that it would probably allow Defendant's to withdraw his guilty plea and dismiss the charges if a pending appeal in a different, similar case established that the statute of limitations barred a conviction is not sufficient evidence that the issue was preserved. USA v. Sanfilippo, No. 22-11175 (11th Cir 2/8/24)

PLEA-PRESERVATION-STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS (JORDAN, CONCURRING): A district court has limited jurisdiction to set aside or modify a federal defendant's conviction or sentence, and it does not possess inherent authority to take such action. "I am therefore not sure how it is that the parties believe that they will be able, months or years from now, to go back to the district court and request that Mr. Sanfilippo be allowed to withdraw his guilty plea in a closed case." DEFINITION-"UNO ICTI": "Uno icti" means "with one blow." Offenses that are continuous in character and offenses that can be committed by a singular act are called "uno icti." with one blow. Trappman v. State, SC2021-1479 (2/8/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Double Jeopardy does not preclude separate convictions for shoving an officer and siccing a pit bull on him. The touchstone of Double Jeopardy analysis must be whether there were successive impulses. Defendant's conduct in shoving the officer and subsequently siccing the dog on the officer involved two distinct acts flowing from two separate impulses. Trappman v. State, SC2021-1479 (2/8/24)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: "We need not and do not hold that when an offense, such as battery, may be committed by a single blow, that each additional blow laid on results in an additional offense. The test is not whether there are successive blows but whether there are successive impulses. We do not suggest that multiple blows may not spring from a single impulse." PLEA WITHDRAWAL: Defendant is entitled to hearing on motion to withdraw plea where he alleges that all cases were to be resolved, including a misdemeanor, and he was to be released. A defendant's guilty plea is considered involuntary if it is induced by a defense counsel's promise which is not kept. "[I]f Mr. Gillette is correct, the manifest injustice he suffered is the very act of not receiving the bargain to which he agreed." Gillette v. State, 2D22-191 (2/7/24)

PLEA WITHDRAWAL: A limited exception to the rule of striking pro se pleadings as nullities exists where a defendant files a pro se motion to withdraw a plea which contains specific allegations that give rise to an adversarial relationship, such as misadvice, affirmative misrepresentations, or coercion that led to the entry of the plea. MARCHMAN ACT: Petition for Marchman Act commitment is legally insufficient where, rather than focusing on substance abuse, it alleges that the subject is worshipping the Mexican devil, doing witchcraft, going to a grave site, talking to the devil, and not making sense. There is no context or detail . . .such that a reader could conclude there is a good faith reason to believe the conduct—even presuming it is unorthodox--constitutes 'socially dysfunctional behavior' or exhibits 'mental, emotional, or physical problems.'" SPEEDY TRIAL: Postponing prosecution of the charges for which a defendant is initially arrested does not stop the speedy trial clock. Defendant is entitled to a Speedy Trial discharge where Defendant is arrested (but never booked) on an out-of-county warrant for attempted murder, then he is arrested, charged, and convicted for narcotics found on him at the time of that arrest and the attempted murder case stayed on the back burner for years. DEFINITION-"ARREST": "Whether an arrest has occurred for purposes of Florida's speedy trial rule is not as clear as it could be. The word 'arrest' means different things in different circumstances. . .The potential for confusion is exacerbated rather than mitigated by the supreme court's use of adjectives to refer to a 'technical arrest' or a 'formal arrest' as neither term is used in rule 3.191. . .To further complicate matters, the definition of "arrest" in Florida speedy trial jurisprudence differs from the federal speedy trial rule even though both are grounded in the same Sixth Amendment right." Robinson v. State, 5D23-0330 (2/2/24)

DEFINITION-"ARREST": It is uniformly held that an arrest, in the technical and restricted sense of the criminal law, is the apprehension or taking into custody of an alleged offender in order that he or she may be brought into the proper court to answer for a crime. It involves the following elements: (1) A purpose or intention to effect an arrest under a real or pretended authority; (2) An actual or constructive seizure or detention of the person to be arrested by a person having present power to control the person arrested; (3) A communication by arresting officer to the person whose arrest is sought, of an intention or purpose then and there to effect an arrest; and (4) An understanding by the person whose arrest is sought that it is the intention of the arresting officer then and there to arrest and detain him. PROSECUTORIAL MISCONDUCT-ARGUMENT: State's arguments, including that "[W]e see this stuff all the time. We see how these houses are run. We see how the defendants try to outschool the police. Now you see it," is improper. Prosecutor may not give a personal opinion as to the guilt of the accused, nor may he suggest that the government has special knowledge of evidence not presented to jury. Stafford v. PROSECUTORIAL MISCONDUCT-ARGUMENT: "[T]he most egregious of the State's improper comments was a blatant misuse of the otherwise properly admitted Williams rule evidence. . . Despite the trial court's directive, the prosecutors made repeated improper references to the 2019 case during closing argument, not to show knowledge but rather to convince the jury that Stafford was guilty of the same crime a year earlier," such as he 'got away with it in 2019. Don't let him get away with it in 2020.'" Comments were so egregious as to constitute fundamental error. Stafford v. State, 5D23-0485 (2/2/24)

PROSECUTORIAL MISCONDUCT-ARGUMENT: "We find the State's reliance on the strength of the evidence presented at trial unpersuasive because the most egregious statements in closing argument inexcusably distorted the State's most powerful evidence of guilt—the Williams rule evidence. While defense counsel's failure to object to any of thesestatements is incomprehensible, prosecutors are nevertheless required to 'refrain from engaging in inflammatory and abusive arguments, to maintain their objectivity, and to behave in a professional manner.'" COSTS: Court erred In imposing a lump sum of $2,765 in court costs. APPEAL-PRESERVATION: A defendant who pleads nolo contendere with no express reservation of the right to appeal a legally dispositive issue, shall have no right to appeal. CONFLICT-ATTORNEY-APPEAL: Public Defender may not withdraw from appeal absent an allegation that the witness at the trial is a current client. A criminal appeal is a different proceeding, and an imputable conflict present at a criminal trial that justifies withdrawal there does not necessarily translate to an imputable conflict that supports withdrawal in the ensuing appeal. Operation of the conflict rule (R. 4-1.9), governing conlicts of interest relating to a former client, is from the perspective of the former client, the witness. Even if the public defender were currently representing the witness, the motion must explain how representation of the Appellant would be directly adverse to the present representation of the witness and/or created a substantial risk that the representation of the Appellant would be materially limited by the responsibilities to the witness. BOND-MODIFICATION: Court may not impose a new bond or increase the bond based only on the State filing more severe charges than those on which the Defendant had already bonded out. Where there is a substantial increase in the possible penalties a defendant faces based on new charges, the Court may consider altering the conditions of release, but this does not vitiate a defendant's constitutional right to have a neutral magistrate make an initial probable cause determination as to the charges against him. VOP-YOUTHFUL OFFENDER: A youthful offender who commits a substantive violation of probation–a new law offense–may be sentenced to more than six years. Youthful offender on probation for a sex offense found while wearing nothing but boxer shorts while in bed with a fourteen-year-old girl commits a substantive violation of probation. The affidavit need notallege a Condition 5 violation for the offense to be a subtantive violation. The State need not charge and convict a defendant of a new crime to establish a substantive violation of youthful offender probation, so long as the commission of aseparate criminal offense is alleged and shown during revocation proceedings. CLERGY-PENITENT: The clergy-penitent privilege does not apply where Defendant confesses to a large group of specially convened church members The clergy-penitent privilege does not apply where Defendant's admission to accusations of sexual abuse of a minor was initiated for disciplinary reasons and not for spiritual counseling. "[W]e reject the argument that a communication which occurs in a church setting and involves seeking forgiveness automatically qualifies it as having been made 'for the purpose of seeking spiritual counsel and advice' and that it therefore becomes privileged." Asking for forgiveness before a pastor and other church leaders does not mean that the party making the communication was seeking spiritual counsel and advice. State v. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PASSENGER-QUALIFIED IMMUNITY (J. BRANCH, CONCURRING): To overcome a government official's invocation of the defense of qualified immunity, a plaintiff must show (1) that the official violated a constitutional right and (2) that the right was clearly established" at the time of the official's purported misconduct. Officers have qualified immunity from suit for violating the Fourth Amendment by requiring apassenger to identify himself because the right was not clearly established. "That my colleagues vehemently debate the proper application of Brown and Hiibel to the particular facts of this case is an indication that the caselaw does not clearly establish that a constitutional violation occurred." SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PASSENGER (J. WILSON, DISSENTING): Law enforcement officers cannot require, by threat of arrest, that an individual identify himself absent reasonable suspicion of wrongdoing. No exception for passengers in cars exists. EX POST FACTO-SEX OFFENDER-FAILURE TO REGISTER: §943.0435 (since amended) provided that one qualified as a sex offender, and therefore had a duty to register, upon completion of his sentence. The sentence was not completed until the fine was paid (since amended by statute). Defendant who had not paid the fine cannot be convicted for failing to register. The amendment to the statute is not retroactive. State v. Crose, 2D21-2784 (1/26/24)

RECENT CONTROVERSY RULE: The "recent controversy rule" provides that when an amendment to a statute is enacted soon after controversies as to the interpretation of the original act arise, a court may consider that amendment as a legislative interpretation of the original law and not as a substantive change thereof. But "[i]f the recent controversy rule is indeed a tool of statutory interpretation, it seems an inconsistent, and awfully slippery, one to wield." "[W]e believe this common law rule can no longer be aligned within current Florida jurisprudence." "Consulting subsequent legislative amendments in response to recent controversies is no longer a viable basis for construing the meaning of a statute." State v. Crose, 2D21-2784 (1/26/24)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1638876/opinion/Opinion_21-2784.pdf

CONFUSED JURISPRUDENCE: "So in the span of eight years, we have three published decisions from our court that have yielded two split panels, two panels effectively decreeing a prior panel's decision dead letter law, one panel construing the recent controversy rule as discretionary, and another two as quasi mandatory. . . Either the rule is mandatory or it's discretionary; either its operation hinges on subsequent legislation's enactment or on prior legislation's ambiguity; either it truly acts as a tool for clarifying legislative intent or it is, truly, 'retroactivity by another name.'" State v. Crose, 2D21-

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1638876/opinion/Opinion_21-2784.pdf

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: "Traditionally, Florida courts focused their interpretive work on discerning the 'legislative intent' of statutory text. What did the legislature mean when it enacted a particular piece of legislation? . . .Florida case law contains a plethora of rules and extrinsic aids to guide courts in their efforts to discern legislative intent from ambiguously worded statutes. However, [w]hen the language of the statute is clear and unambiguous and conveys a clear and definite meaning, there is no occasion for resorting to the rules of statutory interpretation and construction; the statute must be given its plain and obvious meaning." State v. Crose, 2D21-2784 (1/26/24)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: "[T]he supreme court's marching orders for interpreting legislation have been clear: to derive the meaning of statutes, we are to look to the text itself, as understood in its context, not to any purported intent underlying the text. . .It is not hyperbole to observe that. . .the supreme court's recent embrace of the supremacy-of-text principle constituted a paradigm shift in Florida law." State v. Crose, 2D21-2784 (1/26/24)

METAPHOR OF THE WEEK: "You can use a hammer for all sorts of things, but it's meant for hammering. When the job at hand no longer calls for hammering, you shouldn't reach for that tool. A court using an atextual, intent-centric tool in a supremacy-of-text analysis would be like a homeowner trying to hammer a lightbulb into a socket to gain more illumination." State v. Crose, 2D21-2784 (1/26/24)

SENTENCE OF THE WEEK: "But discerning an articulable and replicable basis for that refrainment—whether because of the span of time between an original enactment and its amendment or the length of years between when a controversy arises and when an amendment is enacted in response to the controversy or the degree of interpretive clarification that's necessary to construe a prior statute—has remained an elusive, and largely unsuccessful, endeavor in Florida case law." JURY INSTRUCTION-EYE WITNESS: Court is not required to instruct the jury to consider whether the witness and the person committing the crime were of different races when considering identification. The 11th Circuit Pattern instructions are sufficient. A district court declining to give a requested jury instruction for which there was a sufficient evidentiary basis is proper if (1) the requested instruction correctly stated the law; (2) the actual charge to the jury did substantially covered the proposed instruction; and (3)

the failure to give the instruction did not substantially impair the defendant's ability to present an effective defense. Court's instruction on evaluating eyewitness identifications does not need to explicitly address every potential problem with eyewitness identifications. USA v. Daniels, No. 22-10498 (1/24/24)

HOBBS ACT ROBBERY-THREAT OF VIOLENCE: The act of brandishing a firearm is sufficient, on its own, to threaten force or violence. EVIDENCE-SUFFICIENCY: An eye witness in one of a string of robberies, mostly of 7-Elevens, is unnecessary where modus operandi evidence suggests that Defendant committed all of them. SEARCH WARRANT: Where the search warrant affidavit showed that CI had purchased cocaine from Defendant, although not at his house, the house had unusually blocked windows, and suspicious phone calls were captured, the statements in the affidavit provided a substantial basis for the search warrant. Even if they did not, the good faith exception applies. State v. Rodriguez Lopez, 2D22-1194 (1/19/24)

PROBABLE CAUSE: Probable cause is a practical, common-sense question. It is the probability of criminal activity, and not a prima facie showing of such activity, which is the standard of probable cause. The determination of probable cause involves factual and practical considerations of everyday life on which reasonable and prudent men, not legal technicians, act. Probable cause does not disappear simply because an innocent explanation may be consistent with the suspicious facts. State v. Rodriguez Lopez, 2D22-1194 (1/19/24)

SEARCH WARRANT-GOOD FAITH: The good faith exception to the exclusionary rule exists where evidence has been seized in reasonable reliance on a warrant issued by a magistrate, even if the affidavit in support of the warrant is later found to have been lacking the requisite probable cause. SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: In determining whether to impose a downward departure, Court must determine whether it can depart, and if so, whether it should depart. The court's statements that its hands were tied and that the scoresheet prevented the court from departing establish that the court mistakenly believed it could not depart. The court's statement, that there was "nothing really brought forward . . . that would be a legal justification" to depart, is unclear and does not cure the misconception evinced by the first statements. CONSTITUTIONALITY-COMMERCE CLAUSE: 18 U.S.C. § 231(a)(3), which prohibits impeding law enforcement officers during a civil disorder affecting interstate commerce, is constitutional under the Commerce Clause. The jurisdictional element of interstate commerce need not link directly to the criminalized act itself as long as the object of the criminal act is sufficiently connected to interstate commerce. CONSTITUTIONALITY-FIRST AMENDMENT: 18 U.S.C. § 231(a)(3), which prohibits impeding law enforcement officers during a civil disorder affecting interstate commerce, is constitutional under First Amendment. "Obstruct" means "to block." "One cannot block a fireman or law enforcement officer with speech alone." "It is hard to see how either 'obstruct' or 'impede' apply to speech or expressive conduct, except at the margins." ATTORNEY-DISCIPLINE: "[T]he requirement of providing zealous representation is not a sword to wield as an excuse to otherwise engage in misconduct." The Florida Bar v. Schwartz, SC 2019-0983 (1/18/24)

FELONY MURDER-ALTERNATIVE THEORIES: A true inconsistent verdict occurs when the acquittal of one charge negates an element of another. The existence of a valid alternative legal theory does not save a true inconsistent verdict when the issue is preserved. Where the evidence supported two valid alternative theories of first-degree murder (premeditated murder and felony murder during a robbery), Defendant's conviction on the lesser of misdemenor petit theft does not make the murder verdict truly inconsistent. "[I]t is illogical to conclude that despite the arguments and jury instructions defining felony murder exclusively in terms of a robbery or attempted robbery, the jurors mistakenly believed he could be convicted of felony murder based on the underlying offense of theft." Profit v. State, 1D2021-3588 (1/17/24)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Failure to move for an arrested verdict on grounds of an inconsistent verdict fails where the verdict was not truly inconsistent. HEARSAY-STATE OF MIND: Testimony by witness that the victim had said,

"[H]e's not here, and when I see him, I'm going to kick his ass," is admissible under the state of mind exception to the hearsay rule. The state of mind exception does not typically authorize admission of a victim's statement in a murder case because the victim's state of mind is not usually at issue; but where a defendant is claiming self-defense, the victim's state of mind becomes relevant and thus can be admissible. However, it may be excluded if remote (made two weeks earlier). Sigismondi v. State, 2D21-2391 (1/12/24)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: In order to be preserved for further review by a higher court, an issue must be presented to the lower court and the specific legal argument or ground to be argued on appeal or review must be part of that presentation if it is to be considered preserved. Defendant failed to preserve the issue of the exclusion of the evidence of the victim's state of mind where Defendant did not challenge the basis of the exclusion–the remoteness of the evidence. Sigismondi v. State, 2D21-2391 (1/12/24)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Court's failure to properly apply the two-part test for a downward departure, application of a general policy of not granting a downward departure, and reliance on improper sentencing factors constitute due process violations resulting in fundamental error. A rule 3.800(b) motion is not required, and in fact is an improper mechanism to preserve these issues. Geske v. State, 2D22-729 (1/12/24)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1525130/opinion/Opinion_22-0729.pdf

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1525130/opinion/Opinion_22-0729.pdf

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1525130/opinion/Opinion_22-0729.pdf

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS-REMORSE: Consideration of remorse, or absence of it, is an appropriate consideration at sentencing. Geske v. State, 2D22-729 (1/12/24)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1525130/opinion/Opinion_22-0729.pdf

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Equity sentencing analysis is not a valid basis for a downward departure. A downward departure sentence based on comparison with cases of similarly situated defendants is not supported by competent, substantial evidence where the record failed to show that the trial court was aware of the particular facts and circumstances surrounding those cases. Brooks v. State, 2D22-3753 (1/12/24)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1525132/opinion/Opinion_22-3753.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: When a defendant asserts that counsel was ineffective for interfering with his right to testify, the postconviction court must consider 1) whether the defendant voluntarily agreed with counsel not to testify in his own defense and 2) whether counsel's advice was deficient because no reasonable attorney would have discouraged' the defendant from testifying. Defendant is entitled to a hearing where he claimed that he was present but did not participate in the shooting, and physical evidence only showed his presence. Bynum v. State, 2D23-1144 (1/12/24)

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS-FIREARM: Court may not rely on a defendant's lawful firearm possession in sentencing him. Courts deprive defendants of due process when they rely on uncharged and unproven conduct during sentencing, and this principle holds especially true where the uncharged conduct is the lawful exercise of a constitutional right. Both the Florida and federal constitutions guarantee the fundamental, preexisting right to keep and bear arms. Nelson v. State, 5D22-0703 (1/12/24)

SKEPTICISM: "[F]ollowing the court's statement that "'w]hat hurts you most, Mr. Nelson, was . . . the photographs of the guns,' the court declared, I did not take that into account.' We are not persuaded. . .The court's statements indicate that it may have relied upon Nelson's lawful firearm possession in imposing his sentence, and the State has failed to carry its burden to show otherwise. . .At best, the State has shown that the court made two contradictory statements: one that it took the firearm possession into account, and one that it did not. That showing does not suffice." Nelson v. State, 5D22-0703 (1/12/24)

ABANDONMENT-JURY INSTRUCTION: Florida recognizes the affirmative defense of abandonment. In order to constitute a defense, the abandonment must be complete and voluntary. Defendant was not entitled to an abandonment instruction when he left the bag of stolen merchandise behind when he made eye contact with the store manager and left[3]. Anderson v.

JURY INSTRUCTION-PROPOSED (J. EISNAUGLE): By rule, parties should submit requested jury instructions in writing. In the absence of a clear request for specific language, an appellate court cannot discern whether the requested instruction was a correct statement of the law and not misleading or confusing. "It is not this court's responsibility to fill in the blanks for Appellant, nor is the trial court required to craft language for a party's special instruction." Anderson v. STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS: Prosecution is not barred for burglary where the statute of limitations has expired if the identity of the accused is established through the analysis of of DNA evidence, if a sufficient portion of the evidence collected at the time of the original investigation and tested for DNA is preserved and available for testing by the accused. But State must present competent substantial evidence that a sufficient portion of the DNA is preserved. Testimony from the detective that he had not authorized destruction of the DNA is insufficient. Bowers v. State, 5D23-2930 (1/12/24)

FIRST AMENDMENT-RETALIATION: First Amendment bars governor from suspending an elected officer (State Attorney) based on his protected First Amendment statements (on abortion, trans-gender care, capital punishment, and free elections). The political benefit of "bringing down a reform prosecutor" may not be the controlling motivation for the suspension. Warren v. DeSantis, No. 23-10459 (1/11/24)

FIRST AMENDMENT-RETALIATION: The First Amendment prohibits government officials from subjecting an individual to retaliatory actions for engaging in protected speech. A plaintiff must show three elements: (1) he engaged in protected activity, (2) he suffered an adverse action, and (3) a causal connection exists between the protected activity and the adverse action. If the plaintiff shows all three, then the government official has a chance to present a "same-decision defense," i.e., that he would have made the same decision even if the plaintiff never engaged in protected activity. FIRST AMENDMENT-RETALIATION: "[I]f a government actor's controlling motivation behind an adverse action is gaining political benefit from punishing protected activity, the government actor flouts the First Amendment. . .The First Amendment prevents DeSantis from identifying a reform prosecutor and then suspending him to garner political benefit. DEMOCRACY: Elected officials do not exercise a significant degree of control over other elected officials. Rather, the electorate controls elected officials and disciplines them by withholding votes if it disapproves of their performance. Governors do not exercise a significant degree of control over state attorneys. Warren v. DeSantis, No. 23-10459 (1/11/24)

DEMOCRACY: "Voters elected Warren; DeSantis did not appoint him. If alignment with DeSantis's political preferences were an appropriate requirement to perform the state attorney's duties, there would be little point in local elections open to candidates across the political spectrum. . . The First Amendment thus protects Warren's political affiliations." Warren v. DeSantis, No. 23-10459 (1/11/24)

FIRST AMENDMENT (J. NEWSOM, CONCURRING): "Bottom line: The Supreme Court has made clear—for reasons that cut to the core of our representative democracy—that the First Amendment safeguards elected officials' right to express their views on salient political issues. FIRST AMENDMENT (J. NEWSOM, CONCURRING): "The First Amendment is an inconvenient thing. It protects expression that some find wrongheaded, or offensive, or even ridiculous. But for the same reason that the government can't muzzle so-called 'conservative' speech. . ., the state can't exercise its coercive power to censor so-called 'woke' speech with which it disagrees. What's good for mine is (whether I like it or not) good for thine." Warren v. DeSantis, No. 23-10459 (1/11/24)

DISORDERLY CONDUCT-QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: Yelling, cursing, and making obscene gestures toward police officers (grabbing one's crotch), without more, does not amount to probable cause for a disorderly conduct arrest. The mere fact that other people come outside or stop to watch what is going on is insufficient to support a conviction for disorderly conduct. The arresting officers should have known this, so they are not entitled to qualified immunity. McDonough v. Garcia, No. 22-11421 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)

CYBERSTALKING: Posting a link on YouTube calling an officer a "frigging coward," a "slipttail [sic]," and a "giant twat," and threatening to release his address is cyberstalking. Disseminating a target's address, in conjunction with other evidence that the speaker intends harm to befall the target, can amount to such a threat. McDonough v. FREE SPEECH: Barring disruptive citizen from future city council meetings violates the First Amendment. "The histories of First Amendment public forum doctrines. . .are jagged, and they lead us to the somewhat uncomfortable conclusion that. . . a city council meeting. . .is a designated public forum." PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE: The prior panel precedent rule directs that each succeeding panel is bound by the holding of the first panel to address an issue of law, unless and until that holding is overruled en banc, or by the Supreme Court." But "all of our not-quite-reconcilable precedents [on free speech at a city council meeting] are not-quite-overruled. HEARSAY-IDENTIFICATION: The testimony that one of the victims identified Defendant as the shooter is a statement of identification, not hearsay. McKenzie v. State, 1D2022-2232 (1/10/24)

HEARSAY: The statement that Defendant intended to go to a cell phone store was not offered for truth of the matter asserted, and so it was not hearsay. McKenzie v. State, 1D2022-2232 (1/10/24)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1518341/opinion/Opinion_2022-2232.pdf

HEARSAY-EXCITED UTTERANCE: In attempted murder case, the statement made by one of the victims while Defendant loaded his firearm was properly admitted under the excited utterance exception to the hearsay rule. McKenzie v. State, 1D2022-2232 (1/10/24)

SINGLE DEATH RULE-EX POST FACTO: Applying a judicial opinion does not generally constitute a violation of the prohibition on ex post facto laws. Applying Maisonet Maldonado, which abrogated the single homicide rule, does not violate Ex Post Facto. The holding was neither unforeseeable nor indefensible. State v. Dashner, 4D2022-1883 (1/10/24)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: Defendant may not assert on appeal that the Best Evidence Rule was violated where his trial objection was only on the grounds that it was improper opinion testimony interpreting a recording that was in evidence. Bailes v. State, 4D2022-1988 (1/10/24)

SENTENCING-VICTIMS' LETTERS: Error, if any, in Court considering unsworn victims' letters is not fundamental. It is debatable whether a court's acceptance of an unsworn victim statement is error at all. Bailes v. State, 4D2022-1988 (1/10/24)

SENTENCING-VICTIM INJURIES: Assessment of victim injury points is reviewed for an abuse of discretion. Defendant waived any challenge to the victim injury points during the sentencing hearing when defense counsel stated that she had no objection to the scoresheet. No jury finding is required as to victim injury points. The scoring of victim injury points establishes the lowest permissible sentence, but it is not a fact which increases a mandatory minimum sentence. Bailes v. State, 4D2022-1988 (1/10/24)

VFOSC: A "new felony conviction" (24 points) for a violent felony offender of special concern does not apply when it was entered after the Court had determined that Defendant had violated his probation. A new scoresheet is required, but not a new sentencing hearing. Court would have imposed the same sentence. Borges v. State, 4D2022-2177 (1/10/24)

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: Under AEDPA, federal habeas corpus relief is only available where the state court's decision is so obviously wrong that its error lies 'beyond any possibility for fairminded disagreement. Trial court's finding that the Strickland prejudice standard was not met by counsel's failure to impeach a witness by his probationary standard is not unreasonable. Mungin v. Secretary, Florida DOC, No. 22-13616 (11th Cir. 1/8/24)

statute of limitations clock starts running when there is a new constitutional right at issue, the state court conviction becomes final, or the date on which the factual predicate of the claim or claims presented could have been discovered by due diligence. Mungin v. Secretary, Florida DOC, No. 22-13616 (11th Cir. 1/8/24)

HABEAS CORPUS-STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS-RELATION BACK: A new claim added to an already filed habeas petition may not be filed after the one-year time limitation has expired, is filed. "Relation back is allowed when the amendment asserts a claim or defense that arose out of the conduct, transaction, or occurrence set out—or attempted to be set out—in the original pleading. But a new claim does not relate back simply because both the original petition and the amended pleading arose from the same trial and conviction. A new claim of counsel's failure to investigate does not relate back. In the habeas context, a new ineffective assistance of counsel claim must relate to the specific facts underlying an already raised claim in the original pleading. Mungin v. Secretary, Florida DOC, No. 22-13616 (11th Cir. 1/8/24)

ARREST-SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY: Officer lacks sovereign immunity for entering Plaintiff's home and arresting him without a warrant. The Constitution generally requires that officers obtain judicial warrants before entering a home without permission. One has the right to be free from a warrantless arrest in his parents' home absent exigent circumstances. The Fourth Amendment has drawn a firm line at the entrance to the house. Absent exigent circumstances, that threshold may not reasonably be crossed without a warrant. Police officers need either a warrant or probable cause plus exigent circumstances in order to make a lawful entry into a home. Bailey v,

DEFINITION-"INITIATE": "Initiate" means "to begin, commence, enter upon; to introduce, set going, give rise to, originate." It also means "start." Bailey v, Swindell, No. 21-14454 (11h Cir. 1/8/24)

REVERSE BRIAN'S SONG: A prison official's deliberate indifference to a known, substantial risk of serious harm to an inmate that causes serious harm to that inmate violates the Fourteenth Amendment. Where jail officials assigned as cell mates a white prisoner and a black prisoner who had been arrested for stabbing a white store clerk because he wanted to stab a white guy, and the latter strangles to death the former, the officials may be sued. Nelson v. Tompkins, No. 22-14205 (11th Cir. 1/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202214205.pdf

PROSTITUTION-PIMPING: Criminal liability for recruiting, enticing, harboring, transporting, providing, obtaining, advertising, maintaining, patronizing, or soliciting by any means a person—if the defendant knows that the minor will be caused to engage in a commercial sex act under §1591 is not conditioned on the actual occurrence of any commercial sex act. Rather, a defendant need only put the victim in a position where a sex act could occur, regardless of whether a sex act eventually did occur. USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24)

incidentally to a sexual encounter is insufficient. Specific intent does not require that the defendant be "single-minded in his purpose. The government is not required to prove that making explicit photographs was the sole or primary purpose. USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914969.pdf

PRODUCTION OF CHILD PORN-INTENT (J. JORDAN, DISSENTING): "The court reasons that a jury could reasonably infer from the pause in the middle of intercourse that, for at least some fraction of the time, Mr. Gatlin was engaged in sexual conduct with E.H. partly for the purpose of recording it. I'm not so sure. . .The government's theory. . .seems to have been that the mere taking of the photograph established Mr. Gatlin's antecedent purpose to produce child pornography. . .That theory is, in my view, legally unsound." USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914969.pdf

WITNESS TAMPERING: For witness tampering, Government must prove that the defendant had the intent to mislead law enforcement in general and that there was a reasonable likelihood that relevant communication would have been made to a federal officer. The likelihood of communication to a federal officer must be more than remote, outlandish, or simply hypothetical. Trying to get a witness to recant to the Defendant's state court public defender when federal charges are not yet pending is not federal witness tampering. The fact that the FBI actually received the recanted statement does not establish that it was reasonably likely that the communication would reach a federal officer. USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24)

JURY-VERDICT-DOUBLE JEOPARDY-DELIBERATION: Court did not err in ordering jury to continue deliberation after it rendered an inconsistent verdict (Guilty, but without the necessary special findings to support the verdict). Double jeopardy does not apply because the Court had not accepted the verdict before clarifying instructions and sending the jury back for continued deliberation. USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914969.pdf

INCONSISTENT VERDICTS: Inconsistency between verdicts on different counts does not form an independent basis for review. A conflicting finding by the jury on two counts can equally reflect a mistake, compromise, or lenity. Where such a verdict reflects jury lenity, it may be the jury performing its historic function as a check against arbitrary or oppressive exercises of power by the Executive Branch. USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914969.pdf

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-SUPERVISORY CONTROL: Minor's pimp is subject to the supervisory control enhancement to the sentencing guidelines. (§2G1.3). The guideline commentary mentions "teachers, day care providers, baby-sitters, or other temporary caretakers." But court must consider the actual relationship instead of just the legal status between the defendant and the victim. Stating that a child is in a person's care is simply to say the person is responsible for looking after the child's well being. So it applies to pimps. USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914969.pdf

SENTENCING-REASONABLENESS: Life sentence for minor's pimp is not substantively unreasonable. USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914969.pdf

RESTITUTION: Apprendi does not apply to the imposition of restitution because the restitution statute does not have a prescribed statutory maximum. USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914969.pdf

RESTITUTION: A sentencing court that misses the 90-day deadline

nonetheless retains the power to order restitution if it made clear prior to the deadline's expiration that it would do. "Restitution shall be ordered" is sufficient. USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914969.pdf

RESTITUTION: Evidence used to estimate a restitution total need not be sworn; it merely must bear 'sufficient indicia of reliability to support its probable accuracy. Court may consider hearsay in forming the order of restitution. Court may accept a reasonable estimate of the amount of restitution, and the restitution amount may be approximated. USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914969.pdf

RESTITUTION-INDUCING PROSTITUTION: Restitution for promoting prostitution may be determined by estimates of amounts charged (See opinion for going rates by act, duration, and location). USA v. Gatlin, No. 19-14969 (11th Cir. 1/5/24)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914969.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Given the absence of any time limitation for filing a R 3.800(a) motion, and the unavailability of an evidentiary hearing, the burden is on the movant to demonstrate that the trial court's error and the defendant's entitlement to relief are apparent from the face of the record. VFOSC: In order to sentence Defendant as a violent felony offender of special concern, Court must make written findings that Defendant poses a danger to the community. Henriquez v. State, 4D2022-0242 (1/3/24)

JURY READ-BACK: Trial judges have broad discretion in deciding whether to read back testimony. Simmons v. State, 4D2022-1729 (1/3/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1444168/opinion/Opinion_2022-1729.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-WARRANTLESS ARREST: Where officer's responded to reports of a disorderly person with a knife, but did not personally observe disorderly conduct, arrest is unlawful and cocaine in the Defendsnt's pocket should have been suppressed. To make a warrantless arrest for a misdemeanor, all elements of the offense must occur in the police officer's presence or have been personally observed by a fellow law enforcement officer. Carlo v. State, 4D2022-2040 (1/3/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1444169/opinion/Opinion_2022-2040.pdf

SCORESHEET-OUT OF STATE CONVICTIONS: Only the elements of the out-of-state crime should be considered in determining whether the conviction is analogous to a Florida statute for the purpose of calculating points for a sentencing guidelines scoresheet. When the scoring of an out-of-state conviction is contested, the trial court may consider the out-of-state judgment entered, and if necessary, the charging document. Ohio's robbery statue is analogous, and even if it were not, the trial court would have imposed the same sentences Taylor v. State, 4D2022-2291 (1/3/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1443929/opinion/Opinion_2022-2291.pdf

UNANIMOUS VERDICT: Where Defendant allegedly sold stolen power tools to a pawn shop in two separate sales on two separate days, and State told jury that it could convict him on either sale, verdict is not unanimous. Error is fundamental. Parsons v. State, 4D2023-0680 (1/5/24) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1453600/opinion/Opinion_2023-0680.pdf

ARGUMENT: States argument to jury that Defendant had "dragged" certain individuals, including his relatives, into trial to testify is improper. Parsons v. State, 4D2023-0680 (1/5/24)

SEARCH WARRANT-AFFIDAVIT: Probable cause is a fluid concept that turns on probability assessments made in context and is not restricted by a neat set of legal rules. An affidavit in which no single piece of evidence is conclusive but where the pieces fit neatly together and, so viewed, support the determination that there was a fair probability that Defendant committed the crime is sufficient. Court should not dissect the affidavit and scrutinize each part in isolation. That piecemeal analysis runs afoul of the totality-of-the circumstances approach. State v. Freeman, 6D23-310 (1/2/24)

JURY INSTRUCTION-SELF-DEFENSE-FORCIBLE FELONY INSTRUCTION: Court erred in giving the forcible-felony exception to the justifiable use of nondeadly force instruction ("The use of non-deadly force is not justified if you find that [Mr. Daniels] was attempting to commit, committing, or escaping after the commission of an Aggravated Battery.). The forcible-felony exception to a claim of self-defense applies only when there is a forcible felony independent of the one which the defendant claims he or she committed in self-defense. Showing up late at night at your live-in girl friend's house with another woman is not a forcible felony. Daniels v. State, 2D22-3296 (12/29/23)
http://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1412716/opinion/Opinion_22-3296.pdf

JURY INSTRUCTION-ACQUIESCENCE-FUNDAMENTAL ERROR: "[W]hat constitutes mere acquiescence versus an affirmative agreement has not been fully defined by case law. Instead, the determination is akin to the approach taken by Justice Potter Stewart ["I know it when I see it."]." It is mere acquiescence, not an affirmative agreement, where, as here, there is no suggestion that counsel requested the inappropriate jury instruction or was aware the instruction was incorrect but agreed anyway. New trial required. Daniels v. State, 2D22-3296 (12/29/23)

EVIDENCE-NOTICE: In Defendant's murder/conspiracy trial, evidence that five years later Defendant plotted to murder a witness is not part of the murder or conspiracy itself. It is extrinsic evidence. Written notice is required under R. 404(b)(3). But error was harmless because the Government's pretrial brief alerted Defendant to the expected testimony. USA v. Fey, et. al, No. 22-11373 (11th Cir. 12/28/23)

JURY INSTRUCTION-SPOLIATION: Defendant charged with murdering an informant by intentionally injecting her with a lethal dose of methamphetamine and fentanyl is not entitled to a spoliation of evidence instruction when tissue samples were destroyed after medical officer deemed the overdose accidental. "We have never ruled that a spoliation instruction should be given in a criminal trial; we have affirmed its use only in civil cases. . . [Even if it could be given in a criminal trial, the instruction is required only when the absence of material evidence is predicated on bad faith." USA v. EVIDENCE: Where Defendant is charged with murdering an informant by intentionally injecting her with a lethal dose of methamphetamine and fentanyl, officer's testimony that a witness was unavailable because he had

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS: Prosecution is deemed to have commenced when an information is filed, provided the capias, summons, or other process is executed without unreasonable delay. In evaluating whether a delay in execution is reasonable, inability to locate the defendant after diligent search from the state shall be considered. §775.15(4)(b). The period of limitation does not run during any time when the defendant has no reasonably ascertainable place of abode or work within the state. §775.15(5), But each subsection operates independently from the other. Where Defendant does not have a reasonably ascertainable place of abode or work, regardless of whether a diligent search occurred, the statue of limitations is not tolled. Whittamore v. WRIT OF PROHIBITION: Prohibition is an extraordinary remedy employed only when necessary to prevent courts from acting where there is no jurisdiction to act (rather than to prevent an erroneous exercise of jurisdiction). This discretionary writ is narrow and to be issued by Florida courts with great caution and only in emergencies where there is no other appropriate and adequate legal remedy. Whittamore v. State, 5D23-3126 (12/21/23) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1351572/opinion/Opinion_23-3126.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-HIGH WATERS: Right-of-approach questioning is authorized by international law and can be conducted by law enforcement in international waters as a matter of course to ascertain the nationality of a vessel. USA v. Acosta Hurtado, No. 21-12702 (11th Cir. 12/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112702.pdf

JURISDICTION-HIGH SEAS: A vessel is subject to the jurisdiction of the United States if it is a vessel without nationality or a vessel registered in a foreign nation if that nation has consented or waived objection to the enforcement of United States law. A person charged with violating the Maritime Drug Law Enforcement Act (MDLEA) does not have standing to raise a claim of failure to comply with international law; only a foreign nation may assert it. USA v. Acosta Hurtado, No. 21-12702 (11th Cir. 12/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112702.pdf

JURISDICTION-HIGH SEAS: "We do not patrol the world's oceans, asserting jurisdiction over wrongdoers wherever they may be found regardless of citizenship or flag of nationality. . .To do so would create an untenable fish-eat-fish environment." But "limiting our Coast Guard to only patrolling United States waters or approaching only vessels flying the United States flag—risks transforming international waters into aquatic avenues for piracy, and illegal smuggling of illicit drugs, weapons, and humans. USA v. Acosta Hurtado,

No. 21-12702 (11th Cir. 12/20/23)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: The Fourth Amendment does not apply to people who are not United States citizens or resident aliens and who are searched or seized by United States law enforcement outside the United States. USA v. Acosta Hurtado, No. 21-12702 (11th Cir. 12/20/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112702.pdf

DICTA/HOLDING: "Our circuit law is rock-solid and clear as a mountain stream that the only statements in, or parts of, an opinion that are holdings are those that are necessary to the result of the decision that the opinion accompanies." Statements that are not necessary to the result are dicta. "And neither we nor anyone else is required to follow dicta, not even a few steps down the decisional path." USA v. Acosta Hurtado, No. 21-12702 (11th Cir. 12/20/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112702.pdf

DICTA/PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE: Under the prior panel precedent rule, each succeeding panel is bound by the holding of the first panel to address an issue of law, unless and until that holding is overruled en banc, or by the Supreme Court. This is true even of erroneous precedent. However, the Tinoco decision, which erroneously, or needlessly, conducted a Fourth Amendment analysis should not be followed because it is dicta, not a holding. "This Court should continue to apply the Supreme Court's Verdugo-Urquidez decision as though there was no holding in the Tinoco case about whether Fourth Amendment protections apply to foreign crew aboard foreign vessels in international waters. Which there wasn't." USA v. Acosta Hurtado, No. 21-12702 (11th Cir. 12/20/23)

UNECESSARY DELAY: To establish a violation of a defendant's Fifth Amendment rights, the defendant must show that pre-indictment delay caused him actual substantial prejudice and that the delay was the product of a deliberate act by the government designed to gain a tactical advantage. A delay of a month and a half before bringing the detained drug smuggling crew to shore for arrest–their unseaworthy ship had sunk after the bales of cocaine were found–was not unlawful. USA v. Acosta Hurtado, No. 21-12702 (11th Cir. 12/20/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112702.pdf

OUTRAGE0US CONDUCT DEFENSE: In theory, the outrageous government conduct defense exists only when law enforcement somehow causes the defendant to engage in criminal conduct in a way that violates that fundamental fairness, shocking to the universal sense of justice, mandated by the due process clause of the fifth amendment. "Outrageous conduct is only a potential defense in this circuit because neither the Supreme Court nor this Court has ever found it to actually apply." Like Sasquatch, its actual existence has never been confirmed. "Acosta Hurtado has not found Sasquatch, or—more appropriately here—the Kraken." USA v. Acosta Hurtado, No. 21-12702 (11th Cir. 12/20/23)

WILLFULNESS: To prove willfulness for violating export control laws, prosecutors may present evidence that the United States engaged in affirmative efforts to warn the defendant of the regulatory requirement he later violated or that the defendant's conduct indicated that he knew of the fact that a regulation or statute prohibited his conduct at the time he engaged in it. USA v. Solis, No. 22-10256 (11th Cir. 12/20/23)

EVIDENCE-OPINION: An expert may not opine that a Defendant broke the law or did an act knowingly. An expert witness must not state an opinion about whether the defendant did or did not have a mental state or condition that constitutes an element of the crime charged or of a defense. An expert witness can give his opinion about an ultimate issue so long as he does not tell the jury what result to reach. Witness's testimony that he had never seen a case with "this level of willfulness" was improper but unobjected, and not plain error. USA v. Solis, No. 22-10256 (11th Cir. 12/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210256.pdf

OPENING THE DOOR-OPINION: Defendant opened the door to Government asking the witness to compare Defendant's willfulness with his experience in other cases by asking whether he could charged Defendant with civil penalties instead of criminal penalties. USA v. Solis, No. 22-10256 (11th Cir. 12/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210256.pdf

SENTENCING GUIDELINES-EXPORT CONTROL: The base level guidelines calculation for a defendant convicted of violation of export control laws by selling closed circuit rebreathers (scuba gear which does not emit bubbles) to Libya without a license, should not have 2M5.2(a)(1) (base level 26), but rather §2M5.1(a)(1). The former applies to exportation of military equipment. The latter applies to the export of ordinary commercial goods or dual-use goods (which may have military applications). But error is harmless because the latter still increases the base level to 26 because the offense involved a financial transaction with a country supporting international terrorism. USA v. Solis, No. 22-10256 (11th Cir. 12/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210256.pdf

SENTENCING-SUBSTANTIVE REASONABLENESS: Although a district court must avoid unwarranted sentence disparities among similarly situated defendants, a well-founded claim of disparity assumes that apples are being compared to apples. COSTS: $2 cost for criminal justice education is proper despite the trial court citing to the wrong local ordinance in the written order. There can be no prejudice where the ordinance exists. Getzlaff v. State, 1D2022-2952 (12/20/23)

TWELVE PERSON JURY-CAPITAL FELONY: All capital cases shall be tried by twelve-person juries, and all other criminal cases shall be tried by six-person juries. While the crime of sexual battery upon a child is labelled a capital felony, it was not a capital case prior to October 1, 2023. The punishment in effect at the time of the crime controls the penalty at sentencing. Morales-Alaffita v. State, 2D22-1653 (12/20/23)

SYNTHETIC MARIJUANA: Tetrahydrocannabinol ("THC") derived from the flowers or stems of a cannabis plant does not qualify as a "synthetic cannabinoid." "Synthetic" means "[n]ot natural or genuine." So cereal bars with THC in them, which may have come from genuine marijuana, cannot sustain a conviction for trafficking in 25 and 2,000 pounds of synthetic cannabinoids (editorial note: That's a lot of cereal bars!). State v. Arshadnia, 3D22-524 (12/20/23)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: Courts should presume that the legislature says in a statute what it means and means what it says, even if it "requires an excursion through a maze of dense statutory language that appears, at first blush, nearly impenetrable." State v. Arshadnia, 3D22-524 (12/20/23)

MANDATORY MINIMUM: Where jury found that during the course of the commission of an enumerated felony the Defendant discharged a firearm resulting in the death or great bodily harm upon any person, the convicted person shall be sentenced to a minimum term of imprisonment of between 25 years and life. Bailey v. State, 3D23-1759 (12/20/23)

JOA-MURDER: Where Defendant is convicted of hiring a hitman to fake a home invasion and shoot his wife in bed, direct testimony, notwithstanding prior inconsistent statements by the witnesses, do not support a judgment of acquittal. A prior inconsistent statement is not substantive evidence of guilt and standing alone is insufficient to sustain a conviction without corroborating evidence, but direct trial testimony is. A witness's statements at trial may still sustain a conviction even if the witness admitted to previously lying during an investigation. Jenkins v. State, 4D2022-1423 (12/20/23)

COSTS-PROSECUTION: The cost of prosecution cannot be less than $100 if a felony offense is charged, including a proceeding in which the underlying offense is a violation of probation or community control. The State must request the cost of prosecution if it is higher than the statutory minimum. Cabrera v. State, 4D2022-3105 (12/20/23)

FEDERAL REMOVAL-FORMER OFFICIALS: The federal-officer removal statute, 28 U.S.C. §1442(a)(1), protects an officer of the United States from having to answer for his official conduct in a state court. It provides a right of removal to federal court if a defendant proves that he is a federal officer, his conduct underlying the suit was performed under color of federal office, and he has a colorable federal defense. It does not apply to former federal officers, and even if it did, Defendant's participation in an alleged conspiracy to overturn a presidential election was not related to his official duties. State of Georgia v. Meadows, No. 23-12958 (11th Cir. 12/18/23)

FEDERAL REMOVAL-ELECTION CONSPIRACY: Participation in a conspiracy to overturn an election by a person holding office is not acting under color of office. The "color of office" element requires acts to be done "in enforcement of federal law." Conspiring to overturn a democratic election is not authorized by the law of the United States. "We cannot rubber stamp Meadows's legal opinion that the President's chief of staff has unfettered authority." The White House Chief of Staff has no role in supervising state elections. State of Georgia v. Meadows, No. 23-12958 (11th Cir. 12/18/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202312958.pdf

HATCH ACT: The Hatch Act applies to the President and his Chief of Staff. The Hatch Act limits a federal officer's electioneering. "Meadows cannot have it both ways. He cannot shelter behind his testimony about the breadth of his official responsibilities, while disclaiming his admissions that he understood electioneering activity to be out of bounds. . .[He recognized] that such activities were forbidden to him as chief of staff." State of Georgia v. Meadows, No. 23-12958 (11th Cir. 12/18/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202312958.pdf

ELECTION INTERFERENCE: "Neither the Constitution. . ., nor any federal statute, nor any precedent permits the President's chief of staff to oversee, disrupt, or change the state results of presidential elections. . .At bottom, whatever the chief of staffs role with respect to state election administration, that role does not include altering valid election results in favor of a particular candidate." State of Georgia v. Meadows, No. 23-12958 (11th Cir. 12/18/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202312958.pdf

FEDERAL REMOVAL (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "[F]oreclosing removal when states prosecute former federal officers simply for performing their official duties can allow a rogue state's weaponization of the prosecution power to go unchecked and fester. . .This nightmare scenario keeps me up at night. In my view, not extending the federal-officer removal statute to former officers for prosecutions based on their official actions during their tenure is bad policy, and it represents a potential threat to our republic's stability." "I respectfully urge Congress to amend Section 1422(a)(1) to protect former federal officers." State of Georgia v. Meadows, No. 23-12958 (11th Cir. 12/18/23)

JUDGE-ROLE: A judge must not independently investigate facts in a case and must consider only the evidence presented. Likewise, a court is not authorized to become a party's advocate and raise a legal issue sua sponte. State v. Reddin, 2D22-3853 (12/15/23)

PLEA-WITHDRAWAL: Once a defendant indicates his desire to avail himself of the rule 3.170(l) procedure to withdraw his plea, the trial court must

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: A court summarily denying a R. 3.801 motion must attach portions of the record that conclusively refute it. Hurlburt v. State, 5D23-2454 (12/15/23)

TIME TRAVEL: Time travel has long been popular in literature and pop culture, c.f. H.G. Wells's The Time Machine; Quantum Leap; Shakespeare's The Tragedy of MacBeth ("If you can look into the seeds of time."). "Every once in a while, the possibility of going back in time becomes a reality in law, and courts are faced with trying to figure out how an alternative legal reality would have played out in the past." USA v. McCoy, No. 21-13838 (12/14/23)

FIRST STEP ACT: §404(b) of the First Step Act gives a defendant an opportunity to go back and avail himself of reduced statutory penalties for crack cocaine offenses that were implemented after the sentences became final as if they applied at the time of the commission of the offense, but a defendant may not challenge a drug-quantity finding made at his original sentencing on the ground that he would have disputed the calculation had he known then that the statutory sentencing thresholds would be lowered in the future. A movant cannot relitigate factual predicates for sentencing enhancements in a First Step Act motion "[H]e is bound by ink past spilled." USA v. McCoy, No. 21-13838 (12/14/23)

DUE PROCESS: "[D]ue process [does not] require[] that a defendant receive notice at the time of sentencing of how hypothetical, future, and ameliorative criminal legislation might affect his rights, even though the terms of such legislation are then unknown. INDUCING MINOR INTO PROSTITUTION: Defendant may be found guilty of inducing minor to engage in prostitution for having paid sex with a minor who was already working as a prostitute. The fact that she had already engaged in prostitution does not mean that she, by definition, could not be persuaded, induced, enticed, or coerced into doing the same at a later point. Her willingness to engage in prostitution was not proof that she was incapable of being persuaded to do so. USA v. Kincherlow, No. 22-11980 (12/13/23)

INDUCING MINOR INTO PROSTITUTION: Offering or agreeing to pay money in exchange for engaging in various sex acts qualifies as inducement. Acts of prostitution, especially by minors, are not naturally occurring, spontaneous events. USA v. Kincherlow, No. 22-11980 (12/13/23)

COSTS-CITATION-STARE DECISIS: A citation to the applicable ordinances in the written order is not required for the imposition of municipal ordinance costs. DUE PROCESS MINIMIZED: The requirement to disclose the authority for the imposition of each cost is based in due process, but due process is flexible and calls for only such procedural protections as the particular situation demands. The requirements of due process of law are not technical, nor is any particular form of procedure necessary. The very nature of due process negates any concept of inflexible procedures universally applicable to every imaginable situation. King v. State, 5D21-2985 (12/7/23)

DUE PROCESS-HUH?: "[G]iven our conclusion that the requirement for a citation to authority is based on due process, we reject any technical requirement that citation to local authority must always appear in every written cost order. While a citation in the written order might be the best practice, due process is satisfied, and appellate review possible, when there is citation to authority in the record or when the basis for each cost is otherwise evident in the record." HUH?-(J. PRATT, CONCURRING): A defendant's inability to ascertain the legal basis for a cost, whether from the record or from the written order, does not in itself preclude him from meaningfully challenging it. King v. State, 5D21-2985 (12/7/23)

FUNDAMENTAL ERROR-EVIDENCE: Admission of the statement of the witness, to whom victim disclosed sexual abuse, ("I know that, through my experiences. . .it's very normalized behavior upon men."), if error, is not fundamental error. Rivas v. State, 1D2022-2485 (12/6/23)

FUNDAMENTAL ERROR-EVIDENCE: Testimony of nurse practitioner that the tear in the victim's hymen occurred from some penetrating force and that "probably over 90 percent of [children] do not have injuries to their genitalia at all because of the nature of the vagina and how much it can stretch" is not error, or if error, it is not fundamental error. RECKLESS DRIVING: Six-month probationary sentence for reckless driving does not exceed the maximum lawful sentence. Daughrey v. State, 1D2022-2881 (12/6/23)

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Court may not impose probation conditions in a written order filed more than sixty days after sentencing, regardless whether they require oral pronouncement. "While the State is correct that the contested conditions did not require oral pronouncement, they did need to be timely imposed." Daughrey v. State, 1D2022-2881 (12/6/23)

HEARSAY: Officer's testimony that another officer told him that the B.B. gun had a CO2 cartridge is inadmissible hearsay, but error is harmless because the fact that the gun was recovered without BBs, pellets, or a gas cartridge is not dispositive. M.D.M. v. State, 2D22-3945 (12/6/23)

HEARSAY-SPONTANEOUS STATEMENT: The spontaneous statement exception to the hearsay rule requires that the statement be made not only contemporaneously, but also spontaneously, i.e., without the declarant first engaging in reflective thought. The spontaneity requirement is more than merely temporal, focusing also on the absence of reflective thought. To allow one deputy to testify that he heard another say there was a CO2 capsule in the B.B. gun while inspecting evidence allow the spontaneous statement exception to swallow the rule. M.D.M. v. State, 2D22-3945 (12/6/23)

COMPETENCY HEARING: Defendant's absence from the nunc pro tunc competency hearing, in which court ruled that the sbsent expert would have testified consistently with the psych eval report, is not fundamental error. Farmer v. State, 3D22-1175 (12/6/23)

EVIDENCE-INEXTRICABLY INTERTWINED-CHILD PORN: Statements in text messages by both the defendant and another suspect referring to sexual fantasies both men have is inextricably intertwined, and were improperly excluded by order in limine. Inextricably intertwined evidence is evidence necessary to: (1) adequately describe the deed; (2) provide an intelligent account of the crime(s) charged; (3) establish the entire context out of which the charged crime(s) arose; or (4) adequately describe the events leading up to the charged crime(s). The question is whether such evidence is necessary to accomplish any of the four objectives described above. State v. Hubbs, 3D2022-3048 (12/6/23)

APPEAL-PLEA-PRESERVATION: A defendant who pleads guilty with no express reservation of the right to appeal a legally dispositive issue shall have no right to a direct appeal. Defendant who lost jury trial then entered into a negotiated plea on other charges with an agreed sentence on all cases may not appeal issues from the jury trial. Kandler v. INFORMATION: Because the substance of the verdict form and written judgment accurately reflect the charge in the Amended Information, the use of the word "aggravated" in each of the aforementioned documents does not on its own make the sentence illegal. Where the information's introductory summary of count II says Aggravated Fleeing or Attempting to Elude a Law Enforcement Officer, but the body does not use the term "aggravated," and tracks the pertinent language of the statute, the erroneous use of the word "aggravated" in the introductory summary, verdict, and judgment are mere scrivener's errors. Thomas v, State, 5D23-0684 (12/1/23)

MOTION TO CORRECT ILLEGAL SENTENCE: Where Defendant in a drive-by shooting was found guilty of second degree murder, attempted murder and other offenses, all with special verdict forms which did not find that he possessed a firearm, and also possession of a firearm by a felon with a finding of actual possession, the murder/attempted murder charges cannot be reclassified. The lack of any jury finding that a defendant used a weapon typically precludes reclassification, particularly when the jury is given special interrogatories and renders an affirmative finding that the defendant did not possess a firearm, even if that finding contravenes the evidence. Jacoby v. State, 5D23-1362 (12/1/23)

INCONSISTENT VERDICT: A true inconsistent verdict requires more than just factual or logical inconsistency. Although logically there was no way Defendant could have committed the murder and attempted murder without possessing and discharging a firearm, that does not make the verdict truly inconsistent. Jacoby v. State, 5D23-1362 (12/1/23)

SECOND DEGREE MURDER-PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: Because second-degree murder is a first degree felony punishable by life in prison, once the court finds that Defendant qualifies as a PRR, it is required to sentence him to life. Jacoby v. State, 5D23-1362 (12/1/23)

RESENTENCING-JUVENILE OFFENDER-JURY: A trial court, on remand after making an Alleyne error, is not foreclosed from empaneling a jury to make a factual determination that affects the legally prescribed range of allowable sentences. Upon resentencing, where Defendant, a juvenile offender, had been convicted of felony murder without a finding that he actually killed the victim (the trial predated Miller/Horsley and the amendments to the statutes on life sentences for juvenile offenders), the Court may neither find by itself that Defendant was the actual killer nor treat him as though he were not. Rather, a new jury must be empaneled to make the determination, unless the error is harmless. State v. Manago, SC2021-1047 (11/30/23)

RESENTENCING-JUVENILE OFFENDER-JURY (J. LABARGA, DISSENTING): "I fundamentally disagree with the majority's conclusion that double jeopardy concerns are not implicated when a resentencing court empanels a new jury to find the facts necessary for sentencing under section 775.082(1)(b)1.. . .[I]t is difficult to view empaneling a jury here as something other than a second bite at the apple." PHRASE OF THE DAY: "precedential juggernaut" USA v. Duldulao, No. 20-13973 (11th Cir. 11/29/23)

PRECEDENT: Decisions of the Supreme Court construing substantive federal criminal statutes must be given retroactive effect. A new rule for the conduct of criminal prosecutions is to be applied retroactively to all cases, state or federal, pending on direct review or not yet final. Appellate court will not invoke the doctrine of invited error in a criminal appeal involving an instructional error in defining a substantive offense flowing directly from our longstanding and clear precedent and attributable to both parties. USA v. Duldulao, No. 20-13973 (11th Cir. 11/29/23)

PILL MILL: When it comes to whether a physician acted outside the usual course of professional practice, the appropriate focus is on the subjective intent of the doctor in dispensing controlled substances. To establish criminal liability under §841, it is not enough for the government to prove that a defendant acted outside the usual course of professional practice by violating an objective standard of care. Rather, the government must prove that the defendant knowingly or intentionally acted in an unauthorized manner—that he knew he was acting outside the usual course of professional practice or intended to.
USA v. Duldulao, No. 20-13973 (11th Cir. 11/29/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013973.op2.pdf

DEFINITION- "REASONABLE PROBABILITY": A "reasonable probability" is a probability sufficient to undermine confidence in the outcome. A reasonable probability is less than a preponderance.

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013973.op2.pdf

INVITED ERROR: The doctrine of invited error applies when an error is attributable to the action of the defense. Someone who invites a court down the primrose path to error should not be heard to complain that the court accepted its invitation. But the doctrine does not apply to an erroneous jury instruction where the "error" invited by a party relied on settled law that changed while the case was on appeal. USA v. Duldulao, No. 20-13973 (11th Cir. 11/29/23)

PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE: The prior panel precedent rule compels an appellate panel to obey the holding of the first panel in the Circuit to address an issue unless and until the first panel's opinion is overruled or undermined to the point of abrogation by the Supreme Court or by the appellate court sitting en banc. A different circuit's decision does not implicate the prior precedent rule. USA v. Duldulao, No. 20-13973 (11th Cir. 11/29/23)

CIVIL RESTITUTION LIEN-PUBLIC DEFENDER: Public Defender may not represent prisoner in defending against a civil restitution lien sought by D.O.C.

Proceedings to impose civil restitution liens pursuant to §960.293 are civil in nature. Florida D.O.C. v. Holt, 2D23-729 (11/29/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant's 3.850 motion filed 46 months after his conviction became final is untimely. Under narrow and exceptional circumstances, principles of due process may require permitting a defendant's otherwise untimely post conviction motion to be considered on its merits, but not when Defendant asserts that the lateness was due to trial counsel withholding documents he needed, but in fact he had almost everything he wanted and did not request anything until 16 months after his convictions became final, leaving him eight months to file a timely motion. Gomez v. State, 3D23-0380 (11/29/23)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-LEWD EXHIBITION-JAIL: Defendant may be convicted for two counts of lewd or lascivious exhibition in the presence of a correctional facility employee for a single act of masturbation seen by two employees. The allowable unit of prosecution for §800.09 is the number of employees, not the number of lewd acts. Brown v. State, 4D2022-1488 (11/29/23)

"A"-UNIT OF PROSECUTION": When the word "a" precedes the item described in a statute, it is the intent of the Legislature to make each separate item subject to a separate prosecution; "when the word "any" precedes the item, an ambiguity may arise as to the intended unit of prosecution. Still, the unit of prosecution is not automatically rendered ambiguous whenever a statute uses the word "any." Brown v. State, 4D2022-1488 (11/29/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1166465/opinion/Opinion_2022-1488.pdf

COSTS: $100, not $200, is the cost of prosecution. Brown v. State, 4D2022-1488 (11/29/23)

COSTS-LEWD EXHIBITION-JAIL: The $151 cost for the Rape Crisis Trust Fund and the $201 for the Domestic may not be imposed for of lewd or lascivious exhibition in the presence of a correctional facility employee (§800.09). Brown v. State, 4D2022-1488 (11/29/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1166465/opinion/Opinion_2022-1488.pdf

PATIENT BROKERING-UNIT OF PROSECUTION: The unit of prosecution for §817.505(1)(a) (patient brokering--paying for patient referrals or fee-splitting) is each payment made to induce the referral of patients or patronage. State v. DeSimone, 4D2022-2104 (11/29/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1174168/opinion/Opinion_2022-2104.pdf

A/ANY TEST: The "a/any test" to determine legislative intent should not be applied mechanically, but rather a common-sense approach should be followed to discern the intended unit of prosecution. State v. DeSimone, 4D2022-2104 (11/29/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1174168/opinion/Opinion_2022-2104.pdf

MOTION TO DISMISS: Court may not hold n evidentiary hearing on Defendant's R. 3.190(b) motion to dismiss) to determine the unit of prosecution for patient brokering. Motion should have been filed under R. 3.190(c)(4), which would have to be sworn to. State v. DeSimone, 4D2022-2104 (11/29/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1174168/opinion/Opinion_2022-2104.pdf

PLEA WITHDRAWAL: Defendant is not entitled to bring a motion to withdraw a plea pursuant to rule 3.170(f) upon court-ordered resentencing. R. 3.170(f) allows a plea to be withdrawn "before a sentence," but the rule does not apply to a re-sentencing hearing. If a motion to withdraw under rule 3.170(f) must be made before a sentence, then the only time that can occur is before the original sentence. Conflict certified. Saffold v. State, 4D2022-2399 (11/29/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1166468/opinion/Opinion_2022-2399.pdf

"A": The use of the word "a" in R. 3.170(f) does not mean that it applies to "any sentencing proceeding." If "a" was to mean "any," then the article "any" should have been used. Saffold v. State, 4D2022-2399 (11/29/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1166468/opinion/Opinion_2022-2399.pdf

SENTENCING-REASONS: Prior opinion vacated pending en banc review. The prior opinion had required a new sentencing hearing because the trial court failed to explain the reasons for the upward variance (20 years) on the Defendant who, two months into probation, had strangled his girl friend on his (and the victim's daughter's) birthday and stored her body in a 55-gallon barrel in his home. USA v. Steiger, No. 22-10742 (11th Cir. 11/27/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210742.1.pdf

EVIDENCE-OTHER BAD ACTS: In cases involving child molestation, evidence of a defendant's commission of other acts of child molestation is admissible and may be considered subject to a relevancy determination. A trial court must consider whether the evidence's probative value is substantially outweighed by the danger of unfair prejudice, confusion of issues, misleading the jury, or needless presentation of cumulative evidence. Court should at a minimum evaluate (1) the similarity of the prior acts to the act charged regarding the location of where the acts occurred, the age and gender of the victims, and the manner in which the acts were committed; (2) the closeness in time of the prior acts to the act charged; (3) the frequency of the prior acts; and (4) the presence or lack of intervening circumstances. Ivey v. State, 1D2022-0841 (11/29/23)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1168085/opinion/Opinion_2022-0841.pdf

EVIDENCE-OTHER BAD ACTS: Testimony by victim's siblings that Defendant also sexually touched them in his home while serving as a caregiver during the same period as the victim's abuse is admissible. Ivey v. State, 1D2022-0841 (11/29/23)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1168085/opinion/Opinion_2022-0841.pdf

INJUNCTION-SEXUAL VIOLENCE: An anonymous phone call is not enough to constitute a report as required by §784.046(2)(c) of a sexual violence injunction. A petitioner has standing only if the sexual violence is reportd to a law enforcement agency and is cooperating in any criminal proceeding against the respondent. Kuschnitzky v. Marasco, 1D2022-1751 (11/29/23)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1167095/opinion/Opinion_2022-1751.pdf

DOWNWARD DEPARTURE-DURESS: For the purpose of a downward departure, duress usually involves some sort of coercion or threat. State v. McCall, 1D2022-2271 (11/29/23)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1167101/opinion/Opinion_2022-2271.pdf

APPEAL-INVOLUNTARY PLEA: Defendant may not claim on appeal that his plea was involuntary because trial counsel rendered ineffective assistance without filing a motion to withdraw plea. Hauser v. State, 1D2022-2787 (11/29/23)

INEFFECTIVE APPELLATE COUNSEL: Appellate counsel cannot be ineffective for failing to raise an issue. A person who asserts ineffectiveness of counsel on appeal must show, first, that there were specific errors or omissions of such magnitude that it can be said that they deviated from the norm or fell outside the range of professionally acceptable performance; and second, that the failure or deficiency caused prejudicial compromised the appellate process to such a degree as to undermine confidence in the fairness and correctness of the outcome. Bedgood v. State, 1D2023-0035 (11/29/23)

AND/OR: It is not fundamental error to include the "and/or" conjunction between the names of the victims in a jury instruction where the totality of the circumstances indicate that the language did not reach into the validity of the trial itself to the point that a guilty verdict could not have been obtained without it. Defendant who shoots, chokes and hits Victim I with a hatchet, and chokes and hits Victim II with his fists, the hatchet, and the gun–but does not shoot her–is properly convicted of attempted murder on both. Bedgood v. State, 1D2023-0035 (11/29/23)

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: Court must award Credit for Time Served to a Defendant held in custody for the day of his sentence, rather than have that day considered against the prison sentence. Defendant is entitled to 766 days, not 765 days, of jail credit against his sentences (25 years, life, and life, concurrent). A sentence of imprisonment shall not begin to run before the date it is imposed, but the court imposing a sentence shall allow a defendant credit for all of the time she or he spent in the county jail before sentence. Perez v. State, 2D22-746 (11/29/23)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1166090/opinion/Opinion_22-0746.pdf

NELSON HEARING: A Nelson hearing, where the trial court assesses counsel's competence, is required only when the defendant makes a clear and unequivocal statement before the commencement of trial that he wishes to discharge appointed counsel, the discharge request is based on a claim of incompetence, and the alleged ineffectiveness arises from counsel's current representation. Dissatisfaction with counsel's trial preparation, trial strategy, witness development, and contact with the defendant are not clear allegations of incompetency. A request to discharge counsel is untimely after the trial begins. Butler v. State, 2D22-3034 (11/29/23)

FARETTA HEARING: An adequate Faretta inquiry requires ensuring that the defendant knowingly and intelligently waives his right to counsel. This requires advising the defendant of the disadvantages and dangers of self-representation. Butler v. State, 2D22-3034 (11/29/23)

USELESS KNOWLEDGE II: Red is the color on which humans conducted their first color experiments, achieved their first successes, and then constructed a chromatic universe. Ponzio v. Pinon, No. 21-14503 (11th Cir. 11/27/23)

RULES-AMENDMENT-COMPETENCY: Rules amended to assure that a clinical assessment must be made to ensure the safety of the patient and the community, list specific possible treatment alternatives, and require the expert's written findings to include a full and detailed explanation regarding why alternative treatment options are insufficient. Court must find other services to be inappropriate before committing a defendant for treatment. In Re: Amendments to Florida Rules of Criminal Procedure–2023 Legislation. SC2023-1420 (11/22/23)

RULES-AMENDMENT-COMPETENCY: The time line for facility administrators to file their report is changed No later than 60 days from the date of admission, the administrator of the facility must file with the court a report that shall addresses the issues and considers the factors set forth in rule 3.211, with copies to all parties. In Re: Amendments to Florida Rules of Criminal Procedure–2023 Legislation. SC2023-1420 (11/22/23)

DURESS-JURY INSTRUCTION: Defendant who claimed that he intended to accompany his co-Defendant to buy drugs and only participated in the robbery because he was scared and terrified of his armed co-Defendant (who ended up shooting and killing the victim) is not entitled to an instruction on duress. A direct threat to Defendant is required. Stallworth v. State, 1D2022-2030 (11/22/23)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1102852/opinion/Opinion_2022-2030.pdf

DURESS: The defense of duress requires that 1) The defendant reasonably believes a danger or emergency existed which was not intentionally caused by himself; 2) The danger or emergency threatened significant harm to himself or a third person; 3) The threatened harm must have been real, imminent, and impending; 4) The defendant had no reasonable means to avoid the danger or emergency except by committing the crime; 5) The defendant's crime must have been committed out of duress to avoid the danger or emergency; 6) The harm that the defendant avoided must outweigh the harm caused by committing the crime. Stallworth v. State, 1D2022-2030 (11/22/23)

UNANIMOUS VERDICT: Where information charged Defendant with theft of "a purse and/or a wallet," Defendant was not deprived of a unanimous verdict. The theft of the victim's purse and wallet constituted alternative means of committing a single offense. Florida law permits alternative or disjunctive allegations for a single offense. When a single crime can be committed in various ways, jurors need not agree upon the mode of commission. Blackwell v. State, 3D22-1903 (11/22/23)

COTERMINOUS SENTENCE: A coterminous sentence is a sentence that runs concurrently with another and terminates simultaneously. A coterminous sentence is a sentencing decision in which a court exercises its discretion to mitigate a defendant's sentence. Defendant is entitled to writ of habeas corpus and immediate release. Esty v. Reyes, 3D23-1988 (11/22/23)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1104513/opinion/Opinion_2023-1988.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on his claim that if counsel had properly advised him that he was facing a thirty-year sentence, and that he did not have a stand your ground defense at trial, he would have taken the deal. Teets v. State, 4D2023-0611 (11/22/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1103813/opinion/Opinion_2023-0611.pdf

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: A court may correct a final sentence that fails to allow a defendant credit for all of the time he or she spent in the county jail before sentencing. A defendant may waive entitlement to jail credit when entering a plea but the record must demonstrate a clear and knowing waiver of jail credit in order to refute a later claim for additional credit. A jail credit waiver must be specific, voluntary, and clear from the face of the record. Bowen v. State, 5D23-811 (11/21/23)

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED-MOTION TO CORRECT: Motion to correct CTS must allege whether he had waived any county jail credit at the time of sentencing and, if so, the number of days waived, and whether any other criminal charges were pending during the time for which Defendant claims he was not properly awarded credit. Bowen v. State, 5D23-811 (11/21/23)

MOTION TO CORRECT: If a trial court does not rule on a motion to correct a sentencing error filed while an appeal is pending within sixty days, the motion shall be deemed denied. Summerson v. State, 6D23-1246 (11/22/23)

COST OF SUPERVISION: When a trial court fails to orally pronounce the amount of a probation supervision cost for misdemeanor probation at a defendant's sentencing, the court is only authorized to impose the minimum cost of $40.00 per month required by statute. JUROR-CHALLENGE FOR CAUSE: Exposure to inadmissible and prejudicial information through pretrial publicity is a classic example of a valid ground for a cause challenge, regardless whether potential juror says he could disregard it. Lloyd v. State, SC2022-0378 (11/16/23)

JURY INSTRUCTION-INSANITY: The language in the jury instruction on insanity (that clear and convincing evidence is evidence that is precise, explicit, lacking in confusion, and of such weight that it produces a firm belief, without hesitation, about the matter in issue) does not confuse the clear and convincing standard with the beyond a reasonable doubt standard. Loyd v. State, SC2022-0378 (11/16/23)

ARGUMENT-PREMEDITATION: State's argument that premeditation has to be present in the person's mind during the act and equating it to deciding to smack a mosquito on one's arm rather than brushing it off was not improper nor misleading when taken in context. Loyd v. State, SC2022-0378 (11/16/23)

DEATH PENALTY-VICTIM INJURY: An instrumental soundtrack to a photo/video slide show of the victim during the penalty phase/victim injury presentation is improper, but error is harmless. Loyd v. State, SC2022-0378 (11/16/23)

JURY-FELONS: Exclusion of felons from the jury does not violate the Equal Protection Clause of the United States Constitution. "Loyd cites two law review articles for the proposition that 'Florida's juror disqualification law was enacted as part of an effort to keep Blacks oppressed in the wake of emancipation.' In other words, Loyd argues that discriminatory intent underlies the statute because two authors said so. This is not evidence." Loyd v. State, SC2022-0378 (11/16/23)

DEATH PENALTY-JURY INSTRUCTION-MERCY: Defendant in death penalty case is not entitled to a special jury instruction that jury could consider mercy in making its sentencing determination. Loyd v. State, SC2022-0378 (11/16/23)

JURY-DEATH QUALIFICATION: Death qualifying the jury does violate the Sixth Amendment by skewing it towards guilt. Loyd v. State, SC2022-0378 (11/16/23)

https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/1042841/opinion/Opinion_SC2022-0378.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-CONSTITUTIONALITY: Exonerations undermine not the sentence but the conviction. Arguments to the contrary are "gobbledy-gook." "We. . .find it hard to understand how alleged issues in the guilt phase render a certain punishment unconstitutional. The same logic would make life imprisonment unconstitutional if enough people serving life are exonerated." Loyd v. State, SC2022-0378 (11/16/23)

PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: A PRR sentence must be served concurrently with a sentence imposed pursuant to §775.087. Perryman v. State, 1D2021-2655 (11/15/23)

INDEPENDENT ACT: The independent act doctrine applies when one co-felon, who previously participated in a common plan, does not participate in acts committed by his co-felon, which fall outside of, and are foreign to, the common design of the original collaboration. The doctrine does not apply when a co-felon's act was a foreseeable consequence of the underlying felony. Banks v. State, 1D202203657 (11/15/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-INDEPENDENT ACT: Counsel was not ineffective for failing to request an independent act instruction in a case where a marijuana buy turned into a burglary and then a homicide and the defense theory was that Defendant was simply a passenger in the vehicle and never intended to commit any of the underlying crimes. Banks v. State, 1D2022-3657 (11/15/23)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1033955/opinion/Opinion_2022-3657.pdf

INDEPENDENT ACT: Defendant would not have been entitled to an independent act instruction where the underlying crime was burglary and arson because murder and arson are reasonably foreseeable outcomes of burglary. Banks v. State, 1D2022-3657 (11/15/23)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1033955/opinion/Opinion_2022-3657.pdf

INFORMATION-AMENDMENT: Court erred in denying State's mid-trial motion to amend the information by correcting the date of the offense and dismissing the case. Defendant was not deceived when the date was wrong but the crime occurred during a Superbowl tailgate party. The State is permitted to amend an information during trial, even if the defendant objects, unless there is a showing of prejudice to the substantial rights of the defendant. To allow Defendant to wait in ambush until the jury is sworn and then spring his trap is tantamount to asking the court to referee a game of hide and seek. State v. Sanders, 2D22-881 (11/15/23)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1032840/opinion/Opinion_22-0881.pdf

BAKER ACT: Subject is improperly civilly committed under the Basker Act where the State's doctor's testimony was conclusory, did not identify any recent behavior through which C.D. had caused, attempted, or threatened any serious bodily harm, but merely asserted that he was very argumentative, very paranoid, gets agitated and is threatening to the staff, and would be a possible risk to himself and others without treatment. In re Involuntary Placement of C.D. v. State, No. 2D22-2986 (11/15/23)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1032851/opinion/Opinion_22-2986.pdf

COMPETENCY-INVOLUNTARY COMMITMENT: Incompetent Defendant may not be committed to DCF absent clear and convincing evidence that he will respond to treatment and will regain competency to proceed in the reasonably foreseeable future. A recommendation of competency training in a structured, secured psychiatric setting is insufficient. A finding that a defendant might be restored to competency is not enough. In situations like this the State must either institute civil commitment proceedings or release the defendant. DCF v. State, 2D23-873 (11/15/23)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1032863/opinion/Opinion_23-0873.pdf

ARGUMENT-INVITED RESPONSE: Under the 'invited response' doctrine, the State is permitted to emphasize uncontradicted evidence for the narrow purpose of rebutting a defense argument since the defense has invited the response. Kitaygorodskiy v. State, 3D22-1270 (11/15/23)

https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1053005/opinion/Opinion_2022-1270.pdf

SEX OFFENDER: The designation of a person as a sexual offender is not a sentence or a punishment but simply shows the status of the offender which is the result of a conviction for having committed certain crimes. Heath v. State, 3D22-1416 (11/15/23)

WRITTEN THREAT: Juvenile who posted an image on Snapchat of himself in a black cap, a red and black skull mask, black sunglasses, a black hoodie, and a pair of fingerless gloves while holdng a gun with text saying "Don't go to school tomorrow" is properly found delinquent for violating §836.10. https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/1033861/opinion/Opinion_2022-1121.pdf

WRITTEN THREAT: §836.10 contains a mens rea component. To prove the a violation §836.10, the trier of fact must find that the defendant transmitted a communication for the purpose of issuing a threat, or with knowledge that the communication will be viewed as a threat. B.W.B., a child, v. State, 4D2022-1121 (11/15/23)

THREAT-FIRST AMENDMENT: §836.10 is not unconstitutionally overbroad nor does it infringe on the juvenile's First Amendment rights. §836.10 has a limited objective—to punish "threats" of violence sent through electronic social media. B.W.B., a child, v. State, 4D2022-1121 (11/15/23)

SCORESHEET-OUT OF STATE PRIORS: When Defendant contests the proper scoring of an out-of-state conviction on the ground that the points on the scoresheet were not analogous to the Florida crime used for the scoring, State must provide evidence in support of its scoring. But where Defendant merely traveled on legal arguments discussing the various elements of robbery offenses in Ohio and Florida, referring to statutes only, and did not seek an evidentiary hearing, the out-of-state priors are scoreable. Taylor v. State, 4D2022-2291 (11/15/23)

SCORESHEET-OUT OF STATE PRIORS: Only the elements of the out-of-state crime should be considered in determining whether the conviction is analogous to a Florida statute for the purpose of calculating points for a sentencing guidelines scoresheet. When the scoring of an out-of-state conviction is contested, the court may consider the out-of-state judgment entered, and if necessary, the charging document, to determine the elements of the out-of-state conviction for comparison with a Florida offense for scoring. Taylor v. State, 4D2022-2291 (11/15/23)

TWELVE PERSON JURY: Defendant is not entitled to a twelve-person jury. Owensby v. State, 4D2022-3404 (11/15/23)

NEW OFFENSE-PRETRIAL RELEASE-CONSECUTIVE: 18 U.S.C. §3147 provides that if a person commits a felony offense while on pretrial release he shall be sentenced to up to ten years consecutively to the new felony. This sentence may exceed the maximum term prescribed for the underlying offense of conviction. But in such a circumstance the issue of whether the person committed a felony offense while on pretrial release must be submitted to a jury and proven beyond a reasonable doubt pursuant to Apprendi. USA v. Perez, No. 22-10267 (11th Cir. 11/14/23)

NEW OFFENSE-PRETRIAL RELEASE-JURY FINDING: 18 U.S.C. §3147 provides that if a person commits a felony offense while on pretrial release he shall be sentenced to up to ten years consecutively to the new felony. The issue of whether the person committed a felony offense while on pretrial release must be submitted to a jury and proven beyond a reasonable doubt pursuant to Apprendi. USA v. https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210267.pdf

APPRENDI: An Apprendi violation does not automatically lead to reversal. Failure to submit a sentencing factor to the jury to submit an element to the jury, is not structural error. Where, as here, an error is harmless under Apprendi if the fact at issue (that Defendant committed a felony offense while on pretrial release) is uncontested. USA v. Perez, No. 22-10267 (11th Cir. 11/14/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DNA TESTING: Defendant is not entitled to successive DNA testing on items omitted from his earlier request for DNA testing. Res judicata bars claims that could have been raised in earlier proceedings. Reynolds v. State, SC2022-1221 (11/9/23)

PERJURY: For perjury, one must (1) make a false statement, (2) that he does not believe to be true, (3) under oath in an official proceeding, (4) regarding any material matter. The materiality of the statement is not an element of the crime to be proven to the jury. Whether a matter is material in a given factual situation is a question of law, a threshold issue that must be determined by the court prior to trial. Miller v. State, 5D23-0846 (11/9/23)

PERJURY-JOA: County commissioner who was unclear about the timing of certain phone calls cannot be convicted of perjury. "Reviewing the entirety of the sworn statement made by Miller to investigating authorities, it cannot be said he in fact definitively claimed that there were no phone calls with Commissioner Search after January 2021. Indeed, quite the contrary." Miller v. State, 5D23-0846 (11/9/23)

https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/978168/opinion/Opinion_23-0846.pdf

PERJURY-TWISTIFICATION: A charge of perjury may not be sustained by the device of lifting a statement of the accused out of its immediate context and thus giving it a meaning wholly different than that which its context clearly shows. Miller v. State, 5D23-0846 (11/9/23)

https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/978168/opinion/Opinion_23-0846.pdf

PERJURY: The law encourages the correction of erroneous and even intentionally false statements on the part of a witness, and perjury will not be predicated upon such statements when the witness fully corrects his testimony. Miller v. State, 5D23-0846 (11/9/23)

TRUTH: A judicial investigation or trial has for its sole object the ascertainment of the truth, that justice may be done. Miller v. State, 5D23-0846 (11/9/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: A defendant must meet two requirements to obtain a new trial based on newly discovered evidence. First, the evidence must not have been known by the trial court, the party, or counsel at the time of trial, and it must also appear that neither the defendant nor defense counsel could have known of such evidence by the use of diligence. Second, the newly discovered evidence must be of a nature that it would probably produce an acquittal on retrial or yield a less severe sentence. Green v. State, 5D23-1422 (11/9/23)

NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE-INHERENT INCREDIBILITY: While an affidavit produced many years after the alleged crime may be inherently suspicious, that suspicion alone does not automatically support summary denial. Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that he was seen at a skating rink at the time of the murder 30 years earlier. The passage of time alone does not make the affidavit inherently incredible. Green v. State, 5D23-1422 (11/9/23)

https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/978169/opinion/Opinion_23-1422.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-AFFIDAVIT (J. BOATWRIGHT, CONCURRING): Where the oath attached to the affidavit is signed by the notary, and not the witness, it is facially insufficient. Further, Defendant must certify under oath that he has read the motion, understands its content, and that all of the facts are true and correct. Green v. State, 5D23-1422 (11/9/23)

https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/978169/opinion/Opinion_23-1422.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DNA TESTING: If a motion for post-conviction DNA testing is facially sufficient, the prosecuting authority shall be ordered to respond to the motion within 30 days, but error may be harmless. Ray v. State, 5D23-1457 (11/9/23)

substantial danger to others based on the doctor's conclusory testimony which did not identify any recent behavior through which the subject had caused, attempted, or threatened any serious bodily harm. Being "very argumentative" and "very paranoid," and "get[ting] agitated and. . .threatening to the staff" is insufficient. C.D. v. State, 2D22-2986 (11/8/23)

DISCOVERY: State's non-compliance with discovery rules does not mandate automatic reversal; it is essential that the defendant either raise a timely objection or request a hearing to allow the trial court to specifically rule on the issue. Philippe v. State, 3D22-0500 (11/8/23)

ARGUMENT: In DUI case, error, if any, in characterizing Defendant's driving as frightful, erratic, horrendous, and scary is not fundamental. Horna v. State, 3D22-1281 (11/8/23)

JOA-RECKLESS DRIVING: The act of passing cars at a speed of twenty-five to thirty miles per hour for about ten seconds, absent an accident or near accident, is not reckless driving. Kenneth v. State, 3D22-2023 (11/8/23)

EXPERT: Expert's testimony regarding "ShotSpotter" technology, which can detect the sound of gunfire and notify police, is admissible under Daubert and §90.702. If scientific, technical, or other specialized knowledge will assist the trier of fact in understanding the evidence or in determining a fact in issue, a witness qualified as an expert by knowledge, skill, experience, training, or education may testify about it in the form of an opinion or otherwise, if: (1) The testimony is based upon sufficient facts or data; (2) The testimony is the product of reliable principles and methods; and (3) The witness has applied the principles and methods reliably to the facts of the case. J.A.R., a child, v. State, 4D2022-2469 (11/8/23)

FIELD SOBRIETY EXERCISES: "Courts have inconsistently applied either reasonable suspicion or probable cause to determine the legality of law enforcement's actions in conducting FSEs." LEO may compel field sobriety exercises based on reasonable suspicion alone. Probable cause is not required to compel the defendant to conduct the exercises. The proper standard for a law enforcement officer to request FSEs is a reasonable suspicion that a driver has committed a law violation. If an officer has reasonable suspicion a defendant has committed a DUI, the defendant can be required to perform FSEs, and consent is immaterial. State v. Barone, 4D2022-2487 (11/8/23)

RETURN OF PROPERTY: A trial court in a criminal case has no jurisdiction to order the return of a vehicle that had been forfeited in a parallel civil forfeiture proceeding. Nyenhuis v. State, 2D22-3766 (11/3/23) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/933590/opinion/Opinion_22-3766.pdf

RE-SENTENCING: Where Court granted Defendant's motion for re-sentencing in 2016, but never got around to holding the hearing, it lacks authority to rescind the order. Keebler v. State, 5D23-1044 (1/3/23) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/933150/opinion/Opinion_23-1044.pdf

POSSESSION FIREARM FELON: §790.23(1)(a) (prohibition of possession of firearm by felon), is constitutional. Hayes v. State, 1D2021-3654 (11/1/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/923733/opinion/Opinion_2021-3654.pdf

MISTRIAL-CRYING: No fundamental error in not granting a mistrial where a witness cried but was given a tissue. Appellate courts should defer to trial judges' judgments and rulings when they cannot glean from the record how intense a witness's outburst was or its effect on jurors. Swearingen v. State, 1D2022-1362 (11/1/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/923732/opinion/Opinion_2022-1362.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: If an amended information is filed after the speedy trial time period has expired and the defendant has not previously waived speedy trial, upon proper motion by the defendant, the new charges contained in the amended information must be dismissed if they arose from the same criminal episode as the charges contained in the original information. But charges may be amended if speedy trial had been waived. Green v. State, 1D2022-3663 (11/1/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/935910/opinion/Opinion_2022-3663.pdf

JURY INSTRUCTION-LESSER INCLUDED: In aggravated battery case (a vehicle was the deadly weapon), counsel is not ineffective for failing to request a jury instruction on a lesser-included offense of reckless driving. Request is in essence one for a jury pardon, which is not permissible. Green v. State, 1D2022-3663 (11/1/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/935910/opinion/Opinion_2022-3663.pdf

SPOLIATION OF EVIDENCE: Lost dashcam footage which might have shown that officers failed to search for fingerprints when they searched his truck without gloves and that they did not search for fingerprints is not spoliation of evidence. JAIL CALLS-AUTHENTICATION: The threshold for authentication is relatively low and only requires a prima facie showing that the proffered evidence is authentic. The fact that Defendant used a different inmate's PIN to make jail calls does not undermine the authentication of the jail calls. Green v. DOUBLE JEOPARDY-MULTIPLE VICTIMS: Two people in a car hit by the Defendant's car supports two convictions for aggravated battery. Green v. State, 1D2022-3663 (11/1/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/935910/opinion/Opinion_2022-3663.pdf

APPEAL-JURISDICTION: Appellate court lacks jurisdiction to hear appeal in the absence of a signed written order. Without a signed written order the threshold requirement for an appeal cannot be met because there is nothing to appeal. Jones v. State, 1D2023-1495 (11/1/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Rule 3.800(a) is not available where Defendant seeks to challenge the validity of the conviction (and, only by extension, the legality of the sentence). Jimenez v. State, 3D2022-1906 (11/1/23)

OCTOBER 2023

ARREST WARRANT-AFFIDAVIT-SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY: Where Plaintiff drove targeted drug dealer to sting transaction, and stayed for the duration of the surveilled transaction, officer has sovereign immunity for procuring an arrest warrant. Various misstatements in the affidavit–i.e., that the Plaintiff was a previously identified target of the undercover investigation and oversaw the transaction as it took place inside his vehicle--do not negate probable cause. Remaining facts give rise to the inference that Plaintiff intended to aid the suspicious happenings. Land v. Sheriff of Jackson County, No. 22-12324 (11th Cir, 10/31/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212324.pdf

CONSEQUENCES OF ARREST (J. ABUDU, DISSENTING): Defendant had driven a target to a drug transaction, apparently without foreknowledge. Later, on the basis of an arrest warrant procured by a misleading affidavit, in the presence of his wife, grandmother, and young children after a day at a state park, multiple officers drew their firearms on him. He spent 207 days in jail before posting bond for $47,000 and lost his license for child support, Case was nolle prossed. Land v. Sheriff of Jackson County, No. 22-12324

ARREST WARRANT-AFFIDAVIT (J. ABUDU, DISSENTING): A warrant supporting an arrest is constitutionally infirm if an official intentionally or recklessly made misstatements or omissions necessary to support the warrant. A two-part test for evaluating whether the misstatements amount to a Fourth Amendment violation: 1) Excise any intentional or reckless misstatements or omissions from the warrant. 2) Determine whether the warrant establishes probable cause without those misstatements. Although probable cause is not a high bar, it still requires the official to show a probability or substantial chance of criminal activity. Land v. Sheriff of Jackson County, No. 22-12324 (11th Cir, 10/31/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202212324.pdf

ARREST WARRANT-AFFIDAVIT (J. ABUDU, DISSENTING): "Because the warrant contains no true facts supporting a finding that Land had a conscious intent to further Smith's crime, it does not establish probable cause that Land was a principal to the crime." "[T]he legal process by which Land was arrested, relying upon Allen's recklessly if not intentionally false warrant affidavit, did not meet the standard of probable cause. We should decline to expressly permit such baseless arrests without consequence, particularly when we consider the six-month detention Land endured. Otherwise, this Court widens the door for future bad actors to intentionally and maliciously draft bare-bones warrants, unsupported by thorough investigations, and to do so with no fear of consequences for any false statements therein." Land v. Sheriff of Jackson County, No. 22-12324 (11th Cir, 10/31/23)

WARRANT: Arrest warrant affidavit for child abuse which omitted material exculpatory information that, if disclosed, would have negated probable cause violates the Fourth Amendment. Material omissions from the affidavit included that the child had chosen to deal with transportation problems rather than switch schools and to fend for himself until 7:00 p.m., that the child had options other than remaining at school, that the child had no house key because he been misbehaving, including by having people in the house, that the Child was prohibited from going to a particular friend's house despite officer's implication that going there should have been an option, and that the Child was trying to trying to drop weight for wrestling (undermining the you're-not- feeding-your-child implication). Butler v. Smith, No. 22-11141 (11th Cir.10/27/23)

QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: Officer is not entitled to qualified immunity for arresting a single working mother for child abuse for keeping her 17 year old son–at his request–in his current school for his senior year, rather than transferring him into a new school. Staying in the same school would mean either walking several miles home or waiting a few hours to be picked up. "Given the (1) information that Officer Smith included in her affidavits and (2) the material information that she knew but omitted from those affidavits, could a reasonable officer have believed that probable cause existed to arrest Butler for first- or second-degree child cruelty? . .[W]e hold that the answer is no." No reasonable officer could believe that probable cause existed to arrest Butler for first-degree child cruelty. Butler v. Smith, No. 22-11141 (11th Cir.10/27/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211141.op2.pdf

BITCH: Mother may have been imprudent in referring to officer pejoratively. ("That's what I told that bitch, that Officer Smith or whoever the fuck that was."). "Although she now denies it, a colleague's notes reflect (perhaps not surprisingly) that Officer Smith felt disrespected when she listened to the recording." Butler v. Smith, No. 22-11141 (11th Cir.10/27/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202211141.op2.pdf

MALICIOUS PROSECUTION-ELEMENTS: The constituent elements of the common law tort of malicious prosecution include: (1) a criminal prosecution instituted or continued by the present defendant; (2) with malice and without probable cause; (3) that terminated in the plaintiff accused's favor; and (4) caused damage to the plaintiff accused. The Fourth Amendment overlay adds two elements: The plaintiff must establish (5) that the legal process justifying her seizure was constitutionally infirm" and (6) that her seizure would not otherwise be justified without legal process. Qualified immunity, adds yet another element— (7) that that the law was clearly established. Butler v. Smith, No. 22-11141 (11th Cir.10/27/23)

APPEAL: Defendant who pled guilty without an express reservation of the right to appeal a legally dispositive issue has no right to a direct appeal. Syverson v. State, 5D23-61 (10/27/23)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/896804/opinion/Opinion_23-0061.pdf

PLEA WITHDRAWAL: Court lacks jurisdiction to rule on the motion to withdraw plea which was filed after the notice of appeal had been filed. Syverson v. State, 5D23-61 (10/27/23)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/896804/opinion/Opinion_23-0061.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-INVESTIGATORY DETENTION: Officer who activated his emergency lights and approached Defendant's car in tactical gear parked outside of a closed business did not unlawfully detain Defendant. Activation of police lights does not elevate the interaction from a consensual interaction to a detention. Per se rules are inappropriate in the context of Fourth Amendment seizure analyses. Baxter v. State, 5D23-118 (10/27/23) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/896805/opinion/Opinion_23-0118.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-ODOR OF MARIJUANA: Whether the plain smell doctrine—that is, that the smell of cannabis is itself sufficient to establish probable cause–survives is an open question. "While the recent changes in the law might. . .eliminate the previous doctrine that plain smell alone is sufficient to establish probable cause, that case is not before us" because of totality of the circumstances analysis. Baxter v. State, 5D23-118 (10/27/23) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/896805/opinion/Opinion_23-0118.pdf

SMELL OF MARIJUANA (J. WALLIS, CONCURRING): Developments in the law "have created confusion about whether officers in Florida still have reasonable suspicion to detain and probable cause to conduct a search based solely on what has been commonly known as the plain smell doctrine." The following question should be certifierd as one of great public importance: Does the plain smell doctrine still apply such that smelling cannabis is itself sufficient to establish reasonable suspicion and probable cause? Baxter v. State, 5D23-118 (10/27/23) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/896805/opinion/Opinion_23-0118.pdf

SMELL OF MARIJUANA (J. KILBANE, DISSENTING): "State and federal law surrounding marijuana has changed significantly since the 'plain smell' doctrine became an exception to the warrant requirement, and as a result, I believe its underpinnings are no longer sound." Baxter v. State, 5D23-118 (10/27/23) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/896805/opinion/Opinion_23-0118.pdf

APPELLATE REVIEW-SEARCH AND SEIZURE: To the extent a ruling is based on an audio recording, 'the trial court is in no better position to evaluate such evidence than the appellate court, which may review the tape for facts legally sufficient to support the trial court's ruling. Baxter v. State, 5D23-118 (10/27/23)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/896805/opinion/Opinion_23-0118.pdf

JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION: Where Defendant filing a Motion for Prohibition after judge rejected proposed plea agreements and denied Defendant's motion to disqualify him, Court improperly commented that some relevant portions of the record had not been transmitted to the appellate court and directed State to supplement the record with this court with certain transcripts. This type of extra-record involvement by the judge in the prohibition proceeding is both unauthorized and would put a reasonably prudent person in fear of not receiving a fair and impartial trial. Tocco v. State, 5D23-1986 (10/27/23)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/896806/opinion/Opinion_23-1986.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-MITIGATING EVIDENCE: Court does not err in rejecting mental health expert's testimony that Defendant suffered from PTSD at the time of the offense. Trial court may reject expert testimony, even uncontroverted expert testimony, of the existence of the extreme mental or emotional disturbance mitigator. The decision as to whether a mitigating circumstance has been established is within the trial court's discretion. Expert testimony alone does not require a finding of extreme mental or emotional disturbance. Bevel v. State, SC22-210 (10/26/23)
https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/890561/opinion/Opinion_SC2022-0210.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-JURY INSTRUCTION: Defendant is not entitled to a jury instruction that regardless of its findings regarding the aggravators and

mitigators, it may always consider mercy in determining whether Defendant should be sentenced to death. Bevel v. State, SC22-210 (10/26/23) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/890561/opinion/Opinion_SC2022-0210.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-ARGUMENT-PROPORTIONALITY: Court did not err in precluding Defendant from arguing to the jury about the proportionality of his possible sentence. The jury is not to compare the aggravation and mitigation applicable to the defendant before it to the aggravation and mitigation applicable to other defendants. Bevel v. State, SC22-210 (10/26/23) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/890561/opinion/Opinion_SC2022-0210.pdf

DEATH PENALTY: The jury's determination regarding the sufficiency and weight of aggravating factors is not subject to proof beyond a reasonable doubt. Bevel v. State, SC22-210 (10/26/23)

DEATH PENALTY: Florida's capital sentencing scheme is not unconstitutional for not limiting the class of persons eligible for the death penalty, nor for not providing for comparative proportionality review. Bevel v. State, SC22-210 (10/26/23) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/890561/opinion/Opinion_SC2022-0210.pdf

SENTENCING: It is well settled that the trial court's oral pronouncement of sentence controls over the written sentencing order. Smith v. State, 1D2021-3817 (10/25/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/885060/opinion/Opinion_2021-3817.pdf

STALKING-HARASS: Stalking is committed when a person "willfully, maliciously, and repeatedly follows, harasses, or cyberstalks another person." "Harass" means "to engage in a course of conduct directed at a specific person which causes substantial emotional distress to that person and serves no legitimate purpose." Potts v, Lewis, 2D 22-1678 (10/25/23) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884327/opinion/Opinion_22-1678.pdf

STALKING: A licensed plumber irritated by a woman, whom he perceived to be an unlicensed general contractor, who relentlessly sent repeated texts to stop, repent, and tell the truth lest he report her to law enforcement does not commit stalking. Acts are insufficient to establish that they would have caused a reasonable person substantial emotional distress. Courts apply an objective standard to determine if an incident causes substantial emotional distress, not a subjective standard. Potts v, Lewis, 2D 22-1678 (10/25/23) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884327/opinion/Opinion_22-1678.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CHILD PORN: Officer who acessed a peer-to-peer file sharing network (BitTorrent) with folders from Defendant's IP address containing hash values previously identified as containing child porn has probable cause for a search warrant. State v. Peltier, 2D22-2416 (10/25/23) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884329/opinion/Opinion_22-2416.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CHILD PORN: Detective's description of images of sexual conduct between an adult and child and the female child victim exposing her genitals in a lewd manner is not conclusory. Detective personally viewed several of the images and attested that they constituted child pornography. His descriptions were fulsome. The trial court's insistence that without details of each photograph, there is no way to identify or distinguish child pornography from child rotica is off the mark. State v.

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884329/opinion/Opinion_22-2416.pdf

CHILD PORN: The binary suggestion that "child erotica" is not, and never can be, child pornography is mistaken. State v. Peltier, 2D22-2416 (10/25/23)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884329/opinion/Opinion_22-2416.pdf

PROBABLE CAUSE: Probable cause is a fluid concept—turning on the assessment of probabilities in particular factual contexts—not readily, or even usefully, reduced to a neat set of legal rules. State v. Peltier, 2D22-2416 (10/25/23)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884329/opinion/Opinion_22-2416.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Indeterminate sentences of three years to life and three years to five years were lawful. §921.18 authorizes trial courts to impose indeterminate sentences of six months up to the applicable statutory maximum term of incarceration for noncapital felony convictions. Court's use of the word "to" in both the oral pronouncement and written sentences consistently imposed indeterminate sentences. Peterson v. State, 2D22-2958 (10/25/23)

v. State, 2D22-3712 (10/25/23)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884332/opinion/Opinion_22-3712.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: Where State improperly introduced a recording that included a prior inconsistent statement by a recanting witness to the responding deputy, elicited hearsay about that statement, and argued that the unsworn statement is substantive evidence of guilt, defense counsel's failure to object on the correct bases precludes appellate review. To preserve an issue for appellate review, the specific legal argument or ground upon which it is based must be presented to the trial court. Kenney v. State, 2D22-3712 (10/25/23)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884332/opinion/Opinion_22-3712.pdf

APPEAL-FUNDAMENTAL ERROR-ARGUMENT: "We do not mean to imply that those arguments necessarily would have established fundamental error. We only observe that Kenney's failure to make them on appeal precludes us from even considering the possibility." Kenney v. State, 2D22-3712 (10/25/23)
https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884332/opinion/Opinion_22-3712.pdf

JOA: The existence of contradictory, conflicting testimony or evidence does not warrant a judgment of acquittal because the weight of the evidence and the witnesses' credibility are questions solely for the jury. Sthubin v. State, 3D22-93 (10/25/23)
https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884383/opinion/Opinion_2022-0093.pdf

THEFT-VALUE: Defendant who stole, then sold, his ex-girlfriend's Rolex watch (purchased for $19,750 in 2004), is responsible for $10,000 (for guilt and restitution) based on the amount he sold it to the pawn shop for. Where the market value cannot be satisfactorily ascertained, value may be determined on the replacement cost of the property. The original market cost of the property, the manner in which it has been used, its general condition and quality, the percentage of depreciation since its purchase are elements of proof to be submitted to the jury. Alfaro v. State, 3D22-1271 (10/25/23) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884370/opinion/Opinion_2022-1271.pdf

ISSUE-PRESERVATION-HEARSAY: Victim's testimony that the pawnshop paid Defendant $10,000 for the Rolex watch may have been hearsay, admitted over objection, but "the record also indicates that this information was introduced twice during redirect without objection from defense counsel. As such, our affirmance is without prejudice to raise the hearsay argument in a motion for ineffective assistance of trial counsel." Alfaro v. State, 3D22-1271 (10/25/23) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884370/opinion/Opinion_2022-1271.pdf

APPEAL-MOOT: Where Defendant finished serving the subject sentence during the pendency of this appeal, the appeal must be dismissed as moot, unless collateral legal consequences that affect the rights of a party flow from the issue to be determined. Fisher v. State, 3D22-1579 (10/25/23) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884381/opinion/Opinion_2022-1579.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Two requirements must be met in order for a conviction to be set aside on the basis of newly discovered evidence. First, in order to be considered newly discovered, the evidence must have been unknown by the trial court, by the party, or by counsel at the time of trial, and it must appear that defendant or his counsel could not have known of it by the use of diligence. Second, the newly discovered evidence must be of such nature that it would probably produce an acquittal on retrial. Major v. State, 3D23-293 (10/25/23)

VOIR DIRE: Court improperly disallowed Defendsnt's voir dire question "Are you open to the theory that an accident can occur involving a death and there be no criminal culpability in that case?" on the basis that "It's a legal conclusion." To obtain a fair and impartial jury, and for voir dire examination of jurors to have any meaning, counsel must be allowed to probe attitudes, beliefs and philosophies. A trial court abuses its discretion where it precludes prospective juror questioning pertaining to willingness and ability to accept a valid legal theory. The defendant's question was, quite appropriately, targeted at whether a juror would automatically or was more likely to convict where an accident resulted in a death, regardless of criminal fault. The defendant did not delve into the facts of the case or attempt to plant seeds, but was simply exploring the juror's attitudes, namely their willingness and ability to accept the defense's theory. Rivera v. State, 4D22-652 (10/25/23)
https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884348/opinion/Opinion_2022-0652.pdf

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884348/opinion/Opinion_2022-0652.pdf

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: General conditions of probation contained within the Florida Statutes must be included within the order but need not be orally pronounced at the sentencing hearing. Special conditions must be orally pronounced. A condition requiring Defendant to submit to random urinalysis testing is a special condition requiring oral pronouncement, but not for a Defendant on drug offender probation, which includes "random drug testing." Portuese v. State, 4D22-2935 (10/25/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884350/opinion/Opinion_2022-2935.pdf

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: The portion of the condition requiring appellant to pay for random drug testing is a special condition requiring oral pronouncement at sentencing. Portuese v. State, 4D22-2935 (10/25/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884350/opinion/Opinion_2022-2935.pdf

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Condition of probation state authorizing random, warrantless searches by probation officers and/or law enforcement is a general condition as to probation officers but a special condition as to LEOS. PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Condition requiring Defendant to undergo a substance abuse evaluation at her own expense, and successfully complete any treatment and education determined to be necessary is a special condition. PROBATION-CONDITIONS: A 10 p.m. and 6 a.m curfew is a special condition. Portuese v. State, 4D22-2935 (10/25/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884350/opinion/Opinion_2022-

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Condition prohibiting visiting any establishment where the primary business is the sale and dispensing of alcoholic beverages is a special condition. Portuese v. State, 4D22-2935 (10/25/23)

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Condition requiring Defendsnt to attend a support group with a focus on substance abuse issues at least two times per week is a special condition. Portuese v. State, 4D22-2935 (10/25/23)
https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884350/opinion/Opinion_2022-2935.pdf

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: The requirement that Defendant pay costs in equal monthly installments must be corrected to match the trial judge's oral pronouncement that they be paid over the period of supervision. Portuese v. State, 4D22-2935 (10/25/23)
https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884350/opinion/Opinion_2022-2935.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: To support summary denial without a hearing, a trial court must either state its rationale in its decision or attach those specific parts of the record that refute each claim presented in the motion. Boyd v. State, 4D23-203 (10/25/23)
https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/884352/opinion/Opinion_2023-0203.pdf

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Where Court dismissed Defendant's motion for postconviction relief for being facially insufficient but did so without prejudice to the filing of an amended motion, Defendant is entitled to add a

2nd, new grounds for postconviction relief which had not been included in the original motion. When the two-year filing requirement had not yet expired, and the court had not issued a final order on original 3.850 motion, it must consider any additional claims raised in the amended motion. Caldwell v. State, 5D23-1888 (10/20/23)

JURISDICTION: Appellate court has jurisdiction over State's appeals of orders dismissing an information, regardless of whether it is final or non-final. Caldwell v. State, 5D23-1888 (10/20/23)

COSTS: The statutory authority for all costs imposed, whether they are mandatory or discretionary, must be cited in the written order. Luck v. State, 5D23-113 (10/20/23)
https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/881677/opinion/Opinion_23-0113.pdf

JURISDICTION: The fact that the Defendant was never seized or personally served with valid process does not permit dismissal of the underlying charge. There is nothing in the Constitution that requires a court to permit a guilty person rightfully convicted to escape justice because he was brought to trial against his will. An illegal or invalid arrest does not provide a basis for dismissal of criminal charges. There is no such thing as dismissal of criminal charges for lack of personal jurisdiction. State v. Bestin, 6D23-476 (10/20/23)

AMENDMENT-RULES-AUTOMATIC SEALING: Fla.R.Gen.Practice 2.420 is amended to reflect a recent statutory change in §943.0595 requiring FDLE to automatically seal criminal history records that meet specified criteria, such as when a judgment of acquittal was rendered as to all counts. FDLE must notify the clerk of court, and the clerk of the court must automatically keep the prior related record confidential. EVIDENCE-OPINION: Officer's opinion that shooting, observed by the officer and captured on bodycam, was not self defense is improper opinion evidence, but the unobjected to evidence is not fundametal error where the State did not make the officer's improper testimony the focus of the trial and the State presented ample evidence, without the officer's improper testimony, of the defendant's guilt. Gainey v. State, 1D2022-1816 (10/18/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/881495/opinion/Opinion_2022-1816.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS: Habeas corpus is not to be used for additional appeals of issues that could have been or were raised on appeal or in other postconviction motions. Heagney v. State, 1D2022-4164 (10/18/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/881490/opinion/Opinion_2022-4164.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Two requirements must be met in order for a conviction to be set aside on the basis of newly discovered evidence. First, the evidence must have been unknown by the trial court, by the party, or by counsel at the time of trial, and it must appear that defendant or his counsel could not have known of it by the use of diligence. Second, the newly discovered evidence must be of such nature that it would probably produce an acquittal on retrial. Rigg v. MAXIMUM SENTENCE: A 591-day prison sentence is greater than the maximum allowable sentences for DWLS, RWOV, and LOSA, accumulatively or individually. Luviano v. State, 4D22-1382 (10/18/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/881503/opinion/Opinion_2022-

GAIN-TIME-FIREARM-MANDATORY MINIMUM: A defendant is not eligible for statutory gain-time prior to serving the firearm minimum sentence. Gain time does not continue to accumulate toward a longer concurrent sentence while a defendant is serving a firearm minimum mandatory sentence. Jean v. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Lack of subject matter jurisdiction can be raised at any time. Defendant's argument that the trial court lacked subject matter jurisdiction over his petit theft charge because it took place on the Jacksonville Naval Air Station, which he contends is exclusively federal land and jurisdiction should have been sdressed on the merits. Virginia v. State, 5D23-256 (10/13/23) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/881244/opinion/Opinion_23-0256.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: To be entitled to an evidentiary hearing on a claim of ineffective assistance, the defendant must allege specific facts that are not conclusively rebutted by the record and which demonstrate a deficiency in performance that prejudiced the defendant. Counsel cannot be deemed ineffective for failing to file a baseless motion. Condell v. State, 3D23-1188 (10/11/23)

RESISTING WITHOUT VIOLENCE-JOA: Officer was not engaged in the lawful execution of a legal duty when he reached into the threshhold of the Defendant's home to pull him out after he had walked inside when officer attempted to arrest him for trespass. A warrantless home entry, accompanied by a search, seizure, and arres State cannot prove that the police are in the lawful execution of a legal duty when they arrest a suspect if the arrest itself is executed unlawfully. Arrest is not justified by hot pursuit when the underlying conduct is a nonviolent misdemeanor. When the officer has time to get a warrant, he must do so—even though the misdemeanant fled. Tellam v. BREATH TEST: Continuous face to face observation for twenty minutes is not required to achieve substantial compliance with administrative rules for breath tests. Defendant in the patrol car within earshot of the officer is enough. Chiaravalle v. State, 4D22-2646 (10/11/23)

RETALIATORY LIENS: 18 U.S.C. §1521, which criminalizes the filing of retaliatory liens against the property of "any officer or employee of the United States," does not apply to false liens filed against former federal officers or employees for official duties they performed while in service with the federal government. Defendant (the self-proclaimed heir to the kingdom of Morocco) who claimed a $2.7 million tax refund and filed $96 million liens against the properties of the former Secretary of the Treasury and the Commissioner of the IRS is entitled to a JOA because they were not public officials at the time that the false liens were filed. USA v. Pate, No. 20-10545 (11th Cir. 10/11/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010545.enb.pdf

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: When called on to resolve a dispute over a statute's meaning, a court normally ask how a reasonable person, conversant with the relevant social and linguistic conventions, would read the text in context. USA v. Pate, No. 20-10545 (11th Cir. 10/11/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010545.enb.pdf

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: Purposes, obvious or otherwise, provide no basis for skirting a statute's plain language.. "Without strong textual or precedential arguments, the government retreats to 'that last redoubt of losing causes, the proposition that the statute at hand should be liberally construed to achieve its purposes." But, "we can't just do whatever would further the purposes that the government attributes to Congress. Doing so would ignore the fact that 'the textual limitations upon a law's scope are no less a part of its 'purpose' than its substantive authorizations.'" USA v. Pate, No. 20-10545 (11th Cir. 10/11/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010545.enb.pdf

interpret the law as written." USA v. Pate, No. 20-10545 (11th Cir. 10/11/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010545.enb.pdf

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION (J. GRANT, DISSENTING): When interpreting words like "officer" and "employee" we cannot default to the assumption that those terms operate only in the present tense, including current but not former officials. The term "employees" on its own lacks a temporal qualifier. It is not the substantive definitions, however, but the verb tense used in those definitions that moves the needle for the majority. Effectively adding the word "current" to the meaning of "officer" is a big step. Using the tense of a verb imbedded in the definition of a noun to do so is even bigger. USA v. Pate, No. 20-10545 (11th Cir. 10/11/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010545.enb.pdf

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION-DICTIONARY-(J. GRANT, DISSENTING): I fear that we are over relying on dictionaries when we use them to unpack basic words. . .To be sure, they are often helpful. But not always—and we may risk complicating rather than simplifying a statute's meaning by evaluating minutiae from the definitions of well-understood words." USA v. Pate, No. 20-10545 (11th Cir. 10/11/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010545.enb.pdf

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION (J. GRANT, DISSENTING): "[T]extualism does not begin and end with dictionaries. Hypertechnical interpretation can obscure a text's true meaning just as easily as the righfully rejected purposivist strategies that were more popular in the past." USA v. Pate, No. 20-10545 (11th Cir. 10/11/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010545.enb.pdf

COVID-SPEEDY TRIAL-INDICTMENT-DELAY: Almost ten-month delay between arrest and indictment due to COVID restrictions on convening a grand jury falls within the ends-of-justice exception to the Speedy Trial Act. USA v. Dunn, No. 22-11731 (10/10/23)

SPEEDY TRIAL: 18 U.S.C. § 3161(h)(7) permits a district court to grant a continuance and to exclude the resulting delay if the court, after considering certain factors, makes on-the-record findings that the ends of justice served by granting the continuance outweigh the public's and defendant's interests in a speedy trial. The fact that all grand jury sessions were temporarily continued due to the COVID-19 pandemic provided sufficient justification to continue the arraignment, without case specific, ends-of-justice findings. USA v. Dunn, No. 22-11731 (10/10//23)

DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Appellate review of the trial court's denial of a downward departure from a mandatory minimum sentence is only appropriate when the trial court misapprehends its discretion to depart or refuses to exercise that discretion as a matter of policy. Clark v. State, 1D22-1384 (10/11/23)

RESTITUTION: Due process requires a formal hearing on the amount of restitution, and where a defendant objects to the amount of restitution and requests a hearing, a trial court's failure to hold such a hearing requires a reversal of the restitution order. Feldman v. State, 2D22-3265 (10/6/23)

an ineffective assistance of counsel claim, Defendant must specifically set forth the harm from the alleged omission, identifying a specific evidentiary matter to which the failure to depose witnesses would relate. Defendant was not entitled to a hearing where he claimed tht a deposition would have shown his and the officer's "sour relationship,." but attached records show that counsel tried to avoid revealing that relationship so as not to prejudice the defense. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for failure to obtain the dash-cam or body-cam videos, as well as intersection and business camera footage, from the incident. Defendant's allegation that such cameras exist cannot be dismissed as speculative. Newcomer v. State, 5D23-818 (10/6/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel should have advised him to take a 3 or 4.25 year plea offer and that he would have accepted the offer, particularly where counsel's strategy was to do nothing and hope the officer did not show up for trial. Newcomer v. State, 5D23-818 (10/6/23)

STAND YOUR GROUND: Defendant who stabbed a lady in th4 neck with a pocketknife and later explained that she was in the mood to stab someone fails to make a prima facie case of SYG immunity. A boilerplate recitation of the applicable statutes and court decisions devoid of any allegation of fact is legally insufficient. Freeman v. State, 1D21-355 (10/4/23)

STAND YOUR GROUND-BURDEN OF PROOF: The defendant seeking SYG immunity–not the State--bears the initial burden of presenting evidence at the pretrial immunity hearing sufficient to raise a prima facie claim. A split of authority exists among the district courts as to which party has the initial burden of proof at a self-defense immunity hearing. Freeman v. State, 1D21-355 (10/4/23)

STATEMENTS OF DEFENDANT-MIRANDA (J. LONG, CONCURRING): "Thanks in large part to Hollywood movies and television programs, . . .the warnings have developed into a sort of American legal and cultural sacred cow. It has created a strange paradox. The average American can recite the warnings, yet few can explain where they came from." Miranda warnings are a court-created prophylactic rule and are not required by the constitution. Courts should not robotically apply Miranda just by identifying an imperfection in the provision of the warnings. Instead, they should carefully balance their costs against their benefits. Freeman v. State, 1D21-355 (10/4/23)

SELLING DEER MEAT: A meat processor cannot sell native venison meat when the hunter had not paid for the contracted processing services. Defendant is properly convicted of selling native venison meat. State v. Berens, 1D22-71 (10/4/23)

STIFFING: Neither a hunter's failure to pay for and pick up the meat that he asked to be serviced, nor the processor's subsequent effort to recover the money he is owed, could impact any effort to keep poaching in check. Indeed, the deer here already would have been taken and could not get any deader, and the meat already would have been processed and packaged. There is not a whole lot of financial incentive for a deadbeat hunter to over-hunt and then repeatedly engage in the stiffing of processors. As a remedy for when this stiffing does happen, there are statutorily established commercial protections in place." State v. Berens, 1D22-71 (10/4/23)

MOTION TO DISMISS (J. TANENBAUM, CONCURRING): R 3.190(c)(4) requires that the defendant allege the facts on which his motion is based with specificity, and the motion must be "sworn to." A jurat that indicates only that Defendant "acknowledged" the motion is legally insufficient. State v. Berens, 1D22-71 (10/4/23)

PROBATION-EARLY TERMINATION-CERTIORARI: Where plea agreement provided for State to not oppose early termination of probation after five years but Court denied the unopposed motion without a hearing or explanation, writ of certiorari is appropriate to compel the Court to issue an amended order denying the motion for early termination of probation, which must include the court's reasoning. Parson v. State, 1D23-0869 (10/4/23)

BELATED APPEAL: A petitioner seeking a belated appeal must provide, among other things, a sworn statement of the specific acts that constitute the basis for entitlement to the relief sought, i.e., the petition must 1) state whether the petitioner requested counsel to proceed with the appeal and the date of any such request; 2) state if the petitioner was misadvised as to the availability of appellate review or the status of filing a notice of appeal; or 3) identify the circumstances. that were beyond the petitioner's control and otherwise interfered with the petitioner's ability to file a timely appeal. "Bottom line: The petitioner's own neglect is not a basis for relief." Broxton v. State, 1D23-1399 (10/4/23)

SENTENCING-REASONS: Where Defendant violated probation within 2 months of its imposition by strangling his girl friend on her daughter's birthday and storing her body in a 55-gallon barrel in his home for six months, the Court's statement of reasons for the upward variance was deficient; it failed to allow reviewing court to understand why the district court imposed it (20 years concurrent with the life sentence on the murder) If a district court imposes an above-guideline sentence, a specific statement of explanation is required. "Although. . .we. . .feel certain that we know what the district court will say on remand," a new sentencing hearing is required. USA v. Steiger, No. 22-10742 (10/3/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210742.pdf

SENTENCING-REASONS (J PRYOR, CONCURRING): Court should rehear this appeal en banc to reconsider the per se rule of reversal for unobjected-to §3553(c)(2) errors and "abolish our idiosyncratic and unprincipled treatment of section 3553(c) errors". "[E]ncouraging contemporaneous objection[s]. . .avoids the wasteful exercise that we see in this appeal." USA v. Steiger, No. 22-10742 (10/3/23)

DEPORTATION: Armed robbery is a "theft offense" within the meaning of 8 U.S.C. §1101(a)(43)(G), and therefore is an "aggravated felony," rendering

SEPTEMBER 2023

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on his claim of newly discovered evidence that he had recently received a letter from a retired detective alerting him to the existence of exculpatory surveillance videos. Although it may be unusual that the detective's and the police department's letters to be unsigned, the letters are not inherently incredible. Harris v. State, 2D22-1355 (9/29/23)

form of opinions and conclusions, unless (1) the witness cannot readily, and with equal accuracy and adequacy, communicate what he or she has perceived to the trier of fact without testifying in terms of inferences or opinions and the witness's use of inferences or opinions will not mislead the trier of fact to the prejudice of the objecting party; and (2) The opinions and inferences do not require a special knowledge, skill, experience, or training. This type of opinion testimony is usually limited to matters relating to distance, time, size, weight, form, and identity, which are easily observable. Mantecon v. EVIDENCE-LAY OPINION: If witness's opinion testimony that Defendant did not have a legitimate reason to shoot the victim and others with his AR-15, the defense opened the door to it during his cross-examination by asking the witness whether he had told the officer that the Defendant might have been afraid of being jumped. JUROR-CHALLENGE FOR CAUSE: Court erred by disallowing a challenge for cause of a juror who had the "heebie jeebies," and acknowledged that she had some concerns about her ability to remain fair and impartial. SECURE DETENTION: Secure detention may not be extended beyond 21 days based on "the facts of the case and the nature of the charges," or jeopardy to public safety. A finding of good cause for continued detention must be predicated on a record containing competent evidence of the reasons for continuing the detention period. DEATH PENALTY-UNANIMOUS VERDICT-EX POST FACTO: The old death penalty statute (§921.141) required the State to convince all twelve jurors that death is the appropriate sentence, whereas the current statute mandates only eight. The April 2023 statutory amendment applies to a multiple murder trial from 2004, even when the amendment was passed in the middle of jury selection. State v. Victorino and Hunter, 5D23-1569 (9/22/23)

DEATH PENALTY-UNANIMOUS VERDICT-EX POST FACTO: A law does not violate the ex post facto clause unless it is retrospective in its effect and alters the definition of a crime or increases the sentence by which the crime is punishable. A procedural change—even one that works to a defendant's disadvantage—is generally not an ex post facto law since it does not alter substantive personal rights. §921.141 is a quintessentially procedural change that has no substantive effect. "[I]t is irrelevant that the current version of section 921.141 became law after jury selection started. Criminal jeopardy attaches when a jury—not a group of prospective jurors—is sworn." State v. Victorino and Hunter, 5D23-1569 (9/22/23)

SPEEDY TRIAL-RECAPTURE-COUNTING-COVID: On May 3rd (Tuesday), Notice of Expiration of Speedy Trial Time is filed. On May 5, (Thursday), Court sets trial for May 17th. Counting for the recapture time period began on May 6th (Friday), so that the 10-day recapture time period would run through May 16th (Monday). "Accordingly, if 10 days was the applicable recapture time period, then we must reverse the denial of Wright's motion for discharge. It wasn't, so we don't." A COVID administrative order had temporarily changed the 10 day recapture window to 30 days. The 30-day recapture period still remains in effect. Wright v. State, 6D23-1356 (9/22/23)

DEATH PENALTY-INTELLECTUAL DISABILITY: Defendant's claim that Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (FAS) is the functional equivalent of an intellectual disability under the Eighth Amendment and Atkins is s untimely, procedurally barred, and meritless. New opinions or research studies based on a compilation or analysis of previously existing data and scientific information are not newly discovered evidence. The categorical bar of Atkins that shields the intellectually disabled from execution does not apply to individuals with other forms of mental illness or brain damage. Zack v. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-APPEAL-PRESERVATION: Defendant's claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to preserve for appeal the denial of his motion to suppress is not preserved where he failed to allege that he would not have entered the plea and would have gone to trial if he had known counsel's failure meant that he could not appeal the order denying suppression. An allegation that counsel failed to preserve an issue is not a legitimate ineffective-assistance claim to the extent that it suggests that preservation would have resulted in reversal on appeal. VOP: Court may revoke probation without a violation of probation affidavit.

"[A] probation or community-control violation proceeding is not a separate criminal prosecution. CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: Where Court orally pronounces credIt for time served of 797 days for his five cases (for which arrests occurred on different dates) but written judgments showed varying jail credit, Defendant is entitled to the 797 days. POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE-PLEA OFFER: Defendant is not entitled to post conviction relief from his L & L conviction on the claim that counsel, in conveying the one year probation offer, did not clarify whether there would be a withhold of adjudication. "What [Defendant] contends is competent substantial, evidence of a newly discovered, different, unconveyed plea offer is merely speculation based on misconstrued hearsay allegations in an affidavit contradicted by fragmental recitations of the previous plea offer which are in no way irreconcilable with the plea offer [overheard in the hallway]." HABEAS CORPUS: The purpose of a habeas corpus proceeding is to inquire into the legality of a petitioner's present detention, not to challenge the judicial action that put him in jail. THREE STRIKES LAW: 18 U.S.C. §3559 (the three-strikes law) provides that a person convicted of a serious violent felony shall receive a mandatory life sentence if he has previously been convicted of two or more serious violent felonies. A "serious violent felony" is (1) an enumerated offense, (2) one involving use or threatened use of physical force (elements clause), or (3) one that by its nature, involves a substantial risk that physical force against the person of another may be used in the course of committing the offense (residual clause). Reliance on the residual clause may be unconstitutional, but the Supreme Court has not yet so held. Jones v. USA, No. 20-13365

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-JURISDICTION-THREE STRIKES: Federal courts have jurisdiction to consider a second or successive motion for post conviction relief only if it is based on a new rule of constitutional law, made retroactive to cases on collateral review by the Supreme Court, that was previously unavailable, or if it is based on newly discovered evidence that, if proven and viewed in light of the evidence as a whole, would be sufficient to establish by clear and convincing evidence that no reasonable fact-finder would have found the movant guilty of the offense. But because the Supreme Court has not ruled on the constitutionality of the residual clause of the three-strikes law, a federal court lacks jurisdiction to rule on the merits. Jones v. USA, No. 20-13365 (11th Cir. 9/14/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013365.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-JURISDICTION-THREE STRIKES: Only the Supreme Court can announce a new rule of constitutional law. The fact that the Supreme Court has decided that the residual clause of the analogous Armed Career Criminal Act is unconstitutionally vague is not a holding that the residual clause of the three-strikes law is unconstitutional too. "Jones and the dissenting opinion are wrong that a residual clause is a residual clause is a residual clause." "Although the three-strikes law's residual clause is 'similarly worded' to the residual clauses in Johnson, Dimaya, and Davis, we can't pluck the rules announced by those decisions and plop them onto Jones's challenge to a different statute in a different context." Jones v. USA, No. 20-13365 (11th Cir. 9/14/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-JURISDICTION-THREE STRIKES (J. WILSON, DISSENT): "Viewing the rules of Johnson and Dimaya and Davis as specific only to the statutes they addressed is in essence holding that when the Supreme Court establishes a rule it can govern only that statute, and that applying the same principle to another statute necessarily requires a new and separate rule. But Supreme Court precedent shows otherwise. . . [N]ot every extension of Supreme Court precedent to a new statute requires a new rule of constitutional law. A rule is not 'new' where it simply applies an existing rule in a way that would be obvious to reasonable jurists." Jones v. USA, No. 20-13365 (11th Cir. 9/14/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013365.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-JURISDICTION-THREE STRIKES (J. WILSON, DISSENT): "The majority's holding that we lack jurisdiction to hear this appeal is alarming. If the majority's view is correct, then despite the Supreme Court's clear guidance in three recent decisions that residual clauses of this sort are unconstitutional. . .prisoners like Jones will be barred from vindicating their rights. And it is small comfort to suggest that such prisoners wait for us to strike down §3559(c)'s residual clause on plenary appeal. Such an occasion will not arise since the government has conceded that this residual clause is unconstitutional and, therefore, no longer seeks to apply it in criminal prosecutions. The majority thus leaves Jones and others like him to serve out unconstitutional sentences. . .[O]ur precedents do not require this injustice." Jones v. USA, No. 20-13365 (11th Cir. 9/14/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013365.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: To warrant relief from death penalty, a claim of newly discovered evidence must be of such nature that it would probably produce a less severe sentence upon retrial. Defendant who fails to allege that he probably would be sentenced to life if the jury or trial court were told that he has ASD or PTSD makes a facially insufficient claim. Alleging a reasonable probability of a life sentence at retrial is not equivalent to alleging a probable life sentence at a retrial and yields a facially insufficient claim. While the "reasonable probability" prejudice standard means a probability higher than mere chance, it does not mean a probability greater than fifty percent; conversely, the "probably" prejudice standard does mean a probability greater than fifty percent. Damren v. State, SC2023-15 (9/14/23)

HABEAS CORPUS-PRETRIAL DETENTION: A petitioner seeking a writ of habeas corpus must make a prima facie case that his current detention is unlawful by submitting an affidavit or evidence demonstrating that his financial circumstances are such that the bail amount set by the trial court is tantamount to pretrial detention. DISCOVERY VIOLATION-EXPERT: State is required to disclose expert witnesses who have not provided a written report and a curriculum vitae or who are going to testify. The failure to designate a witness in discovery as an expert witness constitutes a discovery violation. State committed a discovery violation by failing to disclose that its lead investigator would testify as an expert. Testimony that the victim's injuries were not consistent with Defendant's claim that he shot at the ground was expert opinion. Gurrola v. State, 5D21-2957 (9/8/23)

COVID: COVID procedure of allowing grand jury to convene by video-conferencing in groups of ten or less at different courthouses, if improper, does not invalidate the indictment. "Graham's argument is missing one key component: prejudice." Even if he were correct that grand jurors must all be present in the same room, that kind of violation of Rule 6 is not a fundamental error. The fact that the grand jurors met in three secure locations and communicated via video-conference did not change the basic nature of the grand jury or fatally infect the indictment. USA v. Graham, No. 22-11809

WIRETAP: Affidavits comprehensively outlining why previous sources of information and reasonable alternative methods would not suffice are sufficient for a wiretap. When requesting a wiretap, the government need not show a comprehensive exhaustion of all possible techniques. The law only demands an explanation of the retroactive or prospective failure of several investigative techniques that reasonably suggest themselves. If having some evidence of a crime were enough to bar a wiretap as unnecessary, no wiretap order could ever be issued because evidence is required to get a wiretap in the first place. USA v. Graham, No. 22-11809 (11th Cir. 9/7/23)

SUPERVISED RELEASE-TOLLING: Absconding during a term of supervised release does not toll the supervised release period. Amended Affidavit of Violation of Probation alleging a new law violation of a new offense (domestic battery) exceeds Court's jurisdiction. POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant's fails on claim that counsel was ineffective for not talking him out of reneging mid-trial on his plea agreement to testify against his co-Defendant. Ingram v. Warden, HCI, No. 22-11459

AEDPA: A determination would (or would not) have accepted a plea offer or would (or would not) have gone to trial but for counsel's deficient advice and performance constitutes a finding of fact. Under AEDPA, that factual finding is presumably unless rebutted clear and convincing evidence. Ingram v. Warden, HCI, No. 22-11459 (11th Cir. 9/6/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-SELF-IMMOLATION: Counsel was not deficient for failing to dissuade client from reneging, mid-trial, on his plea agreement to testify against his co-defendant in a tie-him-up-and-set-him-on-fire murder case. Defendant's rejection of his attorneys' advice (if he did not testify against co-defendant he could receive the death penalty) and his decision to follow another co-defendant's advice ("Nobody talks, everybody walks") is not his attorneys' fault. Counsel was not deficient for not producing an aunt and sister to dissuade him by threats of a "whooping" or "popp[ing] him on the head," assuming they could have made it to the courthouse on time. Death penalty affirmed. Ingram v. Warden, HCI, No. 22-11459 (11th Cir. 9/6/23)

DEFINITION-"CRASH": Although the term 'traffic crash' reasonably contemplates some degree of damage, it clearly does not imply that damage

must have occurred to the property of another, nor does it set a minimum amount necessary in order for such an incident to legally occur. State v. McCartha, 1D22-794 (9/6/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/877277/opinion/download%3FdocumentVersionID=deb68113-fe15-4c62-8699-1a06099fdd50

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CRASH: Pickup truck found overturned in a ditch with a damaged headlight, but no evidence that it had hit anything besides the road and ditch was "involved in the crash." VOP-HEARSAY: Fellow occupants statement that Defendant no longer resided at his home and was hiding out in Opa-Locka is hearsay. But defendant's failure to keep probation appointments and repeated unsuccessful attempts to locate him at his home is non-hearsay evidence. There had been a murder at his home at the time of his disappearance. Revocation upheld. Brownlee v. State, 3D19-551 (9/6/23) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/877129/opinion/190551_DC08_09062023_100011_i.pdf

VOP-DRUG TEST: Totality of hearsay and non-hearsay evidence of officer performing field drug test, confirmed by laboratory test, is sufficient evidence of violation of probation by possession of narcotic. Brownlee v. State, 3D19-

VOP-HFO: To effectuate a habitual felony offender sentence upon revocation of probation, a trial court must orally pronounce habitual felony offender status, even when Defendant had been originally sentenced as an HFO. On VOP, Defendant's sentence of ten years as a habitual felony offender was illegal because the judge failed to orally designate him as such. But Court may re-sentence the Defendant as an HFO without a full resentencing hearing. Brownlee v. State, 3D19-551 (9/6/23)

DISCOVERY-CI DISCLOSURE: Disclosure of a CI's identity is required where the defendant is charged with selling or delivering illegal drugs to the informant and no officer or other witness was present. Disclosure of a confidential informant is required if an informant's identity is essential to a fair determination of a cause. This rule centers around the defendant's right to confront the witnesses against him, and has nothing to do with whether the CI has valuable testimony for the defense. State's argument that it intends to rely on the audio/video recording under "silent witness" theory fails. State v. Williams, 3D23-208 (9/6/23)

PLEA-WITHDRAWAL: Defendant is entitled to withdraw his plea where the agreement included a stipulation that Defendant is not a danger to the community but the Court found that he was. A trial judge is never bound to honor a plea agreement, but when there has been a firm agreement for a specified sentence and the judge determines to impose a greater sentence, the defendant has the right to withdraw the plea. Blount v. State, 4D22-2755 (9/6/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-AEDPA: Defendant's claim of ineffective assistance of counsel fails where he does not identify any expert or lay witnesses and the substance of their testimony to support mental health/substance abuse mitigation/lack of sleep mitigation for killing his grandparents. AEDPA only permits a federal court to grant a writ of habeas corpus with respect to a claim adjudicated on the merits in a state court if that adjudication resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court, or resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding. A state prisoner must show that the state court's ruling on the claim being presented in federal court was so lacking in justification that there was an error well understood and comprehended beyond any possibility for fairminded disagreement. Mashburn v. Commissioner, No. 22-10329 (11th Cir. 9/5/23)

DEATH PENALTY-POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant's argument--not counsel's failure to produce mitigating evidence, but rather his failure to produce even more--fails. Mashburn v. Commissioner, Alabama DOC, No. 22-10329 (11th Cir. 9/5/23)

APPEAL-MOTION TO CORRECT-JURISDICTION: Trial court has jurisdiction to rule on a motion to correct sentence while an appeal is pending, but only for 60 days from the filing of the motion. SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS: Defendant pled to LOSA with death and vehicular homicide. A subsequent arrest or charge is not a proper factor for the sentencing judge to consider. Where the PSI referenced uncharged criminal conduct (Defendant hiding his room mate's gun after a shoot out at their house the morning of the accident), the State elaborated on the uncharged conduct in order to give the Court "a better understanding of who this defendant is," and the Court considered it, Defendant is entitled to a new sentencing hearing. Error is fundamental. "[W]e. . .caution trial courts from commenting on impermissible sentencing factors, such as uncharged conduct, if they should be presented—even without objection." Wyrich v. State, 2D22-1458 (9/1/23) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/876809/opinion/221458_DC13_09012023_083051_i.pdf

DISCOVERY VIOLATION: Failure to disclose in writing oral statements made by a defendant is a discovery violation. State committed a discovery violation by not disclosing statements made by a Defendant to a detective. The fact that the detective had previously testified to the statements at a hearing when the Defendant was represented by a different attorney does not absolve the State of its duty of disclosure. Anytime a trial court is alerted during a criminal trial to a possible discovery violation, It is required to conduct a Richardson hearing, even where the defendant does not specifically request it. New trial required. Young v. State, 6D23-24 (9/1/23)

RULES-AMENDMENT-FLORIDA BAR: A felony charge alleging conduct reflecting adversely on the lawyer's fitness to practice law can constitute clear and convincing evidence that the lawyer's continued practice of law would cause great public harm, warranting an emergency suspension. SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Officers with an arrest warrant followed the Defendant into his garage, arrested him, removed his fanny pack, and searched it. Defendant was secured 8-10 feet away at the time of the search. Once the officers reduced the fanny pack to their exclusive control and there is no longer any danger of the arrestee gaining access to it, the search cannot be justified as a search incident to arrest. WITNESS TAMPERING: Defendant is properly convicted of tampering with a witness in an official proceeding by threatening her to keep her from working as a CI. Law enforcement investigations are not "official proceedings," but a defendant can be convicted of federal witness tampering even if an official proceeding is not pending or about to be instituted; it is enough that the defendant foresees that an official proceeding will ensue. CHILD HEARSAY: Preserving a claim that the trial court failed to make the required factual findings for admission of child hearsay requires a contemporaneous objection specifically concerning the sufficiency of those findings. A general objection is not enough. Failure to make a specific finding as to the trustworthiness of the witness (here, the child's grandmother) as a source of the victim's hearsay statements is harmless error. Prado v. VOP-CONDITIONS: Probation cannot be revoked for violating a special condition that was not imposed by the court. In determining whether a condition has been properly imposed by the court so as to support a revocation, new, special conditions imposed unilaterally by a probation officer are distinguished from those that fall within the ambit of an existing court directive. DOUBLE JEOPARDY: At sentencing, Court said "I'll. . .sentence you to serve 7.875 months in the Department of Corrections." He meant "years," not "months." Seven seconds after Defendant left the room, the judge corrected himself, but later ruled that Double Jeopardy kept him from changing "months" to "years." Court erred. Correction of a sentence is barred only when the Defendant begins serving the sentence, which does not occur the instant Defendant leaves the courtroom. Double jeopardy does not allow a defendant to take advantage of a trial court's verbal misstep, quickly rectified, during sentencing. "We are not inclined to allow appellant to play 'gotcha' by taking advantage of a verbal mistake made during sentencing that was obvious, immediately recognized, and corrected. . .within seconds." SENTENCING-SUBSTANTIVE REASONABLENESS (J. SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS: Defendant pled to LOSA with death and vehicular homicide. A subsequent arrest or charge is not a proper factor for the sentencing judge to consider. Where the PSI referenced uncharged criminal conduct (Defendant hiding his room mate's gun after a shoot out at their house the morning of the accident), the State elaborated on the uncharged conduct in order to give the Court "a better understanding of who this defendant is," and the Court considered it, Defendant is entitled to a new sentencing hearing. APPEAL-DISMISSAL/AFFIRMANCE (J. TANENBAUM, DISSENTING): The judgment of conviction and the sentencing order are separate final orders; the sentence is a post-decretal additional final order. Appellate court has the constitutional authority to consider the judgment of conviction and the sentencing orders. Dismissal, then, is not the proper disposition. The plea agreement prevents a cognizable argument for reversal of his judgment of conviction, and the facts do not advance a persuasive argument for vacating the sentencing order. So the judgments should be affirmed. Lopez v. State, 1D22-179 (8/23/23)

BOND-PROHIBITION-STANDING: Public Defender lacks standing to petition for Writ of Prohibition against standing order allowing all other judges in the circuit at first appearances on a new arrest to modify the conditions of pretrial release previously set by another judge. And certiorari, not prohibition, would be the correct writ if the PD had standing. Which it does not. Eger v. The Judges of the Twelfth Judicial Circuit, 2D23-1151 (8/23/23)

JURISDICTION-VOP: A circuit court that accepted a guilty plea and granted a criminal defendant probation retains jurisdiction over the violation of that probation when the legislature changes the underlying crime from a felony to a misdemeanor (theft). Meyer v. State, 3D23-238 (8/23/23)

JURISDICTION-VOP (J. GORDO, CONCURRING): "Meyer frames his argument entirely as an attack on the jurisdiction of the circuit court to enter the judgment and sentence at issue. . .A different issue concerns what sentencing limits were available for the violation of probation due to the change in the underlying criminal statute. SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Officers may not use cell phone location to track Defendant absent a search warrant, but because discovery of his precise location was inevitable (they made a controlled call) his arrest pursuant to a warrant was lawful. Flood v. State, 4D22-49 (8/23/23)

SCRIVENER'S ERROR: Correction of a scrivener's error–Defendant was convicted of first degree murder, not felony murder--can be corrected as a ministerial act by the trial court rather than by reversing the judgment. Gilbert v. State, 4D22-223 (8/23/23)

STAND YOUR GROUND: Defendant is not entitled to SYG immunity where Victim called 911 after she was shot, pleaded with Defendant for mercy, fled her home, was chased down the hallway, screamed for help, and was brutally beaten to the extent of suffering 6 or 7 skull fractures resulting in death in front of their neighbor's front door. Error, if any, in Court's denial of the motion for SYG immunity–and there was none-- is cured by the jury's rejection of the self-defense claim. O'Neal v. State, 2D21-2460 (8/18/23)

VOIR DIRE-INDIVIDUAL: Individual voir dire is not required simply because the case is a high-profile death-penalty case. The mere existence of extensive pretrial publicity is not enough to raise a presumption of unfairness

DEFENDANT TESTIFYING-COLLOQUY: Although a record colloquy might be helpful for later appellate and postconviction reviews, the right to testify does not fall within the category of fundamental rights which must be waived on the record by the defendant himself. O'Neal v. State, 2D21-2460 (8/18/23)

EVIDENCE-PTSD: Court did not err in excluding Defendant's PTSD expert where the expert lacked sufficient facts to opine on his behavior or state of mind leading up to the murders, had not interviewed him, had not reviewed the mental health evaluations performed by other doctors, had not reviewed all the facts of the case, and did not know what happened before the murder or whether there had been any stressor that would have triggered the PTSD. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-AMENDED MOTION: Court erred in not allowing the Defendant to further amend the amended motion for post-conviction relief for omitting the required oath in the first amended motion, although the first amended motion stated that the oath would be filed by separate cover. Four months later the oath had not been filed, but the attorney explained that she had been out sick and mistakenly believed that her firm had filed a motion for an extension of time to file a second amended motion on her behalf. CONSPIRACY: Defendant is properly convicted of conspiracy to commit health care fraud based on her participation in a pharmacy's scheme to bill insurance company for lucrative compound prescriptions by altering the doctors' prescriptions (adding ingredients or continuing non-refillable prescriptions in perpetuity. Efforts to conceal a conspiracy may support the inference that a defendant knew of the conspiracy and joined it while it was in operation. USA v. Gladden, No. 21-11621 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

IDENTITY THEFT: Changing the addresses on file for patients to allow the pharmacy to continue to bill the insurance companies for prescriptions for patients who no longer need or wish to receive expensive compound prescriptions, and altering a doctor's prescriptions to procure such prescriptions, can constitute aggravated identity theft. Dubin does not foreclose conviction because the deception centered on the identity of the individual receiving the prescription and the doctor who wrote it. Identity theft covers both when someone steals personal information about and belonging to another and uses the information to deceive others. USA v. Gladden, No. 21-11621 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

CONSPIRACY-AGGRAVATED IDENTITY THEFT: Defendant, who worked for a pharmacy, is improperly convicted of Aggravated Identity Theft for obtaining a fraudulent prescription for her daughter. Mere facilitation of the predicate offense is not sufficient to support a conviction for conspiracy to commit Aggravated Identity Theft using a pre-filled prescription. The crux of the criminality requires more than facilitation of the offense. The deception at the heart of the conduct was obtaining the medically unnecessary prescriptions; the use of the daughter's identifying information was merely ancillary to the deception. Under Dubin, when a means of identification is used deceptively, this deception goes to who is involved, rather than just how or when services were provided. USA v. Gladden, No. 21-11621 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

RESTITUTION-HEALTH CARE FRAUD: In healthcare fraud cases, restitution amounts must be offset by the value of medically necessary goods and services that were provided. Where the Defendant (who worked for the pharmacy) had altered prescriptions in order to overcharge the insurance companies, the fact that some of the medicine fraudulently procured had been used does not serve to diminish the restitution owed. A prescription is not medically necessary just because the intended recipient used some of it. USA v. Gladden, No. 21-11621 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

FORFEITURE: A defendant convicted of health care fraud must forfeit property that constitutes or is derived, directly or indirectly, from gross proceeds traceable to the commission of the offense. To evaluate whether gross proceeds are traceable to the commission of the offense, this Court applies a but-for standard. Defendants may be required to forfeiture the entirety of the income received despite the company having provided some legitimate services unconnected to the health care fraud offenses. Court properly ordered forfeiture of $157,587.33—all but $10,000 of the salary paid to Defendant. Defendant's salary is the proper subject of forfeiture because, in the absence of the conspiracy in which he participated, the company would not have employed and compensated him the way that it did. USA v. Gladden, No. 21-11621 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

the reporting threshold into two or more separate transactions—for the purpose of evading a financial institution's reporting requirement. An individual who breaks a deposit in excess of $10,000 into smaller increments in order to avoid reporting requirements is generally guilty of structuring. 22 cash deposits below $10,000 over seven days, followed by 38 cash deposits under $10,000 over the course of around seven and a half months, all used to purchase a piece of real estate, establishes the crime of structuring. USA v. Bird, No. 22-10947 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE: It is inconsequential that evidence leaves room for innocent explanations for the defendant's conduct. A guilty verdict cannot be overturned if any reasonable construction of the evidence would have allowed the jury to find the defendant guilty beyond a reasonable doubt. USA v. Bird, No. 22-10947 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

STRUCTURING-CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE: The mens rea element of §5324(a) does not have to be proved directly. "Indeed, we would be rather amazed—and perhaps investigators would be quite appreciative—if individuals engaged in structuring ever wrote on bank deposit slips or in the memo lines of checks: 'For the purpose of evading the reporting requirements of 31 U.S.C. §5313(a).'" USA v. Bird, No. 22-10947 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210947.pdf

FINANCIAL CRIMES: "[F]inancial crimes are often mixtures of legal and illegal activity—it is the jury's role to act as the sieve." USA v. Bird, No. 22-10947 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210947.pdf

DEFENDANT TESTIFYING: A statement by a defendant, if disbelieved by the jury, may be considered as substantive evidence of the defendant's guilt when combined with other evidence. "While we rarely second-guess trial strategy—and we have no reason to do so here—we repeatedly remind litigants of the potential consequences of testifying at trial." USA v. Bird, No. 22-10947 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210947.pdf

INVITED ERROR: By supplying the proposed jury instructions, Defendant invited any purported error. Appellate courts are precluded from reviewing errors invited by the challenging party, even if plain error would result. "While some arguments stumble right out of the gate, others never see the gate open." USA v. Bird, No. 22-10947 (11th Cir. 8/17/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210947.pdf

CURRICULUM VITAE: Court did not err in considering Defendant to a be "a high-ranking official" in the Gangster Disciples organization notwithstanding that he denied having personally recruited certain members of the Hate Committee; he was "Chief Enforcer" for the Gangster Disciples—and indeed "Enforcer of the Year" in 2013. USA v. Caldwell, et al, No. 19-15024 (11th Cir. 8/16/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915024.pdf

SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVE UNREASONABLENESS: Defendant argued the he did not "corrupt[] an entire generation of teenagers" but rather "provided encouragement and support to local youth." Court found that Defendant was responsible for "a trail of murder, mayhem, maiming and destruction of life" and "directed [the Hate Committee's] teenage assassins to go out and simply randomly shoot, murder and maim people." A sentence of life plus ten years is not substantively unreasonable. USA v. Caldwell, et al, No. 19-15024 (11th Cir. 8/16/23)

RICO-JOA: Defendant's acquittal on two of the predicate acts does not entitle him to a Judgment of Acquittal for RICO. Other predicate Acts not specifically traceable to this Defendant can support a RICO conviction. Further, inconsistency between verdicts on different counts of the indictment does not vitiate convictions on those counts of which the defendant is found guilty. USA v. Caldwell, et al, No. 19-15024 (11th Cir. 8/16/23)

VOIR DIRE-UNCONSCIOUS BIAS: Court did not abuse its discretion in denying request that during voir dire the jury view a video on unconscious racial basis (which the Court characterized as "politically correct nonsense") or to pursue an unconscious-bias line of questioning. "Although a court sometimes has an obligation to permit defendants to ask questions about racial bias during voir dire, [w]e have never held that a district court must conduct unconscious bias training or allow unconscious bias questioning during voir dire." USA v. Caldwell, et al, No. 19-15024 (11th Cir. 8/16/23)

EXPERT-GANG ACTIVITY: Notice of expert opinion testimony must be given sufficiently before trial for adequate preparation and does not measure timeliness based on the expected date of the testimony. Disclosure six working days before trial may be considered untmely. Court did not abuse its discretion in excluding Defendants' proffered expert's testimony that the Gangster Disciples gang was not as organized and hierarchical as the Government characterized it to be the opinion was based on vague references to interviewing, field work, and statistical analysis. USA v. Caldwell, et al, No. 19-15024 (11th Cir. 8/16/23)

SHACKLING: Use of shackles not visible to the jury during a trial is lawful. USA v. Caldwell, et al, No. 19-15024 (11th Cir. 8/16/23)

COURTROOM PROCEDURE: Visibly storing weapons in the courtroom, all of which were admitted in evidence, is not so prejudicial as to deprive the defendants of a fair trial. USA v. Caldwell, et al, No. 19-15024 (11th Cir. 8/16/23)

JUDGE-IMPARTIALITY: Judge did not depart from impartiality by asking a witness whether DeKalb County is in the Northern District of Georgia (a question pertaining to venue). The trial judge is more than a referee to an adversarial proceeding. The judge may comment on the evidence, question witnesses, and elicit facts not yet adduced or which may need clarification, provided that a judge must maintain neutrality between the parties. USA v. Caldwell, et al, No. 19-15024 (11th Cir. 8/16/23)

WIRETAP: A factual error in an application for a wiretap requires suppression only if the defendant establishes deliberate falsehood or reckless disregard for the truth by the affiant and if, when material that is the subject of the falsity or reckless disregard is set to one side, probable cause would not support the warrant. Further, evidence obtained in good-faith reliance on a court-approved wiretap is not suppressible. USA v. Caldwell, et al, No. 19-15024 (11th Cir. 8/16/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915024.pdf

RICO-ENHANCEMENT-ACTS INVOLVING MURDER: Actual murder–not attempted murder-is required for the RICO sentencing enhancement. "Although the prosecutor in closing arguments elided the difference between the 'acts involving murder' that could serve as predicate racketeering activities. . .and the actual 'murder" required for the enhanced sentencing provision, the district judge did not make the same mistake. He instructed the jury that 'acts involving murder' for the purposes of finding the two racketeering activities needed for conviction extended to Georgia-law conspiracy to commit murder and attempted murder. But the district court never said that the jury should read the phrase 'involve murder' to mean 'involve acts involving murder.' The district court specifically defined 'murder' to include only actual murder." Error, if any, in the lack of clarity in the jury instruction is unpreserved. USA v. Caldwell, et al, No. 19-15024 (11th Cir. 8/16/23)

VERDICT FORM-RICO: Defendant charged with RICO is not entitled to an interrogative verdict asking whether he was guilty of "conspiracy to commit murder." That relevant question was not whether the object of the conspiracy was murder, but rather whether Defendant was vicariously liable for a murder that was part of the pattern of racketeering activity that supported the conspiracy in which he was involved. Moreover, the jury is not required to name the victim murdered. Defendant's self-description in text message as a "gd hitman" a month after the murders alleged in the indictment are not exculpatory "Even on its own terms, Gumbs's argument does not make sense; a jury could fairly infer that if Gumbs expressed regret for being a hitman for the Gangster Disciples in August 2015, then he was already a Disciple only a month earlier during the July 2015 wave of violence." HABEAS CORPUS: Court may dismiss, rather than transfer, a habeas petition when the petitioner seeks relief that (1) would be untimely if considered as a motion for postconviction relief under rule 3.850, (2) raise claims that could have been raised at trial or, if properly preserved, on direct appeal of the judgment and sentence, or (3) would be considered a second or successive motion under rule 3.850 that either fails to allege new or different grounds for relief that were known or should have been known at the time the first motion was filed. Farrior v. Dixon, 1D22-1498 (1/16/23)

LENGTHY SENTENCE-JUVENILE OFFENDER: The Graham/Miller line of cases hold that sentencing a juvenile to life in prison without the possibility of parole, for either a homicide or a non-homicide crime, constitutes cruel and unusual punishment. Any lengthy prison term constituting a de facto life sentence that does not include a mechanism to review the defendant's rehabilitation and maturity constitutes a de facto life sentence implicating Graham/Miller. The starting point for the ten-year period is from Defendant's release from physical custody, not from probation. But error here is harmless. USA v. Moore, No. 21-12291 (11th Cir. 8/11/23)

EVIDENCE: Court properly excluded testimony that witness had told Defendant that her ex-boyfriend, who Defendant shot, had been adjudicated delinquent for homicide years before. The existence of the alleged juvenile conviction was purely speculative, and the court had broad discretion to exclude references to it. USA v. Moore, No. 21-12291 (11th Cir. 8/11/23)

JURY QUESTION: The Court's response ("You have received all of the testimony, evidence, and. . .law necessary to reaching a verdict.") to a jury question ("Can a convicted felon reside in a house with a weapon?") was proper. USA v. Moore, No. 21-12291 (11th Cir. 8/11/23)

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-FIREARM: Court properly applied a four level base offence level enhancement for using a firearm in connection to another felony where he used the gun to shoot the woman's ex-brother-in-law. Court did not err in finding Defendant did not act in self-defense. USA v. Moore, No. 21-12291 (11th Cir. 8/11/23)

VOP-PO'S INSTRUCTIONS-HALLOWEEN-DEVIL COSTUME: Probation Officer may not add conditions of probation. Additional condition of probation imposed by PO (no Halloween costumes) is invalid. EVIDENCE-HEARSAY: Court properly excluded the co-Defendant's hearsay statement that a third person had borrowed the Defendant's phone (found at the murder scene) and had been in the house. JAIL MAIL: Jail's policy of scanning prisoner's legal mail into a machine with a memory chip and uploading into a central database creates a valid claim of a First Amendment violation. A prison official may not open an inmate's properly marked legal mail outside of his presence, and then only to check for contraband. Christmas v. Nabors, No. 21-14230 (11th Cir. 8/8/23)

DEPORTATION-MONEY LAUNDERING: Conspiring to launder money is not a crime of moral turpitude; structuring a transaction to avoid a reporting requirement is not a crime categorically involving moral turpitude. A district court must enter a judgment of denaturalization against a naturalized citizen whose citizenship was procured illegally or by willful misrepresentation of material facts. USA v. Lopez, No. 21-12709 (8/7/23)

CATEGORICAL APPROACH: The modified categorical approach is applied to determine whether a prior conviction qualifies as a crime involving moral turpitude. If the statute of conviction is indivisible—that is, if it defines only one crime with a single set of elements—the question is whether the least culpable conduct that the statute makes criminal qualifies as a crime involving moral turpitude. The categorical approach relies upon elements rather than means. If the statute has multiple alternative elements, and so effectively creates several different crimes, the modified categorical approach applies. Under that approach, a limited class of documents are reviewed to determine what crime, with what elements, a defendant was convicted of. The least culpable conduct encompassed by that crime is considered. USA v. Lopez, No. 21-12709 (8/7/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112709.pdf

CATEGORICAL APPROACH (J. GRANT, CONCURRING): "The majority's analysis adds yet another level of complication to the famously bewildering categorical approach. Unfortunately, it is correct. The result is another example of the absurdities that can follow from the categorical approach." USA v. Lopez, No. 21-12709 (8/7/23)

CATEGORICAL APPROACH (J. GRANT, CONCURRING): "The categorical approach flouts the intent of Congress, requires an inordinate amount of judicial energy, and defies common sense. For those reasons and more, I join the list of judges who have criticized the categorical approach or pleaded with Congress to set us free from it." USA v. Lopez, No. 21-12709 (8/7/23)

TWELVE PERSON JURY (J. SOUD, CONCURRING): A twelve-person jury is not constitutionally required. "[T]o insist that a jury under the Sixth Amendment requires exactly twelve members goes beyond the common law influencing the interpretation of the Sixth Amendment; rather, it allows the common law to overcome the language chosen in the amendment that was born in the time and from the circumstances of its writing. . .[A] proper determination of the original public meaning of the Sixth Amendment is not necessarily the product of an exercise that begins and ends with references to the common law developed by judges in England over the centuries." Simpson v. State, 5D23-128 (8/4/23)

SECOND AMENDMENT (J. PRATT, CONCURRING): Prohibition on felons' possession of firearms questioned. The Second Amendment secures an individual right to keep and bear arms for self defense. An un-incarcerated felon's keeping or bearing of a firearm falls within the Second Amendment's text. That one is a member of the people to whom the right to keep and bear arms is guaranteed does not foreclose the State's authority to strip him of the right. It simply means that the State will have to identify a national tradition that justifies its disarmament policy. Simpson v. State, 5D23-128 (8/4/23)

COST OF PROSECUTION: $100 cost for the state attorney is mandated minimum cost, not an "investigative" cost, and must be imposed even where there is no request for it. Parks v. State, 1D22-1566 (8/2/23)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION-COMPETENCY: Defendant did not preserve the issue of the Court failing to order a third competency evaluation until after the hearing and the ruling that Defendant was competent after consideration of the first two conflicting reports. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Defendant is not entitled to post conviction relief following his plea to the charge on the basis that the co-occupant of the car convinced the Defendant to claim ownership. RAPE SHIELD LAW: Court may not rely on the rape shield statute to preclude the defendant from attempting to either elicit testimony from the victim, or argue to the jury, that someone other than the defendant had raped the victim. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-REASONABLE SUSPICION-DUI: Speeding, suddenly stopping in the turn lane, a stong odor of alcohol, slurred speech, bloodshot and watery eyes, slurred speech and Defendant's admission that she had had three vodka and lemon drinks and an additional three shots at her birthday party add up to reasonable suspicion. SENTENCING-MAINTAINING PREMISES: Defendant's priors, which did not result in an increase in the Criminal History Category, support a modest upward variance. A district court imposes a substantively unreasonable sentence only when it (1) fails to afford consideration to relevant factors that were due significant weight, (2) gives significant weight to an improper or irrelevant factor, or (3) commits a clear error of judgment in considering the proper factors. A presumption of reasonableness does not necessarily attach to sentences within the guideline range, but such a sentence is ordinarily expected to be reasonable. USA v. Rodriguez, No. 20-13534 (11th Cir. 8/1/23)

SENTENCING-USE OF PREMISES: Court did not clearly err when it found that one of the primary uses of the Defendant's family home was for drug manufacturing and distribution. For a §2D1.1(b)(12) enhancement, manufacturing or distributing a controlled substance need not be the sole purpose for which the residence was maintained, but it must be a primary or principal, rather than an incidental or collateral, use. A premises can have more than one primary use, so long as the drug activity is more than incidental or collateral. USA v. Rodriguez, No. 20-13534 (11th Cir. 8/1/23)

ZOOM: Defendant is not entitled to resentencing because of technical malfunctions during the Zoom hearing where Defendant's counsel's connection was spotty. https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202013534.pdf

SENTENCING-CONDITIONS OF SUPERVISED RELEASE: Court erred in imposing additional conditions in the written judgment which were not orally pronounced. Including a sentence in the written judgment that the judge never mentioned when the defendant was in the courtroom is tantamount to sentencing the defendant in absentia. Defendant does not have notice of conditions in an administrative order unless the court expressly incorporates a written list detailing those conditions. USA v. Rodriguez, No. 20-13534 (11th Cir. 8/1/23)

ACCA: Possessing a listed chemical with reasonable cause to believe it will be used to manufacture a controlled substance is not a serious drug offense under the Armed Career Criminal Act. An offense is a "serious drug offense" if it proscribes one of the manufacturing, distributing, or possessing with intent to manufacture or distribute. Possessing a listed chemical with reasonable cause to believe it will be used to manufacture is not itself "manufacturing." A conviction for possession of Sudafed is not an ACCA predicate offense. USA v. Miles, No. 21-12609 (11th Cir. 7/31/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112609.pdf

DEFINITION-"MANUFACTURE": "Manufacture" means "to make" something from raw materials. Making something is a process, but that process does not begin until a person starts working with the component parts. . Simply put, doing an act with reason to believe manufacturing will occur later does not convert the act into manufacturing itself. USA v. Miles, No. 21-12609 (11th Cir. 7/31/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112609.pdf

DEFINITION-"INVOLVING": "[O]ur precedent requires us to read 'involving' restrictively to mean 'necessarily entail[s].' . . .So for better or worse, we are stuck with it." USA v. Miles, No. 21-12609 (11th Cir. 7/31/23)

CATEGORICAL APPROACH: "[W]e cannot overlook the absurd, factual reality of our decision. Miles was convicted under Section 893.149(1) because he was literally manufacturing methamphetamine when he set himself and a house on fire. But under the categorical approach, the facts of the conviction do not matter. So we can add this case to the long line of cases where the categorical approach leads to an unusual and, some might say, unjust result. As for that problem, only 'Congress [can] act to end this ongoing judicial charade'." USA v. Miles, No. 21-12609 (11th Cir. 7/31/23)

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA-PLEA OFFER: Under AEDPA, a federal court can grant relief to a state prisoner only if he shows that the state court's determination of his claim resulted in a decision that was (1) contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States, or (2) based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding. Washington v. Attorney General, Alabama, No. 21-13756 (7/28/23)

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA-PLEA OFFER: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on motion for habeas relief where affidavits conflict as to whether counsel conveyed a mid-trial plea offer. Defendant claims he only learned of the offer when State argued that "trial counsel could not have been ineffective because D.A. Anderton was so impressed by their performance at trial that he offered a second mid-trial plea deal of thirty years." Washington v. Attorney General, Alabama, No. 21-13756 (7/28/23)

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA-PLEA OFFER: State Court unreasonably concluded that Defendant's pre-trial claim of innocence belies his claim that he would have taken the thirty-year plea offer. "It does not make sense to say that a defendant must admit guilt prior to accepting a deal on a guilty plea.

It therefore does not make sense to say that a defendant's protestations of innocence belie his later claim that he would have accepted a guilty plea. When a petitioner states that he would have taken a plea offer while maintaining his innocence, the state court cannot use that as the only factual determination to support a finding that the petitioner failed to meet the prejudice prong of Strickland. Washington v. Attorney General, Alabama, No. 21-13756 (7/28/23)

QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: Officers are entitled to qualified immunity for arresting attorneys seen stashing their client's cell phone in a bag only minutes before the police executed a search warrant for child pornography on that phone (they had arguable probable cause to arrest), but prosecutors are not immune from suit for defamation for accusing them on the courthouse steps of evidence concealment and possession of child porn. Garcia v. Casey, No. 21-13632 (11th Cir. 7/28/23)

QUALIFIED IMMUNITY-ARGUABLE PROBABLE CAUSE: The doctrine of "arguable probable cause" asks whether a reasonable officer could have interpreted the law as permitting the arrests. Unless the law makes it obvious that an officer's acts violated the plaintiff's rights, he has qualified immunity. Garcia v. Casey, No. 21-13632 (11th Cir. 7/28/23)

ATTORNEY-OBSTRUCTION: "Garcia and Revill also argue that their status as attorneys undermines probable cause to believe that they intended to hide evidence of a crime. Again, we disagree. Attorney misconduct is all too common. . . [N]o one disputes that an attorney could violate the obstruction statute if she intentionally hid evidence that her client had committed a crime to prevent its discovery by law enforcement. Garcia v. Casey, No. 21-13632 (11th Cir. 7/28/23)

CONDITION-PROBATION-ELECTRONIC MONITORING: Electronic monitoring is a standard condition of sex offender probation, including for possession of child porn, when the victim is under 15, regardless whether the sexual activity is with the Defendant. "We conclude that the phrase 'sexual activity' as used in section 948.30(3) as it pertains to section 827.071 does not require any interpersonal physical contact between the offender and the child victim. Therefore, the mandatory monitoring requirement of section 948.30(3). . .is triggered when a defendant is convicted of an offense under section 827.071. de la Rosa v. State, 2D22-1284 (7/28/23) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/874183/opinion/221284_DC13_07282023_084258_i.pdf

CONDITION-PROBATION-ELECTRONIC MONITORING: Although Defendant is subject to mandatory electronic monitoring, his PO's instruction that he place his RTC device into the charger at 10:00 p.m. was an additional condition of probation that his PO did not have the authority to impose. A probationer may fairly be required to maintain that equipment, including keeping a device charged. But the imposition of a specific time to plug in the RTC device essentially imposes a new condition of probation that is not a routine supervisory direction and cannot support a finding that the probationer is in violation. A probation officer has no authority to impose additional conditions of probation, even if the court has ordered the probationer to follow all instructions the officer may give. Community control or probation should not function as a thinly disguised trap whereby the controlee's slightest misstep results in revocation and a substantial prison term at the whim of the controlee's PO. de la Rosa v. State, 2D22-1284 (7/28/23) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/874183/opinion/221284_DC13_07282023_084258_i.pdf

MINOR OFFENDER-SENTENCE REVIEW: The trial court's task at a sentence review hearing is to determine whether the juvenile offender has been rehabilitated and is reasonably believed to be fit to reenter society. Where the unrebutted testimony of a forensic psychologist so shows, Court must modify the sentence and place the Defendant on probation. Court can only reject undisputed testimony from an expert when it is so palpably incredible, illogical, and unreasonable as to be unworthy of belief. Murphy v. State, 2D22-642 (7/26/23) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/874011/opinion/220642_DC13_07262023_095013_i.pdf

MINOR OFFENDER-SENTENCE REVIEW: Standard of proof on juvenile offender sentence review is preponderance of the evidence, not a balancing test of factors for and against a particular outcome. To allow the nature of the offense to override unrebutted proof of rehabilitation and fitness to reenter society would render illusory the entire sentencing review process. Murphy v. State, 2D22-642 (7/26/23) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/874011/opinion/220642_DC13_07262023_095013_i.pdf

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-DNA TESTING: Defendant is not entitled to post-conviction DNA and fingerprint testing of a Swiss Army knife used in the murder where (1) there is no reasonable probability Defendant would have been acquitted or received a lesser sentence if DNA evidence had been admitted. DNA evidence from the victim on the knife would not have refuted his confession he stabbed the victim with the Swiss Army knife and then cut her throat with a kitchen knife. Narvaez v. State, 3D23-657 (7/26/23)

ACCA: Aggravated Assault qualifies as a violent felony predicate under the Armed Career Criminal Act. An assault offense under Florida law requires a mens rea of knowing conduct and an intentional threat to do violence to another person. USA v. Gary, No. 21-13249 (11th Cir, 7/21/23)

VOP-SPLIT SENTENCE-MAXIMUM: Where Defendant had previously served more than six months of probation for a third degree felony, upon a VOP he may not be sentenced to 30 months in prison followed by 24 months of probation because the total exceeds 60 months. When a trial court imposes a new term of probation as part of a split sentence following revocation, if the new term of probation, together with the other sanctions imposed, plus the time the defendant previously served on probation, totals more than the statutory maximum for the underlying offense, the trial court is to credit the defendant for time previously served on probation so that the total period of probation and imprisonment does not exceed the statutory maximum. Burgess v. State, 5D22-2761 (7/21/23)

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: Under AEDPA, a federal court may not grant habeas relief on claims that were adjudicated on the merits in state court unless the state court's decision (1) was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States, or (2) was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts. "Unreasonable" is more than simply incorrect; the state court decision must be so obviously wrong that its error lies beyond any possibility for fairminded disagreement. Sears v. Warden, GCDP, No. 18-13467 (11th Cir. 7/19/23)

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: Georgia's previous inequitable discovery rule (the Sabel discovery rule), under which the Defense must disclose its expert's reports whether the expert is used as a witness or not but the State does not, violated Due Process. Defendant who consistently and persistently challenged the Sabel discovery rule and in the end abandoned his request for an expert evaluation because of it is entitled to Habeas Corpus Relief. The state court's failure to consider all the evidence in the record amounted to an unreasonable determination of the facts. Death penalty vacated; new hearing required. Sears v. Warden, GCDP, No. 18-13467 (11th Cir. 7/19/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201813467.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-LETHAL INJECTION: The possibility of futile attempts to locate a condemned inmate's veins in the course of administering lethal injection does not give rise to a valid claim of an unconstitutional level of pain. Barber v. Governor, No. 23-12242 11th Cir. 7/19/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202312242.pdf DEATH PENALTY-LETHAL INJECTION (J. PRYOR, DISSENTING): "Three botched executions in a row are three too many." Barber v. Governor, No. 23-12242 11th Cir. 7/19/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202312242.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-LETHAL INJECTION (J. PRYOR, DISSENTING): "Smith asked. . .to stay his execution because he feared he would be subjected to superadded pain and terror as the State carried out his death sentence. The State called his claim speculative and asked us to trust that ADOC was prepared to perform the execution without incident. We now know that Mr. Smith was right. . . ADOC swears it is ready to try again, with Mr. Barber as its guinea pig." Barber v. Governor, No. 23-12242 11th Cir. 7/19/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202312242.pdf

PAROLE: The Florida Commission on Offender Review properly denied parole to offender who had failed to show that he would live and conduct himself as a respectable and law-abiding person, and where record shows the opposite. JUVENILE OFFENDER-SENTENCE REVIEW: Court improperly denied juvenile offender's application for sentence modification pursuant to F.R.Cr.P. 3.802(b)(1) by giving great weight to the fact that his adult accomplice is not eligible for review of his life sentence. There is a bright line between being a juvenile and an adult; that line is eighteen. Cruz v. State, 2D22-1138 (7/19/23)

COSTS: Court erred in imposing a lump sum of $350 in unspecified court costs. The statutory authority for all costs imposed, whether they are mandatory or discretionary, must be cited in the written order. Weber v. State, 2D22-773 (7/19/23)

CORRECTION OF SENTENCING ERROR-APPEAL: An order to correct a sentencing error during the pendency of an appeal must be filed, not merely signed, within 60 days. The date of filing is the controlling date. A late filed order is a nullity. Weber v. State, 2D22-773 (7/19/23)

JUDGMENT-FORM: Trial courts are required to use a judgment and sentence form which should include details regarding the counts, crimes, statute numbers, and degree of the crimes. Otherwise, it will be void. Reading a breakdown of the fine and costs into to the record is insufficient. Weber v. State, 2D22-773 (7/19/23)

LIFE SENTENCE-YOUTH: It is well established mandatory life without parole for persons under eighteen violates the Eighth Amendment's prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment. But it does not for nineteen year olds. The age of 18 is the point where society draws the line for many purposes between childhood and adulthood. Boesch v. State, 4D22-90 (7/19/23)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: "This appeal turns on one word: preservation." The issue of whether State's hypothetical questions in voir dire constitute unlawul "pre-trying" of the case is not preserved where Defendant did not renew the objection before the jury was sworn. The defendant objected only once and did not later renew his objection. O'Brien v. State, 4D22-1643 (7/19/23)
https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/873581/opinion/221643_DC05_07192023_100224_i.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVATION-JUROR: To prevent a waiver of a juror challenge issue, the opponent must call the court's attention to its objection, if there was an earlier objection, before the jury is sworn, either by renewing its motion or by accepting the jury subject to the earlier objection. To preserve for appeal a denial of a challenge to a juror for cause, it is necessary to exhaust all remaining peremptory challenges, request additional peremptory challenges, and identify to the trial court which juror the party would have stricken had the peremptory challenges not been exhausted. O'Brien v. State, 4D22-1643 (7/19/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/873581/opinion/221643_DC05_07192023_100224_i.pdf

JUROR-PEREMPTORY STRIKE-RACE: A party objecting to the other side's use of a peremptory challenge on racial grounds must: a) make a timely objection on that basis, b) show that the venireperson is a member of a distinct racial group, and c) request that the court ask the striking party its reason for the strike. If Court finds the rasons to be genuine, the party opposing the strike then has the burden to prove purposeful racial discrimination, challenge the genuineness of the State's proffered race-neutral reason and make a specific objection to the reason. Defendant failed to preserve the issue by not placing the trial court on notice he was contesting the factual existence of the State's reason. O'Brien v. State, 4D22-1643 (7/19/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/873581/opinion/221643_DC05_07192023_100224_i.pdf

DUI-ARGUMENT-BREATH TEST REFUSAL: State's comment about the defendant's refusal to take a breath test is not an improper comment on the exercise of the right to remain silent. O'Brien v. SENTENCING-DEPARTURE: Even if the trial court erred in finding no legal basis to depart, any such error is harmless where Court determined that it would not depart if it could. Borbon v. State, 4D22-1868 (7/19/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/873582/opinion/221868_DC05_07192023_100552_i.pdf

PROBATION-EARLY TERMINATION: Court may not impose a special condition prohibiting early termination of probation without the State's approval; it is impermissible for the trial judge to effectively prevent the circuit court in the future from exercising its authority to discharge Defendant's probation early. Howard v. State, 4D87-3583 (7/19/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/873583/opinion/222656_DC08_07192023_100901_i.pdf

FIRST AMENDMENT: Assistant public defender's First Amendment right to criticize her employer while running to succeed him (she accused him of poor lawyering, racist hiring practices and drug use) does not outweigh the government's interest in the effective management of the public defender's office. "Of course, our conclusion that Green's statements are eligible for First Amendment protection says nothing about the government's countervailing interest in terminating her. The First Amendment does not require that an official nourish the viper in the nest. Green v. Finkelstein, No 21-13894 (11th Cir. 7/17/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113894.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS-INEFFECTIVE APPELLATE COUNSEL-CHANGE OF LAW: Defendant, who was convicted of second degree murder where Court erroneously failed to give an instruction on excusable homicide as to the lesser included offense of manslaughter, is not entitled to relief by habeas corpus claiming ineffective assistance of appellate counsel for failing to raise the issue because the Florida Supreme Court later overturned its precedents on this point. The result of a proceeding is neither unfair nor unreliable in the present when current law does not provide the right that the defendant seeks to vindicate. Guzman v. Secretary, DOC, No. 20-14181 (11th Cir 7/14/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014181.pdf

DEFENDANT S.O.L.: "Guzman's counsel may have erred in the past, but that error does not prejudice him in the present. . .We do not need to decide whether Guzman's [appellate] counsel made an error—though by all accounts, he did. . .Here, the result for Guzman may have been unlucky, but it was neither unfair nor unreliable because under current Florida law, Guzman got the correct result. Guzman v. Secretary, DOC, No. 20-14181 (11th Cir 7/14/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014181.pdf

CONTEMPT: Court erred in finding Attorney in contempt for repeated tardiness without strictly complying with the provisions of R. 3.830. Court did not inquire as to whether the defendant had any cause to show why she should not be adjudged guilty of contempt, nor provide the defendant the opportunity to present evidence of excusing or mitigating circumstances. While there was an exchange between the trial court and attorney where she offered some explanation as to why she was late, the opportunity for this exchange came after the trial court had already adjudicated her guilty. Micallef v. State, 5D22-549 (7/14/23) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/873274/opinion/220549_DC13_07142023_082947_i.pdf

EXPERT TESTIMONY: Rule 16(a), upon request, requires the government to provide a written summary of any expert testimony that the government intends to use during its case-in-chief, describing the witness's opinions, the bases and reasons for those opinions, and the witness's qualifications. USA v. Walker, No. 22-10164 (11th Cir. 7/13/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210164.pdf

PROSTITUTION-COERCION: Coercion is shown by evidence that Defendant/Pimp led his prostitute to believe that, if she did not engage in sex work, she was at risk of (1) losing her lodging in Miami, (2) continuing to go hungry, and (3) remaining stuck in an unfamiliar city hundreds of miles from her home and family. USA v. Walker, No. 22-10164 (11th Cir. 7/13/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210164.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: The issue of whether Agent's expert testimony about how pimps often use romantic relationships to coerce women to engage in prostitution is not preserved by an objection that it invaded the province of the jury. USA v. Walker, No. 22-10164 (11th Cir. 7/13/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210164.pdf

SIXTH AMENDMENT-COVID: Counsel's refusal to visit client in jail during an overnight recess due to COVID concerns did not violate the Sixth Amendment warranting a mistrial. Defendant must establish that the government or a court—not his own lawyer—deprived him of the opportunity to communicate. The communication deficiencies resulted from his lawyer's caprice, not from the court, government, or criminal justice system. Whether his lawyer's failure to communicate with him amounted to ineffective assistance of counsel cannot be raised for the first time on direct appeal without a sufficiently developed record. USA v. Ahmed, No. 20-14264 (11th Cir. 7/13/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014264.pdf

SHACKLES: Shackles may confuse the defendant, impair his ability to confer with counsel, and, if visible, may prejudice the jury. But in the absence of a contemporaneous objection and where the shackles are not visible, Defendant is not entitled to relief. Defendant's complaint that the shackles hurt his ankles when he was not wearing socks does not entitle him to a new trial. USA v. Ahmed, No. 20-14264 (11th Cir. 7/13/23)

TRIAL: Defendant's speculation that the jury could not devote adequate attention to the proceedings because of anxiety over COVID is belied by the record. USA v. Ahmed, No. 20-14264 (11th Cir. 7/13/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014264.pdf

EVIDENCE-QUESTION TO WITNESS: Government's misstatement of the law during questioning of the witness – was she aware that only psychiatric nurses could prescribe drugs under Florida law?--was harmless error. Any intimation that an advanced practice registered nurse may have prescribed psychotropic drugs without authorization had little bearing on whether Defendant committed healthcare fraud. Moreover, the witness responded by explaining to the jury that the prosecutor misunderstood Florida's limitations on nurse practitioners. USA v. Ahmed, No. 20-14264 (11th Cir. 7/13/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014264.pdf

WITNESS: In Health Care fraud case, Court did not abuse its discretion in excluding an expert witness who invoked her Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination as to questions about her previous employment at the same business for which the Defendant's charge of Health Care fraud arose. USA v. Ahmed, No. 20-14264 (11th Cir. 7/13/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014264.pdf

HEARSAY-BUSINESS RECORDS: Court properly excluded certain documentary evidence--invoices, promissory notes, and hardship exemption forms-- offered, according to the defendant, to establish his efforts to bill patients in good faith. "This argument gains little, if any, traction. . .[U]sing the documentary evidence to support the conclusion that Ahmed properly billed patients presupposes that the information in the documents is true. In other words, for the records to benefit Ahmed's defense, the jury would need to believe that the invoices contained appropriate and truthful amounts for services rendered. . .Accordingly, Ahmed offered these records for their truth." USA v. Ahmed, No. 20-14264 (11th Cir. 7/13/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014264.pdf

HEARSAY-BUSINESS RECORDS: Defendant's argument that invoices, promissory notes, and hardship exemption forms are admissible as business records has a lot to commend it, but where Defendant could not explain how the documents ended up in his lawyer's hands, inadequate foundation is laid. USA v. Ahmed, No. 20-14264 (11th Cir. 7/13/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014264.pdf

EVIDENCE-CHARACTER: Evidence of a person's character or character trait to prove that on a particular occasion the person acted in accordance with the character or trait is ordinarily inadmissible, although a defendant in a criminal case may offer evidence of the defendant's pertinent trait. Such as pertinent trait like honesty and truthfulness in a fraud case, but only by testimony about reputation or an opinion, rather than specific incidents of conduct. In other words, evidence of its good conduct is not admissible to negate criminal intent. Defendant's former attorney may not testify about honest things which the Defendant had done. USA v. Ahmed, No. 20-14264 (11th Cir. 7/13/23)

RESTITUTION: Defendant who stops paying for and never returns lease-to-own furniture is responsible for restitution for the fair market value of the furniture, not for the unpaid amount remaining on the contract. SECOND AMENDMENT-POSSESSION OF FIREARM BY FELON: Florida's statute prohibiting felons from possessing firearms does not violate the Second Amendment. Stafford v. State, 1D22-2468 (7/12/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/873028/opinion/download%3FdocumentVersionID=341ac43e-dba8-4249-bf9a-cf7c8f185907

BOND REVOCATION-FIRST APPEARANCE: Upon Defendant's arrest on a new case, the first appearance Judge may not sua sponte revoke bond in the prior pending case; First appearance Judge's assessment that our analysis in Benoit was deficient because it turned on the Florida Rules of Criminal Procedure rather than on the bail statutes was wrong. Until such time as the supreme court overrules an opinion of this court], or we recede from it en banc, or the Florida legislature clearly expresses its disapproval of an opinion by a subsequent statutory enactment, trial courts in this district are firmly bound by its holding. "Moreover, to the extent the first appearance judge appeared to reflexively deem statutes that she considered pertinent superior to the rules that this court applied and interpreted in Benoit, we remind her that . . . the Florida Supreme Court [has] the exclusive authority to adopt rules of judicial practice and procedure." The first appearance judge's statement that she was given "authority from every judge in this courthouse. . .to revoke bond in all cases where somebody picks up a new" charge holds no weight. Lindsey v. Gualtieri, Sheriff, 2D23-1116 (7/12/23) https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/873048/opinion/231116_DC03_07122023_093403_i.pdf

LIFE SENTENCE-HOMICIDE-JUVENILE OFFENDER: Juvenile offender. who was originally sentenced to Life with the possibility of parole after 25 years for first degree murder and natural life each for Sexual Battery and Burglary with a Battery (later resentenced to forty years each on the two non-homicide offenses), is not entitle to be re-sentenced on thr homicide. Sentence review considerations are different in §§921.1401 and 921.1402; the latter considers whether the juvenile offender has been rehabilitated.

Review here was only assessed under §921.1401. Boucher v. State, 3D19-439 (7/12/23)

here Court sentenced Defendant as a Violent Felony Offender of Special Concern APPEAL-VFOSC: without making written findings that he poses a danger to the community, Defendant may not directly appeal. He must first file a motion to correct. Morris v. State, 3D22-1232 (7/12/23)

HABEAS CORPUS: Defendant may not raise by habeas corpus claims which could have been or were raised in either a motion for post-conviction relief or on direct appeal (illegal seizure, prosecutorial misconduct, fundamental trial court errors, confrontation violations, and ineffective assistance of trial and appellate counsels). Each is addressed individually below. Gerome v. State, 3D23-714 (7/12/23)

APPEAL-JURISDICTION: Trial court lacked jurisdiction to conduct the sentence review proceeding during the pendency of Juvenile Offender's direct appeal from his life sentence. During the pendency of a defendant's direct appeal, the trial court is without jurisdiction to rule on a motion for post-conviction relief. White v. State, 4D22-126 (7/12/23)

ENTRAPMENT: Objective entrapment occurs when the conduct of law enforcement agents is so outrageous that due process principles would absolutely bar the government from invoking judicial processes to obtain a conviction. Defendant's claims that the CI used sex to induce him to commit the crimes of trafficking and conspiracy either were not that outrageous (she called him "Mi Amour [sic]" and touched him on the leg). or were not credible (there was one incident of oral sex). Failure to supervise a CI will not support dismissal unless the lack of supervision results in unscrupulous conduct by the informant. Medina v. State, 4D20-1522 (7/12/23)

DISCOVERY VIOLATION: The Richardson rule applies to evidence submitted during rebuttal. In child porn case, State commits a reversible discovery violation by using a previously undisclosed Gmail record to rebut Defendant's testimony that he did not have a Gmil account. New trial required. An analysis of procedural prejudice does not ask how the undisclosed piece of evidence affected the case as it was actually presented to the jury. Rather, it considers how the defense might have responded had it known about the undisclosed piece of evidence. McDonald v. State, 4D22-886 (7/12/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/873078/opinion/220886_DC13_07122023_095442_i.pdf

ARGUMENT: Prosecutor's statement that the majority of the time internet websites like Kik, Omegle, and Mega are used for trading illegal child pornography is improper. A prosecutor must confine closing argument to evidence in the record, and must refrain from comments that could not be reasonably inferred from the evidence. "Improper closing argument has no rightful place in the repertoire of criminal trials and with the barest of trial preparation is easy to avoid. McDonald v. State, 4D22-886 (7/12/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-HABEAS CORPUS: In death penalty case, counsel was ineffective for failing to use a mitigation specialist to contact relevant witnesses where extensive evidence of childhood trauma existed (sexual abuse, early exposure to sexual relations, exposure to domestic violence, parental the abandonment, etc.). Counsel spent minimal time and effort conducting a background investigation for potential mitigating evidence and unreasonably delayed the investigation she did conduct. Counsel's omissions were not a strategic choice. In order to make a strategic choice, counsel needed to first investigate and discover the facts in the first place. Williams v. State of Alabama, No. 21-13734 (11th Cir. 7/11/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DEATH PENALTY (J. GRANT, DISSENTING): "Trial counsel's efforts to investigate Williams's background and prepare for the sentencing phase were unacceptable. . . But . . .I do not agree that Williams can meet his burden of showing a reasonable probability that, if not for counsel's substandard performance, the sentencing authority 'would have concluded that the balance of aggravating and mitigating circumstances did not warrant death. . .The only way to conclude that Williams met that burden is to dismiss the statutory aggravator—that the murder was committed during a burglary and rape." Williams v. State of Alabama, No. 21-13734 (11th Cir. 7/11/23)

COMPETENCY: The determination of competence asks whether a defendant has sufficient present ability to consult with his lawyer with a reasonable degree of rational understanding—and whether he has a rational as well as factual understanding of the proceedings against him. Evidence of low intelligence, mental deficiency, bizarre, volatile, or irrational behavior, or the use of anti-psychotic drugs is not sufficient to show incompetence to stand trial. Where jail calls showed that Defendant's bizarre behavior throughout trial and during the sentencing phase ("sovereign citizenship on steroids") was a contrived and intentional attempt to disrupt proceedings, Court did not err in refusing to order a competency evaluation. ENTRAPMENT: Defendant is not entitled to dismissal on basis entrapment where undercover officer initially identified herself as an adult on an adult chat site but later claimed to be 14. Subjective entrapment is generally a question for the jury, and may be decided as a matter of law only if there are no material facts in dispute, the defendant meets his burden of proof, and the State fails to rebut the evidence of lack of predisposition. Even if law enforcement induces Defendant to commit the crime, he bears the initial burden of proving a lack of predisposition. If there is a factual dispute or if reasonable persons could draw different conclusions from the facts, then the issue of entrapment must go to the jury. State v. Panebianco, 2D20-307 (7/7/23)

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-PRIORS-YOUTHFUL OFFENDER: Alabama's Youthful Offender adjudication is not an adult conviction for sentencing guidelines calculations. USA v. Jews, No. 22-10502 (11th Cir 7/6/23)

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-PRIORS-YOUTHFUL OFFENDER: Under §2K2.1, an adjudication must be an 'adult federal or state conviction" punishable by at least a year in prison. Under Alabama law, an adjudication of youthful offender status is not deemed a conviction of crime at all, let alone an adult conviction. "Alabama's YO system differs from the adult system from stem to stern, in both substance and procedure. To call it 'adult,' we think, would strain credulity." USA v. DEATH PENALTY: Culpability review (considering the comparative guilt of co-Defendants) is not required in imposing the death penalty. The life sentence imposed on a co-Defendant is irrelevant to and has no bearing on Defendant's death sentence. Prior practice of conducting relative culpability review was a corollary of our obsolete comparative proportionality review. As a component of comparative proportionality review, a relative culpability review is not constitutionally required. "This Court's relative culpability review was a corollary of its comparative proportionality review, which was determined in Lawrence to be violative of the Florida Constitution. As an integrated part of comparative proportionality review, relative culpability review was rendered obsolete by the Lawrence decision, and it cannot now provide a basis for vacating Cruz's death sentence." EVIDENCE-RE-CALLING WITNESS: Defendant may re-call witness in order to lay predicate for impeachment of the witness's prior testimony by extrinsic evidence. Court abuses discretion in disallowing Defendant re-calling a state witness to ask whether she had told anyone she had not seen anything (a witness existed to testify that she had said that). It is an abuse of discretion for the trial court to deny a request to recall a witness if the denial will deprive the defendant of an opportunity to present evidence crucial to the defense. A witness may be recalled for either direct or cross examination, for the purpose of impeachment. BELATED APPEAL: When a belated appeal is requested, the appellate court will relinguish jurisdiction to the lower tribunal for the purpose of appointing a special master to issue an appropriate report and recommendation. But the report must do more than acquiesce to the State's acquiescence to a belated appeal. "What facts. . .can we glean from the report and recommendation? What have we learned about the credibility of Jennings' allegations? What exactly was the point of 'relinquishing jurisdiction'. . .? All we now know is that the State Attorney, who most assuredly has better things to do, does not appear to have a particular interest in whether Jennings is granted a belated appeal. . . If we are willing to grant belated appeals based on nothing more than a petitioner's claim and the State Attorney's unwillingness to contest that claim, then it is difficult to see the value in the process." PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: Defendant convicted of burglary of a dwelling with an assault or battery while armed with a firearm, a 1st PBL, who qualifies as a PRR, must be sentenced to life in prison. Court improperly imposed a 50 year sentence. COUNSEL: An indigent defendant has no right to choose a particular court-appointed attorney. The Sixth Amendment does not require a meaningful relationship between an accused and his counsel, only effective assistance. A lack of communication is not a ground for an incompetency claim. COUNSEL-WAIVER-DEATH PENALTY: Where Defendant advised that he did not want to present death penalty mitigation, and Court informed him that appointed counsel would present such evidence, Defendant's waiver of counsel was involuntary. EVIDENCE-OPINION: Court erred when it allowed the arresting officer to testify that he arrested Defendant because her actions constituted a battery and that she was the aggressor. A witness's opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused is not admissible, regardless of its relevance, because its probative value is substantially outweighed by unfair prejudice to the defendant. The danger of prejudice is heightened when the witness

FREE SPEECH-THREAT: The First Amendment requires proof that the defendant had some subjective understanding of the threatening nature of his statements to be criminally liable for making threats. A mental state of recklessness-that the defendant consciously disregarded a substantial risk that his communications would be viewed as threatening violence-is sufficient. The standard is subjective, from the viewpoint of the speaker, not objective. The type of subjective standard the First Amendment requires–the mens rea--is recklessness, i.e., whether the speaker consciously disregards a substantial and unjustifiable risk that the conduct will cause harm to another. Hundreds of overly familiar and disturbing Facebook messages to a local singer and musician but without an overt threat, do not establish the required mens rea. Counterman v. GOLDILOCKS (J. KAGAN): "The dissent accuses the Court of making a 'Goldilocks judgment' in favoring a recklessness standard. . .But in law, as in life, there are worse things than being 'just right.'" Counterman v. Colorado, No. 22-138 (US S. Ct. 6/27/23)

1ST AMENDMENT-THREAT (J. SOTOMAYOR): "Without sufficient protection for unintentionally threatening speech, a high school student who is still learning norms around appropriate language could easily go to prison for sending another student violent music lyrics, or for unreflectingly using language he read in an online forum. . . In the heat of the moment, someone may post an enraged comment under a news story about a controversial topic. Another person might reply equally heatedly. In a Nation that has never been timid about its opinions, political or otherwise, this is commonplace. . . These high First Amendment stakes are further reason for caution when delineating the boundaries of what constitutes a true threat." Counterman v. Colorado, No. 22-138 (US S. Ct. 6/27/23)

1ST AMENDMENT-THREAT (J. SOTOMAYOR): " I agree with the Court's conclusion that the First Amendment requires a subjective mens rea in true-threats cases, and I also agree that recklessness is amply sufficient for this case. Yet I would stop there, leaving for another day the question of the specific mens rea required to prosecute true threats generally. If that question is reached, however, the answer is that true threats encompass a narrow band of intentional threats. Especially in a climate of intense polarization, it is dangerous to allow criminal prosecutions for heated words based solely on an amorphous recklessness standard. Our society has often concluded that an intent standard sets a proper balance between safety and the need for a guilty mind, even in cases that do not involve the First Amendment. Surely when the power of the State is called upon to imprison someone based on the content of their words alone, this standard cannot be considered excessive." Counterman v. Colorado, No. 22-138 (US S. Ct. 6/27/23)

COMPETENCY-COMMITMENT: Before a court involuntarily commits a defendant charged with a felony, it must make several findings supported by clear and convincing evidence. Where experts find that restoration of competency is not likely and recommend that Defendant undergo certain treatment but not commitment, Court may not involuntarily commit her. DCF v. Tetley, 5D22-2324 (6/26/23)

IMMIGRATION-FREE SPEECH-OVERBREADTH: Statute prohibiting encouraging or inducing illegal immigration does not violate the 1st Amendment as overbroad. Defendant is properly convicted for scamming foreigners by promising to help them seek US citizenship through non-existent adult adoption. The First Amendment does not shield fraud. United States v. DEFINITION-"ENCOURAGE"-"INDUCE": The terms "encourage" and "induce" should be interpreted consistently with their specialized meaning in criminal law, rather than be given the broader common meaning. "Encourage" and "induce" are terms of art referring to criminal solicitation and facilitation. "[T]he context of these words—the water in which they swim—indicates that Congress used them as terms of art." United States v. Hansen, No. 22-179 (U.S. S. Ct. 6/23/23)

CONFRONTATION-CO-DEFENDANTS-BRUTON: The Confrontation Clause does not bar the admission of a nontestifying codefendant's confession where (1) the confession has been modified to avoid directly identifying the nonconfessing codefendant and (2) the court offers a limiting instruction that jurors may consider the confession only with respect to the confessing codefendant. In joint trial, Agent's testimony that codefendant admitted to driving the car at the time of the murder for hire (he said "the other person he was with pulled the trigger on that woman") does not violate Bruton. "[T]he established practice of replacing a defendant's name with a neutral noun or pronoun in a nontestifying codefendant's confession" is adequate. Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

CONFRONTATION-CO-DEFENDANTS-BRUTON: "The Confrontation Clause ensures that defendants have the opportunity to confront witnesses against them, but it does not provide a freestanding guarantee against the risk of potential prejudice that may arise inferentially in a joint trial." Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/22pdf/22-196_p8k0.pdf

CONFRONTATION-CO-DEFENDANTS-BRUTON: "For most of our Nation's history, longstanding practice allowed a nontestifying codefendant's confession to be admitted in a joint trial so long as the jury was properly instructed not to consider it against the nonconfessing defendant. Jurors can be relied upon to follow the trial judge's instructions. Bruton applies to confessions that directly implicate a defendant not to those that do so indirectly. "[N]either Bruton, Richardson, nor Gray provides license to flyspeck trial transcripts in search of evidence that could give rise to a collateral inference that the defendant had been named in an altered confession." Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

EFFICIENCY VS. CONSTITUTION-SEVERANCE: "The Confrontation Clause rule that Samia proposes would require federal and state trial courts to conduct extensive pretrial hearings to determine whether the jury could infer from the Government's case in its entirety that the defendant had been named in an altered confession. . .That approach would be burdensome and. . .we decline to endorse it. . . [T]he likely practical consequence. . .would be to mandate severance whenever the prosecution wishes to introduce the confession of a nontestifying codefendant in a joint trial." That is too high a price to pay." Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

ORIGINAL INTENT (J. BARRETT, CONCURRING): "[I]n my view, the historical evidence . . .is beside the point. . .The evidence is largely from the late 19th and early 20th centuries—far too late to inform the meaning of the Confrontation Clause 'at the time of the founding.'. . .The Court. . .does not suggest that the history is probative of original meaning. . .nor does it explain why this seemingly random time period matters. . So why not simply say that the history is inconclusive? And if we are going to pick up the thread in 1878, why drop it in 1896? Are cases from 1896 that much more important than cases from, say, the 1940s?" Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

ORIGINAL INTENT (J. BARRETT, CONCURRING): "At best, the evidence . . . that, during a narrow historical period, some courts assumed and others expressly held that a limiting instruction sufficiently protected a codefendant from a declaration inadmissible on hearsay grounds. In suggesting anything more, the Court overclaims. That is unfortunate. While history is often important and sometimes dispositive, we should be discriminating in its use. Otherwise, we risk undermining the force of historical arguments when they matter most." Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

CONFRONTATION (J. KAGAN, DISSENTING): "In describing Bruton's scope, the majority distinguishes 'between confessions that directly implicate a defendant and those that do so indirectly.' That distinction roughly tracks the one this Court has recognized between confessions that themselves incriminate a co-defendant (directly implicate) and those that become incriminating only when linked with later-introduced evidence (indirectly implicate). But the majority distorts that distinction beyond recognition. . .In one blink-and-you-miss-it paragraph of analysis, the majority holds that Stillwell's confession does not 'directly' implicate Samia. . .It 'was redacted to avoid naming Samia. And the redaction was 'not akin to an obvious blank or the word 'deleted.' That analysis altogether fails to capture what our Bruton cases care about." Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

EFFICIENCY VS. CONSTITUTION-SEVERANCE-CONFRONTATION (J. KAGAN, DISSENTING): "The practical concerns the majority cites in support of its decision are equally flimsy. On the majority's view, a ruling for Samia would require courts to conduct 'extensive pretrial hearings' reviewing 'the Government's case in its entirety.' But that charge is a strawman.. . .In any event, greater 'convenience in the administration of the law' . . cannot come at the expense 'of fundamental principles of constitutional liberty.'" Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

LIMITING INSTRUCTION (J. KAGAN, DISSENTING): "With nothing else to support it, the majority reaches for two props inconsistent with Bruton itself. One is the 'presumption that jurors follow limiting instructions.' The majority correctly describes that presumption; it just forgets that the presumption does not apply when the evidence at issue is an accusatory co-defendant confession. Bruton could not have been clearer on the point: '[W]e can not accept limiting instructions as an adequate substitute for [a defendant's] constitutional right of cross-examination.'" Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

STARE DECISIS (J. KAGAN, DISSENTING): "Suppose with the majority that at some relevant time, courts conducting joint trials admitted unredacted co-defendant confessions subject only to limiting instructions. If that history controlled, Bruton itself would have been wrongly decided. The majority's real views thus come into focus. The point of its opinion is not to distinguish the confession here from the one in Bruton. The point is to say why Bruton should go. And so one might wonder after reading today's decision whether Bruton is the next precedent on this Court's chopping block. The one reason it may not be is that there is now no need for formal overruling: Under this decision, prosecutors can always circumvent Bruton's protections." Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

CONFRONTATION (J. KAGAN, DISSENTING): "Now, defendants in joint trials will not have the chance to confront some of the most damaging witnesses against them. And a constitutional right once guaranteeing that opportunity will no longer. It will become, in joint trials, a shell of its former self." Samia v. United States, No. 22-196 (U.S. S Ct 6/23/23)

CONFRONTATION-BRUTON (J. JACKSON, DISSENTING): "Under the majority's approach, the default rule is that a nontestifying codefendant's incriminating confession is admissible, so long as it is accompanied by a limiting instruction. Thus, for present purposes, the majority repeatedly calls Bruton. . .a 'narrow exception' to this default rule. . . .And the thrust of the majority's holding is that the so-called Bruton exception is—and must be—narrow: Bruton is a pesky deviation that requires the exclusion of otherwise admissible evidence (hence, the ease with which the majority contemplates dispensing with that precedent). That approach inverts the constitutional principles that govern this case. . .. . .[T]he Court has now turned our Bruton cases on their head in a manner that risks undermining a core Sixth Amendment right." 1ST AMENDMENT-INMATE-E-MAIL: Inmate has a protected liberty interest in his outgoing emails, and as a result he is entitled to notice and other procedural safeguards when emails to his sister are intercepted and withheld.

The interest of prisoners and their correspondents in uncensored communication by letter, grounded as it is in the First Amendment, is plainly a 'liberty' interest within the meaning of the Fourteenth Amendment even though qualified of necessity by the circumstance of imprisonment. Emails are the equivalent of physical letters for purposes of a liberty interest. The argument that inmates do not have a protected liberty interest because using the email system is a privilege, and not a right, "misses the mark, and does so by the proverbial country mile." EVIDENCE-OPINION: Officer may not testify that Defendant was the primary aggressor in a battery case based on his post-fight interviews and the victim's injuries. HARMLESS ERROR: "[W]e highlight that when an appellate court reviews for harmless error, the test is not a sufficiency-of-the-evidence, a correct result, a not clearly wrong, a substantial evidence, a more probable than not, a clear and convincing, or even an overwhelming evidence test. . .The focus is on the effect of the error on the trier-of-fact. The question is whether there is a reasonable possibility that the error affected the verdict. . .If the appellate court cannot say beyond a reasonable doubt that the error did not affect the verdict, then the error is by definition harmful." POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Because a defendant must demonstrate prejudice in a R. 3.850 proceeding, post-conviction relief based on a lawyer's incompetence with regard to the composition of the jury is reserved for a narrow class of cases where prejudice is apparent from the record. DEPORTATION: Noncitizens convicted of an aggravated felony are removable from the United States. The definition of "aggravated felony" includes federal or state offenses "relating to obstruction of justice." An investigation or proceeding need not be pending for an act be related to obstruction of justice. Dissuading a witness from reporting a crime renders one deportable, as does being an accessory after the fact. Obstruction of justice is not limited to offenses where an investigation or proceeding is pending. One can obstruct the wheels of justice even before the wheels have begun to move." Pugin v. STATUTORY CONSTRUCTION (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): Under the series-qualifier canon, a phrase is best read to modify all listed verbs. When there is a straightforward, parallel construction that involves all nouns or verbs in a series, a modifier at the end of the list normally applies to the entire series. Pugin v. Garland, No. 22-12 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/22/23)

DEPORTATION (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "After all, deportation is not only a kind of 'penalty,' but a 'drastic measure' often "the equivalent of banishment [or] exile.'. . .If a non-U. S. citizen is convicted of an aggravated felony, even if she has a green card and has lived in this country for years, she is subject to removal and is also ineligible for readmission and many forms of immigration relief. OBSTRUCTION OF JUSTICE (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "By rejecting a central feature of core obstruction of justice and adopting a seemingly expansive reading of 'relating to,' the Court leaves generic obstruction of justice without any discernible shape. The Court thus injects further chaos into the already fraught question of how to understand §1101(a)(43)(S) and opens the door for the Government to try to use that provision as a catchall for all sorts of criminal activity, whether aggravated or not. The Court could perhaps have reined in some of that chaos by giving 'obstruction of justice' affirmative shape and boundaries in other ways, but it makes no effort to do so." Pugin v. MAMMAL (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "[I]t is clear that the 'generic' meaning of 'mammal' includes giving birth to live young, even though the platypus is an exception to that rule. Pugin v. Garland, No. 22-12 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/22/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-AEDPA: Under the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (AEDPA), second or successive §2255 motions are barred unless they rely on either newly discovered evidence or a new rule of constitutional law. A successive §2255 motion based solely on a more favorable interpretation of statutory law (Rehaif–knowledge that one is a convicted felon is an element of unlawful possession of a firearm) adopted after the conviction became final and the initial §2255 motion was resolved is not permitted. §2255(e)'s saving clause does not permit a prisoner asserting an intervening change in statutory interpretation to circumvent AEDPA's restrictions on second or successive §2255 motions by filing a §2241 (habeas corpus) petition. Jones v. Hendrix, No. 21-857 (6/22/23)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "A prisoner who is actually innocent, imprisoned for conduct that Congress did not criminalize, is forever barred by 28 U. S. C. §2255(h) from raising that claim, merely because he previously sought postconviction relief. It does not matter that an intervening decision of this Court confirms his innocence. By challenging his conviction once before, he forfeited his freedom. Jones v. Hendrix, No. 21-857 (6/22/23)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF (J. JACKSON, DISSENTING): "Today, the Court holds that an incarcerated individual who has already filed one postconviction petition cannot file another one to assert a previously unavailable claim of statutory innocence. The majority says that result follows from a 'straightforward' reading of 28 U.S.C. §2255. . .[T]he majority is. . .wrong to interpret §2255(e)—known as the saving clause—as if Congress designed that provision to filter potential habeas claims through the narrowest of apertures, saving essentially only those that a court literally would be unable to consider due to something akin to a natural calamity. . .This stingy characterization does not reflect a primary aim of §2255(e), which was to 'save' any claim that was available prior to §2255(h)'s enactment where Congress has not expressed a clear intent to foreclose it. . .I am also deeply troubled by the constitutional implications of the nothing-to-see-here approach that the majority takes with respect to the incarceration of potential legal innocents. . .Apparently, legally innocent or not, Jones must just carry on in prison regardless, since. . .no path exists for him to ask a federal judge to consider his innocence assertion. Jones v. Hendrix, No. 21-857 (6/22/23)

possible view of Congress's intent regarding the saving clause, the majority generally claims that the saving clause only authorizes the filing of a habeas petition if filing a §2255 motion would be 'impossible or impracticable.' And in the majority's telling, that circumstance only occurs, say, if the courthouse . . .has burned to the ground or been carried away by a mudslide." Jones v. Hendrix, No. 21-857 (U.S. S.CT. 6/22/23)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/22pdf/21-857_4357.pdf

ACTUAL INNOCENCE: "The euphemistic manner in which the Court's opinion tiptoes around what Jones is actually arguing is noteworthy. The majority says that . . .prisoners in Jones's position cannot take advantage of 'a more favorable interpretation of statutory law,' which it also obliquely characterizes as 'an intervening change in statutory interpretation,'. . .In fact, the word 'innocence' only appears in the Court's opinion when recounting the Government's arguments. If the majority has spared a thought for the appropriate standard when a petitioner is claiming legal innocence, I could not find it." Jones v. Hendrix, No. 21-857 (6/22/23)

AEDPA: The majority's bottom line. . .is that a person in prison for noncriminal conduct cannot ask a federal court to review the legality of his detention if he has previously filed a §2255 petition. This position is stunning in a country where liberty is a constitutional guarantee and the courts are supposed to be dispensing justice. It raises hackles." Jones v. Hendrix, No. 21-857 (6/22/23)

AEDPA: "Today's ruling follows a recent series of troubling AEDPA interpretations. All of these opinions have now collectively managed to transform a statute that Congress designed to provide for a rational and orderly process of federal postconviction judicial review into an aimless and chaotic exercise in futility. The route to obtaining collateral relief is presently replete with imagined artificial barriers, arbitrary dead ends, and traps for the unwary. And today's turn makes the journey palpably absurd. . .It is quite clear that the Court's rulings in this area of the law reflect a general ethos that convicted prisoners should not be permitted to file §2255 motions or obtain postconviction relief at all." Jones v. Hendrix, No. 21-857 (6/22/23)

QUO WARRANTO: Governor's suspension of State Attorney, had pledged to use his discretion not to promote criminalization of transgender people or abortion seekers/providers, on grounds of "neglect of duty" and "incompetence" upheld A petitioner who unreasonably delays filing a petition for writ of quo warranto may see that petition denied on that basis, regardless of the merits. State Attorney had challenged the suspension in federal court promptly, but waited five months before petitioning for quo warranto relief in state court. Only remedy is in the Senate. FIRST STEP ACT-VIOLATION OF SUPERVISED RELEASE: A sentence imposed upon the revocation of supervised release qualifies for a sentence reduction under § 404(b) of the First Step Act when the underlying crime is a covered offense. Post-revocation penalties relate to the original offense. However, a district court may exercise its alternative discretion in denying a First Step Act motion after consideration of the §3553(a) factors. The district court need not always calculate and consider a defendant's new range under the Sentencing Guidelines before exercising their discretion under §404(b) of the First Step Act. FIREARM-CONSECUTIVE SENTENCES: 18 U .S.C. §924(c) makes it a crime either to use or carry a firearm during and in relation to any crime of violence or drug trafficking crime, or to possess a firearm in furtherance of any such crime, and requires a mandatory minimum 5 year sentence, to be served consecutively. §924(c)'s requirement that the sentence be served consecutively to the related offens does not extend to violations of §924(j), which provides penalties for causing death by a firearm, and does not itself require that the sentence be served consecutively. A sentence for a §924(j) conviction can run either concurrently with or consecutively. "To state the obvious . . .subsection (j) is not located within subsection (c). AARDVARKS (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "Suppose you tell your child that he can get a pet so long as it is 'small or a dog.' The child can choose a small animal (like a hamster) or a large dog (like a mastiff). But can the child also choose a small dog? If the 'or' is inclusive. . .the answer is 'yes.' If it is exclusive, the answer is 'no.' Critically, however, neither reading covers a medium-sized aardvark. JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL: Defendant is entitled to a judgment of acquittal on Aggravated battery charge for hitting officer's vehicle with his own where there is no testimony that the occupants were jostled or otherwise moved about within their vehicle by the collision or braced themselves to protect against the impending impact, or otherwise physically affected by the collision. Bell v. State, 6D23-790 (6/14/23)

RISK PROTECTION ORDER: Court erred in denying a RPO where a student who had a pending aggravated assault prosecution appeared at a location where he knew weapons were prohibited, was armed with a handgun and enough ammunition to conduct a mass shooting, and gave an explanation so vague as to be unworthy of belief (he was scared "someone" in his neighborhood was trying to kill him). POST CONVICTION RELIEF-BURGLARY-JURY INSTRUCTION (J. COHEN, DISSENTING): Court erred by neglecting to instruct the jury that the intended crime in a burglary be something other than burglary or trespass. "If the failure to instruct the jury on the issue that went to the heart of the defense, particularly when such an instruction is contained in the standard jury instructions, does not 'undermine confidence in the outcome' it is hard to understand what would." POST CONVICTION RELIEF (J. COHEN, DISSENTING): Failure to object to inadmissible testimony of uncharged collateral crimes–-victim had had previous burglaries and Defendant worked at Lowe's, where they make duplicate keys--constitutes deficient performance. Nieves v. State, 6D23-21 (6/12/23)

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL-POSSESSION OF FIREARM (J. COHEN, DISSENTING): JOA should have been granted where the handle of a gun was sticking out under the seat near Defendant's foot, his father said he owned the car and recently purchased the gun and had put it under the seat, and that itwould have been completely invisible when his long-legged son got in the car before adjusting the seat. "Almost everyone pulled over by law enforcement is nervous; nervousness is of little probative value." Little v State, 6D23-95 (6/12/23)

DEATH PENALTY-SANITY TO BE EXECUTED: The Eighth Amendment's ban on cruel and unusual punishments precludes executing a prisoner who has lost his sanity after sentencing. Court's finding that Defendant is feigning insanity is supported by evidence. Defendant was not entitled to a continuance on his competency hearing due to unavailability of expert witnesses where other witnesses and evidence were considered. Owen v. State, SC2023-819 (6/9/23)

FRUIT OF POISONOUS TREE: The fruit of the poisonous tree doctrine is a court-made exclusionary rule which forbids the use of evidence in court if it is the product or fruit of a search or seizure or interrogation carried out in violation of constitutional rights. This bar also extends to verbal evidence, such as statements and declarations made by the accused. Crebo v. State, 2D22-2921 (6/9/23)

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT: Where Defendant is interrogated during the search of his home under an unlawful search warrant, his admissions are not suppressible as fruit of the poisonous tree because he was not confronted with anything wrongly seized. There is no causal link between the unlawfully obtained evidence and the content of the statement. Crebo v. State, 2D22-2921 (6/9/23)

CORPUS DELICTI-TAMPERING WITH EVIDENCE: A person's confession to a crime is not sufficient evidence of a criminal act where no independent direct or circumstantial evidence exists to substantiate the occurrence of a crime. The fact that no gun was recovered after Defendant shot the man dating his wife and drove away does not establish tampering with evidence. His admission that he threw the gun into the river to get rid of it is inadmissible. The crime of evidence tampering is a specific intent crime. Without Defendant's confession, the State had no separate substantial evidence of his intent or purpose in taking his gun from the scene. Pender v. State, 5D23-53 (6/923)

PROBATION-RECKLESS DRIVING-ALCOHOL: Ordinarily, the maximum term of probation for reckless driving is six months, not one year. §316.192(5), which requires the court to order the defendant to undergo certain remedial measures commonly ordered in DUI cases, it does not address probation. However, §948.15(1) allows, in relation to misdemeanors in which the use of alcohol is a significant factor, probation up to 1 year. But this requires a court finding that alcohol was a "significant factor," not merely a “contributing” factor.

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Where Defendant enters a negotiated plea to one year of probation for reckless driving, which ordinarily carries a maximum probationary period of six months, his remedy is to withdraw his plea, not to vacate or modify the probation. Smith v. State, 6D23-384 (6/9/23)

RECKLESS DRIVING-PROBATION-LENGTH: The maximum term of probation for reckless driving is six months. JUVENILE OFFENDER: A juvenile offender sentenced to a term of 20 years or more under §775.082(3)(c) is entitled to a review of his or her sentence after 20 years. Peterson v. State, 6D23-1498 (6/9/23)

AGGRAVATED IDENTITY THEFT: §1028A(a)(1) is violated only when the defendant's misuse of another person's means of identification is at the crux of what makes the underlying offense criminal, rather than merely an ancillary feature of a billing method. The means of identification specifically must be used in a manner that is fraudulent or deceptive. Defendant who committed health care fraud by over-billing Medicaid for psychological testing did not also commit Aggravated Identity Theft by employing another person's name or other identifying information (the patient's Medicaid reimbursement number) in submitting billing. Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

AGGRAVATED IDENTITY THEFT: Government argued that health care provider who over-billed Medicaid using the patient's Medicaid reimbursement number committed Aggravated Identity Theft. By that theory, "[a] lawyer who rounds up her hours from 2.9 to 3 and bills her client electronically has committed aggravated identity theft. The same is true of a waiter who serves flank steak but charges for filet mignon using an electronic payment method. The text and context of the statute do not support such a boundless interpretation." Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/22pdf/22-10_ifjn.pdf

DEFINITION-"USES": The word 'use' poses some interpretational difficulties because of the different meanings attributable to it. It is "elastic," and needs to be construed in context. Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/22pdf/22-10_ifjn.pdf

DEFINITION-"IN RELATION TO": If "'relate to' were taken to extend to the furthest stretch of its indeterminacy, then for all practical purposes there would be no limits, as really, universally, relations stop nowhere. Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: "Time and again, this Court has prudently avoided reading incongruous breadth into opaque language in criminal statutes." Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/22pdf/22-10_ifjn.pdf

YEAH, RIGHT: "[The Government makes a familiar plea: There is no reason to mistrust its sweeping reading, because prosecutors will act responsibly." Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/22pdf/22-10_ifjn.pdf

QUOTATION (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "The United States' maximalist approach has simplicity on its side, yes; an everybody-is-guilty standard is no challenge to administer. But the Constitution prohibits the Judiciary from resolving reasonable doubts about a criminal statute's meaning by rounding up to the most punitive interpretation its text and context can tolerate." Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/22pdf/22-10_ifjn.pdf

OUR JOB: "[R]esolving hard cases is part of the judicial job description. Hastily resorting to vagueness doctrine, in contrast, would hobble legislatures' ability to draw nuanced lines to address a complex world." Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/22pdf/22-10_ifjn.pdf

QUOTATION (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "Whoever among you is not an 'aggravated identity thief,' let him cast the first stone. The United States came to this Court with a view of 18 U. S. C. §1028A(a)(1) that would affix that unfortunate label on almost every adult American. Every bill splitter who has overcharged a friend using a mobile-payment service like Venmo. Every contractor who has rounded up his billed time by even a few minutes. Every college hopeful who has overstated his involvement in the high school glee club. All of those individuals, the United States says, engage in conduct that can invite a mandatory 2-year stint in federal prison." Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

VAGUENESS-QUOTATION (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): §1028A(a)(1). . .is not much better than a Rorschach test. Depending on how you squint your eyes, you can stretch (or shrink) its meaning to convict (or exonerate) just about anyone. . .Truly, the statute fails to provide even rudimentary notice of what it does and does not criminalize. We have a term for laws like that. We call them vague."

Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

QUOTATION (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "As an abstract exercise, debating fact patterns like these may seem good fun. But there is nothing entertaining about a 2-year mandatory federal prison sentence. . .I do not question that the Court today has done the bestit might to make sense of this statute. It's just that it faces an impossible task." Dubin v. United States, No. 22-10 (US S.Ct 6/8/23)

AEDPA: Under the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act (AEDPA), a federal court can grant relief to a state prisoner only if he shows that the state court's determination of his claim resulted in a decision that was (1) contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States, or (2) based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding. DEATH PENALTY-INTELLECTUAL DISABILITY: To show intellectual disability for the death penalty, Defendant must show that he has significantly subaverage intellectual functioning (IQ of 70 or below), substantial deficits in adaptive behavior, and the manifestation of those problems before reaching the age of 18. Court is permitted to discount outlier sub-70 IQ scores in light of evidence of malingering. Ferguson v. Commissioner, No. 20-12727 (11th Cir. 6/7/23)

CERTIORARI-EVIDENCE-SEVERITY OF INJURY: A writ of certiorari is a prerogative writ that functions as a safety net to halt a miscarriage of justice when there is no other means of doing so. Court's order excluding evidence of th extent of injury in a battery case is a discretionary call on the part of the judge. If error, it was not so egregious or consequential as to justify extraordinary intervention in an ongoing criminal proceeding in the trial court. State v. Walker, 1D21-361 (6/7/23)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-THEFT: Double Jeopardy does not preclude separate convictions for theft of a car and the tools that were in it where the tools and car were taken separately and had different owners. Beasley v, State, 1D22-513 (6/7/23)

VOP: Where Defendant admitted to violating his community control, Court's failure to explicitly find he willfully and substantially violated supervision does not support relief. Upon a plea of guilty to an allegation of probation violation, there is no requirement that there be a determination as to the factual basis of the plea. The admission alone is sufficient to establish a willful and substantial violation. Diaz v. State, 3D22-1095 (6/7/23)

VFOSC: If a probationer qualifies as a VFOSC and is found to violate a non-monetary condition of probation, the trial court is required to make written findings as to whether the probationer poses a danger to the community. The written findings requirement of §948.06(8)(e) is mandatory, not discretionary. Morris v. State, 3D22-1232 (6/7/23)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-BLOOD DRAW: Driver's consent to a blood draw is not coerced by an officer saying that refusal to consent would require him to get a warrant, provided there is probable cause. The odor of alcohol and glassy eyes is probable cause. State v. Acevedo, 4D21-3218 (6/7/23)

SEARCH WARRANT: To issue a search warrant, the issuing judge must find proof of two elements: (1) the commission element, that a particular person committed a crime; and (2) the nexus element, that relevant evidence of probable criminality is likely to be found in the place searched. In DUI manslaughter case, reckless operation is not an element. State v. Acevedo, 4D21-3218 (6/7/23)

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: In an operating a vehicle without a valid license causing death or serious bodily injury case, comparative fault may be a valid basis for a downward departure. Although comparative fault is not one of the enumerated statutory mitigating factors, "As the State does not cite—nor do we find—any opinion prohibiting consideration of comparative fault as a non-statutory mitigating factor, the trial court in this case was permitted to consider comparative fault as a valid legal ground to downward depart." COSTS: $200 cost of prosecution without evidence from the State to support the cost, nor an opportunity for Defendant to object to the enhanced cost, is unlawful. The cost of prosecution should be $100. Wilsey v. State, 4D22-947 (6/7/23)

INTENT TO SELL: Intent to distribute can be proven circumstantially, including by the quantity of the drug and the existence of implements such as scales, baggies, and a good luck $2 bill. USA v. Laines, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012907.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVATION-FORFEITED ISSUE: Where Court sustained objection and instructed jury to disregard officer's opinion ("This is definitely for distribution. This wouldn't be consistent with someone just using it for personal use."), Defendant forfeited the issue on appeal by failing to argue in his initial brief that the error was incurable. USA v. Laine, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012907.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is not entitled to a new trial based on new evidence that police had searched his phone. The claim that absence of evidence of drug dealing on his phone would have resulted in acquittal is not persuasive, and he would have known what was or wasn't on it anyways. USA v. Laine, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

BRADY/GIGLIO: Government's failure to disclose that an officer was under internal investigation does not entitle Defendant to new trial. Giglio requires proof of perjury. Brady only applies to evidence material either to guilt or to punishment. There is doubt whether Brady applies outside the realm of exculpatory evidence and extends to evidence useful to the defense in a fruit-of-the-poisonous-tree quest. USA v. Laine, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

ACCA-SERIOUS DRUG OFFENSE-CATEGORICAL APPROACH: Under the Armed Career Criminal Act, if a defendant convicted of being a felon in possession of a firearm has three previous convictions for a violent felony or a serious drug offense, a mandatory minimum sentence of 15 years applies. To determine whether a defendant's prior conviction qualifies as a predicate offense, the categorical approach applies. The least culpable conduct prohibited under the state law must qualify as a predicate offense, and all the controlled substances covered by the state law must also be controlled substances under federal law. USA v. Laine, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012907.pdf

SERIOUS DRUG OFFENSE ACCA: A predicate drug offense need not carry at least a ten-year mandatory minimum to qualify as a serious drug offense under ACCA. USA v. Laine, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012907.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: The issue of whether Florida's definition of cocaine is broader than the federal definition, and therefore not an ACCA predicate offense, was not preserved. Even if preserved, the argument would probably fail. USA v. Laine, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012907.pdf

STEREOISOMERS: Stereoisomer are isomers that have the same composition but differ in the orientation of those parts in space. Although Florida law encompasses "any" stereoisomer of cocaine, and federal law covers only "optical and geometric isomers, Florida statute's inclusion of "any" stereoisomer of cocaine does not make it broader than the federal prohibition. USA v. Laine, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012907.pdf

QUOTATION (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING IN PART): "Respect the burden." Napoleon Bonaparte, as quoted by Ralph Waldo Emerson. USA v. Laine, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

ACCA-OVERBREADTH (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING IN PART): A state statute whose definition covers more than the federal definition is categorically overbroad, so convictions under that state statute cannot categorically qualify as predicates for sentence enhancements. USA v. Laine, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012907.pdf

STEREOISOMERS (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING IN PART): The government argues that geometric and optical isomers are the two types of stereoisomers, suggesting that no other types of stereoisomers exist. But optical and geometric isomers are not the only kinds of stereoisomers. If nongeometric diastereomers of cocaine exist, then Florida's definition of the substance is categorically overbroad in comparison to the federal definition. USA v. Laine, No. 20-12907 (6/6/23)

PLAIN ERROR: "And even though it may seem unusual to find plain error and require the government to prove a negative based on a factual question—whether nongeometric diastereomers of cocaine exist—. . .there is no legal basis for the . . . practice of declining to review certain unpreserved factual arguments for plain error." POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE-MENTAL INCOMPETENCE: Improved brain imaging technology over intervening years is not newly discovered evidence; such technology would at best be a tool that could be used to uncover relevant evidence, and of course not itself evidence. HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: Under AEDPA, state-court decisions must be given the benefit of the doubt in federal habeas proceedings. If a state court adjudicated a claim on the merits, we cannot set aside that adjudication unless it was either contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established federal law or was an unreasonable determination of the facts in the light of the evidence. A state court unreasonably applies federal law only if no fairminded jurist could agree with the state court's determination or conclusion. King v. Warden, Georgia Diagnostic Prison, No. 20-12804 (11th Cir. 6/2/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012804.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: JURORS-PEREMPTORY STRIKE-RACE/SEX: Three-step process for evaluating objections that a prosecutor exercised his peremptory strikes on the basis of race or sex. 1) Defendant must establish a prima facie case by producing evidence sufficient to support the inference that the prosecutor exercised peremptory challenges on the basis of race or sex. 2) The burden shifts to the State to come forward with a neutral explanation for its strikes. 3) Court must find whether the defendant has established purposeful discrimination. Typically, the decisive question will be whether Prosecutor's race or sex-neutral explanation should be believed.

King v. Warden, Georgia Diagnostic Prison, No. 20-12804 (11th Cir. 6/2/23)

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA-JURORS-PEREMPTORY STRIKE-RACE/SEX: Prosecutor struck one juror, in part, because "this lady is a black female," struck 87.5% of the qualified black jurors while striking only 8.8% of the qualified white jurors, and twice ranted against Batson and other precedents. Although the record is "troubling," in his federal habeas Petitioner failed to establish that the Georgia Supreme Court did not consider all evidence in rejecting his argument that peremptory challenges were used discriminatorily. State courts are presumed to know and follow the law and federal reviewing courts are highly deferential to them. King v. Warden, Georgia Diagnostic Prison, No. 20-12804 (11th Cir. 6/2/23)

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA-JURORS-PEREMPTORY STRIKE-RACE/SEX (J. WILSON, DISSENTING): Where prosecutor struck seven of eight black potential jurors, one of whom because she was "a black female from Surrency" and launched into two lengthy soliloquies suggesting his open disdain and outright contempt for Batson, there is clear evidence of racial discrimination sufficient to overcome AEDPA deference. The Georgia court's decision was an unreasonable application of Batson and its progeny because it failed to consider all relevant circumstances. "[N]o reasonable jurist could have reviewed this record—replete with evidence of racial discrimination—and not found a Batson violation. . .[J]ust as a prosecutor's discriminatory strikes in other cases can suggest they acted discriminatorily in this case, a finding of discriminatory intent within the same trial is also probative." POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DEATH PENALTY: Counsel is not ineffective for failure to fully develop mental health mitigation in death penalty case. Pretrial investigation need not be exhaustive, only adequate. Counsel was experienced, with only one documented previous episode of ineffective representation, and "even the very best lawyer could have a bad day." King v. Warden, Georgia Diagnostic Prison, No. 20-12804 (11th Cir. 6/2/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012804.pdf

ISSUE-FORFEITURE-DEATH PENALTY-MENTAL DEFICIENCY: In habeas corpus case, Petitioner forfeited his argument that Georgia law requiring a defendant to prove his intellectual disability beyond a reasonable doubt in order to secure the immunity from the death penalty ("guilty but mentally retarded" verdict) is unconstitutional. Defendant has to make more than a skeletal argument in his petition to preserve this issue. King v. Warden, Georgia Diagnostic Prison, No. 20-12804 (11th Cir. 6/2/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012804.pdf

WRIT OF PROHIBITION-TIMELY FILING (J. MAKAR, CONCURRING): No set-in-stone temporal yardstick exists for determining reasonableness of timing for filing petitions for extraordinary writs. Each case must be judged on the facts and circumstances presented and not by some ad hoc or impromptu litmus test. But a rule change is under consideration. Colbert v. State, 23-087 (6/2/23) https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/870078/opinion/230987_DC02_06022023_090841_i.pdf

IDENTIFICATION-EYE WITNESS-SUGGESTIVE: The abuse of discretion standard of review applies to rulings on admissibility of out-of-court identifications. Conflicting precedents are receded from. Although mixed questions of law and fact are often reviewed under the mixed standard of review, not all mixed questions should be reviewed under that standard. Alahad v. State, SC2021-1450 (6/1/23) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/870021/opinion/sc2021-1450.pdf

IDENTIFICATION-EYE WITNESS-SUGGESTIVE: To determine whether an out-of-court identification made during a police procedure should be suppressed, the trial court conducts a two-prong test: (1) Did the police employ an unnecessarily suggestive procedure in obtaining an out-of-court identification? (2) If so, did the suggestive procedure give rise to a substantial likelihood of irreparable misidentification? An unnecessarily suggestive procedure is impermissibly suggestive if the resulting out-of-court identification is unreliable under the totality of the circumstances. Alahad v. State, SC2021-1450 (6/1/23)
https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/870021/opinion/sc2021-1450.pdf

EVIDENCE-EXPERT: Scientific expert testimony is admissible if (1) the expert is qualified to testify competently regarding the matters he intends to address; (2) the methodology by which the expert reaches his conclusions is sufficiently reliable as determined by the sort of inquiry mandated in Daubert; and (3) the testimony assists the trier of fact, through the application of scientific, technical, or specialized expertise, to understand the evidence or to determine a fact in issue. USA v. Ware, 21-10539 (11th Cir. 6/1/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110539.pdf

EVIDENCE-EXPERT: Some expert testimony will be so clearly admissible that a district court need not conduct a Daubert hearing. Defendant is not entitled to a Daubert hearing to challenge fingerprint comparison as unreliable science, regardless of recent reports that may cast doubt on the error rate of fingerprint analysis and comparison. Admissibility is a lower bar to clear than credibility. USA v. Ware, 21-10539 (11th Cir. 6/1/32)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110539.pdf

EVIDENCE-LAY OPINION IDENTIFICATION: Officers with familiarity with Defendant by the time of the trial may identify the Defendant from surveillance video. USA v. Ware, 21-10539 (11th Cir. 6/1/32)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110539.pdf

FLIGHT-CONCEALMENT: Evidence of flight–or hiding under the bed--is admissible to demonstrate consciousness of guilt, but its probative value diminishes if the defendant committed several unrelated crimes or if there has been a significant time delay between the commission of the crime and the time of flight. Court did not err in giving flight/concealment instruction. USA v. Ware, 21-10539 (11th Cir. 6/1/32)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110539.pdf

SENTENCING-GUIDELINE-ENHANCEMENT-PHYSICAL RESTRAINT: The physical restraint enhancement applies where a defendant creates circumstances allowing victims no alternative but compliance. When an armed robber uses the threat of deadly force with his firearm to compel a victim to move or to stay in place, the enhancement applies. USA v. Ware, 21-10539 (11th Cir. 6/1/32)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110539.pdf

HEALTH CARE FRAUD: Performing cursory patient examinations in a scheme for paying kickbacks to "patients" for non-existent treatment in order to bill Blue Cross makes one an aider and abettor. Signing fraudulent forms later does not make one a mere accessory after the fact. USA v. Verdeza, No. 21-10461 (5/31/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110461.pdf

EVIDENCE-SUMMARY WITNESS: Summary testimony, in and of itself, is not improper. USA v. Verdeza, No. 21-10461 (5/31/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110461.pdf

EVIDENCE-BAD ACTS-NOTICE: Prior to 2020, Government was not required to give notice of the purpose for which it intended to use Rule 404(b) evidence. USA v. Verdeza, No. 21-10461 (5/31/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110461.pdf

LEADING QUESTIONS: Defendant's argument that his trial was unfair because the government asked too many leading questions fails where 16 of his 18 objections were sustained. The other two made no difference in the result. USA v. Verdeza, No. 21-10461 (5/31/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110461.pdf

DELIBERATE IGNORANCE Deliberate ignorance of criminal activity is the equivalent of knowledge. A deliberate ignorance instruction is appropriate only when there is evidence in the record showing the defendant purposely contrived to avoid learning the truth. Where there is evidence of actual knowledge but an inference is possible that Defendant put his head in the sand, a deliberate ignorance instruction is appropriate. USA v. Verdeza, No. 21-10461 (5/31/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110461.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVATION-SENTENCING GUIDELINES-COMMENTARY-LOSS: Courts may defer to the commentary only when the sentencing guidelines regulation itself is genuinely ambiguous. Where the sentencing guidelines commentary defines "loss" as the greater of the actual or intended loss. Because Defendant did not preserve the question of whether the definition of "loss" is ambiguous, review is for plain error. An error cannot be plain unless the issue has been specifically and directly resolved by. The question of whether "loss" is ambiguous has never been specifically and directly resolved. So guidelines calculation is based on the intended loss of $3.4 million. USA v. Verdeza, No. 21-10461 (5/31/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110461.pdf

DEFINITION-GUIDELINES-"MINOR ROLE": "Minor" means "inferior in importance, size, or degree: comparatively unimportant." Defendant who held himself out as a physician, interacted with "patients," doctored notes, prescribed physical therapy, and wrote fake reevaluations is not a minor participant in medical insurance fraud case. The fact that a particular defendant may be the least culpable among those who are actually named as defendants does not establish that he performed a minor role in the conspiracy. USA v. Verdeza, No. 21-10461 (5/31/23)

HUH? WHAT? HUH?: "[I]f Dupree abrogated our precedent and the term 'minor' is ambiguous (or if Dupree didn't abrogate our precedent), then we can continue to rely on our precedent (which relies on the commentary)." But "[i]t's also possible that we've readopted our precedent." USA v. Verdeza, No. 21-10461 (5/31/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110461.pdf

RESTITUTION: Defendant may be required to pay restitution beyond the amount caused by his own conduct. Restitution is based on a victim's actual loss directly and proximately caused by the defendant's offense of conviction, but if more than one defendant contributes to the loss of a victim, the court may make each defendant liable for the payment of the full amount of restitution, including uncharged conduct, even conduct that is outside the statute of limitations, as long as the losses were from the defendant's conduct in the course of the scheme. USA v. Verdeza, No. 21-10461 (5/31/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110461.pdf

SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVELY UNREASONABLE: A sentence below the guideline range, particularly when Defendant had previously participated in very similar schemes and had attempted to defraud the victim of millions of dollars, is not substantively unreasonable. USA v. Verdeza, No. 21-10461 (5/31/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110461.pdf

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Court improperly imposes special conditions to the probation of no contact with the victim, GPS ankle monitor, and Batterer's Intervention Program for the offense of violation of condition of pretrial release where the underlying battery was dropped. Violating pretrial release is not inextricably linked to domestic violence. The domestic violence charge does not alone make the special conditions imposed lawful where the crime for which Appellant was convicted was only related to an arrest for domestic violence. Benson v. State, 1D21-3614 (5/31/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/869957/opinion/download%3FdocumentVersionID=c6d9262d-fa06-4abe-88d2-a43558debb38

PROBATION-CONVICTIONS: Special conditions of probation must be reasonably related to rehabilitation. A condition of probation is valid if it(1) has a relationship to the crime for which the offender was convicted, (2) relates to conduct that is criminal in nature, or (3) requires or forbids conduct that is reasonably related to future criminality. The domestic violence charge does not alone make the special conditions imposed lawful where the crime for which Appellant was convicted was only related to an arrest for domestic violence. Benson v. State, 1D21-3614 (5/31/23)

CONDITIONS OF PROBATION-QUESTION CERTIFIED: Does §948.039 supercede precedents with respect to the proper factors that a court must consider before imposing a special condition of probation? Benson v. State, 1D21-3614 (5/31/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/869957/opinion/download%3FdocumentVersionID=c6d9262d-fa06-4abe-88d2-a43558debb38

CONDITIONS OF PROBATION (J. WINOKUR, DISSENTING): Amended statute does not require that a special condition of probation be related to rehabilitation or future criminality, only that it have a "relationship to the crime," or be "reasonably related to the circumstances of the offense." Benson v. State, 1D21-3614 (5/31/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/869957/opinion/download%3FdocumentVersionID=c6d9262d-fa06-4abe-88d2-a43558debb38

exceeds the maximum period of incarceration provided for by statute is an illegal sentence. Fifteen years of prison followed by 15 years of probation exceeds the statutory maximum for sexual battery, a second degree felony. Ross v. State, 1D21-390 (5/31/23)

SECOND AMENDMENT-FIREARM-FELON: Statute prohibiting possession of a firearm by a felon does not violate the Second Amendment. The Second Amendment protects an individual right to possess firearms, but like most rights, this one is not unlimited. Only law-abiding, responsible citizens are covered by the Second Amendment. Extensive historical discussion. Edenfield v. State, 1D22-290 (5/31/23)

HEARING-WHERE YOU SIT: Making the Defendant sit in the jury box, rather than with his attorney, on the sole basis that corrections official says "We don't do that, Judge. Only during trials," is concerning. It is incumbent upon the trial court to identify circumstances that justify precluding a client from sitting next to his or her attorney during an evidentiary hearing. Tarrau v. State, 3D21-2374 (5/31/23)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Officers lawfully seized firearm where they received reports of gunshots, yard and bullet holes in the house, and intoxicated approached officers, told them that she had been having problems with her unfaithful boyfriend who lived there, and spontaneously stated she had a gun. Asking her for the gun for safety reasons is lawful. Rivera v. State, 3D22-443 (5/31/23)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-WARRANTLESS ARREST-FELLOW OFFICER RULE: Arresting officer who did not witness the defendant operating or in actual physical possession unlawfully arrested her. A public safety aide who witnessed the impaired driving is not a deputized police officer, so the fellow officer rule does not apply. The fellow officer rule does not impute the knowledge of citizen Informants to officers. Wagner v. State, 4D21-3387 (5/31/23)

WARRANTLESS ARREST: A law enforcement officer can arrest a person for misdemeanor DUI without an arrest warrant in only three circumstances: (1) the officer witnesses each element of a prima facie case, (2) the officer is investigating an accident and develops probable cause to charge DUI, or (3) one officer calls upon another for assistance and the combined observations of the two or more officers are united to establish the probable cause to the arrest. NON-JURY TRIAL: Where record reflects neither a written waiver of jury trial nor the trial judge's colloquy with Defendant that his waiver of a jury trial was voluntarily, knowingly, and intelligently made, the conviction must be vacated. Eaton v. State, 4D22-2796 (5/31/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-REMEDY: Where Defendant rejected a six year plea offer because his attorney had wrongly advised him that the State would have to prove that he had conspired with each and every member of the alleged conspiracy, the remedy upon the granting of the motion for post-conviction relief, with findings that the Court would have accepted the original offer, is to order the State to re-offer the rejected plea deal. Alexander v. State, 5D23-54 (5/26/23)

EVIDENCE-MISHANDLING: Where drugs were seized on different days and mistakenly logged in under the same agency case number (the mistake was later corrected), the evidence is not excludable. To support the exclusion of evidence due to a gap or irregularity in the chain of custody, Defendant must demonstrate a probability of tampering. Covington v. State, 6D23-143 (5/26/23)

EIGHTH AMENDMENT-DEATH PENALTY-AGE: The Eighth Amendment does not categorically preclude the execution of offenders who were under age 22 at the time of their crimes. Sliney v. State, SC22-700 (5/25/23) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/869518/opinion/sc2022-0700.pdf

JURORS-CHALLENGE FOR CAUSE: Where juror acknowledges uncertainty as to whether Defendant's failure to testify might affect his deliberations, Court intervenes by instructing jury on BOP and silence, and juror says he/she could follow the law, Court does not err in denying challenge for cause. Fleming v. State, 1D22-0345 (5/24/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/869472/opinion/download%3FdocumentVersionID=fe1f2c1a-d5d3-42fc-8ff0-366f978dd8a9

VOIR DIRE: Voir dire should not be a gotcha game. The common voir dire tactic of asking jurors if they would testify if accused, then asking if they would be concerned about Defendant not testifying is plainly used to manufacture a cause challenge rather than to seriously inquire into juror partiality. "A modified version of this voir dire technique may be useful to help jurors identify their instincts andthen to explain their responsibilities given them. But questioning that simply draws out the known human desire to defend oneself is insufficient to sustain a cause challenge." Fleming v. State, 1D22-

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-BOLSTERING: Prosecutors may not directly or indirectly express their opinions as to the credibility of witnesses or the guilt of the defendant. Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for not objecting to improper bolstering ("So she's going to make it up? . . . [S]he's lying about it? . . . ([S]he went through) all of that because why? Because Everett Pearson raped her. That's why."). Pearson v. State, 2D22-3262 (5/24/23)

SCORE SHEET-PRIOR RECORD: Defendant's prior lewd and lascivious offenses from 1997 should not have been scored as Level 7 offenses because that version of the crime had different elements than the current version. Clase v. State, 4D21-2898 (5/24/23)

JOA-SEXUAL MISCONDUCT WITH PATIENT: Defendant–an employee at a drug treatment facility--cannot be convicted of having sex with a patient in violation of §394.4593 where the Victim failed to meet the definition of "patient." To fit within the statutory definition of "patient," the victim would have had to be "held or accepted for mental health treatment." Because the victim was treated voluntarily she was not "held." And the victim had sought drug treatment, not mental health treatment. DeLoatch v. State, 4D22-538 (5/24/23)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION (J. FORST, CONCURRING): Generally, words in a constitution, statute or contact are to be understood in their ordinary, everyday meanings. "However. . .definition by the average man or even by the ordinary dictionary with its studied enumeration of subtle shades of meaning is not a substitute for the definition set before us by the lawmakers with instructions to apply it to the exclusion of all others. There would be little use in such a glossary if we were free in despite of it to choose a meaning for ourselves." DeLoatch v. State, 4D22-538 (5/24/23)

EXPUNCTION: Where Defendant had been convicted of a violation of §893.135 for smuggling narcotics from Jamaica as a child and under duress, he is presumptively entitled to expunction under §943.0583, which allows expunction for a victim of human trafficking. A victim of human trafficking encompasses a child recruited for the purpose of smuggling cocaine. Williams v. State, 4D22-767 (5/24/23)

EXPUNCTION: Although there is no right to the expunction of any criminal history record, satisfaction of the statutory criteria creates a presumption in favor of expunction, upon which a trial court abuses its discretion in denying an expungement petition without a factual basis to do so. STAND YOUR GROUND: Defendant in his yard is entitled to SYG immunity for arming himself, chambering round, and confronting a tree-cutting crew who had made sexually suggestive gestures towards his fiancée, waved a running chainsaw towards his dogs and refused to leave his property. FIREARM-DEADLY FORCE: As a matter of law, openly carrying or displaying a firearm, and loading it by advancing a bullet in its chamber, does not constitute the unjustified or threatened use of deadly force. SOVEREIGN IMMUNITY-EIGHTH AMENDMENT: "[S]imple medical malpractice does not rise to the level of a constitutional violation." Wade v. McDade, No. 21-14275 (11th Cir. 5/22/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202114275.pdf

EIGHTH AMENDMENT-MEDICAL CARE-QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: Prison officials have qualified immunity from suit for their failure to administer anti-seizure medicine to prisoner. A deliberate-indifference plaintiff must prove that the defendant acted with more than gross negligence. Wade v. McDade, No. 21-14275 (11th Cir. 5/22/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202114275.pdf

EIGHTH AMENDMENT-MEDICAL CARE-QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: Officer and nurses who were subjectively aware of a risk of serious harm to inmate not being given anti-convulsion medicine and who at least partially disregarded that risk may have been grossly negligent but not more than grossly negligent, so they have sovereign immunity from suit. Wade v. McDade, No. 21-14275 (11th Cir. 5/22/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202114275.pdf

EIGHTH AMENDMENT-MEDICAL CARE-QUALIFIED IMMUNITY: "For more than 25 years now, our case law regarding a deliberate-indifference claim's mens rea element has been hopelessly confused, resulting in what we'll charitably call a 'mess.' We've tried to clean up that mess at least twice, but seemingly to no avail, as panels continue to flip-flop between two competing formulations: 'more than mere negligence" and 'more than gross negligence.' . . .[W]e have pitched back and forth—and back and forth and back and forth—between the 'more than mere negligence' and 'more than gross negligence' standards for the better part of the last three decades." Wade v. McDade, No. 21-14275 (11th Cir. 5/22/23)

HUH? WHAT? HUH?: "To be clear, the 'issue in question' with respect to which we apply the prior panel-precedent rule here. . .isn't whether 'more than mere negligence' or 'more than gross negligence' is the proper mens rea standard as an initial matter. If that were the proper object of our prior-panel-precedent-rule inquiry, then we would seek out the 'earliest panel opinion' addressing that issue, whatever that opinion might be. . .But. . the prior-panel-precedent issue that we confront now. . .is which of those two previous efforts to clarify circuit law controls our decision." Wade v. McDade, No. 21-14275 (11th Cir. 5/22/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202114275.pdf

PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE: "Were the rule otherwise—such that any panel was free to re-decide what it thought the first-in-time case actually was, even in the face of intervening decisions resolving that very issue—there could, by definition, be no closure. Every day would be a new day. That is precisely the situation that our prior panel-precedent rule is designed to prevent." Wade v. McDade, No. 21-14275 (11th Cir. 5/22/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202114275.pdf

EIGHTH AMENDMENT (J. NEWSOM, CONCURRING): The Cruel and Unusual Punishments Clause applies only to penalties that are imposed intentionally and purposefully. "Is any negligence-based standard consistent with the plain language and original understanding of the Eighth Amendment, which by its terms applies only to 'punishments? The answer, I think, is pretty clearly no. Just as a parent can't accidently punish his or her child, a prison official can't accidentally—or even recklessly—'punish[]' an inmate." Wade v. McDade, No. 21-14275 (11th Cir. 5/22/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DEATH PENALTY-INTELLECTUAL DISABILITY: Post conviction court's decision to vacate death penalty is proper where Defendant's measured IQ was in the low 70's, and, when his adaptive functioning deficit is taken into account, may be a low as 69. Smith v. Commissioner, Alabama DOC, No. 21-14519 (11th Cir. 5/19/23)

the death penalty turns on whether he has significantly subaverage intellectual functioning, i.e., an IQ equal to or less than 70, but the standard error of measurement must recognize that an IQ test score represents a range rather than a fixed number. Where IQ test scores going back to elementary school show most IQ tests to be in the low 70's, Court must consider Defendant's adaptive functioning to determine whether the Defendsnt is intellectually disabled for imposition of the death penalty. Smith v. Commissioner, Alabama DOC, No. 21-14519 (11th Cir. 5/19/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-SCORE SHEET: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that score sheet was improperly calculated (State agreed that it was but Court ruled otherwise). Hartshorn v. State, 2D22-2016 (5/19/23)

SCORE SHEET-FELONY BATTERY: The legislature has not specified a severity level for Felony Battery based on a prior, so the CPC's catch-all provision for third-degree felonies (Level 1) applies. Hartshorn v. State, 2D22-2016 (5/19/23)

COSTS-EXPOSURE OF SEXUAL ORGANS: $151 court cost pursuant to §938.10 may not be imposed for a violation of §800.03, exposure of sexual organs. Henslee v. State, 5D22-2362 (5/19/23)

DISCOVERY VIOLATION: Defendant is entitled to a new trial where State used at trial as impeachment undisclosed statements made by Defendant in an internal Sheriff's Office complaint and email. Only if the appellate court can say beyond a reasonable doubt that the defense was not procedurally prejudiced by the discovery violation can the error be considered harmless. Tyson v. State, 5D23-125 (5/19/23)

DISCOVERY VIOLATION-HARMLESS ERROR: Harmless error analysis focuses on the procedural prejudice from the discovery violation and not whether the violation would have substantively made a difference in the verdict. The relevant inquiry is whether there is a reasonable possibility that the discovery violation 'materially hindered the defendant's trial preparation or strategy. Appellate court must consider every conceivable course of action in determinating regarding whether trial preparation or strategy would have been materially different absent the State's discovery violation. Tyson v. State, 5D23-125 (5/19/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that trial counsel acted ineffectively when he counseled him not to testify when he would have testified that he was is some other city at the time of the crime. Chambers v. State, 6D23-526 (5/19/23)

SOCIAL MEDIA-LIABILITY: Social media companies (Facebook, Google, Twitter) are not subject to civil liability under 18 U. S. C. §2333 on the theory that they aided and abetted ISIS by providing a platform to recruit and raise funds for terrorists. "[D]efendants' relationship with ISIS . . .appears to have been the same as their relationship with their billion-plus other users: arm's length, passive, and largely indifferent." Twitter, Inc. v. Taamneh, No 21-1496 (U.S. S. Ct. 5/18/23)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/22pdf/21-1496_d18f.pdf

AID AND ABET: "The mere creation of those platforms. . .is not culpable. To be sure, it might be that bad actors like ISIS are able to use platforms like defendants' for illegal—and some times terrible—ends. But the same could be said of cell phones, email, or the internet generally." Twitter, Inc. v. Taamneh, No 21-1496 (U.S. S. Ct. 5/18/23)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/22pdf/21-1496_d18f.pdf

DEFINITION-"AID AND ABET": Aiding-and-abetting liability applies only to cases of truly culpable conduct. A defendant must in some sort associate himself with the venture, that he participate in it as in something that he wishes to bring about, that he seek by his action to make it succeed before he can be held liable. Twitter, Inc. v. Taamneh, No 21-1496 (U.S. S. Ct. 5/18/23)

AIDING AND ABETTING: "By their very nature, the concepts of aiding and abetting and substantial assistance do not lend themselves to crisp, bright-line distinctions. . .The point of aiding and abetting is to impose liability on those who consciously and culpably participated in the tort at issue. . .When there is a direct nexus between the defendant's acts and the tort, courts may more easily infer such culpable assistance. But, the more attenuated the nexus, the more courts should demand that plaintiffs show culpable participation through intentional aid that substantially furthered the tort." Twitter, Inc. v. Taamneh, No 21-1496 (U.S. S. Ct. 5/18/23)

DEATH PENALTY: 30-year delay between the offense and imposition of the death penalty does nor violate the Eighth Amendment or Article I, §17 of the Florida Constitution. Orme v. State, SC22-338 (5/18/23) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/868986/opinion/sc2022-0338.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-FACTORS: There is no "beyond a reasonable doubt" requirement on the sufficiency and weighing determinations in imposing the death penalty Only the finding of the existence of at least one aggravating factor to the beyond a reasonable doubt standard is required. Orme v. State, SC22-338 (5/18/23) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/868986/opinion/sc2022-0338.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant's new sentence after his successful motion for post-conviction relief, which reduced his offense from home invasion robbery with a deadly weapon to home invasion robbery and his sentence from life to thirty years, does not violate double jeopardy. Because neither the jury nor the trial court acquitted on any offenses, the prohibition against double jeopardy was not violated. Gardner v. State, 1D22-3177 (5/17/23) https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/868938/opinion/download%3FdocumentVersionID=791dd7a8-6721-4208-8f84-7f95c18b6a77

DISCOVERY-RICHARDSON: Where Defendant testified that he did not have the specified Gmail account, linked to a Dropbox account with child pornography, and he denied ever having a Gmail account, the State's use of previously undisclosed Gmail records showing such an account was a prejudicial discovery violation requiring a new trial. The undisclosed Gmail records directly impeached the defendant's testimony that he has never had a Gmail account, and, accordingly, served to damage his credibility. McDonald v. State, 4D22-886 (5/17/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/868918/opinion/220886_DC13_

PROSECUTORIAL MISCONDUCT-ARGUMENT: State's argument that internet websites used by the Defendant, including Kik, Omegle, and Mega, are used for trading illegal child pornography the majority of the time is improper as never developed during trial. CLERGY COMMUNICATIONS PRIVILEGE: A confession to a church volunteer (a seminary student but not yet an ordained minister) is not privileged. The Clergy communication privilege applies only when (1) the statement is made to a member of the clergy; (2) for the purpose of seeking spiritual counseling or advice; (3) the clergyman receives the statement in the usual course of his practice or discipline; and (4) the statement is made privately and with the intent it not be further disclosed. HEARSAY: The grand jury testimony of the witness to her mother's murder (the Defendant is her father) is admissible as substantive evidence when the witness disingenuously claims amnesia or forgetfulness. Unlike prior inconsistent statements that may be used only for impeachment, prior grand jury testimony is not hearsay and may be used as substantive evidence. Maya v. State, 6D23-212 (5/12/23)

VAGUENESS-HONEST SERVICES FRAUD: A private citizen with influence over government decision-making cannot be convicted for wire fraud on the theory that he or she deprived the public of its intangible right of honest services. Jury instruction--that a former and future public official (here, executive deputy secretary to NY governor Cuomo) owed a duty of honest services to the public if (1) he dominated and controlled any governmental business and (2) people working in the government actually relied on him because of a special relationship he had with the government–is wrong. Percoco v. United States, No. 21–1158 (US S. Ct. 5/11/23)x`

VAGUENESS-HONEST-SERVICES FRAUD (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "The Court holds that the jury instructions in this case were 'too vague.'. . .I agree. But to my mind, the problem runs deeper than that because no set of instructions could have made things any better. To this day, no one knows what 'honest-services fraud' encompasses.. . .In the end, we may now know a little bit more about when a duty of honest services does not arise, but we still have no idea when it does." WIRE FRAUD-RIGHT TO CONTROL THEORY: The right-to-control theory–that a defendant is guilty of fraud if he schemes to deprive the victim of potentially valuable economic information necessary to make discretionary economic decisions is invalid under federal fraud statutes. The "right to control" theory of fraud is not a valid basis for criminal liability for wire fraud. Federal fraud statutes criminalize only schemes to deprive people of traditional property interests, not potentially valuable economic information necessary to make discretionary economic decisions. The right to control one's assets is not "property" for purposes of the wire fraud statute. Defendant is improperly convicted of wire fraud under the "right to control" theory for rigging Requests for Proposals to obtain a lucrative ($750,000,000) development project. Ciminelli v. APPEAL-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Appellate review of the trial court's denial of downward departure from a mandatory minimum sentence is only appropriate when the trial court misapprehends its discretion to depart or refuses to exercise that discretion as a matter of policy. OPEN HOUSE PARTY: §856.015 prohibits a person having control of any residence to allow an open house party to take place at the residence if any alcoholic beverage or drug is possessed or consumed at the residence by any minor where the person knows a out it and fails to take reasonable steps to prevent it. The State must show that the adult in charge stood by and did nothing. While not a model of clarity, "doing nothing" is not unconstitutionally vague. Davis v. State, 2D21-2987 (5/10/23)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: Defendant fails to preserve issue for appeal where he successfully objects to improper testimony by officer about a witness's credibility without requesting a curative instruction and, more importantly, requesting a mistrial. EVIDENCE-OPINION ON CREDIBILITY: Although there is no per se rule prohibiting an officer from testifying that a witness was uncooperative, the State's direct examination of the officer elicited the improper opinion that the State witness's testimony was credible and reliable, while the Defense witness's testimony should not be given much weight, is a clear invasion of the jury's exclusive province. Davis v. State, 2D21-2987 (5/10/23)

SCORESHEET ERROR: When a claim of scoresheet error is raised in a rule 3.800(a) motion that would be timely under rule 3.850(b), the court should treat a motion alleging scoresheet error as one filed under rule 3.850 and apply the would-have-been-imposed standard. MEDIATION: Court may not require SAO and Defendant to enter mediation with the end goal of resolving the case via a plea bargain. Compelling the State to participate in a plea-bargaining process against its wishes is an improper intrusion into the executive branch. Compulsory mediation is a square peg, and squeeze it as a trial court might, it does not fit in the round hole of criminal litigation. State v. Delancey, 3D23-367 (5/10/23)

JURISDICTION-PENDING APPEAL: Court lacks jurisdiction to enter a restitution order after filing of a notice of appeal. Court may memorialize an oral order but may not set a specified amount of restitution which had not been pronounced at sentencing. Court may re-enter the restitution orders on

APPEAL-EXTENSIONS OF TIME: "[T]his court has seen multiple instances where counsel attempts to indirectly receive an extension of time to file a brief by seeking supplementation of the record on appeal, usually after counsel has exhausted all their agreed extensions of time. We have also seen that 'no further extensions' orders by this court and resulting deadlines for compliance are being treated by some as mere suggestions that can be ignored with impunity. . .We struggle to think of a legitimate reason for why it took counsel four months to realize a single transcript was missing from the record on appeal. . .We also struggle to think of a reasonable explanation for counsel's decision to file motions for extension of time because of 'workload.' . . . Simply put, this is unacceptable." Personna v. State, 4D22-218 (5/10/23)

APPEAL-RECORD-TRANSCRIPT: Defendant is not entitled to an extension of time to supplement the record in order to obtain transcripts to determine whether an applellate issue exists. "We cannot overstate the point that rule 9.200(f) does not operate as an alternative to [the] process mandated by rule 2.535 for obtaining publicly funded transcripts, especially after the initial record on appeal has been transmitted. The trial court's approval of publicly funded transcription is an administrative matter. Debose v. State, D22-1490 (5/8/23)

APPEAL-RECORD (J. KELSEY, DISSENTING): The holding that there is no right to supplement the record with a transcript if appellate counsel has not first independently arranged for payment of the associated expense or obtained the transcript in some free manner is wrong because 1) it infringes on the Florida Supreme Court's exclusive rulemaking authority, 2) violates concepts of preservation and judicial restraint, 3) originates and pursues an unpreserved and tangential issue, and implicitly raises and leaves unresolved significant procedural questions such as the precedential effect of its holding and the practical steps necessary to implement it. The majority purports to create an exception to the right of supplementation under rule 9.200(f), making that right contingent on counsel's having already obtained and paid for requested transcripts in some way other than through the budget of the public defender handling the appeal. MEDICAL RECORDS: To obtain a subpoena for medical records, the State must present argument and evidence showing a nexus between those records and the criminal investigation. An unsworn motion unsupported by live testimony at the hearing is legally insufficient for issuance of as subpoena of medical records. Roberts v. CERTIORARI/PROHIBITION: A writ of certiorari, not a writ of prohibition, is a more appropriate mechanism to quash an order, here, for a subpoena of medical records. EXPUNCTION-FEDERAL: Federal district courts lack inherent equitable or constitutional power ancillary to their criminal jurisdiction to order the expungement of criminal records. USA v. Batmasion, No. 21-12800 (11th Cir. 5/3/23)

ANCILLARY JURISDICTION: Ancillary jurisdiction can be invoked for two limited purposes: (1) to permit disposition by a single court of claims that are, in varying respects and degrees, factually interdependent; and (2) to enable a court to function successfully, that is, to manage its proceedings, vindicate its authority, and effectuate its decrees. USA v. Batmasion, No. 21-12800 (11th Cir. 5/3/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: An appellate court does not substitute its judgment for that of the trial court on questions of the credibility of witnesses and the appropriate weight to be given the evidence at the hearing on a motion for post-conviction relief. Allen v, State, 1D22-643 (5/3/23)

PHOTO SHOW UP: The exclusionary rule in respect to Fourth Amendment violations is based upon the deterrence of illegal police or prosecutorial

EVIDENCE: Admission of a photo of the alleged victim as a small child is relevant to prove the element of the victim's age at the time of the charged offenses, and enabled the victim, who was an eighteen-year-old adult by the time of trial, to better describe, and the jury to better understand, her testimony about her age when the defendant committed the charged offenses. The admissibility of photographs does not depend upon whether the objects depicted could be described by testimony but whether they would be useful in enabling the witness to better describe and the jury to better understand the testimony concerned. APPEAL-PRESERVATION: Defendant's argument that his convictions for resisting arrest without violence and escape cannot stand because the arrest

FIREARM-JUVENILE-MANDATORY MINIMUM: §790.22(9)(a) imposes a fifteen-day minimum secure detention sanction for offenses that involve the use or possession of a firearm (beyond mere possession), regardless whether it was actuslly possessed by the Child. §790.22(5) requires a three-day maximum secure detention sentence for mere possession of a firearm. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: While Florida's Rules of Appellate Procedure do not contain a specific provision requiring prohibition petitions to be filed within a certain time period, appellate court may exercise its discretion and decline to adjudicate a petition that is not filed within a reasonable time from the rendition of the order being challenged. An unreasonable delay in filing a prohibition petition to challenge a Stand Your Ground order subjects the petition to denial as untimely. State v. Ogunwale, 23-707 (5/3/23)

SENTENCING-SCORESHEET-GROUPING: When determining the combined offense level where there are multiple groups of sex abuse victims, the Court must determine the number of units by counting the highest offense level as one unit, then count any offense levels one to four levels less serious than the highest offense as one unit and any offense levels five to eight levels less serious as one-half unit. Any count group that is nine or more levels less serious than the count group with the highest offense level is disregarded. Where the number of units is more than five, five levels should be added to the highest offense level. USA v. Hamilton, No. 21-14266 (11th Cir. 5/2/23)

SENTENCING-REASONS-LIFETIME PROBATION: If a recommended sentencing range exceeds 24 months, Court must state in open court the reasons for imposing its sentence at a particular point within the range. The district court is not required to state on the record that it has explicitly considered each of the §3553(a) factors. A separate explanation is not required to explain the length of probation. APRIL 2023

DEATH PENALTY-DUE PROCESS: Defendant's claim that a compressed time schedule to challenge the death warrant, in light of certain circumstances in this case (Holy Week, Passover, and Ramadan; co-counsel being ill; and the presence of another inmateon Death Watch) rendered litigation too arduous for counsel and thus a violation of Due Process fails. "Indeed, post-warrant litigation is arduous, even without such circumstances. Yet none of the obstacles . . .resulted in a denial of due process." Barwick v. State, SC2023-531 (4/28/23) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/867249/opinion/SC2023-0531.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-EFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE OF COUNSEL: "[T]he 'quality representation' referenced in section 27.711(12) does not create a right to effective assistance of postconviction counsel." Barwick v. DEATH PENALTY-CRUEL AND UNUSUAL: Neither the age of the Defendant at the time of the offense, nor the combination of a young age with brain damage and a mental and emotional age of less than eighteen years, means that his execution would offend the evolving standards of decency, serve no legitimate penological goal, or violate the Eighth and Fourteenth Amendments. Barwick v. State, SC2023-531 (4/28/23) https://supremecourt.flcourts.gov/content/download/867249/opinion/SC2023-0531.pdf

CRUEL OR UNUSUAL PUNISHMENT: The conformity clause of article I, §17 of the Florida Constitution provides that the prohibition against cruel and unusual punishment in Florida shall beconstrued in conformity with decisions of the United States Supreme Court's interpretation of the Eighth Amendment. This means that the Supreme Court's interpretation of the Eighth Amendment is both the floor and the ceiling for protection from cruel and unusual punishment in Florida. Barwick v. STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT-MIRANDA: Question certified. Where a defendant initially invoked his Fifth Amendment Miranda rights butsubsequently reinitiates contact with law enforcement, does law enforcement automatically violate those rights by generally reminding defendant of his rights rather than fully re-Mirandizing the defendant? POST CONVICTION RELIEF-PLEA OFFER: Defendant is entitled to hesring on clsim thast counsel was ineffective for failing to convey plea offer where he alleges that (1) he would have accepted the more favorable offers, (2) the State would not have withdrawn the offers, and (3) the court would have accepted a plea involving one of the more favorable offers. APPEAL-MOOTNESS: The issue of whether a minor defendant charged with first degree murder, ineligible for the death penalty because of his age, is entitled to a twelve person jury is rendered moot by his guilty plea. "Petitioner cannot show that he will be materially injured by the size of a hypothetical jury that will never be empaneled." Fucci v. State, 5D23-749 (4/28/23)

REPRESENTED DEFENDANT: If a petition clearly indicates that the petitioner is represented by counsel in the pending criminal proceeding, and the petitioner does not unequivocally seek to discharge counsel in that proceeding by way of the petition, the petition will be dismissed as unauthorized. DOUBLE JEOPARDY-KIDNAPPING/AGGRAVATED ASSAULT: Double jeopardy does not prohibit dual convictions for kidnapping with a weapon and aggravated assault. Double jeopardy analysis requires an examination of the elements of the charges, not a review of the factual underpinnings of each specific case. Rojas v. State, 6D23-1231 (4/28/23)

DEATH PENALTY-CLEMENCY: A death-row prisoner's life interest secured by the Due Process Clause necessitates that some minimal procedural safeguards apply to clemency proceedings. The key word is minimal. A clemency board's compliance with state laws or procedures is not part of the minimal procedural safeguards protected by the Due Process

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202311277.Ord.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY: Florida's clemency process for death penalty cases does not violate the Due Process Clause, notwithstanding that there are no standards governing clemency decisions. "[W]e cannot agree that the Due Process Clause requires the State to provide any such standards." Barwick v. Governor of Florida. No. 23-11277-P (11th Cir. 4/26/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202311277.Ord.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-STAY OF EXECUTION: A stay of execution of a death penalty may be granted only where the prisoner establishes that (1) he has a substantial likelihood of success on the merits, (2) he will suffer irreparable injury unless the injunction issues, (3) the injunction would not substantially harm the other litigant, and (4) the injunction would not be adverse to the public interest. VOTING RIGHTS: Restiction of felons' voting rights in Alabama was enacted specifically to discriminate against and disenfranchise black Alabamians/to establish white supremacy, but the taint has since been dissipated by legislative re-enactment. "While Alabama once used the moral turpitude standard as part of a racially discriminatory disenfranchisement scheme, it is not forever barred from disenfranchising individuals convicted of felonies involving moral turpitude." Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)

MORAL TURPITUDE: Alabama senator: "The way I understand it, there is just one or two felonies that don't include moral turpitude. I think stealing whiskey and transporting are about the only two." Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)

PRIOR-PANEL-PRECEDENT RULE: The prior-panel-precedent rule requires subsequent panels of the court to follow the precedent of the first panel to address the relevant issue, unless and until the first panel's holding is overruled by the Court sitting en banc or by the Supreme Court, even when the later panel is convinced the earlier panel is wrong. DISENFRANCHISEMENT: Florida's felon disenfranchisement law is among the most restrictive in the nation. Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110034.pdf

DICTA: Dicta is a statement that neither constitutes the holding of a case, nor arises from a part of the opinion that is necessary to the holding of the case. Any case law characterizing disenfranchisement as punishment is dicta, except one case, but that case is no longer good law. Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110034.pdf

VOTING-DISENFRANCHISEMENT (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "Deceiving an elector in preparation of her ballot. Altering another person's ballot. Failing to count legally cast absentee votes. Illegally voting more than once in an election (second violation). Willfully and intentionally signing the name of another elector in a poll book.5 Bribery of public servants. And perjury. Perhaps this recitation sounds like a list of felonies that would disqualify an Alabamian from voting under. . .Alabama's constitution—Alabama's felon-disenfranchisement provision. Nope. Those convicted of any of these voting-fraudrelated felonies are A-okay, good to go when it comes to voting. . ."[J]ust what was Alabama trying to accomplish with its felon-disenfranchisement provision?. . .So maybe when Alabama amended its felon-disenfranchisement provision in 1996. . .it sought to cleanse the taint of racism from the provision's history? Nope. We can't say that." Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)

FELON-DISENFRANCHISEMENT (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "If Alabama's purpose was 'strictly housekeeping,' Alabama needs a new housekeeper. When Alabama amended its felon-disenfranchisement provision to preclude those convicted of felonies of moral turpitude from voting, it left felonies strewn all over without identifying whether they went into or outside the 'moral turpitude' closet. In fact, Alabama had no idea what was in its closet and even less of an idea about what it wanted to put there." Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110034.pdf

EQUAL PROTECTION CLAUSE (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "But our Equal Protection Clause precedent requires us to ignore all these facts. Rather, we simply ask whether the amended version of the law that was originally enacted for discriminatory reasons went through both chambers of the legislature and was properly effected into law. . .What kind of test is that? None at all.". . .[I]f a federal court concludes. . .that a law violates the Equal Protection Clause, and that law is later reenacted, why should that law that continues to have a disparate impact get a free pass. . .? That makes no sense." Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)

DISENFRANCHISEMENT-RACIAL (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): History of racial disenfranchisement summarized. Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)

EQUAL PROTECTION-DISENFRANCHISEMENT (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "[O]ur standard—which doesn't require the legislature to state a nondiscriminatory basis for the new law. . .—lays the bar reenactments must clear flat on the floor. Any law can shuffle right over it so long as legislators are not obtuse enough to state out loud any discriminatory intentions. . .If judicial review is to be more than an empty ritual, it must demand something better than the explanation offered for the action taken in this case." Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110034.pdf

DISENFRANCHISEMENT (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "Alabama exempts from its felon-disenfranchisement provision those convicted of election-related fraud—which goes to the heart of the collective honor of our polis. Let's just say it: that's really odd." Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110034.pdf

MORAL TURPITUDE-DEFINITION (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "As Justice Robert Jackson pointed out seven decades ago, the phrase was 'not one which has settled significance from being words of art in the profession. If we go to the dictionaries, the last resort of the baffled judge, we learn little except that the expression is redundant, for turpitude alone means moral wickedness or depravity and moral turpitude seems to mean little more than morally immoral.'" Thompson v. State of Alabama, No. 21-10034 (11th Cir. 4/26/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110034.pdf

VOTING: "The Majority Opinion concludes that losing the ability to vote is more like occupational disbarment than imprisonment. . .That conclusion defies logic. . .[V]oting is a fundamental right. . . Because voting is a fundamental right and practicing a particular profession is not, losing the right to vote more closely resembles imprisonment thanlosing the right to practice a particular profession." BAIL: At first appearance, Judge lacks jurisdiction to revoke bond on a separate case for which Defendant had already been released on bond. No judge or court of equal or inferior jurisdiction may modify or set a condition of release, unless the judge (A) imposed the conditions of bail or set the amount of bond required; (B) is the chief judge of the circuit in which the defendant is to be tried; (C) has been assigned to preside over the criminal trial of the defendant; or (D) is the first appearance judge and was authorized by the judge initially setting or denying bail to modify or set conditions of release. JOA-CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE: The circumstantial evidence standard of review no longer exists; review is now limited to whether the State presented competent, substantial evidence to support the jury's verdict, regardless of whether the State presented only purely circumstantial evidence of guilt. Garcia v. State, 3D15-2815 (4/26/23)

STACKING OF INFERENCES: Question certified as to the continued viability of the general prohibition against the pyramiding of inferences in light of the abandonment of the special standard of appellate review applied in purely circumstantial evidence cases. Garcia v. State, 3D15-2815 (4/26/23)

JOA-HOMICIDE-CORPUS DELICTI: A person's abrupt unexplained disappearance is sufficient circumstantial evidence that a missing person has died, but the disappearance coupled with Defendant's spending of the Victim's money and accessing her accounts does not prove that he killed her. Inferences are improperly pyramided. "Even in jurisdictions where the 'established fact' exception has been adopted, for the exception to apply – such that inferences may be pyramided upon the 'established fact' inference – the evidence must establish, beyond any reasonable doubt, that no other inference is reasonable." Garcia v. State, 3D15-2815 (4/26/23)

PYRAMIDING OF INFERENCES: An impermissible pyramiding of inferences occurs where at least two inferences in regard to the existence of a criminal act must be drawn from the evidence and then stacked to prove the crime charged; in that scenario, the evidence lacks the conclusive nature to support a conviction." Garcia v. State, 3D15-2815 (4/26/23)

PYRAMIDING OF INFERENCES: Where victim's body was never found, there was no crime scene or other evidence to establish the location, cause or manner of her death, there was no murder weapon, no eyewitness to a murder, and no confession, bits and pieces of evidence are insufficient to compel the conclusion that Defendant killed her. Garcia v. State, 3D15-2815 (4/26/23)

CONSCIOUSNESS OF GUILT; Defendant's inconsistent and untruthful statements to the police about why he was driving Victm's car and how he obtained her money is substantive evidence of Mr. Garcia's consciousness of guilt for committing theft, but not for killing her. NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE-RECANTATION: Defendant is not entiled to a new trial where witness recanted testimony that the victim was unarmed where Defendant had testified that he never saw a gun. Pickett v. State, 3D22-717 (4/26/23)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION-VOP-VFOSC: If a probationer qualifies as a VFOSC and is found to have violated a non-monetary condition of probation, Court must make written findings as to whether the probationer poses a danger to the community, but issue is not preserved if not raised in trial court. INTERFERENCE WITH CUSTODY: The crime of interference wtih custody extends to parents of a child. "The statute is hardly a model of clarity and contains no definition section," but as there is no explicit parental exemption, any person, including a parent, falls within the ambit of the statute. Vanegas v. State, 3D23-682 (4/26/23)

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT-CUSTODIAL INTERROGATION: APPEAL-REVIEW-DEFERENCE: When a videotape or audio recording is part of the record on appeal, the trial court is in no better position to evaluate that evidence than the appellate court. To the extent that the trial court's factual findings are based on the bodycam video recording, appellate court applies a less deferential standard of review. State v. Blocker, 4D22-1113 (4/26/23)

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT-MIRANDA-DUI: Where deputy had not been involved in the crash investigation, he was not required to read Miranda before questioning Defendant about DUI. Defendant was not in custody. State v. Blocker, 4D22-1113 (4/26/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/867059/opinion/221113_DC13_04262023_100236_i.pdf

DELAYED SURRENDER: Where court sentenced Defendant to 5 years in prison, with a promise to mitigate the sentence to 30 months if Defendant timely surrendered after a furlough–he didn't–Court erred in refusing a hearing under R. 3.850 on why he was late (a car accident). Where timely appearance for sentencing is made a condition of a plea agreement, a non-willful failure to appear will not vitiate the agreement and permit the trial court to impose some greater sentence. Court must make a factual determination as to whether a defendant's failure to appear at sentencing was willful, prior to ruling on whether said absence violated a negotiated plea agreement. Ali v. State, 4D22-3065 (4/26/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/867062/opinion/223065_DC13_04262023_101344_i.pdf

AGGRAVATED ASSAULT-MENS REA: Assault cannot be committed in Florida with merely a mens rea of recklessness. MISTRIAL-NOLLE PROSSED CHARGE: Where original information charged three counts, including carrying a concealed firearm, and the jury, during voir dire was advised of and questioned about that charge, which was then nolle prossed, a mistrial was required. The constitutional right to a trial by an impartial jury is lost when there is a possibility that jurors are unfairly prejudiced by the knowledge of additional charges against a defendant other than those being tried. Any efforts by the trial court to "unring the bell" would have been futile. Thompson v. State, 5D22-781 (4/21/23)

§1983-DNA TESTING-STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS: The statute of limitations for a §1983 claim to compel DNA testing to challenge a state court conviction is two years, beginning. when the state litigation ended, i.e., when the appellate court denied rehearing of the motion, not from the state trial court's denial of a plaintiff 's motion for DNA testing (or even after the appeal before the plaintiff 's rehearing proceedings). WARRANT-PROBABLE CAUSE-STALENESS: Thirty days is a rule of thumb to determine staleness, and "the passage of time is an important consideration in the probable cause analysis. But we caution against an analysis dependent exclusively on timeliness. No arbitrary timeline (i.e., thirty, sixty, or ninety days) can replace a thorough, case specific probable cause inquiry." 90 day delay in seeking a search warrant, with other circumstances, is sufficient. Malden v. State, 1D21-1406 (4/19/23)

PROBABLE CAUSE: The determination of probable cause simply asks whether a reasonably prudent person would think the allegation probable. That the inquiry lacks specificity is by design. Probable cause is incapable of precise definition or quantification into percentages because it deals with probabilities and depends on the totality of the circumstances. Probable cause is not rigid nor is it a standard that is particularly difficult to meet—probable cause is a relatively low legal burden, more than a bare suspicion but less than evidence that would justify a conviction. By its nature, it does not include exacting time limits. It is no math equation; it is an exercise of judgment. Malden v. State, 1D21-1406 (4/19/23)

APPEAL-SUPPRESSION-DISPOSITIVENESS: A defendant may not appeal a judgment or sentence following a guilty or no-contest plea without expressly reserving the right to appeal a legally dispositive issue. "Dispositive" means that the defendant will not face further prosecution if he or she prevails on appeal. The State gives up its ability to prosecute a crime when it stipulates to dispositiveness. JUVENILE-SENTENCING: Court may not impose a lower restrictiveness level than the one recommended by DJJ absent sufficient reasons to support its decision to disregard DJJ's recommended disposition. In order for a juvenile court to properly explain why one restrictiveness level is more appropriate than the one recommended, it must (1) articulate an understanding of the respective characteristics of the opposing restrictiveness levels and (2) explain why one level is better. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-GSR: Defendant is entitled to hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for failure to have a gunshot residue kit testing. Court erred in denying claim as speculative. RECANTATION-FALSIFIED REPORTS: Officer charged with falsifying official reports to avoid punishment for failure to follow office procedures is not entitled to the defense of recantation where he recanted the false information contained in their reports only after suspecting he'd be found out. Melendez v. State, 3D22-885 (4/19/23)

JUROR INTERVIEW: Defendant is not entitled to interview a juror who called the judge's chambers to express his regret over the verdict but did not indicate any wrongdoing. Juror interviews are not permissible unless the moving party has made sworn allegations that, if true, would require the court to order a new trial because the alleged error was so fundamental and prejudicial as to vitiate the entire proceedings. Florida Law absolutely forbids any judicial inquiry into emotions, mental processes, or mistaken beliefs of jurors. The mere remorse of a juror is insufficient to warrant an intrusion into the jury's deliberations. Ibar v. State. 4D19-1956 (4/19/23)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant may not challenge as an illegal sentence the failure of the Court to impose a minimum mandatory sentence. Though the plain language of R. 3.800(a) does not expressly prohibit

JURISDICTION-EXTRA-TERRITORIALITY-TRANSPORTING ALIENS: Statute prohibiting transporting alien for hire applies extraterritorially. The presumption against extraterritoriality does not apply to criminal statutes which are not logically dependent on their locality for the government's jurisdiction. JURISDICTION-INTERNATIONAL LAW: Pursuant to the law of nations, a nation may exercise criminal jurisdiction under five general principles: (1) the "objective" territorial, (2) the national, (3) the protective, (4) the universal, and (5) the passive personality. STANDING-IMMIGRATION: Pro-immigrant groups lack standing to challenge statute requiring local officials to cooperate with federal immigration authorities to surrnder undocumented aliens. FACTS/OPINION (J. Put another way, an objective statement is either true or false, and the speaker's motive in offering it is irrelevant to the statement's veracity. . . An objective statement can also be offered with a racist motive. But the motive of a speaker cannot undermine or taint the truth of an objective statement." City of South Miami v. TWELVE PERSON JURY: "We reject without further discussion Brown's unpreserved and nearly frivolous contention (based on a misleading characterization of Ramos v. KIDNAPPING: Defendant is properly convicted of kidnapping for forcing the three victims back into the restaurant when they were in the process of leaving. The Faison test for kidnapping requires the State to show that the defendant moved or confined the victim in a way that: (1) is not slight, inconsequential and merely incidental to the other crime; (2) is not of the kind inherent in the nature of the other crime" and (3) has some significance independent of the other crime by making the other crime substantially easier to commit or by substantially lowering the risk of detection. VOP-INDIGENCY: Failure to complete a mental health evaluation s an insufficient basis for a VOP where Defendant could not pay for it due to other financial obligations–child support for four children, rent, court costs, etc. When factors beyond a defendant's control cause his non-compliance, the violation is not willful. TWELVE PERSON JURY-MINOR: Defendant, who as a minor is not eligible for the death penalty, is not entitled to a twelve person jury. Chavers v. State, No. 1D22-2207 (4/12/23)

SIX PERSON JURY: Six person juries remain lawful for non-capital cases. "We do not pretend to be able to divine precisely what the word 'jury' imported to the Framers, the First Congress, or the States in 1789. It may well be that the usual expectation was that the jury would consist of 12, and that hence, the most likely conclusion to be drawn is simply that little thought was actually given to the specific question we face today. But there is absolutely no indication in 'the intent of the Framers' of an explicit decision to equate the constitutional and common-law characteristics of the jury. . .Williams was correctly decided and remains controlling precedent today." Chavers v. State, No. 1D22-2207 (4/12/23)

REVOCATION OF BOND: §907.041(4)(c)7 permits a trial court to order pretrial detention when the defendant has violated a condition of pretrial release and the violation, in the discretion of the court, supports a finding that no conditions of release can reasonably protect the community. Court must make findings of fact. Peterson v. McNeil, No. 1D23-0119 (4/12/23)

REVOCATION OF BOND: Defendant on bond for DUI manslaughter who violates his no-alcohol condition of release may be held without bond. Peterson v. McNeil, No. 1D23-0119 (4/12/23)

PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: Alleyne/Apprendi do not requiefe a jury finding as to the date of a defendant's release from prison for a prior offense. The relevant factor for a prison releasee reoffender sentencing implicates no element of the charged offense and requires only a mechanical calculation or ministerial determination by the judge of the date of a defendant's release from prison for a prior conviction. A defendant's release date from prison derives directly from a prior conviction and sentence. Accordingly, Florida's prison releasee reoffender statute permissibly empowers a judge, not a jury, to make a release date. Ryland v. State, 3D22-1983 (4/12/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant may not assert in 2023 via habeas corpus a claim that appellate counsel was ineffective for a conviction which became final in 1997. In no case shall a petition alleging ineffective assistance of appellate counsel on direct review be filed more than 4 years after the judgment and sentence become final on direct review. Defendant may be correct that his dual convictions for armed robbery with a firearm and unlawful possession of the same firearm during the commission of that armed robbery violate double jeopardy, but because no sentence was imposed on that count, there is no cognizable claim for relief. Robinson v. State, 3D23-492 (4/12/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-BRADY: Brady prohibits suppression by the prosecution of evidence favorable to an accused where the evidence is material either to guilt or to punishment, irrespective of the good faith or bad faith of the prosecution, and extends to impeachment evidence. The individual prosecutor has a duty to learn of any favorable evidence known to the others acting on the government's behalf in the case, including the police. Evidence that fortifies the defense's case or has impeachment value is favorable. Connolly v. State, 3D21-1111 (4/12/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-BRADY: Defendant is not entitled to relief where the affidavit from a non-testifying but known witness is conclusory in its assertion that Defendant is innocent, and is contradicted and contradictory. Either it is not Brady evidence or it refers to broadly to otherwise known or discernable matters. Connolly v. State, 3D21-1111 (4/12/23)

VOP-EXILE-ABSCONSION: Where probation condition required Defendant to leave and not return to Monroe County, Defendsnt's move from Broward County to South Carolina without fully completing transfer process may support revocation. Get out of county does not mean get out of state. Altman v. State, 3D21-1186 (4/12/23)

VOP-VINDICTIVENESS: Court may call back Defendant before beginning the next case to change the concurrent sentences to consecutive where Defendant is heard saying "[g]ood luck to you, bitch" as he walked away from the camera. Altman v. State, 3D21-1186 (4/12/23)

SUNSHINE LAW: The Sunshine Law is not unconstitutionally vague due to undefined terms in the statute, namely "meeting" and "reasonable notice." Gilliams v. State, 4D21-2667 (4/12/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/865874/opinion/212667_DC08_04122023_100136_i.pdf

DEFINITION-"MEETING": The definition of the word "meeting" in the jury instruction for a criminal violation of the Sunshine Law, which includes the language "through wire or electronic means," is proper, notwithstanding the dictionary definition implies personal contact. Meetings which do not occur in person can potentially violate the Sunshine Law. Gilliams v. State, 4D21-2667 (4/12/23)

PERJURY: The questions posed to elicit perjured testimony must be asked with the appropriate specificity necessary to result in an equally specific statement of fact. JOA for is required where Defendant is charged with falsely swearing that he had only one phone conversation with a particular person, the phone records showed multiple calls, but the lengths of the calls are consistent with no answers or voice mails. Gilliams v. State, 4D21-2667 (4/12/23)

SUNSHINE LAW (J. KLINGENSMITH, CONCURENCE): "I think it is important. . .to issue a clarion call to the hundreds of Florida public officials who are subject to the Florida Sunshine Law. . .Whether two or more officials privately discuss, in any manner whatsoever, a foreseeable issue of any magnitude, inside the other's office or at a coffee shop or in the spectator audience of a child's soccer match or at a statewide education conference or by quick text or whether they do so through surrogates (such as aides, friends, relatives, other government officials) or whether, as in this case, they decide to spontaneously convene an unannounced rally or meeting, so long as two or more are involved, these are all distinctions without a difference. And every individual unauthorized private discussion between two or more officials along the way constitutes an individual statutory crime. . .[T]here is no such thing as an 'informal' conference or 'unofficial"'caucus or pass-you-in-the-hallway information gathering (or sharing) by two or more government officials subject to the Sunshine Law. Gilliams v. State, 4D21-2667 (4/12/23)

SUNSHINE LAW: Sunshine Law is not unconstitutionally vague for failing to define certain phrases ("reasonable notice" and "open to the public at all times"). Parris v. State, 4D21-2682 (4/12/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/865875/opinion/212682_DC08_04122023_095945_i.pdf

DEFINITION- "REASONABLE": "Reasonable" is defined, in part, as "fair and sensible" and "as much as is appropriate or fair in a particular situation." Parris v. State, 4D21-2682 (4/12/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/865875/opinion/212682_DC08_04122023_095945_i.pdf

DEFINITION- "NOTICE": "Notice" is defined, in part, as "information or warning that something is going to happen," "a sheet or placard put on display to give information," and "a small announcement or advertisement published in a newspaper." Parris v. State, 4D21-2682 (4/12/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/865875/opinion/212682_DC08_04122023_095945_i.pdf

DEFINITION-"OPEN": The word "open" is defined, in part, as "exposed to view or attack; not covered or protected," "admitting customers or visitors; available for business," "accessible or available," "frank and communicative," and "not disguised or hidden." Parris v. State, 4D21-2682 (4/12/23)

https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/865875/opinion/212682_DC08_04122023_095945_i.pdf

DEFINITION-"PUBLIC": "Public" means "of, relating to, or affecting the people as an organized community; a place accessible or visible to all members of the community; an organized body of people: community, nation; a group of people distinguished by common interests or characteristics." Parris v. State, 4D21-2682 (4/12/23)

DEFINITION-"OPEN TO THE PUBLIC": The phrase "open to the public" most reasonably means that meetings must be properly noticed and reasonably accessible to the public, not that the public has the right to be heard at such meetings. Parris v. State, 4D21-2682 (4/12/23)

PERJURY: A statement regarding a person's recollection is not an assertion of empirical fact that can support a perjury conviction. Parris v. State, 4D21-2682 (4/12/23)

PERJURY-MATERIALITY: Materiality' is not an element of the crime of perjury in Florida but is a threshold issue that a court must determine as a matter of law prior to trial. To be material, statements must be germane to the inquiry, and have a bearing on a determination in the underlying case. Parris v. State, 4D21-2682 (4/12/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-FACTUAL BASIS-TRAFFICKING: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for advising him to plea in the absence of a factual basis for conspiracy to traffic in hydromorphone where the prescription on the date in the information was only 1.2 grams. Because the indictment limits the conspiracy to traffic offense to one date and the Bill of Particulars lists only the victim's name for that date, the factual basis for trafficking is not there. Obermeyer v. State. 4D22-487 (4/12/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-FACTUAL BASIS-SECOND DEGREE MURDER: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for advising him to plea in the absence of a factual basis for second degree murder, predicated on the unsupported underlying felony offense of conspiracy to traffic in hydromorphone. Proof that a defendant committed the underlying felony is required even in the context of a plea. "We also question whether the conspiracy offense could have been used as the predicate felony even if it did have a factual basis." Conspiracy is not a predicate offense. Obermeyer v. State. 4D22-487 (4/12/23)

ARGUMENT: State's use in closing argument of a placard with the phrase "motive plus opportunity is not reasonable doubt," referring to the accuser's motive and opportunity to plant evidence, is not improper. Sanon v. State, 4D22-713 (4/12/23)

HUMAN TRAFFICKING: Defendant who engages the sexual services of an underaged girl is guilty of human trafficking, not merely solicitation of prostitution. The Legislature specifically directed that prostitution of minors be prosecuted under the human trafficking statutes and not as misdemeanors. "[P]eople who purchase others for sex can be considered human traffickers themselves." Matos v. State, 4D22-775 (4/12/23)

DEFINITION-EXPLOIT: The verb exploit meams "to make use of meanly or unfairly for one's advantage." The sexual exploitation of a child includes "the act of a child offering to engage in or engaging in prostitution." Matos v. State, 4D22-775 (4/12/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Very minor modifications to the FBI protocol in making a DNA identification (four probes instead of five to eight) would not have made a difference to the jury. Taylor v. Sec'y, Fla. DOC, No. 21-12883 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112883.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-EXPERT: Trial counsel was not ineffective for failing to request a Frye hearing to challenge both the accuracy of the DNA analysis and the procedure. The DNA likely would have been admitted anyway, and the evidence of guilt independent of DNA evidence was ample. Taylor v. Sec'y, Fla. DOC, No. 21-12883 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112883.pdf

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT: Interrogation includes any words or actions on the part of the police (other than those normally attendant to arrest and custody) that the police should know are reasonably likely to elicit an incriminating response from the suspect. The question "Why?", in response to Defendant's question about when thr DNA results would be back, is not an interrogation. Taylor v. Sec'y, Fla. DOC, No. 21-12883 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112883.pdf

BRIBERY-INSTRUCTION-INVITED ERROR: Defendant is properly convicted of bribery when he agreed to the pattern jury instruction which referenced the three illustrative examples mentioned in McDonnell, i.e., something similar to a lawsuit before a court, a determination before an agency, or a hearing before a committee regardless of the merits (or demerits) of the instruction. USA v. Burnette, No. 21-13990 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

BRIBERY: The federal bribery statute's operative provision makes it unlawful for anyone to "corruptly give, offer or promise anything of value to any public official with intent to influence any official act. The term "official act" means any decision or action on any question, matter, cause, suit, proceeding or controversy, which may at any time be pending, or which may by law be brought before any public official, in such official's official capacity, or in such official's place of trust or profit. The meaning of the term "official act" does not extend to every meeting, call, or event arranged by a public official. In order to implicate the bribery statute's prohibition, a public official must either engage or agree to engage in (1) a sufficiently serious act (2) concerning a sufficiently serious and concrete matter. USA v. Burnette, No. 21-13990 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

INVITED ERROR: When a party agrees with a court's proposed instructions, the doctrine of invited error applies. A party may not challenge as error a ruling that he invited. Defendant invited error, if any, by agreeing to the official-act charge instruction for bribery which referenced the three illustrative examples mentioned in McDonnell, i.e., something similar to a lawsuit before a court, a determination before an agency, or a hearing before a committee. USA v. Burnette, No. 21-13990 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

INVITED ERROR: Invited errors are reviewed narrowly, so as to preserve the opportunity for appellate review in close cases. The invited-error bar is triggered only by unambiguous statements or representations. "And to that end, we have drawn some pretty fine lines distinguishing between invited and merely-unobjected-to errors in jury instructions." USA v. Burnette, No. 21-13990 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

BRIBERY: There can be two types of bribery–the "as-the-opportunities-arise" theory of bribery (when a person bribes an individual or entity in exchange for a continuing course of conduct) and the "retainer theory of bribery, "a fraternal (if not quite identical) twin of the as-the-opportunities-arise theory." USA v. Burnette, No. 21-13990 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113990.pdf

BRIBERY: All that matters is that, in exchange for something of value, the official agreed to perform an act concerning a sufficiently serious and concrete matter. Execution is immaterial. Liability is not limited by the odds of success of the quo at issue. USA v. Burnette, No. 21-13990 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

EVIDENCE-IMPEACHMENT: Court might have erred in excluding cross-examination of accomplice that he had bought the bribed official a private dance and oral sex at a strip club (accomplice admitted the lap dance but denied the sex), but the ruling is within his discretion. The absolute prohibition on extrinsic evidence applies only when the sole reason for proffering the evidence is to attack or support the witness' character for truthfulness. "[T]he line between evidence used to impeach a witness on the ground that he is biased or lacks credibility and evidence presented to show that he has a tendency to lie more generally is a fine (and hazy) one. . .And for that reason, we have been reluctant to hold that district courts have abused their discretion in deciding Rule 608(b) issues. USA v. Burnette, No. 21-13990 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

EVIDENCE: Court did not abuse discretion in excluding evidence of disputed sexual favors accorded a councilman in bribery case (lap dance and fellatio) on grounds of confusion of issues and fear of a "sideshow mini-trial." USA v. Burnette, No. 21-13990 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113990.pdf

FALSE STATEMENT: If a question is so vague as to be fundamentally ambiguous, the answers associated with it are insufficient as a matter of law to support a false-statements conviction. But if a question is only arguably ambiguous and an answer would be true on one construction of the question but false on another, the defendant's understanding of the question is a matter for the jury to decide. Absent any fundamental ambiguity, the jury's general verdict must stand if the evidence is sufficient to support a conviction based on any of the statements made, even in response to a question that might have been arguably ambiguous. USA v. Burnette, No. 21-13990 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113990.pdf

ambiguous." USA v. Burnette, No. 21-13990 (11th Cir. 4/11/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113990.pdf

BRIBERY (J. JORDAN, CONCURRING): "[W]e think it's fair to say that Burnette views McDonnell as a sea-change, while the government views it as a ripple. As is often the case, the truth, we think, lies somewhere in between. . .Our view is that McDonnell is best understood as having tweaked, but not scrapped, the as-the-opportunities-arise and retainer theories. . . Those of us on what the Constitution calls 'inferior courts,'. . .would do well to tread lightly and await further direction from our bosses before concluding that McDonnell revolutionized bribery law. RULES-AMENDMENT-JUVENILE-WITNESS STATEMENTS: On stipulation of the parties and the consent of the witness, the statement of any witness may be taken by telephone in lieu of the deposition of the witness. In such case, the witness need not be under oath. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-DEATH PENALTY: Counsel was not ineffective for not presenting at the penalty phase evidence that the Defendant sexually forced himself on a six-year-old boy, had incestuous relationships and sexual deviancy, including bestiality, attempted to sexually force himself on his former girlfriend, admitted to loving to kill and having killed cats. the jury may have considered all this as additional aggravation. Gaskin v. State, SC2023-415 (4/6/23)

child is the object of sexual desire "uses" that child to engage in sexually explicit conduct for purposes of 18 U.S.C. §2251(a). An offender "uses" a minor when the minor's presence is the object and focal point of the offender's sexual desire as the offender, not the minor, engages in the sexually explicit conduct. A minor must be involved in the offender's sexually explicit conduct, but the minor need not necessarily be actively engaging in his or her own sexually explicit conduct. USA v. NOSCITUR A SOCIIS: Under the canon of noscitur a sociis, " word is known by the company it keeps. Put differently, noscitur a sociis counsels that a word is given more precise content by the neighboring words with which it is associated. USA v. Dawson, No. 21-11425 (11th Cir. 4/5/23)

SEVERANCE-FIREARM BY FELON: Where Defendant is charged with an offense involving a firearm and Possession of a Firearm by a felon, severance is not required. Bifurcation cuts the mustard, constitutionally speaking. The appropriate procedure in a bifurcated trial is to have the jury reconvene, be instructed that the fact that the defendant possessed a firearm had already been established by the verdict in the first phase, and to consider evidence that the defendant is a convicted felon. Pryor v. State, 2D22-563 (4/5/23)

POSSESSION OF FIREARM: The term "VCC" term is sufficientlyprejudicial that it should not be utilized in the jury's presence in a trial for possession of a firearm by a VCC. Pryor v. State, 2D22-563 (4/5/23)

POSSESSION OF FIREARM BY VCC: Juvenile convictions are predicate offenses for possession of a firearm by a violent career criminal. Escape from a prison (§944.40) is enumerated; escape from a juvenile secure detention or residential commitment facility (§39.061) is not. Pryor v. State, 2D22-563 (4/5/23)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: Although Defendant's juvenile escape conviction is not a predicate offense for VCC sentencing, the issue is not preserved where not specifically articulated. State's failure to prove all elements of a charged offense does not constitute fundamental error which may be raised for the first time on appeal. Defendant may seek collateral relief. Pryor v. State, 2D22-563 (4/5/23)

APPEAL-MOOTNESS: Court errs in dismissing a second tier petition for certiorari review of a DL suspension without making a capable-of-repetition-

PRETRIAL RELEASE-HOME CONFINEMENT: A district court may impose home confinement with electronic monitoring in two circumstances: First, as a special condition of probation or supervised release under 18 U.S.C. §3563(b)(19) or, second, to punish a supervised release violation under 18 U.S.C. §3583(e)(4), in either case only as an alternative to incarceration. USA v. Hall, No. 22-10230 (4/5/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202210230.pdf

PRETRIAL RELEASE-HOME CONFINEMENT: A district court may not sentence a defendant to home confinement for violating the terms of his supervised release if the district court has already sentenced the defendant to the statutory maximum period of imprisonment for that violation. Because the statutory maximum term of imprisonment for a class C felony upon revocation of supervised release is two years, a sentence of two years' imprisonment—the statutory maximum—followed by a one-year term of home confinement is unlawful. USA v. Hall, No. 22-10230 (4/5/23)

SUPERVISED RELEASE: Supervised release sentencing explained. If a defendant violates a condition of his supervised release, the district court may revoke the supervised release and impose a revised sentence, which for a class C felony may not exceed two years. Where Defendant had been sentenced to the statutory maximum term of incarceration of 2 years for his violation, the court may not impose an additional one year of home confinement as additional punishment. USA v. Hall, No. 22-10230 (4/5/23)

DEFINITION-"ALTERNATIVE": The word "alternative" is defined as "providing or being a choice between two or among more than two things," or "a choice limited to one of two or more possibilities, as of things, propositions, or courses of action, the selection of which precludes any other possibility." USA v. Hall, No. 22-10230 (4/5/23)

SENTENCE-VOP-MAXIMUM: Defendant who was originally sentenced to 180 days on two third degree felonies, upon a VOP, may not be sentenced to a general ten yesr sentenced. However, upon remand, the Court may restructure the sentences to accomplish its previously declared sentencing goal by changing concurrent terms to consecutive terms, as long as the new sentences are not vindictive. ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-PLEA WITHDRAWAL: Where a motion to withdraw plea is based on a claim of involuntariness due to ineffective assistance of counsel, conflict-free counsel must be appointed. Court is required to appoint conflict-free counsel if an adversary relationship exists and the defendant's allegations are not conclusively refuted by the record. Walker v. State, 4D22-349 (4/5/23)

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL: In moving for a judgment of acquittal, a defendant admits not only the facts stated in the evidence adduced, but also admits every conclusion favorable to the adverse party that a jury might fairly and reasonably infer from the evidence. However, under this standard, the State is required to prove each and every element of the offense charged beyond a reasonable doubt, and when the State fails to meet this burden, a judgment of acquittal should be granted. Dubois v. State, 6D23-185 (3/31/23)

CONTRACTING WITHOUT A LICENSE: Three requirements must be satisfied in order for a person to be a "contractor." First, the individual must construct, repair, alter, remodel, add to, demolish, subtract from or improve a building or structure for others or for resale to others, or undertake or submit a bid to do so. Second, the individual must engage in such conduct for compensation. Third, the individual who engages in such conduct must have a job scope that is substantially similar to one of the job scopes described in §489.105(3). Dubois v. State, 6D23-185 (3/31/23)

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL-CONTRACTING WITHOUT A LICENSE: Defendant who contracted to install an electrical generator is entitled to a JOA where no evidence suggested she contracted to do more than deliver and plug in the generator without otherwise modifying the home. Simply plugging a generator into a home, even if the generator itself requires substantial work or expertise to set up, may not constitute "adding to" or "altering" the home if the generator could simply be unplugged and removed from the home. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-SLEEPING JUROR: Hearing is required on claim that failed to dismiss sleeping juror. EVIDENCE-OPINION: Questioning of the officers about who they viewed as the "aggressor" improperly invaded the province of the jury by soliciting witnesses' opinions about the merits of Defendant's self-defense claim, and ultimately his guilt or innocence. PROSECUTORIAL MISCONDUCT-ARGUMENT: Where the defendant did not testify in a manner inconsistent with his prior silence, comments on a defendant's pre-arrest, pre-Miranda1 exercise of their right to remain silent

ARGUMENT-BOLSTERING: Description of the officers' investigation and arrest as "proper" is itself improper, serving only to bolster the officers' testimony by vouching for their credibility. Improper bolstering occurs when the State places the prestige of the government behind the witness or indicates that information not presented to the jury supports the witness's testimony. Zangroniz v. State, 3D22-1592 (3/29/23)

ARGUMENT-MISREPRESENTATION: Misrepresenting facts in evidence can amount to substantial error (here, that Defendant "was walking away" when in fact he only exited the house during the argument before the fight) because doing so may profoundly impress a jury and may have a significant impact on the jury's deliberations. Zangroniz v. State, 3D22-1592 (3/29/23)

WRITTEN THREAT: A paper found on student's desk with the word "Kill," and the names of two teachers, bolstered by a journal found at her home whi9ch included a written plan to kill others and a list of weapons, amounts to a written threat to kill. Putting the paper on the desk is posting it. N.H., a Child v. State, 5D23-795 (3/27/23)

DEFINITION-PROBABLE CAUSE: Probable cause is a lighter burden than a preponderance of evidence. "Probable cause" means a reasonable ground of suspicion supported by circumstances strong enough in themselves to warrant a cautious person in belief that the named suspect is guilty of the offense charged. It requires only a probability or substantial chance of criminal activity, not an actual showing of such activity. It is not a high bar. Probable cause doesn't require proof that something is more likely true than false, only a fair probability, something more than a bare suspicion but less than a preponderance of the evidence. N.H., a Child v. State, 5D23-795 (3/27/23)

DEFINITION-"POST": "Post" means "to put information or a message where the public can see it." "Post" can be understood as making it unlawful to cause a writing, which threatens to kill or do bodily harm to another person, to be seen in public. The mode or means whereby the written threat to kill is made public does not matter as long as it can be viewed by another person. N.H., a Child v. State, 5D23-795 (3/27/23)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: In defining common words such as "post," it is preferable to refer to common dictionaries such as the Macmillan English Dictionary or the American Heritage Dictionary rather than Black's Law Dictionary. It is more appropriate to use a dictionary that would define the words as to what a reasonable person would understand the words to mean at the time the statute was enacted and not a technical legal definition. N.H., a Child v. State, 5D23-795 (3/27/23)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION-SUPREMACY OF TEXT (J. MACIVER, DISSENT): The "supremacyof-text principle" means that the words of a governing text are of paramount concern, and what they convey, in their context, is what the text means. When a contested term is undefined in statute or case law, the term presumably bears its ordinary meaning at the time of enactment, taking into consideration the context in which the word appears. Context always matters. N.H., a Child v. State, 5D23-795 (3/27/23)

WRITTEN THREAT (J. MACIVER, DISSENT): "[T]he State of Florida has not criminalized bad thoughts. Even the most wicked of hypothetical deeds is not against the law when it exists only in one's imagination. Even when those thoughts are reduced to writing." N.H., a Child v. State, 5D23-795 (3/27/23)

EXPUNCTION: District court lacks ancillary jurisdiction to hear the expunction motion of a Defendant who had been pardoned. No federal statute authorizes district courts to hear the type of expungement motion brought. USA v. Batmasion, No. 21-12800 (11th Cir. 3/24/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112800.pdf

CONSTITUTIONAL EXPUNCTION: No court has ever held that the Constitution directly provides jurisdiction to hear any expungement motions. USA v. Batmasion, No. 21-12800 (11th Cir. 3/24/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112800.pdf

ANCILLARY JURISDICTION: Ancillary jurisdiction can be invoked for two limited purposes: (1) to permit disposition by a single court of claims that are, in varying respects and degrees, factually interdependent; and (2) to enable a court to function successfully, that is, to manage its proceedings, vindicate its authority, and effectuate its decrees. Ancillary jurisdiction does not include a general equitable power to expunge judicial records. USA v. Batmasion, No. 21-12800 (11th Cir. 3/24/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112800.pdf

EXPUNCTION: Jurisdiction for equitable expunction does not exist. If jurisdiction for constitutional expungement exists, it would only exist where the motion challenges an arrest or conviction as unconstitutional, not where

Defendant had received a pardon. USA v. Batmasion, No. 21-12800 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT: An individual with three qualifying prior convictions, either for violent felonies or serious drug offenses, is an armed career criminal subject to a fifteen-year mandatory minimum. USA v. Penn, No. 21-12420 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT: Sale of cocaine constitutes a serious drug offense under ACCA, so that two of them results in an ACCA enhancement. USA v. Penn, No. 21-12420 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112420.pdf

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT: Proof that Defendant knew of the illicit nature of the controlled substances which constituted the predicates for ACCA enhancement is not required. "Our precedent squarely forecloses his mens rea argument about the need to prove knowledge of the controlled substance's illicit nature." USA v. Penn, No. 21-12420 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112420.pdf

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT: Attempted transfers of a controlled substance are "distributing" as ACCA uses the term. USA v. Penn, No. 21-12420 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112420.pdf

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT-CATEGORICAL APPROACH: No matter the defendant's underlying conduct, a state conviction cannot be an ACCA predicate if the statute of conviction proscribes a broader range of conduct than what ACCA defines as a "serious drug offense." which requires looking at the least of the acts criminalized by the state statute. Second, if the statute is "divisible" because it can be violated in alternative ways, if must be analyzed by the elements of the crime of conviction. Because the attempted transfer of a controlled substance for value is the least culpable act covered by §893.13(1)(a)'s proscription of the sale of a controlled substance, and "attempted transfer" fits within the meaning of "distributing," it is a predicate offense. "We think the ordinary meaning of the word 'distribute' . . . encompasses attempted transfers." USA v. Penn, No. 21-12420 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)

DEFINITION-"DISTRIBUTE": The word 'distribute,' at its core, refers to the process of passing out or dealing out something to other people. Although the final transfer of an item is part of the core of "distribute," other steps leading up to the ultimate transfer are part of distribution, too. The ordinary meaning of "distributing" encompasses attempted transfers. USA v. Penn, No. 21-12420 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112420.pdf

NEAREST-REASONABLE-REFERENT CANON: The nearest-reasonable-referent canon indicates that the parenthetical modifies only the term "controlled substance"—the parenthetical's nearest reasonable referent—because the syntax of the provision is not a parallel series of nouns or verbs. USA v. Penn, No. 21-12420 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112420.pdf

FIRST STEP ACT: The First Step Act of 2018 allows federal courts to reduce certain drug-related criminal sentences if sections 2 and 3 of the Fair Sentencing Act of 2010 were in effect at the time the covered offense was committed, but a district court is permitted to reduce a defendant's sentence only for a covered offense and is not free to change the defendant's sentences on counts that are not covered offenses. USA v. Files, No. 21-12859 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)

PRIOR-PANEL-PRECEDENT RULE: Under the prior-panel-precedent rule, an earlier panel's holding is controlling unless and until it is overruled or undermined to the point of abrogation by the Supreme Court or the appellate court sitting en banc. USA v. Files, No. 21-12859 (11th Cir. 3/24/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112859.pdf

HOLDING VS. DICTUM: The mere fact that a panel called its statement a "holding" doesn't make it a holding. A judge cannot transmute dictum into decision by waving a wand and uttering the word "hold.'" To the extent that a] opinion says one thing but does another, what it does is the holding. of the decision. Judicial opinions do not make binding precedents; judicial decisions do. USA v. Files, No. 21-12859 (11th Cir. 3/24/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112859.pdf

HOLDING VS. DICTUM: The mere fact that a panel's key statement was delivered as part of an alternative holding doesn't disqualify it from holding status. Alternative holdings are as binding as solitary holdings. "[U]nder our precedent about precedent, the sort of reasoning employed in Denson—that a particular test doesn't apply but that, even if it does, it isn't satisfied—constitutes a prototypical alternative holding. Indeed, we have said—albeit (ironically) in dicta—that the alternative-holding rule applies in precisely these circumstances. USA v. Files, No. 21-12859 (11th Cir. 3/24/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112859.pdf

HOLDING VS. DICTUM: "With respect to the application of the necessary-to-the-judgment criterion, we'll just come right out and say it: We're in something of a grey area here." USA v. Files, No. 21-12859 (11th Cir. 3/24/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112859.pdf

DEFINITION-"NECESSARY": "[O]ur own precedent and common sense both reveal that "necessary" doesn't mean strictly necessary." USA v. Files,

No. 21-12859 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)

PRECEDENT-WHAT THE HECK-INESS?!: "Our precedent about precedent makes clear that strict necessary-ness is not essential to a statement's holding-ness." USA v. Files, No. 21-12859 (11th Cir. 3/24/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112859.pdf

ALTERNATIVE HOLDINGS (J. NEWSOM, CONCURRING): "My worry is that there's likely an inverse relationship between the number of holdings a court purports to issue and the correctness of each. That's not rocket science—or, to be fair, any kind of science. It's just a common-sense observation that the more a court bites off, the less time and attention it has to savor and digest each constituent morsel." USA v. Files, No. 21-12859 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)

ALTERNATIVE HOLDINGS (J. NEWSOM, CONCURRING): "I hope that we will all think, and then think, and then think again before embedding alternative holdings in our opinions." USA v. Files, No. 21-12859 (11th Cir. 3/24/23)

BAIL-REVOCATION-HEARING: Court may not order Defendant to appear for a hearing and submit to a drug test, then revoke release upon a positive result, all on the basis of an ex parte e-mail accusing, by hearsay, Defendant of using drugs on pretrial release. Because drug testing was not a condition of release, probable cause is required to order him to submit to a drug test. The fact that he tested positive obviously does not establish probable cause to order the test in the first place. Miranda v. Reyes, 3D23-485 (3/24/23) https://3dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/864304/opinion/230485_DC03_03242023_161642_i.pdf

JUDGE-IMPARTIALITY (J. LOGUE, CONCURRING): "Trial courts must be mindful of the limits imposed by the judicial role. With very few exceptions, the court's role does not include initiating investigations to establish that probable cause exists. The court's role is constrained to adjudicating such issues if and when the parties seek such an adjudication." Miranda v. Reyes, 3D23-485 (3/24/23)

JURY INSTRUCTION-SELF-DEFENSE-FORCIBLE FELONY: The forcible felony instruction says that the use of deadly force by Defendant is not justifiable if you find that Defendant had committed or was escaping after the commission of an aggravated assault. When a defendant is charged with multiple crimes claims self-defense as to each offense, the forcible felony instruction is improper because there is no independent forcible felony available and the instruction negates the defendant's self-defense claim. PRETRIAL DETENTION-BOND: Court may not order Defendant held without bond upon a finding that he poses a threat of harm to the community without also making a finding that there are no conditions of release reasonably sufficient to protect the community from the risk of physical harm. In order for a court to conclude that a defendant poses a threat of harm to the community, the court must make findings that each of the criteria set forth in §907.041(4)(c)(5) have been met. Lax v. JURY INSTRUCTION-CONSPIRACY-MID-TRIAL: Court may give a mid-trial instruction on conspiracy to prevent a misunderstanding of the law where Defense asked witness, who had not previously met the Defendant, whether he therefore had not conspired with him. A trial judge is more than a referee to an adversarial proceeding, but rather may question witnesses, comment on the evidence, and interrupt the trial in order to correct an impropriety. The prosecutor's failure to object does not mean that the trial cannot intervene sua sponte. USA v. Morel, No. 20-14315 (11th Cir. 3/23/23)

PRUDENT-SMUGGLE DOCTRINE-CONSPIRACY-KNOWLEDGE OF NATURE OF CONTRABAND: To prove conspiracy, Government must that Defendant knew the essential nature of the conspiracy, including the type of contraband at issue, but the jury may reasonably infer that prudent smuggler is not likely to suffer the presence of unaffiliated bystanders and may infer the associate's knowing participation, including knowledge of the nature of the contraband involved. RULES-AMENDMENT-SUPPORT ANIMALS: Rules regarding support animals, including miniature horses, in court clarified. "Service animals" are defined as "any dog or miniature horse that is individually trained to do work or perform tasks for the benefit of an individual with a disability, including a physical, sensory, psychiatric, intellectual, or other mental disability." An "emotional support animal," is a "companion animal that provides needed emotional support, well-being, or comfort to an individual in the forms of affection and companionship." Notification should be given in advance when an individual intends on seeking an accommodation of using either a service or emotional support animal; lack of advance notice for the latter may support exclusion of the animal. In Re: Amendments to Florida Rule of General Practice and Judicial Administration 2.540, No. SC22-1277 (3/23/23)

RESISTING WITHOUT VIOLENCE: Court commits fundamental error by fail to instruct the jury on the essential element of resisting an officer without violence; that is, whether the officer was engaged in the lawful execution of a legal duty at the time of the alleged resistance. EXPERT OPINION: The facts or data upon which an expert bases an opinion or inference may be those perceived by, or made known to, the expert at or before the trial. If the facts or data are of a type reasonably relied upon by experts in the subject to support the opinion expressed, the facts or data need not be admissible in evidence. Facts or data that are otherwise inadmissible may not be disclosed to the factfinder by the proponent of the opinion or inference unless the court determines that their probative value in assisting the factfinder to evaluate the expert's opinion substantially outweighs their prejudicial effect. Y.R., a Child v. State, 3D22-318 (3/22/23) https://4dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/864026/opinion/220318_DC05_03222023_095738_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Claim that the sentencing court misunderstood its options at sentencing is not cognizable under R. 3.800(a) as an illegal sentence. MAXIMUM SENTENCE-DUI MANSLAUGHTER: Defendant cannot be sentenced to the statutory maximum incarceration for offenses which require some period of probation, such as DUI manslaughter. §316.193(5)'s requirements of 'monthly reporting probation and completion of a substance abuse course vitiate a trial court's discretion to impose the maximum fifteen-year prison sentence. APPEAL-NEW LAW: Appellate counsel is not ineffective for failing to anticipate changes in the law, and appellate counsel is not ineffective for failing to assert a theory of law which was not at the time of the appeal fully articulated or established in the law, but appellate counsel can be ineffective for failing to raise issues of merit based on law decided during the pendency of a direct appeal and for not filing a motion to file a supplemental brief. "Even though appellate counsel was not expected to raise a novel argument, appellate counsel was expected to be aware of developments in the law. . .and to request supplemental briefing when it could benefit Mr. Upshur." DNA TESTING (J. MAKAR, CONCURRING): A motion seeking DNA testing is not binding on the trial court, which is required to make legislatively mandated findings. Court may deny Defendant's request for post-conviction DNA testing notwithstanding the State's lack of an objection to, or even whole-hearted agreement with, it. "A reasoned assessment from the State in these types of cases, however, would undoubtedly assist busy trial judges and facilitate their statutory obligations to make findings and decide whether relief is warranted." PRO SE DEFENDANT-STANDBY COUNSEL: Where pro se Defendant asked to consult with standby counsel (may I "call up just one of my lawyers to give me a little help on the side?"), Court properly denied the request. While standby counsel is constitutionally permissible, it is not required. Nor does a defendant have a Sixth Amendment right to hybrid representation. A defendant may not manipulate the proceedings by willy-nilly leaping back and forth between the self-representation and assistance of counsel. Van Zagarella v. State, 4D21-3394 (3/15/23)

JURY INSTRUCTION-PRINCIPAL: Court errs in giving principal instruction where the evidence showed that Defendant, the passenger, shot from the car driven by his accomplice, and the State's central theory of the case was that the defendant was the shooter. Although on appeal the State argued that Defendant could have been a principal if the co-defendant had been the shooter, the State never made that argument to the jury. SUBPOENA DUCES TECUM-MENTAL HEALTH RECORDS: Defendant is not entitled to a subpoena duces tecum for the patient/psychotherapist records in case of sexual battery upon a mentally defective person. Only the victim, not the State, owns, and can waive, the privilege. §90.503(4)(c) removes the privilege when the patient relies on his or her own mental condition as an element of his or her claim or defense. ATTEMPT-OVERT ACT: To establish the crime of attempt, the State must prove the defendant intended to commit a crime, committed an overt act towards its commission, and failed to successfully complete the crime. An overt act is one that manifests the pursuance of a criminal intent, going beyond mere preparation to the actual commencement of the crime. Soliciting a hitman (undercover officer), providing himwith the victim's personal information, and making a $400 down payment are overt acts. Alcazar v. State, 3D23-83 (3/8/23)

POSSESSION-FIREARM-DOMESTIC VIOLENCE: It is unlawful for a person who has been convicted in any court of a misdemeanor crime of domestic violence to possess any firearm or ammunition. 18 U.S.C. §922(g)(9) A "misdemeanor crime of domestic violence" is an offense that both is a misdemeanor and has, as an element, the use or attempted use of physical force, or the threatened use of a deadly weapon, committed by a current or former spouse, parent, or guardian of the victim, by a person with whom the victim shares a child in common, by a person who is cohabiting with or has cohabited with the victim as a spouse, parent, or guardian, by a person similarly situated to a spouse, parent, or guardian of the victim, or by a person who has a current or recent former dating relationship with the victim. POSSESSION-FIREARM-DOMESTIC VIOLENCE: Defendant met his burden of production, but not his burden of persuasion, that the waiver of counsel on the predicate offense was not knowingly and voluntarily made. Defendant charged with Possession of a Firearm after a domestic violence conviction, on the earlier DV offense, had signed a form with options for trial, waiving a jury, or pleading guilty, but no option for pleading not guilty and having a jury trial, and judge found Defendant guilty in bench trial. BURDEN OF PRODUCTION/PERSUASION: Defendant who claims that the waiver of counsel was not voluntarily made bears the burden of production. STANDARD OF REVIEW: The standard of review for exclusion of evidence in a "run-of-the-mill evidentiary and trial procedure rulings," i.e. "normal, typical, usual evidentiary and trial procedure rulings" is abuse of discretion. USA v. Shamsid-Deen, No. 20-11877 (11th Cir. 3/6/23)

BURDEN OF PROOF-PREDICATE OFFENSE: The burden is properly placed on the defendant raising the challenge to show the constitutional invalidity of the prior convictions. Any given conviction might suffer any of a myriad of constitutional defects. It would approach the absurd to require the government to undertake to prove guilt all over again in every predicate conviction. USA v. Shamsid-Deen, No. 20-11877 (11th Cir. 3/6/23)

APPEALS ARE BAD: "There's another reason that purely evidentiary and trial procedure issues get abuse of discretion review and not de novo review: giving them de novo review would encourage more appeals, which would not be a good thing." USA v. Shamsid-Deen, No. 20-11877 (11th Cir. 3/6/23)

AFFIRMATIVE DEFENSE: The label "affirmative defense" applies to different categories of defenses. One such category is defenses that negative guilt by cancelling out the existence of some required element of the crime. Other categories of affirmative defenses do not negate an element of the crime, but instead provide a justification sufficient to overcome or mitigate criminal liability. A third type of affirmative defense is based on individual exceptions to substantive crimes. USA v. Shamsid-Deen, No. 20-11877 (11th Cir. 3/6/23)

DICTA: "It's true that we repeated the Laroche dicta in our Johnson opinion. . .But the Johnson opinion's use of the Laroche dicta is itself dicta. . .It was, to be sure, twice told dicta, but as we have explained before, '"twice told dicta is still dicta.'" CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED-PROBATIONARY SPLIT SENTENCE: If a defendant is sentenced to a new prison sentence upon the revocation of the probationary term of a probationary split sentence, the defendant is not entitled to credit for the full amount of the original sentence if he obtained an early release due to gain time—he is entitled to credit for the time he actually served in prison. Forfeiture of gain time is a collateral consequence, and neither the Court nor counsel is required to forewarn the defendant about that collateral consequence. Koppe v. State, 5D22-3069 (3/3/23)

EVIDENCE-AUTHENTICATION-PHOTO (J. LAMBERT, CONCURRING): Authentication for the purpose of admission is a relatively low threshold that only requires a prima facie showing that the proffered evidence is authentic; the ultimate determination of the authenticity of the evidence is a question for the fact-finder. Requiring the State to provide testimony from persons who appear in the video, or from someone who recorded the video, sets the authentication burden too high. Simmons v. State, 5D23-70 (3/3/23)

EUPHEMISM: "Proactive, saturation detail." The combination of the Alabama Law Enforcement Agency, Dallas County Sheriff's Office, and ATF, which performs traffic stops, handcuffs passengers, and puts them on the ground. USA v. Turner, No. 20-12364 (11th Cir. 3/1/23)

OPINION-MENTAL STATE: In insanity case, Government may not elicit mental health expert's opinion that Defendant understood the wrongfulness of his actions. FER 704(b) precludes an expert witness in a criminal case from stating an opinion about whether the defendant did or did not have a mental state or condition that constitutes an element of a defense. But error here is harmless because Defendant's insanity defense was insufficient as a matter of law. USA v. Turner, No. 20-12364 (11th Cir. 3/1/23)

INSANITY DEFENSE-NOTICE: A defendant who intends to assert a defense of insanity at the time of the alleged offense must so notify an attorney for the government in writing, as well as notice of expert testimony supporting it, within the time provided for filing a pretrial motion A defendant who fails to do so cannot rely on an insanity defense. USA v. Turner, No. 20-12364 (11th Cir. 3/1/23)

HARMLESS ERROR: It is harmless error if, when all is said and done, the error did not influence the jury, or had but very slight effect, the verdict, the judgment should stand. But if one cannot say, with fair assurance, after pondering all that happened without stripping the erroneous action from the whole, that the judgment was not substantially swayed by the error, it is impossible to conclude that substantial rights were not affected. The inquiry is rather the error itself had substantial influence. If so, or if one is left in grave doubt, the conviction cannot stand. USA v. Turner, No. 20-12364 (11th Cir. 3/1/23)

INSANITY: The mental disease or defect to support the insanity defense must be severe. Proof that a defendant had a mental disorder is not enough. ENTRAPMENT: An entrapment-by-estoppel defense applies to a defendant who reasonably relies on the assurance of a government official that specified conduct will not violate the law. USA v. Turner, No. 20-12364 (11th Cir. 3/1/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012364.pdf

PUBLIC AUTHORITY DEFENSE: Defendant must show only that he relied on apparent authority, as opposed to actual authority. USA v. Turner, No. 20-12364 (11th Cir. 3/1/23)

TRIAL-PROSECUTORS (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENT): "Then the government reassured the court that '[i]t doesn't behoove us to go beyond what's allowed.' But behoove the government or not, that's just what the government did." USA v. Turner, No. 20-12364 (11th Cir. 3/1/23)

INNOCENT INTENT DEFENSE (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENT): The difference between an innocent-intent defense and an entrapment-by estoppel defense is that the former does not require proof that the government officer in fact authorized the action; it just requires evidence the defendant honestly believed the action was authorized. HABITUAL OFFENDER-CONSECUTIVE SENTENCE: Where a defendant is convicted of two offenses arising out of a single criminal episode, one of which is enhanceable under the habitual felony offender/habitual violent felony offender statute, and the sentence for that offense is enhanced beyond the statutory maximum, the trial court may lawfully order that the sentence on the remaining unenhanced offense be served consecutively. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to give notice of alibi and calling alibi witnesses. Testimony from other witnesses supporting a defendant's own testimony is not necessarily cumulative. A claim of ineffectiveness in failing to present important exculpatory evidence cannot be resolved on the basis of the mere existence of conflicting evidence in the record. Rather, the record evidence must conclusively rebut the claim if the claim is to be resolved without a hearing. Noa v. State, 4D22-575 (3/1/23)

separate offenses, albeit in violation of the same statute, the jury cannot convict unless its verdict is unanimous as to at least one specific act. Where the State does not affirmatively advise the jury that it can convict using any number of acts as the essential element of the crime, the possibility of a non-unanimous verdict does not constitute fundamental error. Where the prosecutor argued to the jury that one Resisting with Violence charge was based upon Defendant kicking one officer and the other for slapping another officer, and State never argued that the jury could find appellant guilty based on any other act, the verdicts are lawful. The mere possibility that a juror could look to some act other than the one which the prosecutor argued to satisfy an element of the crime is insufficient to warrant a reversal of a conviction. Johnston v. State, 4D22-1790 (3/1/23)

OBSTRUCTION-LEGAL DUTY: The threshold for establishing the obstruction or resisting is that the officer be in the lawful execution of a legal duty. PROSECUTORIAL MISCONDUCT: Sarcastic cross-examination of the Defendant is not fundamental error. "This was a very tense situation with the appellant calling the prosecution witnesses dishonest and presenting himself as a victim. DUE PROCESS-DEATH PENALTY-RETROACTIVITY: Due process in death penalty case requires that Defendant be allowed to inform jury that a life sentence means no parole. Cruz v. Arizona, No. 21-846 (U.S. S.Ct, 2/22/23)

DUE PROCESS-DEATH PENALTY-RETROACTIVITY: Lynch–which held that capital defendants have a due process right to inform jurors that a life sentence means no parole--is a significant change in the law ("It is hard to imagine a clearer break from the past"), and applies retroactively. The argument that a "change in the law" is different than a "change in the application of the law" is a distinction without a difference. The dissent fails to grapple with the basic point that Lynch reversed previously binding Arizona Supreme Court precedent. It makes no difference that Lynch did not alter federal law. Cruz v. APPEAL-ATTORNEY-CONFLICT: Public Defender may not withdraw from appeal on case from which it had withdrawn on the underlying charge absent an assertion and showing that the interests of the Appellant and a witness/client are so adverse or hostile that she cannot adequately do. The mere allegation that one of the PDs had represented a witness who then testified for the State at Appellant's trial is not enough. Operation of Rule 4-1.9 (conflicts of interest relating to a former client) is from the perspective of the only former client (the witness). Even if the PD were currently representing the witness, there would be no basis for an imputable conflict under rule 4-1.7 absent an explanation of how representation of Appellant would be directly adverse to the present representation of the witness. Farmer v. State, 1D22-3273 (2/22/23)

APPEAL-INVOLUNTARY PLEA: Defendant may not challenge on appeal the voluntariness of his plea without first filing a motion to withdraw the plea in the trial court. The rule for juveniles exempting them from having to first move to withdraw the plea does not extend to adults. Kittles v. State, 4D21-3168 (2/22/23)

EXCEPTIONS TO THE RULE: No matter how emphatically a court stresses that its reasoning is good-for one-case-only, every exception begets demands for more. Kittles v. State, 4D21-3168 (2/22/23)

MOTION IN LIMINE-TIMELINESS: Court improperly denies Defendant's motions in limine to exclude references to the gun in question having been stolen and the hearsay statements of a hotel clerk as untimely. Even if the Court characterized them as motions to suppress (they weren't), they could have been considered during the trial. Lowe v. State, 4D22-101 (2/22/23)

VOP-FAILURE TO PAY: In a VOP hearing involving non-payment, State may show willfulness by showing that the probationer failed to make bona fide efforts to gain employment and/or legally acquire the resources to pay. Craig v. State, 4D22-115 (2/22/23)

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Requirement that Defendant provide prescriptions to PO in furtherance of the no-non-prescribed controlled substances condition does not need to be orally pronounced. Douchard v. State, 4D22-286 (2/22/23)

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Specific time parameters to complete conditions of probation need not be orally pronounced. Although the conditions should be clearly set out and must mean what they say, every detail need not be spelled out and the language should be interpreted in its common, ordinary usage. A probationer who has been given the privilege of being placed on probation, in lieu of serving jail time, is put on adequate notice that the treatment program should be undertaken at the beginning of the probationary period and that, if he or she is discharged for nonattendance, he or she may not have another chance to complete it. The inclusion of a time deadline for providing proof of a prescription to the probation officer is a detail that does not require oral pronouncement. Douchard v. State, 4D22-286 (2/22/23)

COSTS: Statutorily mandated costs may be imposed without notice to the defendant. However, the trial court is required to give the defendant notice of the imposition of discretionary costs and to make an oral pronouncement of such costs and their statutory basis. If this does not occur, and discretionary costs are made a condition of probation, they are to be stricken, and cannot be re-imposed. Douchard v. State, 4D22-286 (2/22/23)

CONTINUANCE-NEW COUNSEL: Court may not deny a motion for a request to continue because of retention of new counsel without conducting any inquiry into the surrounding circumstances and making any findings to show that Defendant's right to counsel of his choice was not being arbitrarily denied. Court's statement that it was not going to allow "defendant[s to] run the show around here, picking new lawyers . . . and getting continuances" shows that the denial oc the request for a continuance was based on a general policy, rather than on the circumstances of the case. A wrongful denial of the right to be represented by a privately retained lawyer of defendant's choice is prejudicial per se. Perozo v. State, 4D22-527

WILLIAMS RULE-PRIOR DUI; Even if the two DUIs were strikingly similar (Defendant sleeping in car), evidence of a prior DUI is not relevant to prove a material fact in issue, including, but not limited to, proof of motive, opportunity, intent, preparation, plan, knowledge, identity, or absence of mistake or accident. The previous episode did not tend to prove or disprove that he was driving or in actual physical control of the truck or was under the influence of a controlled substance to the extent his normal faculties were impaired. Absence of mistake or accident was not at issue. Gillig v. State, 4D22-1027 (2/22/23)

WILLIAMS RULE-PRIOR DUI: Evidence of a prior, similar DUI is not admissible to rebut the defense that the Defendant was not impaired by medications. Whether he was impaired by the unknown dosage of the medications which he had taken in 2016 had no relevance to whether he was impaired by the unknown dosage of the medication which he took five years later. "Taken to its logical extreme, the state's position would open the floodgates to propensity evidence anytime a defendant denied that alcohol or controlled substances found in his system caused behavior that is otherwise consistent with impairment by those substances, so long as there were some points of similarity between the prior and current episodes, which occur often are in DUI cases." Gillig v. State, 4D22-1027 (2/22/23)

EVIDENCE-OPENED THE DOOR: Defendant did not open the door to evidence about his prior DUI by testifying that his medicine did not make him sedated or sleepy, The "opening the door" theory of admitting otherwise inadmissible evidence of prior bad acts, requires that the defense must first offer misleading testimony or make a specific factual assertion which the state has the right to correct so that the jury will not be misled. State cannot ask a series of impermissible questions concerning prior acts of misconduct on cross-examination, and then claim that the defendant opened the door by answering the impermissible questions. DEATH PENALTY-INTELLECTUAL DISABILITY-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: An intellectual disability claim that is based on newly discovered evidence must be filed within one year of the date upon which the claim became discoverable through due diligence. WRITTEN THREAT-MENS REA: A communication should not be determined to be a threat based on whether a reasonable person would view the communication as a threat; a defendant must know that he is transmitting a communication, and that he intends it to be a threat. "[A] 'reasonable person' standard is a familiar feature of civil liability in tort law, but . . .[h]aving liability turn on whether a 'reasonable person' regards the communication as a threat—regardless of what the defendant thinks—'reduces culpability on the all-important element of the crime to negligence.'" WRITTEN THREAT-MENS REA: A mens rea element must be read into §836.10. A defendant must have intended to make a true threat, namely that he made a communication with the knowledge that it will be viewed as a threat. To prove the crime, the trier of fact must find that the defendant transmitted a communication for the purpose of issuing a threat, or with knowledge that the communication will be viewed as a threat. T.R.W. a Child v. State, 4D21-2396 (2/15/23)

MENS REA; The fact that a statute does not specify any required mental state, does not mean that none exists. The general rule is that a guilty mind is a necessary element in crime. INSANITY-DEFENDANT'S FUNDAMENTAL DECISION: Because the insanity defense is akin to a plea, a defendant retains the ultimate authority in the decision to assert the defense. Court erred by refusing to allow appellant to assert the defense, even when counsel does not want to pursue that defense. Hostzclaw v. State, 4D21-2447 (2/15/23)

DEFENDANT'S DECISIONS: A defendant retains a fundamental right to determine certain overarching decisions in a criminal case but not the day-to-day trial tactics. A defendant has the ultimate authority to determine whether to plead guilty, waive a jury, testify in his or her own behalf, or take an appeal. Concerning those decisions, an attorney must both consult with the defendant and obtain consent to the recommended course of action. The assertion of an insanity defense is a decision for which the ultimate authority to assert or not to assert the defense is the defendant's right to make. Hostzclaw v. State, 4D21-2447 (2/15/23)

INSANITY: Court must allow Defendant to assert an insanity defense, even over the objection of his counsel, in his robbery of a yogurt shop with a toy gun case. Because pleading not guilty by reason of insanity is tantamount to a plea decision, which is a fundamental right of the defendant, the court erred in disallowing the presentation of an insanity defense, where some evidence in the record might have tended to support the plea, such as, you know, robbing a yogurt shop with a toy gun and other indicia of mental illness. Hostzclaw v. State, 4D21-2447 (2/15/23)

DUI-BLOOD DRAW: A driver is deemed to have consented to having blood drawn for testing for alcohol content or the presence of chemical substances or controlled substances where (1) there is reasonable cause to believe the driver has been driving under the influence of alcohol or chemical or controlled substances, (2) the driver appears for treatment at a hospital, and (3) the administration of a breath or urine test is impractical or impossible. Any person who is incapable of refusal by reason of unconsciousness or other mental or physical condition is deemed not to have withdrawn his or her consent to such test. Buonanotte v. DUI-BLOOD DRAW: A breath test is impossible or impractical where Defendant was yelling, thrashing, and refusing to cooperate for an extended period of time, and where Defendant was hospitalized. Great deference must be accorded to the trained medical personnel on scene in determining the practicality of obtaining a breath test. STAND YOUR GROUND: The burden of proof is on the State when dealing with Stand Your Ground immunity motions; the State's burden is to prove by clear and convincing evidence that the statutory immunity does not apply. Guida v. State, 5D22-2694 (2/15/23)

STAND YOUR GROUND: Court errs in denying SYG motion where it did not resolve the highly uncertain and conflicting accounts of the altercation, the Court's oral pronouncement did not suggest that it was convinced without hesitancy that the State had established that Defendant was not entitled to immunity. DEFINITION-"CLEAR AND CONVINCING EVIDENCE": Clear and convincing evidence is an intermediate level of proof that entails both a qualitative and quantitative standard. The evidence must be credible; the memories of witnesses must be clear and without confusion; and the sum total of the evidence must be of sufficient weight to convince the trier of fact without hesitancy. PILL PUSHING-GOOD FAITH-JURY INSTRUCTION: Jury instruction that dispensing controlled substances outside the usual course of professional practice is to be judged objectively is incorrect. The dispensing physician's subjective belief is what matters. But error is harmless here because the evidence confirms that Defendant subjectively knew he was not prescribing pursuant to professional practices (it never helps that physician/Defendant sleeps with his addict patients). Ruan distinguished. USA v. Heaton, No. 20-12568 (11th Cir. 2/14/23)

PILL PUSHING-JURY INSTRUCTION; Court properly instructed jury that Defendant properly instructed the jury that government must prove that he prescribed medication both outside the course of professional practice or (not and) for no legitimate medical purpose. Put simply, a prescription for controlled substances is unlawful if it is issued (1) without a legitimate medical purpose or (2) by the physician acting outside the usual course of professional practice. VAGUENESS-PILL PUSHING: 21 U.S.C. §841(a)–proscribing prescription outside "the usual course of his professional practice"–is not unconstitutionally vague. USA v. Heaton, No. 20-12568 (11th Cir. 2/14/23)

DEFINITION-"LEGITIMATE MEDICAL PURPOSE": The phrases "legitimate medical purpose" and "usual course of professional practice" do not require statutory or regulatory definitions. Rather, they are phrases reasonably understandable by a physician and their factual application will necessarily entail a case-by-case analysis. USA v. Heaton, No. 20-12568 (11th Cir. 2/14/23)

SELF-DEFENSE-PTSD: Expert testimony that Defendant suffered from PTSD, proffered for the theory that Defendant perceived a heightened threat, is properly excluded. The conduct of a person acting in self defense is measured by an objective standard; the law does not ascribe a subjective standard as to a defendant's state of mind but concerns a reasonably prudent person's state of mind. "In other words, the peculiarity of a defendant's mental state is not germane." Conflict certified. Oquendo v. State, 2D21-2408 (2/10/23)

COSTS-PER COUNT: Court properly imposes crime prevention funds per count as part of the court's costs assessment. Crime prevention fund costs shall be imposed on each offense for which a defendant is convicted. As such, the statute does not set a maximum cap per case; this particular statutory cost is to be imposed per count. The bottom line is that whether a particular statutory cost is to be levied per count or per case must be determined on a statute-by-statute basis. X.S. v. State, 2D21-2751 (2/10/23)

INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE-APPELLATE COUNSEL: Appellate counsel was ineffective for failing to challenge Defendant's the reclassification of his offence--attempted first-degree murder–to a life felony where he was a principal and did not possess the firearm. Stewart v. State, 6D23-1236 (2/10/23)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: New scientific evidence that subdural hematoma may result from a low impact fall is not newly discovered evidence warranting a new trial for the homicide of a child with "vast and significant" injuries. PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER-APPRENDI: PRR designation may be made by the judge, not the jury. The date a defendant was released from prison or jail and the nature of the qualifying offense are ministerial in nature and thus do not require jury findings. Maye v. State, 6D23-1438 (2/10/23)

SEX OFFENDER REGISTRATION-HABEAS CORPUS: A person seeking federal habeas corpus relief from a state court judgment must be in custody. "Custody" generally means physical detention or confinement. SEX OFFENDER REGISTRATION-REQUIREMENTS: Requirements of Florida sex offender registration summarized. SEX OFFENDER REGISTRATION-HABEAS CORPUS-CUSTODY (J. NEWSOM, J., CONCURRING): The definition of "custody," and the nebulous things-that-free-men-can-do standard that it prescribed confers nearly limitless discretion on individual judges. It should be returned to its ordinary meaning: An individual is "in custody" for habeas corpus purposes if, but only if, he is under close physical confinement. Clements v. SEXUAL BATTERY: Defendant is properly convicted of sexual battery with a threat of force–which requires a threat of serious bodly injury–where victim (a fellow inmate) had a black eye. Whether Defendant's threatened use of force was likely to cause serious personal injury or pain is a question for the jury. Argument that jail protocols would make more serious infliction of injury impossible is nonavailing. Givens v. State, 1D21-2900 (2/8/23)

FROM THE FILE MARKED "D-UH": District Court of Appeal lacks appellate jurisdiction over decisions made by the Florida Supreme Court. Townsend v. State, 1D22-800 (2/8/23)

MANDAMUS: It is well settled that mandamus is the proper remedy to compel a court to exercise its jurisdiction when such court possesses jurisdiction and refuses to exercise it. Appellate court can compel an inferior court to act in the exercise of its lawful jurisdiction, but it cannot direct how it should act. Weed v. State, 1D23-42 (2/8/23)

https://1dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/859704/opinion/230042_DA08_02082023_143525_i.pdf

CORPUS DELICTI: . No person can be found guilty of a crime until the State establishes that a crime occurred. Before an admission may be allowed into evidence, the State has the burden of offering direct or circumstantial evidence independent of the admission that establishes the corpus delicti of the crime charged. Juvenile cannot be found delinquent for possession by a delinquent of a firearm based on his overheard admission to his mother that the gun in a box in a car was his. X.S. v State, 2D21-2172 (2/8/23)

CONSTRUCTIVE POSSESSION: To prove constructive possession of a firearm the State must produce evidence establishing that 'the defendant had knowledge of the presence of the gun and the ability to exercise control over it. Proximity to contraband in a jointly occupied car is not sufficient to sustain a conviction based on constructive possession. X.S. v State, 2D21-2172 (2/8/23)

CONSTRUCTIVE POSSESSION-CORROBORATION RULE: The Corroboration Rule-Defendant's statement can establish the corpus delicti if there is substantial evidence of the trustworthiness of the statement–is not the law. "Whether X.S.'s statements to his mother are spontaneous statements, excited utterances, statements against interest, or some other hearsay exception, they remain the only evidence of constructive firearm possession." They may not be used to establish corpus delicti. X.S. v State, 2D21-2172 (2/8/230

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-RESTITUTION: Entry of a restitution order without a hearing is in illegal order which may be raised under R. 3.800. Mesa v. State, 3D21-960 (2/8/23)

JOA-BATTERY ON LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICER: Officer was in lawful performance of duty where he took Defendant, a teen-age girl, into custody after she gave disturbing answers to why she was outside school at night. A welfare check of a girl, at night, sitting in front of a closed school located in a high-crime area, who was evasive, responded with false or incomplete information and implausible or inconsistent explanations for her presence, is a lawful basis for taking her into custody when she tried to flee. R.A. v. State, 3D22-546 (2/8/23)

SELF-REPRESENTATION-FARETTA: There is no requirement to revisit Faretta every time the offer of counsel is renewed and rejected, but Court must renew offer of counsel to the defendant at the sentencing hearing. Barrett v. State, 4D21-1693 (2/8/23)

DISCOVERY-RICHARDSON HEARING: Court must hold a Richardson hearing when a potential discovery violation occurs. Whether the discovery violation is intentional or harmful is one of the purposes of conducting a Richardson hearing, and a trial court's belief that a discovery violation is unintentional or harmless cannot act as a substitute for holding a hearing. The fact that the trial prosecutor here is unaware of the existence of the evidence (here, text messages) is not dispositive. Etienne v. State, 4D21-2599 (2/8/23)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-POSSESSION OF FIREARM BY FELON: Defendant's consent to separate trials obviated any double jeopardy or collateral estoppel concerns. Ealy v. State, 4D21-3002 (2/8/23)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-FACTUAL BASIS: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that that counsel was ineffective for failing to advise him that the factual basis was insufficient to support the quantity element of the conspiracy to traffic in hydromorphone charge, particularly where the indictment limits the conspiracy to traffic offense to one date and one victim, and that prescription was lower that the threshold trafficking quantity. Obermeyer v. State, 4D22-487 (2/8/23) establishing an amount for an award of restitution. Love v. State, 4D22-1009 (2/8/23)

BOND-PRETRIAL DETENTION: A violation of pretrial release conditions alone cannot supply a basis for pretrial detention without a finding that no conditions of release can reasonably protect the community from risk of physical harm to persons, assure the presence of the accused at trial, or assure the integrity of the judicial process. Burns v. Mascara, Sheriff, 4D22-3346 (2/8/23)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-STOP-ILLEGAL TURN: Officer's mistaken belief that Defendant was in a left turn lane and the subsequent stop for not turning–officer seems to have thought Defendant delayed him getting to Wawa for his morning coffee–does not justify the stop. Littles v. State, 5D22-944 (2/7/23)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-STOP-ILLEGAL TURN: An officer's subjective view is not relevant where the evidentiary record demonstrates it is untenable. "Police officers are people, and people make mistakes all the time. That said, mistaken beliefs are not automatically forgiven simply because officers are human and make mistakes; if that were the standard, all mistakes would be overlooked." But stopping Defendant in a non-turn lane for not turning is not objectively reasonable. "[T]he officer's insistence that he was in a left-turn lane, despite all other evidence to the contrary, is not given weight on the scales of objective reasonableness." Littles v. State, 5D22-944 (2/7/23)

https://5dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/859585/opinion/220944_DC13_02072023_141852_i.pdf

FIRST STEP: The First Step Act permits a court that imposed a sentence for a covered offense to reduce a sentence as if §§2 and 3 of the Fair Sentencing Act of 2010 were in effect at the time the covered offense was committed. §2(a) increased the quantity of crack cocaine necessary to trigger the mandatory penalties; a defendant now must traffic at least 280 grams of crack cocaine to trigger the higher penalties. USA v Jackson, No. 19-11955 (11th Cir. 2/3/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201911955.rem.pdf

FIRST STEP-APPRENDI: Defendant is ineligble for a First Step sentence reduction where the drug quantity (287 grams) has already been determined by the judge, not a jury. The district court is bound by the judge's earlier drug-quantity finding. An Apprendi error that was correctible, but not corrected, on direct appeal may not be asserted on a First Step reduction motion. USA v Jackson, No. 19-11955 (11th Cir. 2/3/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201911955.rem.pdf

YA SNOOZE, YA LOSE: "Jackson had a remedy. After Apprendi was decided, he could have challenged his sentence as erroneous. . . Other defendants took this approach. He apparently did not. . . The First Step Act does not offer Jackson a redo of his direct appeal." USA v Jackson, No. 19-

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201911955.rem.pdf

VOP: Trial court must enter a formal order of violation of probation that lists the specific conditions which the defendant violated. An order stating only that "probationer has not properly conducted him/herself and has violated the conditions of probation in a material respect." is legally insufficient. Fernald v. State, 2D22-892 (2/3/23)

https://2dca.flcourts.gov/content/download/859353/opinion/220892_DC05_02032023_083812_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Unlike R. 3.850(h)(2), R. 3.800(a)(2) provides that a court may dismiss a second or successive motion only if it finds that the motion fails to allege new or different grounds and the prior determination was on the merits. Defendant is not required to demonstrate why a new and different claim was not previously raised. Weston v. State, 2D22-1216 (2/3/23)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PHONE: A warrantless seizure of personal property is per se unreasonable under the Fourth Amendment. Officers lack probable cause to seize Defendant's phone where the detective knew that the victim was dead, that the trail of evidence led to Defendant's apartment, that Defendant was previously acquainted with the victim, and that Defendant had been "less than forthcoming" during an earlier interview. But error harmless. Jefferson v. State, 6D23-1208 (2/3/23)

ARGUMENT: State's argument-contrasting the officer to the Defendant–that "Deputy Worth has not been convicted of a felony" was improper (facts not in evidence), but was brief and isolated, and therefore harmless. Brand v. State, 6D23-1217 (2/3/23)

RULES-AMENDMENT-FAIRNESS-DIVERSITY (J. LABARGA, DISSENT): "On its own motion, this Court has expressly removed theterms "fairness" and "diversity" from the course topics that Florida's state court judges may use to satisfy their continuing judicial education ethics requirement. . .[T]his Court sees fit to eliminate an express consideration of fairness and diversity from the continuing judicial education curriculum. . .[S]uch a decision at this level of institutional gravity is, in my opinion, unwarranted, untimely, and ill-advised." COSTS: Discretionary costs must be orally pronounced at sentencing because such costs may not be imposed without affording the defendant notice and an opportunity to be heard. Martina v. State, 1D20-3776 (2/1/23)

VOP-HEARSAY: In VOP hearing, there is no per se rule that the State must always present independent, nonhearsay evidence establishing the identity of the probationer as the perpetrator of a new law offense. Non-hearsay evidence does not have to independently establish that Defendant committed the offenses that were the basis of the VOP. The hearsay statement of his ex girlfriend, (that Defendant had battered her) combined with non-hearsay evidence corroborating her statement (injuries, broken door, debris on stairs), was enough proof to sustain the probation revocation. Sims v. State, 1D21-869 (2/1/23)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: A defendant who pleads nolo contendere with no express reservation of the right to appeal a legally dispositive issue shall have no right to a direct appeal. There is no fundamental-error exception to the preservation requirement. Brown v. State, 1D21-3233 (2/1/23)

APPEAL-COUNSEL-CONFLICT: Public Defender's motion to withdraw from representing Defendant on appeal (he had been represented by Regional Counsel at trial), alleging that one of the PD's lawyers at some time in the past had represented a witness who then testified for the State at Defendant's trial, is legally insufficient. §27.5303 requires certification that during the representation of two or more defendants, the interests of those accused are so adverse or hostile that either all or none of them can be counseled by the public defender without conflict of interest. Fla. Bar Rule 4-1.16(a), which requires withdrawal where there is a substantial risk that the representation will be materially limited by a personal interest of the Assistant PD, is not implicated, and even if it were, such a conflict would not be imputed to the entire PD Office. Farmer v. State, 1D22-3273 (2/1/23)

APPEAL-COUNSEL-CONFLICT: A motion to withdraw filed in appellate court must do more than simply recite the fact that there was a conflict in the trial court proceeding. The motion should either describe the APD's personal conflict and how that conflict would materially limit her handling of the client's criminal appeal, or it should make specific averments directed to application of one of the imputable conflicts identified in rules 4-1.7 and 4-1.9. VETERAN'S COURT: The decision to charge and prosecute is an executive function, and the state attorney has complete discretion in deciding whether and how to prosecute. DEFINITION- "JURISDICTION": The word "jurisdiction" ordinarily refers to subject matter or personal jurisdiction, but there is a third meaning--case jurisdiction--which involves the power of the court over a particular case that is within its subject matter jurisdiction. APPEAL-CONTEMPT: A finding of contempt absent the imposition of sanctions is not appealable. A contempt order must be accompanied by a noncontingent sanction to be directly appealable. In Re: Grand Jury Subpoena, FGJ-21-01-MIA (1th Cir. 1/31/23)

DEATH PENALTY-LETHAL INJECTION: Defendant fails in his claim that the medication gabapentin had reduced his brain's receptiveness to sedatives, and that lethal injection as a means of execution is cruel and unusual because he failed to plausibly allege that no alternative injection procedure could constitutionally be performed. So, we reverse in part, affirm in part, and remand for further proceedings. Nance v. Commissioner, Georgia DOC, No. 20-11393 (11th Cir. 1/30/23)

LESSER INCLUDED: Jury instructions on category two permissive lesser-included offenses must be given when the pleadings and the evidence demonstrate that the lesser offense is included in the offense charged. DETAINER: A detainer is an informal request filed by a criminal justice agency asking the institution where the prisoner is incarcerated either to hold the prisoner for the agency or to notify the agency when release of the prisoner is imminent. Generally, under such circumstances, a prisoner is not in custody pursuant to the detainer except when the prisoner is subject to release but is being held because a detainer has been lodged. VOP-SENTENCING CONSIDERATIONS: The bright line rule that a trial court may not consider a subsequent arrest without conviction during sentencing does not apply to VOP proceedings. A trial court's decision on a VOP is properly informed by a com lete understanding of the Defendant's behavior under supervision. SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVELY UNREASONABLE-SUPERVISED RELEASE: Courts should consider the §3553(a)(2)(A) factors when imposing a prison sentence after revoking supervised release. USA v. King, No. 21-12963 (11th Cir. 1/23/23)

SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVELY UNREASONABLE-SUPERVISED RELEASE: A district court imposes a substantively unreasonable sentence when it (1) fails to afford consideration to relevant §3553(a) factors that were due significant weight, (2) gives significant weight to an improper or irrelevant factor, or (3) commits a clear error of judgment in considering the proper factors. Although a major variance should be supported by a more significant justification than a minor variation, a sentence outside of the prescribed guideline range is not presumed to be unreasonable. A 3 year sentence upon violation of supervised release where the guideline recommendation is 6-10 months it is not substantively unreasonable. USA v. King, No. 21-12963 (11th Cir. 1/23/23)

APPEAL-ISSUE-PRESERVATION: Any issue that an appellant wants the Court to address should be specifically and clearly identified in the brief under an appropriate heading and in the statement of issues presented for review. USA v. King, No. 21-12963 (11th Cir. 1/23/23)

SENTENCING CONSIDERATIONS-REHABILITATION: A court may not impose or lengthen a prison sentence to enable an offender to complete a treatment program or otherwise to promote rehabilitation. USA v. King, No. 21-12963 (11th Cir. 1/23/23)

APPEAL-ISSUE-PRESERVATION-REHABILITATION: Appellant may not argue on appeal that a sentence is not substantively reasonable because the court improperly ordered incarceration to ensure rehabilitation where that specific grounds was not articulated in the statement of issues. WEIRD WORD #2: "freewheelingness" Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

MISTAKEN IDENTITY-WRONGFUL DETENTION: An individual detained for three days based on mistaken identity for a valid arrest warrant has no claim for relief under the Fourteenth Amendment for his over-detention. Regardless of whether errors are made, the Fourteenth Amendment is not a constitutional bulwark against a few-days detention. Even though the Due Process Clause affords protections to people deprived of their liberty, those protections do not extend to people with the same name as a person for whom there exists an arrest warrant, regardless of differences in the physical descriptions. Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

PRECEDENT: "If we treated every factual distinction with a precedential decision as necessarily material, the doctrine of precedent would lose most of its function. . .Judges would be freed from the requirement that they apply the law, so long as they could unearth any factual discrepancy between binding caselaw and the case they wanted to decide a different way." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

QUALIFIED IMMUNITY (J. J0RDAN, CONCURRING): "[T]he Supreme Court's governing (and judicially-created) qualified immunity jurisprudence is far removed from the principles existing in the early 1870s, when Congress enacted what is now 42 U.S.C. § 1983. . .If federal statutes are supposed to be interpreted according to ordinary public meaning and understanding at the time of enactment,. . . and if §1983 preserved common-law immunities existing at the time of its enactment,. . . the qualified immunity doctrine we have today is regrettable. Hopefully one day soon the Supreme Court will see fit to correct it." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

WRONGFUL DETENTION (J. J0RDAN, CONCURRING): "David Sosa must have felt like he had been dropped into a Kafka novel, for 'without having done anything truly wrong, he was arrested.' . . . What happened to Sosa was, in a word, awful." But. . . Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

SUBSTANTIVE DUE PROCESS/PRIVILEGES AND IMMUNITIES (J. J0RDAN, CONCURRING): "Substantive due process is a slippery, shape-shifting doctrine. It can take on any of a number of different forms. In what is, I suppose, its most conventional instantiation, it's the method by which the Supreme Court has gradually 'incorporated' most of the substantive protections of the Bill of Rights against the states through the Fourteenth Amendment's Due Process Clause. . . Some observers—including me—have criticized the Court's reliance on substantive due process even for that limited purpose and have urged it to refocus its attention on the long-lost Privileges or Immunities Clause." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23)

SUBSTANTIVE DUE PROCESS (J. J0RDAN, CONCURRING): "[S]ubstantive due process has (too) often been invoked as a failsafe doctrine of sorts—a way to plug some perceived gap in the written Constitution and thereby rectify some alleged unfairness that the document's terms, for one reason or another, just don't address. 'Surely,' the thinking goes, 'the Constitution doesn't permit _____!'. . .I'm a confessed (and longtime) skeptic of substantive due process—in all its various forms. . .[S]ubstantive due process has no footing in constitutional text. Quite the contrary, in fact, it makes a hash of the provision from which it purportedly emanates." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

SUBSTANTIVE DUE PROCESS (J. J0RDAN, CONCURRING): "I'd be game for ditching substantive due process altogether and exploring what I think to be more promising—and principled—vehicles for protecting individual rights against state interference. Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

SUBSTANTIVE DUE PROCESS (J. J0RDAN, CONCURRING): "So, to be clear, while substantive due process is bad on its best day, this case represents the doctrine at 'its abject worst.' . . .We're. . .being asked to use substantive due process as a constitutional gap-filler—to hold, in essence, that because what happened to David Sosa was unfair, it must violate the Constitution." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

SUBSTANTIVE DUE PROCESS (J. J0RDAN, CONCURRING): Not everything that stinks violates the Constitution." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

INJUSTICE (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): Everyone agrees that David Sosa is an innocent man. . . Yet police officers arrested and detained him in jail on a warrant for another man. . .[D]espite good reason to believe they had arrested the wrong man,. . .officials refused to confirm Sosa's. . .Faced with this sequence of events, my colleagues in the Majority wring their hands and say too bad for Sosa but insist the Constitution allows it. . . According to these judges, no constitutional violation occurs until the detained person's speedy-trial rights are violated—that is, about a year or more later. . .A year in jail! And for no reason other than that law-enforcement officials refused to engage in less than a minute of work to confirm their prisoner's identity. This misguided view of the Constitution is horrifying." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

INJUSTICE (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): "[T]he warrant on which Sosa was arrested was 26 years old, from halfway across the country, and sought a person with a name thousands of people shared. On top of all this—and this is the kicker—Sosa also informed the deputies that the Martin County Sheriff's Office had previously mistakenly arrested him on the same wanted Sosa's warrant. Let that sink in: The Martin County Sheriff's Office had already made this same mistake once before. Despite this sea of urgently waving red flags signaling that Sosa was unlikely the wanted, allegedly crack-cocaine-trafficking Sosa, the deputies did nothing. . .So there Sosa sat." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

QUOTATION (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): "[T]he Constitution does not have an aircraft-carrier-sized loophole in its guarantee that no person shall be deprived of their liberty without due process of law." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

DICTA (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): "[T]here is dicta and then there is dicta, and then there is Supreme Court dicta." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

PROBABLE CAUSE (J. ROSENBAUM, DISSENTING): "At the risk of stating the obvious, if only probable cause to believe that a crime was committed were required for an arrest, anyone could be arrested, without respect to who committed the crime." Sosa v. Martin County, No. 20-12781 (11th Cir. 1/20/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012781.enb.pdf

MOTION TO DISMISS: Generally speaking, a claim that the indictment fails to state an offense must be asserted in a pre-trial motion, but a defendant may assert for the first time on appeal under the plain error doctrine that the indictment against him failed to charge federal offenses. MEDICARE FRAUD: Testing which uses DNA sequencing to detect mutations in genes that could indicate a higher risk of developing certain kinds of cancer in the future, but do not actually test for cancer are not Medicare reimbursable. Defendant is properly convicted of Medicare fraud for billing for such tests. USA v. Scott, No. 21-11467 (11th Cir. 1/20/23)

RACKETEERING: Illegal harvesting of alligator eggs is not a proper predicate offense for racketeering (NOTE: statute has now been amended to encompass this crime), but the RICO conspiracy statute proscribes a defendant's agreement to participate in the conduct of the affairs of an enterprise, not a defendant's agreement to commit predicate acts. PREEMPTION: Fla. Stat. §379.3751(4) (a misdemeanor) does not preempt §379.409 (a felony). It is not unusual for a course of criminal conduct to violate laws that overlap yet vary in their penalties. Typically, preemption applies to a federal statute preempting a state statute or a state law preempting a local ordinance. Beasley v. State, 2D19-4257 (1/20/23)

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Defendant's role as a farmhand (a "helper" and a "worker bee") in an illegal alligtor harvesting conspiracy supports a downward departure as a minor paricipant. Beasley v. State, 2D19-4257 (1/20/23)

PRETRIAL HEARING: Court may nor proceed on VOP hearing while a motion to suppress is pending. Fla.R.Cr.P. 3.190(g)(3) requires the trial court to consider a motion to suppress evidence before hearing evidence. If the motion was not filed prior to trial, the trial court may entertain the motion or an appropriate objection at the trial. But counsel here acquiesced to proceeding with the hearing. Walker v. State, 2D21-2675 (1/20/23)

of special concern (VFOSC) without making written findings as to whether or not Defendant poses a danger to the community, and where Court's oral findings did not match any of the factors listed in §948.06(8)(e)1. Walker v. State, 2D21-2675 (1/20/23)

STAND YOUR GROUND-CERTIORARI: An order summarily denying a motion asserting SYG immunity is reviewable by certiorari. Certiorari relief is appropriate SYG proceeding or the trial court's ruling is flawed by legal error. Jimenez v. State, 2D22-1792 (1/20/23)

STAND YOUR GROUND-CERTIORARI: Under §776.012(2), a defendant who is engaged in unlawful activity has a duty to retreat and must use all reasonable means in his power, consistent with his own safety, before his use of deadly force will be justified. Defendant who was carrying a concealed firearm (unlawful activity) is nonetheless entitled to a SYG hearing the motion alleged that circumstances precluded any ability to retreat. That additional allegation entitled Defendant to an evidentiary hearing Jimenez v. State, 2D22-1792 (1/20/23)

CAREER OFFENDER-INCHOATE OFFENSE: Conspiracy to possess with intent to distribute a controlled substance does not qualify as a "controlled substance offense," a predicate offense for the career offender sentencing enhancement. The definition of "controlled substance offense" in §4B1.2(b) does not include inchoate offenses, notwithstanding Application Note 1. Prior precedents overruled. USA v. Dupree, No. 19-13776 (11th Cir. 1/18/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913776.enbanc.pdf

INCHOATE OFFENSES: The three inchoate offenses are attempt, conspiracy, and solicitation. USA v. Dupree, No. 19-13776 (11th Cir. 1/18/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913776.enbanc.pdf

SENTENCING GUIDELINES-INTERPRETATION: The Commentary cannot expand the interpretation of unambiguous sentencing guidelines, Application Note 1 in §4B1.2(b), which seems to include conspiracy and attempts in the definition of "controlled substance offense," does not actually do so. The plain language definition of "controlled substance offense" in §4B1.2 unambiguously excludes inchoate offenses. USA v. Dupree, No. 19-13776 (11th Cir. 1/18/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913776.enbanc.pdf

TEXTUAL INTERPRETATION: Deference to an agency's construction of a rule provision, unless it is plainly erroneous and inconsistent with the regulation, suggests a caricature of the deference doctrine, in which deference is reflexive. Rather, a court should not afford deference unless the regulation is genuinely ambiguous; if uncertainty does not exist, there is no plausible reason for deference. The regulation then just means what it means. USA v. Dupree, No. 19-13776 (11th Cir. 1/18/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913776.enbanc.pdf

FOOTNOTE: Discussion of weight to be given footnotes. "Our . . . colleagues point out that the footnote appeared in a section of the opinion that did not garner a majority. . They are correct about that, but they misread our observation about the footnote." USA v. Dupree, No. 19-13776 (11th Cir. 1/18/23)

STARE DECISIS (J. GRANT, CONCURRING): "I understand why our Court and others have thought it necessary to at least consider whether Stinson's deferential posture to the Guidelines commentary still holds after Kisor. But in answering that question, we should not—cannot—rewrite the precedents to better match our view of first principles or even to create a more coherent body of law . . .Our duty to faithfully apply precedent continues even when (some of) the reasoning for an old Supreme Court decision has been undermined by a new case." USA v. Dupree, No. 19-13776 (11th Cir. 1/18/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913776.enbanc.pdf

STARE DECISIS-VERTICAL-HORIZONTAL (J. GRANT, CONCURRING): "But a change to Stinson deference will be disruptive—perhaps extremely so. And that sort of disruption should be weighed by the Supreme Court as part of its horizontal stare decisis analysis, not invited by our own rejection of vertical stare decisis." USA v. Dupree, No. 19-13776 (11th Cir. 1/18/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913776.enbanc.pdf

PRECEDENT (J. GRANT, CONCURRING): "[T]oday's holding runs the risk of forcing a full-scale disruption of our Sentencing Guidelines caselaw. Virtually every case that has applied the commentary could be considered presumptively overruled. . .[I]t will be interesting to see whether and how we can avoid it. If the Supreme Court overrules Stinson and tells us to reassess all caselaw applying the commentary, then so be it." USA v. Dupree, No. 19-13776 (11th Cir. 1/18/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913776.enbanc.pdf

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913776.enbanc.pdf

STARE DECISIS (J.LUCK, DISSENTING): "The majority opinion has overturned and set aside Stinson without using the o-word or a-word. But an abrogation by any other name is still an abrogation." USA v. Dupree, No. 19-13776 (11th Cir. 1/18/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913776.enbanc.pdf

TRANSITIVE PROPERTY: "[T]he majority opinion uses the transitive property to find that the Kisor clarification applies to Stinson. 'Stinson' adopted Seminole Rock's formulation of agency deference,' the majority opinion explains, '[s]o it follows that Kisor's clarification of Auer deference applies to the [g]uidelines and its commentary.'. . .In other words, because X relied on Y, and Y has been clarified by Z, then X must also have been clarified by Z. USA v. Dupree, No. 19-13776 (11th Cir. 1/18/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913776.enbanc.pdf

SENTENCE-REASONS: A sentence is procedurally unreasonable if the district court fails to adequately explain the sentence, including any variance from the guidelines range. The court is required at the time of sentencing to state in open court the reasons for its imposition of the particular sentence. If the sentence is within the guidelines range and exceeds 24 months, the court must state the reason for imposing a sentence at a particular point within the range. And if the sentence is outside the guidelines range, the court must not only state the specific reasons for the variance in open court but must also state those reasons with specificity in a statement of reasons form. Upward variance based on Defendant's education, ability, and background in to stealing money from a national benevolence is not procedurally nor substantively unreasonable. USA v. Oudomsine, No. 22-10924 (11th Cir. 1/18/23)

POKEMON: Defendant fails on claim that Court varied upward from the sentencing guidelines because the judge did not like him because he spent $57,789 to buy a single Pokémon card with stolen money. There is nothing in the record to support the proposition that the judge did not "like him" — whatever that means in this context. But it would not be surprising, or disqualifying, if a judge did not "like" a person who defrauded a federal program of funds intended to promote the public good and help small businesses, particularly when the stolen funds were used for the purpose of purchasing a $57,789 Pokémon card. ZOOM: VOP sentencing during COVID lockdown violated Due Process where Court did not balance the parties' competing interests but rather said that there was nothing"unique about this case that requires an in person sentencing" and Defendant was "in the same position as anyone else. . . accused of violating their probation." ZOOM (J. GORDO, CONCURRING): "The crux of the recurring ill in my view is that courts throughout the pandemic have equated virtual presence with that of physical presence. . .[C]ommon sense understanding of remote technology and social media interactions demonstrates the depersonalizing aspects of acting or speaking via a remote box at a significant distance from the individual being affected. It is far more impactful to be in the physical presence of an individual and pronounce a curtailment of their rights as opposed to doing so in their virtual presence—which is often merely an image of their face appearing in some box on a screen.. . .The question is NOT—what is special or important about this defendant or his case. . . PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: Defendant may not be sentenced as a PRR absent evidence in the record of each case admitted into the record. ZOOM-SENTENCING: Defendant generally has a due process right to be physically present in the courtroom at the sentencing hearing upon revocation of probation. In all prosecutions for crime the defendant must be present at the imposition of sentence. Error is not fundamental, but where objected to, the issue is preserved snd re-sentencing is required. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-LESSER INCLUDED: Counsel was not ineffective for moving for all lesser includeds notwithstanding that the lesser of second degree murder with a firearm (second degree murder without a firearm) carried the same potential life sentence, which was ultimately imposed. Defendant's argument that any benefit was illusory fails because it ignores the difference between a mandatory sentence and a maximum sentence, and relies on the benefit of hindsight (assuming foreknowledge of the sentence imposed). SENTENCING ENHANCEMENT/RECLASSIFICATION: A sentencing enhancement is not an element of an offense. HABEAS CORPUS: Federal court may not grant habeas relief where state court has already found the claim to be procedurally barred, here as untimely and successive. An application for a federal writ of habeas corpus must be denied if the applicant has not exhausted the remedies available in the courts of the State. And if the state courts deny the claim based on a state procedural rule that is independent of federal law, the claim is procedurally defaulted and federal courts ordinarily cannot grant relief. ATTEMPT-PRODUCTION OF CHILD PORN: Defendant who asked online (on otherwise-wholesome mom-blog sites) for mothers to contribute sexually explicit images of their young daughters for his private collection is properly convicted of attempted child pornography. A defendant's desire alone—wholly without respect to his likelihood of success—can establish his intent. "[T]he sheer unlikelihood that Moran's requests to the mom-bloggers would result in the production of child pornography does not negate his desire—and thus his intent—to produce child pornography." RESTITUTION: Court may not designate to the probation department the formulation of a payment schedule for restitution. Generally, unless otherwise provided by the court, restitution is payable immediately. Setting a restitution payment schedule is a nondelegable judicial task. Gibson-Capo v. SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS: Court may not consider Defendant's post-plea conduct (here, sending threatening messages to the victim and her father) in determining the sentence. But where there is no indication that the Court relied on the improper considerations, the sentence stands. "Had the trial court relied upon impermissible factors, we would expect more onerous punishments [than probation]." Mercado v. State, 2D21-3444 (1/13/22)

JURY TRIAL-WAIVER: A valid waiver of a criminal defendant's right to a jury trial requires either a written waiver signed by the defendant or the defendant's oral waiver after a proper colloquy with the trial judge. Evans v. State, 2D21-3450 (1/13/23)

FILING FALSE LIEN-REHEARING EN BANC: Earlier opinion, holding that 18 U.S.C. §1521 makes it illegal to file a false lien against the property of a federal officer or employee because of something he did as part of his official duties, is vacated pending en banc review. APPEAL-PUBLIC DEFENDER-DESIGNATION OF RECORD: The attorney of record for a defendant shall not be relieved of any professional duties, or be permitted to withdraw as defense counsel of record until complying with R. 9.140(d)(1), which includes taking any steps to have the appellant's trial transcribed. But the public defender may not refuse its designation as appellate counsel based on trial counsel's failure to complete his duties under R. 9.140(d)(1). "[A] motion to refuse designation is not a proper motion in this court. Designation is a matter of concern between the public defenders and not one for this court. All we need is a notice of appearance from counsel who will be representing the appellant in this case." Washington v. State, 1D22-2358 (1/11/23)

RIOTING-QUESTION CERTIFIED: 11th Circuit certifies to the Florida Supreme Court the following question of law: What meaning is to be given to the provision of Florida Stat. §870.01(2) making it unlawful to "willfully participate[] in a violent public disturbance involving an assembly of three or persons, acting with a common intent to assist each other in violent and disorderly conduct, resulting in . . . [i]njury to another person; . . . [d]amage to property; . . . or [i]mminent danger of injury to another person or damage to property."? Dream Defenders v. Governor, No. 21-13489 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113489.cert.pdf

RIOTING-QUESTION CERTIFIED: The question of the meaning of "riot" under §870.01(2), a statute designed to crack down on protests of police brutality against racial minorities, is certified to the Florida Supreme Court as a preliminary step in federal review of the constitutionality of the statute. Certification is appropriate to avoid the risk of friction that may arise when a federal court endeavors to construe a novel state law in the first instance. Dream Defenders v. Governor, No. 21-13489 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113489.cert.pdf

CERTIFICATION TO STATE COURT: "Certification in this circumstance allows us to avoid the friction that could arise if we, as a federal court, addressed the merits of the plaintiffs' pre-enforcement constitutional challenge without first giving the Florida Supreme Court an opportunity to interpret its State's law." Dream Defenders v. Governor, No. 21-13489 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113489.cert.pdf

FIRST AMENDMENT-VAGUENESS: Under due-process principles, a law is void for vagueness if its prohibitions are not clearly defined. Unconstitutionally vague laws fail to provide 'air warning of what the law requires, and they encourage arbitrary and discriminatory enforcement by giving government officials the sole ability to interpret the scope of the law. The First Amendment context amplifies these concerns because an unconstitutionally vague law can chill expressive conduct by causing citizens to steer far wider of the unlawful zone to avoid the law's unclear boundaries. Dream Defenders v. Governor, No. 21-13489 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113489.cert.pdf

FIRST AMENDMENT-OVERBREADTH: A statute is overly broad if it punishes a substantial amount of protected free speech, judged in relation to the statute's plainly legitimate sweep. A] statute found to be overbroad is totally forbidden until and unless a limiting construction or partial invalidation so narrows it as to remove the seeming threat or deterrence to constitutionally protected expression. Dream Defenders v. Governor, No. 21-13489 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113489.cert.pdf

RIOTING-QUESTIONS: Fla. Stat. §870.01(2), which bars a person from "willfully participat[ing] in a violent public disturbance" leaves open key questions: What is required for willful participation? And what kind of conduct constitutes the "violent public disturbance" in which a rioter participates? What is the mens rea required for a conviction for rioting? To be guilty of rioting does a person also need to share the common intent to assist in violent and disorderly conduct? Or can a person outside of the assembly, who does not share that common intent, nonetheless commit the crime? Are the counter-protestors part of the assembly? Have they created a violent public disturbance? Dream Defenders v. Governor, No. 21-13489 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)

FIRST AMENDMENT-SHIFTY-TWISTIFICATION-RIOTING: "Governor DeSantis's view has shifted during the litigation. In the district court, he initially agreed with Sheriff Williams that the statutory definition simply 'mirror[ed]' the common law. . .But he later changed his view and disclaimed that 'the [L]egislature was . . . simply trying to mirror the common law.'. . .Now, Governor DeSantis says that HB 1 'narrow[ed]' the definition of 'riot' and made it 'more specific' than the common law definition." Dream Defenders v. Governor, No. 21-13489 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)

DEFINITION- "TUMULTUOUS"-"VIOLENT": "Governor DeSantis's position that §870.01(2) narrowed the common-law definition of 'riot' rests on the assumption that there is a distinction between a 'tumultuous' disturbance of the peace. . .and a 'violent' one. . .[H]e provides no example of a public disturbance that would be tumultuous but not violent." Dream Defenders v. Governor, No. 21-13489 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)

CRIME OF VIOLENCE-ROBBERY BY INTIMIDATION: Georgia's robbery by intimidation law is a crime of violence within the meaning of §4B1.2 of the Sentencing Guidelines. USA v. Harrison, No. 21-14514 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202114514.pdf

CRIME OF VIOLENCE-ROBBERY BY INTIMIDATION: Georgia's robbery

statute is divisible. Robbery by intimidation is a standalone offense—not a means by which to commit robbery. Therefore, The modified categorical approach to robbery by intimidation is applied. USA v. Harrison, No. 21-14514 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202114514.pdf

CATEGORICAL APPROACH: Under the categorical approach, Court does not look to the specific conduct underlying the defendant's conviction, but rather to the elements of the statute of conviction and determines if the least of the acts criminalized qualifies as a crime of violence. If it does not, a conviction under the statute cannot qualify as a crime of violence. But if a statute is divisible, i.e., listing multiple, alternative elements, and so effectively creating several different crimes, the modified approach is employed, whereby the Court looks to a limited class of documents to determine the offense underlying a defendant's prior conviction. A statute is divisible when the alternatives it lists are elements as opposed to means. USA v. Harrison, No. 21-14514 (11th Cir. 1/10/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202114514.pdf

DNA-TESTING: A trial court does not err in denying a motion for DNA testing where the defendant cannot show that there is a reasonable probability that the absence or presence of DNA at a crime scene would exonerate him or lessen his sentence. Robinson v. State, 5D22-2023 (1/10/23)
https://www.5dca.org/content/download/857645/opinion/222023_DC05_01102023_100957_i.pdf

COMPETENCY: Defendant cannot be deemed to have been found competent where "the record is contradictory and unclear whether defense counsel was present at the competency hearing or whether both parties agreed that the trial court could decide the issue of competency based solely on the expert's written report. "On this record, it is impossible to tell whether the trial court truly made an independent determination of competency."

Washington v. State, 2D21-1984 (1/6/23)
https://www.2dca.org/content/download/857400/opinion/211984_NOND_01062023_080939_i.pdf

JURY-HURRICANE: Court does not err in discharging an entire jury panel after selection but before the jury is sworn where an intervening hurricane caused a delay in the trial and not all of the original jurors would have been available for the re-scheduled trial. A defendant only has the right to have his case decided by a particular jury once jeopardy attaches. USA v. Downs, No. 21-10809 (11th Cir. 1/6/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110809.pdf

CHILD PORN-PRODUCTION: The act of transferring pornographic photos from a cell phone to hard drive can constitute the production of pornography. The production statute's use of tthe term "producing" means that it should be understood to reach the act of transferring. Producing child pornography encompasses copying images onto a hard drive. USA v. Downs, No. 21-10809 (11th Cir. 1/6/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110809.pdf

CHILD PORN-INTERSTATE COMMERCE: If the transfer of the photos to the hard drive constitutes the required production (it does), and if the hard drives were manufactured overseas, then the necessary nexus exists between the production and interstate commerce. USA v. Downs, No. 21-10809 (11th Cir. 1/6/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110809.pdf

JOA-FACTUAL IMPOSSIBILITY: Where Victim testified that Defendant took photos of her in a state of undress using a "flip phone," but in fact the photos were taken with a non-flip phone ("a Samsung SCH-S738C isn't a flip phone and can't be confused with one."). "Using a flip- (or non-flip-) phone doesn't make the production of child pornography impossible. . . At worst, that's a factual ambiguity, not a factual impossibility. USA v. Downs, No.

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110809.pdf

APPEAL-CLEMENCY-DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Appellate court lacks jurisdiction to decide whether a president's grant of clemency bars further prosecution on counts on which the jury the jury hung because the hung counts were not the basis of a final judgment. With limited exceptions, appellate court only reviews final judgments. The hung counts were not part of the basis of the sentence, so they are not part of any judgment which the appellate court has jurisdiction to review. USA v. Esformes, No. 19-13838 (11th Cir. 1/6/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913838.pdf

DISMISSAL: Dismissal of the indictment is not warranted where Government intercepted and did not adequately screen intercepted attorney client communications between Defendant and his attorney, particularly where those communications were not used at trial. Without demonstrable prejudice, dismissal of an indictment is inappropriate in the case of even the most egregious prosecutorial misconduct. USA v. Esformes, No. 19-13838 (11th Cir. 1/6/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913838.pdf

PROSECUTOR-CONFLICT OF INTEREST: Prosecutor's professional interest in avoiding sanctions from the district court do not disqualify her as an "interested prosecutor." A prosecutor who exercises her constitutional right to protect her professional reputation does not disqualify herself from further proceedings by that same act. If self-defense of that sort were enough to require recusal, any accused could disqualify his prosecutors by accusing them of misconduct. USA v. Esformes, No. 19-13838 (11th Cir. 1/6/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913838.pdf

CONFLICT OF INTEREST-ADVOCATE/WITNESS RULE: Prosecutor does not violate the rule that advocates may not testify in a case by testifying at the hearing to disqualify her. Prosecutor was not a "witness" in the sense governed by the advocate-witness rule. USA v. Esformes, No. 19-13838 (11th Cir. 1/6/23)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913838.pdf

EXPERT TESTIMONY: Court did not err in allowing expert testimony without definitively ruling on the Government's Daubert motion. There is no categorical rule that the trial court must never allow the jury to hear an expert's testimony before ruling on it, nor one which constrains the district court's discretion. Neither the Federal Rules of Evidence nor case law categorically require the district court to prevent the jury from hearing evidence that has not yet been admitted. USA v. Esformes, No. 19-13838 (11th Cir. 1/6/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913838.pdf

EXPERT-ADMISSIBILITY (J. GRANT, CONCURRING): Although the court did not reversibly err by deferring its Daubert ruling until after the jury had heard the witness's testimony, as a general matter, a wait-and-see approach to admissibility for expert testimony is fraught with risk. "[A]s the majority notes, 'there is no authority for that categorical rule of law.'. . .True enough. But there is also no authority for the inverse point—that a district court can wait until the conclusion of an expert's testimony to a jury before it rules on admissibility. Instead, precedent suggests that waiting to qualify expert witnesses until after their testimony is usually misguided." USA v. Esformes, No. 19-13838 (11th Cir. 1/6/23)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913838.pdf

MONEY LAUNDERING: Although transactions that are engaged in for present personal benefit, and not to create the appearance of legitimate wealth do not constitute money laundering, those transactions can constitute money laundering if they are unusually structured to disguise the source of the funds. Purposeful concealment of the proceeds of Medicare fraud can be money laundering. USA v. Esformes, No. 19-13838 (11th Cir. 1/6/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913838.pdf

MONEY LAUNDERING: Using shell accounts to pay for limousines, female companions for the Defendant, and to bribe the University of Pennsylvania basketball coach can be money laundering. USA v. Esformes, No. 19-13838 (11th Cir. 1/6/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913838.pdf

FORFEITURE: The right to a jury verdict on forfeitability does not fall within the Sixth Amendment's constitutional protection. The criminal jury may calculate the forfeitability of specific property and the judge may calculate a lump-sum money judgment. USA v. Esformes, No. 19-13838 (11th Cir. 1/6/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201913838.pdf

MENS REA-GOOD FAITH-JURY INSTRUCTION: Jury instruction which failed to advise that good faith is a defense to the charge of prescribing drugs outside the usual course of professional practice. The "usual course of professional practice" prong must be evaluated using a subjective, not an objective, standard. §841(a)'s scienter provision (requiring the defendant to act "knowingly or intentionally") applies not only to the statute's actus reus—here dispensing—but also to the "except as authorized" exception. Thus, to obtain a conviction under this section, the government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that a defendant (1) knowingly or intentionally dispensed a controlled substance; and (2) knowingly or intentionally did so in an unauthorized manner. USA v. Ruan, No. 17-12653 (11th Cir. 1/5/23) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201712653.rem.pdf

MENS REA-GOOD FAITH-JURY INSTRUCTION: "The government argues that our cases have conceptually linked 'good faith' and 'knowledge' in the past, and that this instruction gave the 'functional equivalent of a knowledge instruction.' But, at best, even if the concepts are linked, good faith is an imprecise proxy for knowledge." USA v. Ruan, No. 17-12653 (11th Cir. 1/5/23)

RULES-AMENDMENT-DELINQUENCY-DETENTION: Rule 8.013 is amended to require that all motions to extend supervised release detention be in writing, and that if a child is placed on supervised release detention prior to an adjudicatory hearing, a court must conduct a hearing within 15 days of the 60th day of detention. In Re: Amendments to Florida Rules of Juvenile Procedure 8.013 and 8.350, SC22-1674 (1/5/23)

PLEA AGREEMENT-ENFORCEMENT: Where the Defendant's plea agreement provided that in the event of a violation of probation, The defendant would be sentenced to no fewer than 10 years in prison and would not file a motion to mitigate, Court erred, upon the Defendant violating his probation, in imposing the 10 year sentence but then mitigating it to a shorter term of imprisonment. A plea agreement is a contract and the rules of contract law are applicable to plea agreements. Court had no authority or discretion to impose a mitigated or reduced sentence in light of the express terms of the original plea agreement. State v. Rojas, 3D21-1018 (1/4/23)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-FORFEITURE: To establish probable cause for a search warrant, the supporting affidavit must demonstrate a reasonable probability, based on the totality of the circumstances, that evidence of a crime will be found at the place to be searched at the time of the search. Whether probable cause exists must be determined from the four corners of the affidavit. Affidavit for a search warrant is legally insuffiient where officer's training and experience was in road patrol, SWAT operations, and narcotics investigations—not racketeering, bookmaking, or money laundering investigations. Zarcadoolas v. Tony, Sheriff, 4D21-2227 (1/4/23) https://www.4dca.org/content/download/857230/opinion/212227_DC13_01042023_095526_i.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-FORFEITURE: Affidavit which relied on anonymous tips and confidential, reliable sources without demonstrating any basis to conclude that those sources were knowledgeable and reliable is legally insufficient. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-FORFEITURE: Affidavit for search warrant is legally insufficient where the allegations are too stale to establish probable cause to believe that evidence of racketeering, bookmaking, and money laundering offenses would be found in the home at the time of the search (three month lapse in time). Zarcadoolas v. Tony, Sheriff, 4D21-2227 (1/4/23) https://www.4dca.org/content/download/857230/opinion/212227_DC13_01042023_095526_i.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-FORFEITURE: Search warrant is unlawful where the affidavit was written as if the affiant been directly involved in the investigation and had the necessary training and experience to evaluate the results of the investigation and develop probable cause when in fact another officer draft of the affidavit and did all the things attributed to the affiant.

Evidence seized pursuant to a search warrant must be suppressed if the affidavit in support of the search warrant contained false statements made knowingly and intentionally or with reckless disregard for the truth, or omitted facts with intent to deceive or with reckless disregard for whether the facts should have been revealed, and (2) the false statements were necessary to the finding of probable cause, or the omitted facts would have defeated the finding of probable cause. Zarcadoolas v. Tony, Sheriff, 4D21-2227 (1/4/23)

FORFEITURE: A forfeiture proceeding consists of two stages: (1) the probable cause stage, where the seizing agency must establish probable cause to believe that the property at issue has been used in violation of the Forfeiture Act in order to justify the continued seizure of the property; and (2) the forfeiture trial, where the seizing agency must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the property has been used in violation of the Forfeiture Act, and must prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the owner knew or should have known that the property was being used in criminal activity, in order to obtain title to the property. FORFEITURE-STANDING: Sworn proof of a possessory or ownership interest is not required for standing in a forfeiture proceeding. At the probable cause stage, a person can show standing by establishing only that he or she possessed the property at the time it was seized; no proof of an ownership interest is required. FORFEITURE: Mere suspicion that Claimant is engaged in a scheme to launder and conceal the the cash proceeds from the organization's illegal bookmaking activity is not legally insufficient. SENTENCING-SCORESHEET-PRIORS: Defendant's prior grand theft convictions should be scored as such, rather than as misdemeanors, notwithstanding that the threshold between petty theft and grand theft was later raised, so that the thefts would have been misdemeanors at the time of the new offense. Because Defendant's grand theft convictions were classified as third-degree felonies at the time of his 2017 convictions, they were properly scored as felonies on the scoresheet. Johnson v. POST-CONVICTION RELIEF (J. WARNER, DISSENT): Defendant should be afforded a hearing on allegations that counsel was ineffective for failing to apprise defendant of the overwhelming strength of the State's case before he rejected a favorable plea offer. Smith v. State, 4D22-1074 (1/4/23)

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL: Attorney may not withdraw from representation upon an assertion of "irreconcilable conflict of interest"; reasons for withdrawal are required by R. 2.505(f)(1). Schluck v. State, 1D22-1380 (1/4/23)

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL: §27.5303(1)(e) requires the public defender to apply the standards contained in the Uniform Standards for Use in Conflict of Interest Cases (see Appendix to opinion.) Schluck v. State, 1D22-1380 (1/4/23)

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL: Unmerited motions to withdraw impose an unjustified burden on the public and can harm the client, who may waive any alleged conflict. And unless there is an actual conflict of interest, no waiver is even required. Schluck v. State, 1D22-1380 (1/4/23) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/857258/opinion/221380_NOND_01042023_101548_i.pdf

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL: The following scenarios are not automatic grounds for conflict: 1) Client files a grievance against an attorney with The Florida Bar, 2) A conflict of interest was present in a closed case involving the client, 3) A victim or state witness has a friend or relative in the office, 4) A personal conflict exists between an assistant public defender and a client, 5) A witness supporting the defendant is a client or former client. Schluck v. State, 1D22-1380 (1/4/23) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/857258/opinion/221380_NOND_01042023_101548_i.pdf

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL: The Standards specifically provide that information that was obtained during an attorney-client relationship does not necessarily create a conflict if the information is equally available in the public record (e.g. the fact of a felony conviction). In addition, the possession of confidential information concerning a former client does not lead to a conflict if that information is irrelevant to the new matter. Schluck v. State, 1D22-1380 (1/4/23) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/857258/opinion/221380_NOND_01042023_101548_i.pdf

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL-APPEAL: The fact that the Public Defender had withdrawn from representing Defendant at trial does not preclude the Public Defender from representing him on appeal. Schluck v. State, 1D22-1380 (1/4/23) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/857258/opinion/221380_NOND_01042023_101548_i.pdf

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL: There is no conflict of interest because an attorney and client do not like each other, or because a client does not want to follow the attorney's advice (unless it involves perjury, or the commission of a future crime). Schluck v. State, 1D22-1380 (1/4/23) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/857258/opinion/221380_NOND_01042023_101548_i.pdf

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL: Attorney may not withdraw from representation due to a conflict based on an ethical duty to a current client without adequately specifying the nature and basis of the asserted conflict. Richardson v. State, 1D22-1743 (1/4/23) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/857259/opinion/221743_NOND_01042023_102214_i.pdf

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL-APPEAL: In case in which Defendant filed a motion to withdraw plea based on ineffective assistance of counsel (Public Defender) and also filed an appeal, Public Defender may not withdraw from representation where the motion to withdraw cites §27.5303(1)(a), which addresses withdrawal of counsel only during representation of two or more defendants when the interests of those defendants are adverse or hostile. Richardson v. State, 1D22-1743 (1/4/23) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/857259/opinion/221743_NOND_01042023_102214_i.pdf

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL: "Appellate counsel's contention that the entire Office of the Public Defender must be excluded because of the allegation against trial counsel. . .seems problematic." The motion must show trial counsel's alleged conflict of interest presents a significant risk of materially limiting the representation of the client by other lawyers in the Public Defender's Office. Whitfield v. State, 1D22-2129 (1/4/23) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/857260/opinion/222129_NOND_01042023_102705_i.pdf

APPEAL-STATE-TRAFFIC INFRACTION: State may appeal Court's ruling on a traffic infraction. Rule of appellate procedure that" [i]f a person is found to have committed an infraction. . ., he or she may appeal that finding to the circuit court does not use any limiting language such as "only a person." "Therefore, we conclude that if the circuit court has jurisdiction over a defendant's appeal in these matters, then it follows that the circuit court has jurisdiction over a State's appeal in these matters. Any other construction would lead to counterintuitive results." State v. Bin Islam, 2D21-17097 (12/30/22)

APPEAL-STATE-TRAFFIC INFRACTION (J. ATKINSON, DISSENT): To the extent that the State has any right to appeal an order dismissing a noncriminal infraction, DCA and not the circuit court, would have jurisdiction to hear such an appeal. State v. Bin Islam, 2D21-17097 (12/30/22)

APPEAL-STATE-TRAFFIC INFRACTION (J. ATKINSON, DISSENT): §318.16, providing that "a person [who] is found to have committed an infraction by the hearing official" may appeal to the circuit court does not allow the State to appeal to the Circuit Court. In context, the "person" is the accused. The opposite conclusion would be nonsensical: The State cannot be the "person" indicated in the statute who has been "found to have committed an infraction by the hearing official." No reader of the statute could reasonably conclude that the term "person" as used in §318.16(1) includes the State. State v. Bin Islam, 2D21-17097 (12/30/22)

APPEAL-TRAFFIC CITATIONS (J. ATKINSON, DISSENT): Appeals from orders rendered by a hearing officer are appealable to the circuit court, but when the hearing officer is a county judge, the appeal should go to the District Court of Appeal. State v. Bin Islam, 2D21-17097 (12/30/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-SCRIVENER'S ERROR: Where a written sentencing document fails to conform to an oral pronouncement, such an error is a scrivener's error that may be corrected as a ministerial act. State v. Johnson, 2D21-3220 (12/30/22)

COMPETENCY: Because an independent competency finding is a due-process right that cannot be waived once a reason for a competency hearing has surfaced, the trial court fundamentally erred in failing to make such a finding. Once a defendant's competency is called into question, a trial court must make an independent, legal determination that a defendant is competent to proceed, even if the defendant withdraws his notice of incompetence after being evaluated. Jones v. State, 5D22-757 (12/30/22

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-CERTIFIED QUESTION: For purposes of double jeopardy, does a sentence for multiple counts constitute a sentencing package, such that a defendant's challenge to the sentence for one count permits the trial court to reopen the sentence for another count to comply with the law or to effectuate the trial court's sentencing intent? Question certified. Phillips v. State, 2D22-758 (12/28/22)

HEARSAY-DRUG WEIGHT-PRESERVATION: Error, if any in admitting FDLE report on the weight of the controlled substances in Florida is harmless in light of the several unobjected-to statements offered by the investigating officer regarding the weight and nature of the controlled substances. HEARSAY-DRUG WEIGHT-PRESERVATION (DISSENT, J. COHEN): Testimony of two analysts who simply read the weights off of the reports generated by the original chemists is inadmissible hearsay. The testimony of the arresting agent related to the presumed weight, not the measured weight; the agent was never proffered as an expert as to the weight of the drugs, but ratheer was merely based on negotiations leading up to the sale of drugs. Mojicaphipps v. State, 5D21-2221 (12/22/22) https://www.5dca.org/content/download/856050/opinion/212221_DC05_12222022_083401_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE-RECANTATION: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim of newly discovered evidence where a witness recanted significant aspects of her trial testimony. DISCOVERY VIOLATION: Any Richardson violation is harmless where no reasonable probability exists that the defense was materially hindered in its trial preparation or strategy because of the discovery violation. Lane v. State, 1D21-3751 (12/21/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/855999/opinion/213751_DC05_12212022_122218_i.pdf

COSTS: Court may not impose $50 costs of investigation whereno agency requested them. Phillips v. State, 1D21-2431 (12/20/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/855888/opinion/212431_DC08_12202022_131543_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: When determining whether to grant a motion for postconviction relief based on a claim that the defendant has obtained newly discovered evidence, the defendant first must show that the evidence was not known to him, his attorney, or the trial court and could not have been discovered through the use of due diligence. Where some evidence supports the trial court's finding that the newly discovered evidence would not produce an acquittal upon retrial, Defendant is not entitled to relief. Court may reject testimony of a fellow inmate, 18 years later, that he saw some other dude commit the crime. Sinclair v. State, 1D22-25 (12/20/22)

DEATH PENALTY (J. THOMAS, concurring): "[T]he United States Supreme Court held in Kennedy v. Louisiana. . .that no matter howbrutal and dehumanizing a rapist victimizes a person, even a child, the states are not authorized to impose capital punishment for such heinous crimes. I reiterate my view that both of these decisions are wrong as they are not based on the text or the historical underpinnings of the Eighth Amendment. This case is just another sad example of why those decisions are also wrong based on any moral theory of punishment and justice." Lainhart v. State, 1D21-3832 (12/15/11)

JURY-12 PERSON (J. THOMAS, concurring): "Recently, Justice Gorsuch of the United States Supreme Court has opined that a criminal defendant, such as Appellant, is entitled to a twelve-person jury before he may be constitutionally convicted under the Sixth Amendment. . .In my view, the sovereign state of Florida. . .is . . .granted the flexible authority to rely on juries composed of six citizens . . .or eight. . .or any other number of jurors more than five." POST CONVICTION RELIEF-AEDPA: Under AEDPA, a federal court's review of a final state habeas decision is greatly circumscribed, and a federal habeas court cannot grant a state petitioner habeas relief on any claim that was adjudicated on the merits in state court unless the state court's adjudication of the claim: (1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or (2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-MAIL BOX RULE: Under the mailbox rule, the date that a motion is placed into the hands of prison officials for filing is the date that the motion is considered filed. Where Defemdant's photocopied motion shows that he handed the motion to prison officials for mailing within two years, it is timely. Byram v. State, 1D22-828 (12/14/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: In order to determine whether offenses occurred during a single criminal episode, courts look to whether there are multiple victims, whether the offenses occurred in multiple locations, and whether there has been a temporal break between offenses. Even minimal lapses in time can be sufficient for a defendant to form a new criminal intent between offenses. Aguilar v. State, 3D22-62 (12/14/22)

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE-UNSOPHISTICATED: Defendant is not eligible for a downward departure on the ground that the offenses were committed in an unsophisticated manner and were an isolated incident for which Defendant has shown remorse where co-Defendant broke into home with a burglary tool while Defendant waited in the vehicle and acted as a getaway driver. Unsophisticated means artless, simple, and not refined. State v. Anderson, 4D22-171 (12/14/22)

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE-ISOLATED INCIDENT: Where Defendant had three prior burglary convictions from three different years, his new burglary was not an isolated incident. State v. Anderson, 4D22-171 (12/14/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-AEDPA: State court's finding that Defendant failed to establish prejudice precludes federal habeas review of whether trial counsel's performance was deficient in investigating death penalty mitigation. Jennings v. Secretary, Fla. DOC, No. 21-11591 (12/13/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202111591.pdf

DEATH PENALTY: In Florida, in order for the jury to recommend a death sentence, the jury must unanimously find the existence of at least one aggravating factor and unanimously agree that the defendant should be sentenced to death. However, the jury's recommendation that the defendant be sentenced to death is still advisory, and the trial court may override the recommendation. Jennings v. Secretary, Fla. DOC, No. 21-11591 (12/13/22) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202111591.pdf

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT-SERIOUS DRUG OFFENSE: ACCA mandates a fifteen-year minimum sentence for a defendant who possesses a firearm and satisfies any of 18 U.S.C. §922(g)(1)'s conditions while having at least three qualifying previous convictions (a "violent felony or a serious drug offense, or both."). A "serious drug offense" is one "involving manufacturing, distributing, or possessing with intent to manufacture or distribute, a controlled substance (as defined in §102 of the Controlled Substances Act, with a maximum term of imprisonment of ten years or more. State v. Jackson, No. 21-S13963 (11th Cir. 12/13/22) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113963.op2.pdf

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT-SERIOUS DRUG OFFENSE: ACCA's "serious drug offense" definition incorporates the version of the controlled-substances list in effect when the defendant was convicted of his prior state drug offense, not the version in effect when he committed the new crime for which he is to be sentenced. The fact that ioflupane was included in the definitions for cocaine but excluded from the definition at the time of Defendant's later crime (the one for which he is to be sentenced now) does not save him from ACCA. Defendant is subject to ACCA sentencing, notwithstanding that ioflupane is no longer included in the definition of cocaine. State v. Jackson, No. 21-13963 (11th Cir. 12/13/22) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113963.op2.pdf

COMMENT: "Still, it is quite remarkable to expect the 'ordinary citizen,'. . .to understand the ins and outs of ACCA—especially when. . .they require historical research of the federal Controlled-substance schedules. State v. Jackson, No. 21-13963 (11th Cir. 12/13/22) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113963.op2.pdf

STARE DECISIS: Questions which merely lurk in the record, neither brought to the attention of the court nor ruled upon, are not to be considered as having been so decided as to constitute precedents. Assumptions are not holdings. State v. Jackson, No. 21-13963 (11th Cir. 12/13/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113963.op2.pdf

ARGUMENT: State's assertion that its witnesses were "honest," "straightforward," and "truthful" is not improper vouching or a personal opinion as to the credibility of the witnesses, but rather a conventional, unremarkable assertion that is well within the lawful scope of closing argument. Hamilton v. State, 1D21-2532 (12/12/22)
https://www.1dca.org/content/download/855170/opinion/212532_DC05_12122022_140653_i.pdf

CERTIORARI: To be entitled to a writ of certiorari, Petitioner must show that it will suffer irreparable harm, which means it has no adequate remedy on appeal. Irreparable harm is jurisdictional. Yeary, Public Defender v. Chief Judge, 1D21-2583 (12/8/22)
https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854795/opinion/212583_DA08_12082022_081332_i.pdf

CERTIORARI (J. TANENBAUM, CONCURRING): Certiorari may not be used to challenge an administrative policy (pre-bond mental health screenings). Further, appellate court has no jurisdiction over the administrative supervision. "This petition never should have been The public defender. . .asks this court to intervene in an apparent spat between her and the chief judge. . .by issuing a writ of certiorari. To a student of ancient prerogative writs, this attempted use of certiorari should seem silly." Yeary, Public Defender v. Chief Judge, 1D21-2583 (12/8/22)
https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854795/opinion/212583_DA08_12082022_081332_i.pdf

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-SILENCE OF DEFENDANT: A defendant's pre-arrest, pre-Miranda silence cannot be used against him as substantive evidence of consciousness of guilt. Prosecutor's comment that the Defendant walked away from the investigating officer showed consciousness of guilt was an improper comment on Defendant's silence. Counsel was deficient for failing to object, but prejudice is not shown because there no reasonable probability that, but for counsel's error, the result would have been different. Williams v. State, 1D22-1642 (12/8/22)
https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854797/opinion/221642_DC05_12082022_081747_i.pdf

BURGLARY: The statutory definition of dwelling encompasses the statutory definition of structure. If it is a dwelling, it is also a structure. Court did not err in answering "Yes" to jury question asking if all dwellings were structures. Luster v. State, 1D21- 2902 (12/7/22)
https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854712/opinion/212902_DC05_12072022_093454_i.pdf

JURY TRIAL-WAIVER: Counsel's request for an nonjury trial at a pretrial conference at which Defendant was not present is not a valid waiver of a trial by jury. A defendant's right to a jury trial is constitutionally protected; a waiver of that right must be knowing, voluntary, and intelligent and requires either a written waiver signed by the defendant or an oral waiver after a proper colloquy with the trial judge. Counsel's waiver on a defendant's behalf, whether written or oral, is insufficient, without more, to constitute a proper waiver of the defendant's rights. Roberts v. State, 2D21- 2139 (12/7/22)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-ILLEGAL SENTENCE: Defendant is not entitled to relief on post-conviction claim of an illegal sentence (25 year mandatory minimum term on the aggravated battery charge on the finding that during the commission of the offense, Defendant discharged a firearm resulting in great bodily harm or death) notwithstanding that the information charged only that he discharged a firearm. The sentence was not illegal, so any claim would have had to have been filed within 2 years, not 14 years later. An alleged defect in the charging document does not constitute an illegal sentence. Cabrera v. State, 2D22-1378 (12/7/22)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-MISADVISE-PRR: Where counsel was ineffective for not advising Defendant of his exposure as a Prisoner Release Reoffender, leading him to reject the plea offer, the potential remedy available is not confined to simply renegotiating with the State. Rather, remedies for Sixth Amendment violations may vary and should be tailored to the injury suffered from the constitutional violation. Remanded to determine prejudice. Rubright v. State, 2D22-2008 (12/7/22)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-MISADVISE-PRR (J. LUCAS, CONCURRING): "The vagaries of what exactly a postconviction court is supposed to do in these kinds of cases—how it should exercise its discretion' to redress what is deemed a constitutional deprivation of a favorable plea offer—remain much the same as they were a decade ago. . . .So I sympathize with the postconviction court and the lawyers in this case who, on remand, must now navigate a course through an area of law appellate courts seem incapable of mapping out. . . They are expected to engage in hindsight in a process that is ordinarily prospective in its vantage." Rubright v. State, 2D22-2008 (12/7/22)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-MISADVISE-PRR (J. LUCAS,

CONCURRING): "Prejudice is to be determined. . .by a process of retrospective crystal-ball gazing posing as legal analysis. . . Hopefully on remand, the postconviction court can find a good, clear crystal ballwith which to work." Rubright v. State, 2D22-2008 (12/7/22)

COSTS-PUBLIC DEFENDER FEE: $50 public defender fee may be increased only upon proof of higher costs incurred, and Court must inform the defendant that he has a right to contest the fee at a hearing. Taylor v. State, 4D21-327 (12/7/22)
https://www.4dca.org/content/download/854734/opinion/213277_DC08_12072022_100237_i.pdf

COSTS-PROSECUTION: The minimum prosecution cost in misdemeanor cases is $50. Court may set a higher amount only upon proof of higher costs incurred, and Court must consider the defendant's financial resources. Taylor v. State, 4D21-327 (12/7/22)
https://www.4dca.org/content/download/854734/opinion/213277_DC08_12072022_100237_i.pdf

COSTS-INVESTIGATION COST: The burden of demonstrating the amount of investigation costs incurred is on the state attorney, and may be imposed only if the agency that incurs that cost requests it. Prosecutors are not authorized to request costs on behalf of an agency without that agency's request. Defendant declining to have a hearing regarding these costs does not equate to an agreement to pay the amount charged. Taylor v. State, 4D21-327 (12/7/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-WARRANTLESS ARREST: Where the arresting officer did not witness Defendant operating or in actual physical possession of the car, the warrantless arrest is unlawful and evidence derived from it must be suppressed. See §901.15(5). Wagner v. State, 4D21-3387 (12/7/22)

FELLOW OFFICER RULE-WARRANTLESS ARREST: Public safety aide is not a deputized police officer, so the fellow law officer rule for a warrantless arrest based on the aide's observations does not apply. The fellow officer rule does not impute the knowledge of citizen informants to officers. If law enforcement support personnel are not vested with arrest powers, they cannot be relied upon to establish probable cause for a warrantless DUI arrest. Wagner v. State, 4D21-3387 (12/7/22)

WARRANTLESS ARREST-DUI: An officer can arrest a person for misdemeanor DUI in only three circumstances: (1) the officer witnesses each element of a prima facie case, (2) the officer is investigating an accident and develops probable cause to charge DUI, or (3) one officer calls upon another for assistance and the combined observations of the two or more officers are united to establish the probable cause to the arrest. Wagner v. State, 4D21-3387 (12/7/22

HFO: For habitual felony offender sentencing, the felony for which the defendant is to be sentenced, and one of the two predicate prior felony convictions must be something other than a violation §893.13 relating to the purchase or the possession of a controlled substance. DEFINITION-"AND": "The question presented in this appeal. . .is whether. . .the word "and" means "and." It does. USA v. Garcon, No. 19-14650 (12/6/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914650.enb.pdf

DEFINITION-"AND": "And" means "along with or together with." When "and" is used to connect a list of requirements, the word ordinarily has a"conjunctive" sense, meaning that all the requirements must be met. The word "and" retains its conjunctive sense when a list of requirements follows a negative. For example, "You must not drink and drive" means you can do one or the other but not both. USA v. Garcon, No. 19-14650 (12/6/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914650.enb.pdf

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914650.enb.pdf

SAFETY VALVE: Safety valve empowers a court to grant a criminal defendant relief from a mandatory minimum sentence only if the defendant does not have more than 4 criminal history points, a prior 3-point offense, and a prior 2-point violent offense. USA v. Garcon, No. 19-14650 (12/6/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914650.enb.pdf

SAFETY VALVE: Defendant who has a prior 3-point offense but does not have more than 4 criminal history points or a prior 2-point violent offense is eligible for safety valve relief because he did not have all three characteristics. Because the conjunctive "and" joins together the enumerated characteristics, a defendant must have all three before he becomes ineligible for relief. The plain meaning of the statute requires all three subsections of § 3553(f)(1) to be met before the defendant becomes ineligible for the safety valve. Government's position--that if any of the three subsections apply, he does not qualify for the safety valve– is wrong. USA v. Garcon, No. 19-14650 (12/6/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914650.enb.pdf

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914650.enb.pdf

DISTRIBUTIVE CANON: The "distributive canon" recognizes that sometimes where a sentence contains several antecedents and several consequents, courts should read them distributively and apply the words to the subjects which, by context, they seem most properly to relate. USA v. Garcon, No. 19-14650 (12/6/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914650.enb.pdf

SUPERFLUITY: "The superfluity argument has superficial appeal—after all, as our dissenting colleagues helpfully remind us, three plus two is more than four." USA v. Garcon, No. 19-14650 (12/6/22)

MATH: "Two added to one—if that could but be done,"

It said, "with one's fingers and thumbs!"
Recollecting with tears how, in earlier years,
It had taken no pains with its sums.

QUOTATION (J. ROSENBAUM, CONCURRING): "From my seat, the shootout at the Eleventh Circuit Corral between the well-reasoned Majority and Dissenting Opinions here produces no indisputable winner after the smoke clears." USA v. Garcon, No. 19-14650 (12/6/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914650.enb.pdf

DEFINITION-"AND"-DISSENT: The word "and" can be read disjunctively in legal texts. Generally "and" is used as a conjunctive connector of words, phrases, or clauses, but when used in a statute since the mid-19th century, sometimes and = or and or = and. Sæpa ita comparatum est, ut conjuncta pro disjunctis accipiantur. USA v. Garcon, No. 19-14650 (12/6/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914650.enb.pdf

DEFINITION-"AND": There are no entries for "and" in the 2019 edition of Black's Law Dictionary or in the 2016 edition of Merriam-Webster's Dictionary of Law. USA v. Garcon, No. 19-14650 (12/6/22)

SENTENCING-SAFETY VALVE-ADVICE-(DISSENT): "The Court's opinion gives you discretion to sentence offenders with serious and violent criminal histories to sentences below the applicable mandatory minimum. But you shouldn't do it." USA v. Garcon, No. 19-14650 (12/6/22)

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE-REMORSE-ISOLATED INCIDENT: Embezzlement over a period of 4 years is not unsophisticated nor isolated. "The fact that only one charge was levied against McLaney does not mean, however, that the series of underlying fraudulent acts for almost four years can be deemed a single isolated incident." Florida v. McLaney, 1D22-261 (12/6/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Double jeopardy prohibits multiple convictions and sentences for driving under the influence, causing serious bodily injury and property damage to the same victim. Where one incident and the same victim is involved, driving under the influence causing damage to property and serious bodily injury to a person are degree variants of the same criminal offense so that the prohibition against double jeopardy is violated by multiple convictions. Stridiron v. State, 5D21-2571 (12/2/22)

CONTEMPT: Written judgment of direct contempt must specify the conduct upon which the adjudication was based. Chiulli v. State, 5D22-364 (12/2/22)

INCONSISTENT VERDICTS: Where information charges that Defendant penetrated the vagina of the victim and the jury found him guilty but also made a special verdict finding that Lai he did not penetrate the vagina of the victim, verdict is inconsistent. Appellate counsel was ineffective for failing to argue fundamental error occurred because the jury returned inconsistent verdicts. The information did not allege "union." Lai v. State, 5D22-453 (12/2/22)

APPEAL-INEFFECTIVE ASSISTANCE: Appellate counsel's failure to identify fundamental error by the trial court, and the failure to raise it in the direct appeal, generally falls outside of the range of professionally acceptable performance. Lai v. State, 5D22-453 (12/2/22)

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL-SUFFICIENCY OF EVIDENCE: DNA and fingerprint evidence, along with Defendant's claim that he did not know the victim and did not recall having contact with her, viewed in the light most favorable to the State, is sufficient to sustain the sexual battery conviction.

The traditional standard of whether the State presented competent substantial evidence to support the verdict should now be used in all cases where the sufficiency of the evidence is analyzed. Stephens v. State, 2D20-3526 (12/2/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-PLEA OFFER: To allege prejudice in claims of ineffective assistance from misadvice regarding a plea offer the defendant must allege and prove a reasonable probability, defined as a probability sufficient to undermine confidence in the outcome, that (1) he or she would have accepted the offer had counsel advised the defendant correctly (2) the prosecutor would not have withdrawn the offer (3) the court would have accepted the offer and (4) the conviction or sentence, or both, under the offer's terms would have been less severe than under the judgment and sentence that in fact were imposed. Additionally, the favorable plea offer must actually exist. Jefferson v. State, 2D21-1106 (12/2/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/854189/opinion/211106_DC08_12022022_090425_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-MOTION TO SUPPRESS: In order to establish a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel based on the failure to file a motion to suppress, a defendant must demonstrate that counsel knew a valid basis existed to suppress the relevant evidence, yet counsel failed to file the motion. In order to establish prejudice, a defendant must demonstrate that the motion to suppress would have been successful. Jefferson v. State, 2D21-1106 (12/2/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/854189/opinion/211106_DC08_12022022_090425_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-FAILURE TO IMPEACH: Defendant is entitled to a hearing that counsel was ineffective for failing to impeach detective regarding him being fired for improper and unlawful tactics that caused several people to provide involuntary statements to him, but that counsel declined to do so because he and the ex-detective "had a very close relationship and that he did not want to embarrass him." Jefferson v. State, 2D21-1106 (12/2/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/854189/opinion/211106_DC08_12022022_090425_i.pdf

VIOLENT FELONY OFFENDER OF SPECIAL CONCERN: If the court, after conducting a VOP hearing determines that a VFOSC has committed a violation of probation other than a failure to pay costs, fines, or restitution, the court must make written findings as to whether or not he poses a danger to the community. Listing the statutory factors without including any specific factual findings particular to Defendant's case or explaining its reasoning for concluding that he was a danger to the community is legally insufficient. Douglas v. State, 2D21-1642 (12/2/22)

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION: District court lacks jurisdiction to block the United States from using lawfully seized records in a criminal investigation. Federal courts are courts of limited jurisdiction, possessing only that power authorized by Constitution and statute, which may not to be expanded by judicial decree. Exercises of equitable jurisdiction should be exceptional and anomalous. Trump v. USA, No. 22-13005 (12/1/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202213005.pdf

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION: "[W]e are faced with a choice: apply our usual test; drastically expand the availability of equitable jurisdiction for every subject of a search warrant; or carve out an unprecedented exception in our law for former presidents. We choose the first option." Trump v. USA, No. 22-13005 (12/1/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202213005.pdf

EQUAL JUSTICE: "Only one possible justification for equitable jurisdiction remains: that Plaintiff is a former President of the United States. . .To create a special exception here would defy our Nation's foundational principle that our law applies 'to all, without regard to numbers, wealth, or rank'. . .The law is clear. We cannot write a rule that allows any subject of a search warrant to block government investigations after the execution of the warrant. Nor can we write a rule that allows only former presidents to do so." Trump v. USA, No. 22-13005 (12/1/22)

EQUITABLE JURISDICTION: "When we examine Plaintiff's arguments. . . , we notice a recurring theme. He makes arguments that—if consistently applied—would allow any subject of a search warrant to invoke a federal court's equitable jurisdiction. . .Our precedents consistently reject this approach. We have emphasized again and again that equitable jurisdiction exists only in response to the most callous disregard of constitutional rights, and even then only if other factors make it clear that judicial oversight is absolutely necessary. Trump v. USA, No. 22-13005 (12/1/22)

CELINE DION: Donald Trump does not get his Celine Dion pictures back. "Plaintiff's counsel noted that the seized items included 'golf shirts' and 'pictures of Celine Dion.' . . . While Plaintiff may have an interest in these items and others like them, we do not see the need for their immediate return after seizure under a presumptively lawful search warrant." Trump v. USA, No. 22-13005 (12/1/22)

VOP-HEARSAY: Hearsay evidence is admissible at evidentiary hearings for probation revocation, but a decision to revoke probation cannot be based entirely on hearsay. Acord v. State, 1D21-1708 (1/30/22)

DEMONSTRATIVE AID: Demonstrative aid of a two-minute computer-generated figure of a woman showing the path of the stab wounds made into the Victim's body is permissible. Johnson v. State, 1D21-1934 (11/30/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854015/opinion/211934_DC05_11302022_122121_i.pdf

DEMONSTRATIVE AIDS: Demonstrative exhibits can be used when they are relevant and provide a reasonably accurate reproduction of the objects and incident involved. Whether a demonstrative exhibit constitutes a sufficiently accurate reproduction is a matter left to the discretion of the trial court. Johnson v. State, 1D21-1934 (11/30/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854015/opinion/211934_DC05_11302022_122121_i.pdf

EVIDENCE-GRAPHIC PHOTOS: Graphic photographs of a victim's injuries are admissible if they are relevant and not so shocking in nature as to defeat the value of their relevance. The test for admissibility of photographic evidence is relevancy, not necessity. Johnson v. State, 1D21-1934 (11/30/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854015/opinion/211934_DC05_11302022_122121_i.pdf

APPEAL-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE-DENIAL: Appellate review of the trial court's denial of downward departure from a mandatory minimum sentence is only appropriate when the trial court misapprehends its discretion to depart or refuses to exercise that discretion as a matter of policy. Barr v. State, 1D21-2166 (11/30/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854018/opinion/212166_DC05_11302022_122849_i.pdf

ENTRAPMENT: Defendant is not objectively entrapped where law enforcement engaged a confidential informant to initiate a drug transaction. "This was a traditional, straightforward sting operation that has long been understood to be permissible." Rollo v. State, 1D21-2429 (11/30/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854023/opinion/212429_DC05_11302022_124622_i.pdf

CHILD HEARSAY: The trial court made sufficient findings that the 6 year old's hearsay statements that he performed oral sex on Defendant were reliable and in conformity with the requirements of §90.803(23). "While more findings could have been provided here to underscore the trial court's reasoning, the findings that the age-appropriate language used by the child and the open-ended questions during the interview with the Child Protection Team, and other facts, are sufficient. Duffy v. State, 1D21-3774 (11/30/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854026/opinion/213774_DC05_11302022_130020_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-SELF DEFENSE-NO DUTY TO RETREAT: Counsel was ineffective for failing to request a "no duty to retreat" instruction from the SYG law. Because the evidence at trial did not support the giving of the retreat instruction, its omission did not prejudice Defendant. The Stand Your Ground law suspends the common-law duty to retreat only in limited, defined circumstances, which the record demonstrates did not exist here. The threat must be "imminent" in time; and in nature it must be deadly, or sufficient to cause "great bodily harm," or constitute a "forcible" felony. State v. Wagner, 1D21-3802 (11/30/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854027/opinion/213802_DC13_11302022_130357_i.pdf

JURY INSTRUCTION-STAND YOUR GROUND: "Use of an instruction that is based on only part of a statute does not pull in the entire statute. Perhaps this section of the criminal jury instructions could better distinguish between similar statutes and their respective component parts." State v. Wagner, 1D21-3802 (11/30/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/854027/opinion/213802_DC13_11302022_130357_i.pdf

SYG: The Stand Your Ground law suspends the common-law duty to retreat only in limited, defined circumstances. The threat must be "imminent" in time; and in nature it must be deadly, or sufficient to cause "great bodily harm," or constitute a "forcible" felony. State v. Wagner, 1D21-3802 (11/30/22)

SYG: Claimed fear, asserted by a woman holding a loaded gun trained on her unarmed husband inside the house 30 feet away up a landscaped hill, falls far, far short of the imminent threat circumstances in which the Stand Your Ground law applies. . . There was always absolutely zero chance that her husband could outrun a bullet if he chose to advance on her. There was no threat. State v. Wagner, 1D21-3802 (11/30/22)

WILLIAMS RULE: In rape case, evidence of a different rape is admissible where there were sufficient similarities: victims of the same age and ethnicity, both incidents occurred within twenty-four hours of the initial meeting with Defendant, both incidents occurred at the same location, and there was a similar modus operandi. Miles v. State, 1D22-1990 (11/30/22)

OBSTRUCTION: Talking loudly on the phone in the vicinity of a police officer's investigation does not constitute obstruction without violence. Words alone, without more, are rarely obstructive conduct. Chapper v. State, 2D21-1278 (11/30/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-FAILURE TO REGISTER: Where Defendant fails to register four vehicles (his parents' cars), he may be convicted of only one count. Failure to register "all vehicles owned" during a single reporting event constitutes one distinct act. Hill v. State, 2D21-1444 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853916/opinion/211444_DC08_11302022_083126_i.pdf

A/ANY: The "a/any test," is a valuable but nonexclusive means to assist courts in determining the intended unit of prosecution. When the article "a" is used by the Legislature in the text of the statute, the intent of the Legislature is clear that each discrete act constitutes an allowable unit of prosecution. Use of the adjective "any" indicates an ambiguity that may require application of the rule of lenity, although the use of that word should not be interpreted to mean that the intended unit of prosecution is automatically rendered ambiguous. Hill v. State, 2D21-1444 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853916/opinion/211444_DC08_11302022_083126_i.pdf

DEFINITION-"ANY": "Any" can mean "one, some, every, or all without specification," and is by definition linguistically ambiguous. Hill v. State, 2D21-1444 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853916/opinion/211444_DC08_11302022_083126_i.pdf

DEFINITION-"ALL": "All" is defined as "being or representing the entire or total number, amount, or quantity." The "a/any" test is helpful when analyzing what "all" means. Hill v. State, 2D21-1444 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853916/opinion/211444_DC08_11302022_083126_i.pdf

COSTS: Court may not assess a $65 "Court Facility & Legal Aid, etc. Fund" fee pursuant to local ordinance 2004-036 without citing an appropriate Florida authorizing statute. "As we have previously instructed trial courts in this district, cost orders should reference both the applicable local ordinance and Florida statute." Pierce v. State, 2D21-1145 (11/30/22)

https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853917/opinion/211459_DC08_11302022_083254_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-STANDARD: In order to show ineffective assistance of counsel in the context of a plea, a defendant must demonstrate a reasonable probability that, but for counsel's errors, he would not have pleaded guilty and would have insisted on going to trial. Here, the postconviction court focused only on its conclusion that counsel could have used the video at trial to show that another individual fired the weapon and that this defense could have succeeded at trial, but failed to consider other factors in determining whether a reasonable probability exists that Defendant would have insisted on going to trial. Olivares Jesus v. State, 2D21-1843 (11/30/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-DUI WITH PROPERTY DAMAGE: Convictions for two counts of DUI with property damage violate the prohibition against double jeopardy where the evidence established that the damaged property—two traffic signs—belonged to the same victim. Thompson v. State, 2D21-2602 (11/30/22)

DISCOVERY-VIOLATION-WITNESS EXCLUSION: In DUI trial, Court erred in excluding two defense witnesses (FDLE inspector and a sergeant) disclosed at voir dire. Defense counsel's failure to provide a witness list is a discovery violation, but Courr erred in excluding the witnesses. Excluding witnesses implicates the right to a fair trial and should be utilized only under the most compelling circumstances and should be a last resort. Court should have considered allowing the State to talk to the witnesses before the trial began, allowing a short continuance to conduct depositions, or any other alternative. Neer v. State, 2D21-2680 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853923/opinion/212680_DC13_11302022_084305_i.pdf

DISRUPTION OF SCHOOL FUNCTION: Defendant who played loud music and shouted religious messages through a bullhorn at students as they exited the school is properly convicted of trespass within a school safety zone and disruption of a school function. Statutes are not either vague or overly broad. Meinecke v. State, 2D21-2880 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853924/opinion/212880_DC05_11302022_084405_i.pdf

VAGUENESS: In order for a criminal statute to withstand a void for-vagueness challenge, the language of the statute must provide adequate notice of the conduct it prohibits when measured by common understanding and practice. The language of a statute must provide a definite warning of what conduct is required or prohibited, measured by common understanding and practice. Meinecke v. State, 2D21-2880 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853924/opinion/212880_DC05_11302022_084405_i.pdf

CONSTITUTIONALITY: A federal district or appeals court ruling that a Florida statute is unconstitutional is not binding on Florida state courts. Meinecke v. State, 2D21-2880 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853924/opinion/212880_DC05_11302022_084405_i.pdf

OVERBREADTH: A statute is overbroad when it criminalizes legal as well as illegal activity and has a chilling effect on First Amendment freedoms. Under the First Amendment facial overbreadth doctrine, litigants are permitted to challenge a statute not because their own rights of free expression are violated, but because of a judicial prediction or assumption that the statute's very existence may cause others not before the court to refrain from constitutionally protected speech or expression. Meinecke v. State, 2D21-2880 (11/30/22)

https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853924/opinion/212880_DC05_11302022_084405_i.pdf

VOIDNESS/OVERBREADTH: When addressing a facial challenge to a statute, courts should construe the statute using a construction that is constitutional whenever it is possible to do so without rewriting the statute. Rarely, if ever, will an overbreadth challenge succeed against a law or regulation that is not specifically addressed to speech or to conduct necessarily associated with speech (such as picketing or demonstrating). Meinecke v. State, 2D21-2880 (11/30/22)

SENTENCE-REDUCTION: A trial court may not unilaterally modify a previously imposed negotiated sentence between a defendant and the State. At least, the trial court may not modify a defendant's negotiated sentence to a term less than that provided for in the negotiated disposition without first giving the State the opportunity to void the plea agreement. State v. Hall, 2D21-3197 (11/30/22)

APPEAL-STATE: State may appeal as an illegal sentence a reduced sentence after the State and the Defense negotiated a plea for a lesser included offense in return for testimony against a codefendant (the codefendant was acquitted). PROBATION-MODIFICATION: "Understanding the distinction between a mere modification. . .and an enhancement is important. A mere modification to the conditions of probation may be made at any time pursuant to the statute; but 'b]efore probation may be enhanced, a violation of probation must be formally charged and the probationer must be brought before the court and advised of the charge." HABITUAL OFFENDER/PRR: Although it is impermissible to impose multiple enhanced HVFO sentences to run consecutively when the offenses arose from the same criminal episode, but a habitual offender sentence may be imposed consecutively to a PRR sentence, and unenhanced sentences may be imposed to run consecutively to an enhanced habitual offender sentence arising from the same criminal episode. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that trial counsel misadvised him to reject the State's plea offer by mis-assessing the chances of success at trial. Bennett v. State, 2D22-768 (11/30/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that trial counsel was ineffective for failing to refresh the victim's recollection of her initial description of the assailant; the description was hearsay but would have been admissible as an excited utterance. SPEEDY TRIAL-CONSTITUTIONAL: Where Defendant is incarcerated in one county at the time another county files an information and places a hold on him, then sent to DOC without the capias being served for two and a half years, his constitutional (not rule based) right to a Speedy trial is violated. Discharge is required. Murphy v. State, 2D22-2126 (11/30/22)

SPEEDY TRIAL-PROHIBITION: The deprivation of a defendant's constitutional right to a speedy trial can be considered and remedied through prohibition. In reviewing a petition for writ of prohibition, appellate court must consider the merits of the defendant's motion to dismiss in the same manner as if it were on direct appeal. Murphy v. State, 2D22-2126 (11/30/22)

SPEEDY TRIAL: The constitutional right to a speedy trial attaches upon arrest, filing of an indictment or an information, or other official accusation. Murphy v. State, 2D22-2126 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853935/opinion/222126_DC03_11302022_091230_i.pdf

SPEEDY TRIAL: Determining whether a violation of the constitutional right to speedy trial has occurred includes consideration of (1) the length of the delay; (2) the reason for the delay; (3) whether the defendant has timely asserted his rights; and (4) the existence of actual prejudice as a result of the delay. No single factor is either necessary or determinative. State has no compelling for failing to execute a capias warrant for two and a half years on a defendant who had been in State custody the entire time. Murphy v. State, 2D22-2126 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853935/opinion/222126_DC03_11302022_091230_i.pdf

SPEEDY TRIAL-COVID: COVID is no excuse for violating the constitutional speedy trial right of a Defendant in continuous county and DOC custody. Murphy v. State, 2D22-2126 (11/30/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/853935/opinion/222126_DC03_11302022_091230_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to hearing on claim that counsel provided ineffective assistance in advising her not to testify in her own defense, particularly where the only evidence of self-defense (her defense at trial) could have come from her testimony. The fact that the trial court questioned Defendant at trial regarding her decision as to whether to testify is not dispositive. "Given that there were no other eyewitnesses to the crime and the admitted forensic evidence was overwhelmingly inculpatory, without Carballo's testimony, the jury was arguably left without a reasonable basis for inferring self-defense." Carballo v. State, 3D21-1583 (11/30/22)

CONFRONTATION-HEARSAY: In DUI case, admission of urinalysis toxicology report/forensic report violates right of confrontation where the author of the report does not testify at trial. The testimony of a supervisor of the author is legally insufficient. Forensic lab reports can are testimonial statements and their admission without the preparer's testimony runs afoul of Crawford and the Confrontation Clause. The toxicology report in a DUI case, prepared for the prosecution, is accusatory, tends to prove a material element of the crime, and is a pretrial statement that the declarant would reasonably expect to be used prosecutorially, and thus constitutes a testimonial statement. The analysts who write reports that the prosecution introduces must be made available for confrontation even if they possess the scientific acumen of Mme. Curie and the veracity of Mother Teresa. Bennett v. State, 4D21-2925 (11/30/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION-CONFRONTATION: For an argument to be cognizable on appeal, it must be the specific contention asserted as legal ground for the objection below. The issue of violation of the right of confrontation by the testimony of the supervisor of the the forensic report, rather than the author/analyst, is not preserved when the articulated objection was hearsay, not a Sixth Amendment confrontation violation. "At trial, Bennett objected on the basis of 'hearsay,'. . .[and] did not mention the Sixth Amendment, the Confrontation Clause, or Crawford or its progeny, or whether the evidence was testimonial, the witness was unavailable, or there was a prior opportunity for cross-examination. Thus, Bennett failed to call the trial court's attention to the salient inquiry." Bennett v. State, 4D21-2925 (11/30/22)

QUALIFIED IMMUNITY-DOC-VA BENEFITS: Qualified immunity precludes suit against DOC for taking inmate's VA benefits from his inmate account to satisfy liens and holds stemming from medical, legal, and copying expenses he incurs in prison. Prison officials are entitled to qualified immunity for the alleged violations of 38 U.S.C. §5301 and the prisoner lacks standing to challenge Florida's administrative rule allowing seizure of VA benefits for satisfaction of liens and expenses incurred in prison. Wilson v. Secretary, DOC, No. 18-11842 (11th Cir. 11/29/22)

JUROR-CHALLENGE FOR CAUSE-PRESERVATION: To preserve an objection on a voir dire challenge, the objecting party must renew the objection before the jury is sworn. Where counsel accepted the jury without renewing the objections, the issue is not preserved for appeal. Terry v. State, 1D21-1933 (11/23/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-SINGLE DWELLING: When executing a warrant, law enforcement officers may not search a separate dwelling unit that exists on the premises but is not separately identified in the warrant, but here, while Appellant's bedroom and bathroom (out the side door of which the drug deals occurred) were walled off from the remainder of the home's interior, the entire building should be considered a single dwelling. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-SINGLE DWELLING: The "equipped for independent living" analysis is best suited for distinguishing a multi-unit dwelling from a single-family residence. A property is a "multi-unit dwelling" for search warrant purposes if it is comprised of more than one residence, each of which bears the hallmarks of being truly distinct and independent from the others. Tyson v. State, 1D21-2178 (11/23/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/853471/opinion/212178_DC05_11232022_140631_i.pdf

JOA-SEX ABUSE-CHILD HEARSAY: Defendant may be convicted of capital sex battery based on child hearsay of penetration notwithstanding the Child's trial testimony to the contrary (when the prosecutor asked the child if Defendant had used his penis to touch her, she shook her head no). Recanted statements can sustain a sexual battery conviction when other proper corroborating evidence is admitted. "Because the child victim did not totally repudiate her prior out-of-court statements at trial and because there was competent, substantial evidence to corroborate those statements, the trial court did not err when it denied the motion for judgment of acquittal." Stevens v. State, 1D21-2691 (11/23/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/853474/opinion/212691_DC05_11232022_141132_i.pdf

HABITUAL FELONY OFFENDER: Defendant may be sentenced as an HFO where he is sentenced to one of the predicate offenses at the same time as the HFO sentence. A sentence of probation or community control can serve as a predicate conviction for purposes of habitualization, even when the HFO sentence is imposed at the same time as the VOP sentence. That the trial court revoked probation and sentenced him to prison on the same day it sentenced him for his new law violations is irrelevant. Spurling v. APPEAL-JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION-POST CONVICTION MOTION: As a general rule, an appellate court can review the denial of a motion to disqualify a trial court judge in one of two ways: (1) by petition for writ of prohibition; or, (2) by direct appeal. But in a case involving the summary denial of all postconviction claims, an appellate court cannot review an order denying a motion to disqualify the trial court judge who presided over the postconviction proceedings. In these types of cases, a petition for writ of prohibition provides the only mechanism for review. Nilio v. State, 1D22-940 (11/23/22)

WITHHOLD OF ADJUDICATION: Court may not withhold adjudication of guilt for Fleeing and Eluding. §316.1935)(6) states that "no court may suspend, defer, or withhold adjudication of guilt or imposition of sentence for any violation of this section." Williams v. State, 2D21-3755 (11/23/22)

JUROR-PEREMPTORY-CHALLENGE-DISCRIMINATION: The three-step procedure to be followed when peremptory strikes are challenged as discriminatory is: First, the party objecting to the other side's use of a peremptory challenge on racial grounds must: a) make a timely objection on that basis, b) show that the venireperson is a member of a distinct racial group, and c) request that the court ask the striking party its reason for the strike. Next, the burden of production shifts to the proponent of the strike to come forward with a race-neutral explanation. Finally, the trial judge must determine whether or not the explanation proffered by the proponent of a peremptory strike is race-neutral and genuine. In making this determination, the trial judge is not bound to accept the reasons proffered by the proponent at face value. The court must examine “all the circumstances surrounding the strike to satisfy itself that the strike is not a pretext. If the explanation is facially race-neutral and the court believes that, given all the circumstances surrounding the peremptory strike, the explanation is not a pretext, the court will sustain the strike. Mays v. State, 3D20-1527 (11/23/22) https://www.3dca.flcourts.org/content/download/853420/opinion/201527_DC13_11232022_103909_i.pdf

JUROR-PEREMPTORY-CHALLENGE-DISCRIMINATION-GENUINENESS: The factors relevant to the trial court's genuineness inquiry include the racial make-up of the venire, prior strikes exercised against the same racial group, or singling out the juror for special treatment. Mays v. State, 3D20-1527 (11/23/22) https://www.3dca.flcourts.org/content/download/853420/opinion/201527_DC13_11232022_103909_i.pdf

JUROR-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE-GENUINENESS: Court failed to properly evaluate the genuousness of the State's justification for the strike of a juror who said she wanted to be on the jury because there were few black jurors on the panel and the defendants would be terrified if the jury didn't look like like them. Among other things, The court did not consider State's clear pattern of seeking to strike every Black person on the venire. Mays v. State, 3D20-1527 (11/23/22) https://www.3dca.flcourts.org/content/download/853420/opinion/201527_DC13_11232022_103909_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-ADVISING NOT TO TESTIFY: The Sixth Amendment imposes a duty on defense counsel to provide advice regarding the client's decision to testify or not testify at trial. Although a trial court does not have an affirmative duty to make a record inquiry concerning a defendant's waiver of the right to testify,it is advisable for the trial court to make a record inquiry as to whether the defendant understands he has a right to testify. Trial court judges should be encouraged to make such a colloquy a standard part of their trial procedure. "In fact, a trial court might also do well to discuss with the State and defense, prior to the colloquy, the precise number of prior convictions that may be used to impeach the defendant. . . In this way, the parties can agree on (or the court can determine) the exact number of impeachable convictions, and that information can be shared with the defendant before deciding whether to testify in his own defense." McClenney v. State, 3D22-198 (11/23/22) https://www.3dca.flcourts.org/content/download/853424/opinion/220198_DC05_11232022_104549_i.pdf

COSTS-SURCHARGE: Court may not apply a five percent surcharge, pursuant to §938.04 when the trial court did not impose a fine. Barker v. State, 4D21-2575 (11/23/22) https://www.4dca.org/content/download/853403/opinion/212575_DC08_11232022_094923_i.pdf

GOLDEN RULE: Although the most common golden rule violation in criminal cases may occur when the state asks jurors to place themselves in the victim's position, a golden rule violation may occur anytime a party asks jurors to place themselves in any party's position to decide the case on the basis of personal bias, rather than on the evidence. State violated the Golden Rule during voir dire by by asking the venire the following questions: "How important is your driver's license to you?" "[Y]ou really need your car and you really need your driver's license, right?;" "Would you sell your driver's license to me for $5,000? $50,000? $500,000?" '[W]e have written this opinion to better ensure that similar golden rule violations do not recur in DUI cases." Goldbach v. VOIR DIRE-PURPOSE: " We also use this opinion as a reminder that the purpose of voir dire is not—under the guise of 'educating' the venire—to preview the arguments which will be made later in the trial.. . .Such 'pre-trying' of the case is not the purpose of voir dire, nor is it an appropriate use of the amount of time provided for voir dire." DISMISSAL: Fed.R.Cr.P. 48(a) allows the government to dismiss an information (or indictment) before trial with leave of court. But the district court's discretion to grant or deny dismissal is limited and must be without prejudice to future prosecution absent bad faith. USA v. B.G.C, No. 21-10165 (11th Cir. 11/22/22)

DISMISSAL: Whenever an indictment or information is dismissed after expiration of the statute of limitation, a new indictment may be returned within six calendar months of the date of the dismissal of the indictment or information, or, in the event of an appeal, within 60 days of the date the dismissal becomes final. DISMISSAL WITH PREJUDICE: Court abused its discretion in dismissing the information with prejudice under R. 48(a) without finding that the government's motion to dismiss was filed in bad faith. The presumption of good faith applies when the government seeks dismissal regardless of whether it has explained the dismissal. USA v. B.G.C, No. 21-10165 (11th Cir. 11/22/22)

DISMISSAL: "The district court did not follow the rule 48(a) 'leave of court' requirements. It did not presume that the government's dismissal was in good faith. It did not find bad faith to overcome the good-faith presumption. It did not focus on the government's reasons for moving to dismiss the information. It did not apply the ultimate test for granting 'leave of court.' And it did not dismiss the information without prejudice. Because of these errors of law, the district court's order dismissing the information was an abuse of discretion." USA v. B.G.C, No. 21-10165 (11th Cir. 11/22/22)

DISMISSAL-TACTICAL ADVANTAGE-(DISSENT, J. WILSON): Where government had charged Defendant by information but feared it would not be able to procure an indictment before the expiration of the statute of limitations (there was a COVID moratorium on convening grand juries), and therefore moved to dismiss the information without prejudice (with the intent of later availing itself of the recapture rule), Court properly dismissed the information with prejudice. DISMISSAL-TACTICAL ADVANTAGE-(DISSENT, J. WILSON): "There is no question that the government sought to dismiss the information to achieve a tactical advantage in derogation of B.G.G.'s rights—the very definition of bad faith. . .And the government's plan to 'charg[e], dismiss[], and recharg[e]' B.G.G. is the exact conduct the Supreme Court has said constitutes harassment. . . Pandemic or not, the district court was right to root out these corner-cutting tactics. As the Supreme Court recently reminded us, '[i]f men must turn square corners when they deal with the government, it cannot be too much to expect the government to turn square corners when it deals with them.'" USA v. B.G.C, No. 21-10165 (11th Cir. 11/22/22) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110165.pdf

COMPETENCY: A competency hearing is required if Court has reasonable grounds to believe that Defendant is not competent. Failure to hold a competency hearing and enter a written order is fundamental error and requires reversal. Thomas v. State, 1D will20- 82260 (11/22/22)

APPELLATE REVIEW-VIDEO: The Appellate court applies a less deferential standard to the trial court's factual findings to the extent that they are based on a video. Thomas v. State, 1D will20- 82260 (11/22/22)

https://www.1dca.org/content/download/853308/opinion/202260_DC08_11222022_140236_i.pdf

DISCOVERY-BRADY: The Brady rule only applies to the discovery, after trial, of information which had been known to the prosecution but unknown to the defense. It does not apply to the trial court's denial of a motion to compel discovery. To establish a Brady violation, the defendant must identify specific exculpatory evidence suppressed by the State. A defendant's general request for Brady material is insufficient. Thomas v. State, 1D20- 82260 (11/22/22)

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE SURCHARGE: Domestic violence surcharges do not apply to armed burglary with assault or battery; §810.02(2), is not on the list of offenses for which they apply. Thomas v. State, 1D will20- 82260 (11/22/22)

should not be included on the scoresheet. Thomas v. State, 1D will20-82260 (11/22/22)

SCORESHEET-ERROR: Any error in scoresheet calculation is harmless where it is clear that the Court would have imposed the same sentence regardless of the error. Where the scoresheet used called for a lowest permissible sentence of 286.5 months but a correct scoresheet would have come to 243 months, and the sentence imposed was 1,140 months in prison on each count to be served consecutively to each other in the life sentence on the murder count, the scoresheet error is harmless. STAND YOUR GROUND-REVIEW: There are two paths for a criminal defendant to seek review of a trial court's order denying a motion to dismiss claiming self-defense immunity: Petition for a writ of prohibition (when challenging the Court's ruling on the merits) or petition for writ of certiorari (when challenging the procedure used by the court in considering the self-defense immunity claim). Edwards v. State, 1D21-2838 (11/21/22)

STAND YOUR GROUND: To make a prima facie showing of SYG immunity in a homicide case, Defendant needs to point to facts that show or tend to show that he used it before; he reasonably deadly force is necessary to prevent imminent death or great bodily harm to himself or another; he used deadly force while resisting the victim's attempt to murder him, to commit a forcible felony on him, or to commit a forcible felony on or in his dwelling; and he was not engaged in criminal activity and was in a place he had the right to be. Unsworn allegations in the motion lack evidentiary value. Edwards v. State, 1D21-2838 (11/21/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/853194/opinion/212838_DC02_11212022_120028_i.pdf

APPEAL-APPENDIX: Appellant criticized for omitting from his appendices "several critical pieces of evidence considered by the trial court," such as photographs, recordings, and videos. Edwards v. STAND YOUR GROUND (J. THOMAS, DISSENTING): "The majority opinion reads as though the Legislature never amended section 776.032, Florida Statutes, to place the burden on the State to prove by clear and convincing evidence that a defendant is not entitled to self-defense immunity." Edwards v. State, 1D21-2838 (11/21/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/853194/opinion/212838_DC02_11212022_120028_i.pdf

RE-SENTENCING: As part of a de novo resentencing to correct previously imposed illegal sentences on certain counts, Court may not restructure legal sentences on other counts. While an illegal sentence can be corrected at any time, a court loses jurisdiction to modify a legal sentence after sixty days have passed since its imposition. State v. Janes, 5D21-1834 (11/21/22) https://www.5dca.org/content/download/853232/opinion/211834_DC13_11212022_150515_i.pdf

PROSTITUTION-CIVIL PENALTY: Defendant found to have violated §796.07(2)(f) shall be assessed a civil penalty of $5,000; if found to have violated §796.07(2)(e) he/she shall not. The former prohibits soliciting, inducing, enticing, or procuring another to commit prostitution, lewdness, or assignation; the latter prohibits offering to commit, or to commit, or to engage in, prostitution, lewdness, or assignation. Bowers v. State, 2D21-2597 (11/18/22)

EVIDENCE-POLYGRAPH: Jury instrucion stating that if a polygraph exam had been administered to the flipping co-defendant it would not have been admissible is not an impermissible comment to the jury on how to weigh the evidence, nor an indirect comment on the witness's credibility. Sievers v. State, SC20-225 (11/17/22)
https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/853035/opinion/sc20-225.pdf

https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/853035/opinion/sc20-225.pdf

EVIDENCE-PRAYER: Witness's testimony that his passing statement that he prayed before deciding to testify does not violate §90.611, which prohibits evidence of one's religious beliefs to show credibility. Sievers v. State, SC20-225 (11/17/22)

EVIDENCE: Court properly excluded questioning suggesting that one of the hitmen had a sexual relationship with the victim (the defendant's wife) absent evidence or proffer supporting the "tangential and potentially distracting path." Sievers v. State, SC20-225 (11/17/22) https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/853035/opinion/sc20-225.pdf

EVIDENCE: Neighbor's testimony suggesting that Defendant had scoped out the back yard to look for a good place for hitmen to jump the fence was proper. Sievers v. State, SC20-225 (11/17/22) https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/853035/opinion/sc20-225.pdf

CONSPIRACY: Defendant may be found guilty of conspiracy with both of the two hitmen who killed his wife, notwithstanding that he did not know and did not want to know the identity of Killer #2. To sustain a conspiracy conviction, the government does not need to prove that the defendant knew the identity of every other person alleged to have been part of the conspiracy. It is enough that the State prove that the alleged co-conspirators shared a common purpose to commit the crime. Sievers v. State, SC20-225 (11/17/22) https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/853035/opinion/sc20-225.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-NOTICE: If the prosecutor intends to seek the death penalty, the prosecutor must give notice to the defendant and file the notice with the court within 45 days after arraignment. The notice must contain a list of the aggravating factors the state intends to prove and has reason to believe it can prove beyond a reasonable doubt. Where State filed a notice of intent to seek this building on the 44th day, but did not list the aggravating factors until after the 45th day, imposition of the death penalty is still permissible. Any procedural error is harmless. Sievers v. State, SC20-225 (11/17/22) https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/853035/allopinion/

DEATH PENALTY-EVIDENCE: In the penalty phase, The court did not err in ordering that a postcard sent to the Defendant by his daughters be redacted to omit the daughters' wish that Defendant not be executed. Sievers v. State, SC20-225 (11/17/22)

SPENCER HEARING: A Spencer hearing is an aspect of the capital sentencing process that typically occurs after the penalty phase trial and jury recommendation, but before the trial court's imposition of sentence. The purpose of a Spencer hearing is to: (a) give the defendant, his counsel, and the State, an opportunity to be heard; (b) afford, if appropriate, both the State and the defendant an opportunity to present additional evidence; (c) allow both sides to comment on or rebut information in any presentence or medical report; and (d) afford the defendant an opportunity to be heard in person. A special hearing in a position of sentence may occur on the same day. Sievers v. State, SC20-225 (11/17/22)

ASSAULT-ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL ACT: The first element of Florida's assault statute requires not just the general intent to volitionally take the action of threatening to do violence, but also that the actor direct the threat at a target, namely, another person. Aggravated assault with a deadly weapon under §784.021(1)(a) should qualify as a "violent felony" under the elements clause of ACCA. Somers v. USA, SC21-1407 (11/17/22)

intentional, unlawful threat by word or act to do violence to the person of another"– does not require specific intent. The first element of the assault statute (§784.011(1)) requires not just the general intent to volitionally take the action of threatening to do violence but also that the actor direct the threat at a target, namely another person. Somers v. USA, SC21-1407 (11/17/22)

DEFINITION-"THREAT": "Threat" is "an expression of intention to inflict evil, injury, or damage"; "[a]n expression of an intention to inflict pain, injury, evil, or punishment on a person or thing"' or "[a] communicated intent to inflict physical or other harm on any person or on property." Somers v. USA, SC21-1407 (11/17/22)

ASSAULT: The fact that an assault cannot be committed by a reckless act under Florida law means that a violation of §784.011(1) requires at least knowing conduct. Somers v. USA, SC21-1407 (11/17/22)

AMENDMENT-RULES-JUDGE'S RECORDS: Rule 2.420 and canon 3 govern the treatment of judicial records (including confidential records) and judges' use of nonpublic information obtained in a judicial capacity. A]t the conclusion of service on a court, each justice or judge shall deliver to the court's chief justice or chief judge any records of the judicial branch in the possession of the departing justice or judge. This amendment accounts for justices' and judges' departure from the bench and formally relieves them of their roleunder rule 2.420 as records custodians. APPEAL-PRESERVATION: By stating "no objection" to the introduction into evidence of a recording of the Defendant in his hospital room (where he mentioned that he had committed a murder), waives the issue. Reed v. State, 1D21-2473 (11/16/22)

EVIDENCE-SECRET RECORDING-PRIVACY: Defendant lacks a reasonable expectation of privacy in his room while in police custody at the hospital. Persons generally lack a reasonable expectation of privacy when in police custody. Reed v. State, 1D21-2473 (11/16/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-BLOOD DRAW-CONSENT: In BUI case, Defendant's consent to the blood draw is unlawfully procured where officers told Defendant that they "will draw blood from you" and did not tell him that he could refuse their request and require them to get a search warrant. A blood draw is a search. Individuals cannot be lawfully compelled to submit to a blood draw by statute. Rather, law enforcement officers must obtain a search warrant before drawing blood or gain the subject's consent. Consent to search must be given voluntarily. Florida v. CERTIORARI-COMPETENCE: Appellate court lacks the authority by extraordinary writ (certiorari) to review and remedy the lack of an evidentiary foundation for the finding that Defendant is currently competent to stand trial because of the lack of irreparable harm. "[A] criminal defendant's mental status is a potentially variable matter—ebbing and flowing between incompetent and competent during the course of a proceeding—making intermittent appellate review unworkable and potentially wasteful. The balance that has been struck is in favor of dismissing this type of petition for lack of irreparable harm and thereby jurisdiction, but allowing review at the end of the case, however it might end." Odom v. State, 1D22-2652 (11/16/22)

ENTRAPMENT: Generally, the issues regarding subjective entrapment present questions of disputed facts for the jury to resolve. However, the issue may be ruled on as a matter of law if the material facts are undisputed, the defendant meets his burden of proof, and the State is unable to rebut the evidence of lack of predisposition. Predisposition refers to whether the accused was awaiting any propitious opportunity or was ready and willing, without persuasion, to commit the offense. Predisposition focuses upon whether the defendant was an unwary innocent or, instead, an unwary criminal who readily availed himself of the opportunity to perpetrate the crime. Inducement cannot be found by prompting or creating an opportunity. Text messages between Defendant an undercover officer posing as a 14 year old girl do not add up to objective entrapment. Dismissal is inappropriate. State v. Lopez Garcia, 2D21-1492 (11/16/22)

APPEAL-JURISDICTION: State may appeal the dismissal of a traffic infraction notwithstanding that Chapter 318 only provides for an appeal by a person upon a finding that an infraction was committed. "While we recognize section 318.16(1) provides that '[i]f a person is found to have committed an infraction by the hearing official, he or she may appeal that finding to the circuit court,' it certainly does not use any limiting language such as 'only a person . . . .' Therefore, we conclude that if the circuit court has jurisdiction over a defendant's appeal in these matters, then it follows that the circuit court has jurisdiction over a State's appeal in these matters. Any other construction would lead to counterintuitive results." State v. Islam, 2D21-1797 (11/16/22)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION-(J. ATKINSON, DISSENT): Courts must afford statutory language its plain and ordinary meaning, giving due regard to the context within which it is used. State v. Islam, 2D21-1797 (11/16/22)
https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852842/opinion/211797_DC04_11162022_084552_i.pdf

APPEAL-JURISDICTION (J. ATKINSON, DISSENT): §318.16 uses the language "a person is found to have committed an infraction by the hearing official" to indicate who "may appeal [a] finding [that a person has committed a traffic infraction. In context, the "person" is the accused. The opposite conclusion would be nonsensical: The State cannot be the "person" indicated in the statute. In other words, no reader could reasonably conclude that the term "person" as used in §318.16(1) includes the State, and §318.16(1) does not include any language concerning an appeal of a hearing official's decision filed by the State. State v. Islam, 2D21-1797 (11/16/22)

STATUTORY INTERPRETATION (DISSENT): "If the majority's rationale were taken to its logical conclusion, the legislature would be required to specifically use the term "only" to limit a general term in a statute that the legislature has already specified using other language. Under the majority's rationale, if a statute were to provide that 'it is unlawful for a person to import an Indian elephant,' a person could be charged with violating the statute for importing an African elephant—a different species of elephant than Indian elephants—or for importing a giraffe—an animal that is not an elephant at all—because the legislature did not specify that importation of only Indian elephants is unlawful." State v. Islam, 2D21-1797 (11/16/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852842/opinion/211797_DC04_11162022_084552_i.pdf

ABSURDITY DOCTRINE (DISSENT): "[This] ostensible conundrum, . . .while arguably incongruous, does not rise to the level of absurd." State v. Islam, 2D21-1797 (11/16/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852842/opinion/211797_DC04_11162022_084552_i.pdf

COSTS: Case remanded to correct the three dollar discrepancy where Court orally ordered "$382.85 investigative costs but the written judgment was entered for $385.85. A written sentence that conflicts with the oral pronouncement of sentence imposed in open court is an illegal sentence. Bustos v. State, 2D21-2485 (11/16/22 https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852847/opinion/212485_DC08_11162022_084051_i.pdf

RESTITUTION: When restitution is ordered by the court, the amount of restitution may not exceed an amount the child and the parent or guardian could reasonably be expected to pay or make. Although a child need not have a present ability to pay restitution, the court must make a finding as to the juvenile's expected earning capacity prior to setting an amount for restitution." If the court intends on ordering restitution based solely on evidence adduced at the adjudicatory hearing, the child must be given notice. B.P., a Child v. State, 2D21-3074 (11/16/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852858/opinion/213074_DC08_11162022_085702_i.pdf'

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: To plead a facially sufficient claim of ineffective assistance of counsel based on counsel's failure to present an entrapment defense, Defendant must plead facts establishing that his trial counsel's performance was deficient and that he was prejudiced thereby. Pulido Baeza v. State, 2D22-114 (11/16/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852869/opinion/220114_DC08_11162022_085945_i.pdf

ENTRAPMENT: To establish the subjective entrapment defense, defendant must show, by a preponderance of the evidence, that a government agent induced him or her to commit the offense and that he or she was not predisposed to do so. The burden then shifts to the State to rebut this with evidence beyond a reasonable doubt. Defendant's conclusory allegation that his brother, acting as a confidential informant, induced him to commit the offense is legally insufficient to warrant a hearing. Pulido Baeza v. State, 2D22-114 (11/16/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852869/opinion/220114_DC08_11162022_085945_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant's motion for post conviction relief claiming that counsel was ineffective for failing to assert an entrapment defense is legally insufficient where he does not claim that he was not already predisposed to commit the offense. Pulido Baeza v. State, 2D22-114 (11/16/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852869/opinion/220114_DC08_11162022_085945_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-CONCURRENT/CONSECUTIVE SENTENCES: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim of a discrepancy between the oral pronouncement and the written sentence that is not conclusively refuted by the transcription of the trial court's oral pronouncement as to whether sentences were to be served concurrently or consecutively. Norman v. State, 2D22-1912 (11/16/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852885/opinion/221912_DC13_11162022_090403_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: When a person inaccurately titles a motion seeking to collaterally attack his or her judgment or sentence, the postconviction court should treat the motion as filed under the appropriate rule of criminal procedure. Norman v. State, 2D22-1912 (11/16/22)

JOA-AGGRAVATED STALKING: Where information charged Aggravated Stalking based on violation of an injunction issued pursuant to §784.046 (repeat violence), but the actual injunction had been entered under §784.0485 (stalking), JOA is required. An injunction for protection against stalking under §784.0485 is not the same as an injunction for repeat violence or dating violence under §784.046, or an injunction for domestic violence under §741.30. Dilver v. State, 3D20-1823 (11/16/22) https://www.3dca.flcourts.org/content/download/852816/opinion/201823_DC13_11162022_100413_i.pdf

JOA-LESSER INCLUDED: Where Defendant is convicted after Court improperly denied a motion for JOA, but the evidence supported lesser included offense, judgment should be entered for the lesser offense. When the appellate court determines that the evidence does not prove the offense for which the defendant was found guilty but does establish guilt of a lesser statutory degree of the offense or a lesser offense necessarily included in the offense charged, the appellate court shall reverse the judgment and direct the trial court to enter judgment for the lesser degree of the offense or for the lesser included offense. Dilver v. State, 3D20-1823 (11/16/22) https://www.3dca.flcourts.org/content/download/852816/opinion/201823_DC13_11162022_100413_i.pdf

MOOTNESS: Defendant's appeal of denial of motion to correct credit for time served is dismissed as moot where Defendsnat has been released. Dieguez v. State, 3D22-1209 (11/16/22) https://www.3dca.flcourts.org/content/download/852825/opinion/221209_DA08_11162022_102019_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-WRONG STATUTE-PREJUDICE: Defendant is not entitled to post conviction relief due to alleged IAC where he pled to DWLS with two or more convictions under §322.34(2)(c) where counsel failed to advise him that he could not be prosecuted under that section because he had been designated as a habitual traffic offender under §322.34(2). Defendant was not prejudiced because the State could have been amended the information to charge him under the proper subsection, §322.34(5), if he had raised the issue. Godwin v. GAIN TIME: Where Court awarded jail credit (504 days) on each count but sentenced Defendant to consecutive time on the counts, DOC may take away the credit sua sponte. The law does not allow for banking of gain-time. DOC has the authority and a duty to correct errors in the computation of sentences when they are discovered. Hartman v. DOC, 1D20-2332 (11/9/22)

GAIN TIME: 85% rule for maximum possible gain time applies to individual sentences, not the over-all sentence. While, a Temporary Release date (TRD) is calculated based on the overall sentence term, 85% rule applies to when a sentence would expire, end, or terminate, or that would result in a prisoner's release. Thus, gaintime might cause an individual sentence to expire, even though the prisoner may not have been released yet. Hartman v. DOC, 1D20-2332 (11/9/22)

COMMENT ON SILENCE: State may argue that Defendant had refused to answer certain questions from law enforcement, that he never denied being guilty, and that he never answered "the hard questions" where Defendant had waived his right against self-incrimination when he voluntarily answered detective's questions. STATEMENTS OF DEFENDANT: Intermittent stops and starts during the interrogations—choosing to answer some questions and responding in non-verbal ways to others, but sometimes just not responding at all to other questions—do not constitute a re-invoking of the right to remain silent. Knight v. State, 1D20-3016 (11/9/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: Defendant's objection to Court's prohibition on re-cross examination of victim is not preserved where the questions to be asked were not proffered. To preserve an objection to a trial court's ruling excluding evidence, a party must proffer the evidence unless it is clear from the context of the questions what the evidence would have been. In the context of re-cross, this requires at a minimum that the party proffer the proposed question. Martin v. State, 1D21-2113 (11/9/22)

BAD BROMANCE: After Victim failed to join Defendant in neighbor's man cave to drink beer and told him that he did not want to be his friend anymore, Defendant texted that "You broke my heart tonight," borrowed a gun, went to the Victim's house, and shot him in the back. Martin v. State, 1D21-2113 (11/9/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: Issue of introduction of body cam footage, in which Victim asks to see his children before dying and Wife tells him that she will still love him if he is paralyzed, is not preserved where counsel had said, "No objection, Your Honor. I've seen the items previously," and only after it was played did he say he hadn't seen the beginning of the clip. Martin v. State, 1D21-2113 (11/9/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: A defendant may not raise a sentencing error (alleged failure to downward depart) on direct appeal unless there was a contemporaneous objection to the error, or the error was the subject of a R. 3.800(b) motion. Howard v. State, 1D21-3340 (11/9/22)

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Appellate Court lacks authority to review a trial court's decision denying a downward departure, where there is no evidence that the trial court misconstrued its discretion to depart or had a blanket policy of refusing to exercise such discretion. Howard v. State, 1D21-3340 (11/9/22)

PRR-HFO: Defendant sentenced as a PRR to thirty years may not also be sentenced as a HFO. Because the sentence of thirty years in prison is coterminous with the mandatory minimum imposed as a PRR, there has been no enlargement of the sentence based on the HFO adjudication. That makes the trial court's sentencing of the appellant as an HFO illegal.

APPEAL-CLERK'S DUTY: Clerks of court in the appeal of a summary postconviction denial are required to provide a copy of the index and record to the parties. Such records are often short as they only consist of the documents set forth in rule 9.141(b)(2)(A). The rule also requires the clerk to transmit the record to this Court along with the certified copy of the record on appeal. Because Appellants must cite to the record for all statements of fact in their initial brief, they must therefore timely receive the record from the clerk. Worrell v. State, 1D22-2011 (11/9/22)

LIFE SENTENCE-JUVENILE OFFENDER: In resentencing hearing for juvenile offender sentenced to life imprisonment, a jury, not the judge, must make the finding that Defendant intended or attempted to kill the victim. Landrum v. State. 2D20-3480 (11/9/22)

MR. MUSTARD IN THE LIBRARY WITH A BOOMBOX: Where the Defendant and her boy friend beat the victim to death with a hammer, a boombox, and a pot, and the Defendant only admitted to using the pot, and the medical examiner could not attribute the cause of death to any single blow or particular object, intent to kill cannot be inferred. The jury is required to determine whether a defendant actually killed, intended to kill, or attempted to kill the victim. Landrum v. State. 2D20-3480 (11/9/22)

the reviewing court; it is not the standard employed by the trial court during resentencing. It is not appropriate for a trial judge to commit error simply because it might be found to be harmless. Landrum v. State. 2D20-3480 (11/9/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CONSENT: Defendant who was acting strangely and put a pocketknife in his pocket is unlawfully detained when told to sit down. An investigatory stop to detain an individual temporarily is a seizure that requires a reasonable suspicion of criminal activity."). Because he was unlawfully detained, he could not have been deemed to have voluntarily consented to the subsequent searches of his pockets or his wallet because consent given after illegal police activity is presumptively tainted and rendered involuntary unless the State shows an unequivocal break in the chain of illegality sufficient to dissipate the taint of prior official illegal action. Stroud v. State, 2D21-2234 (11/9/22)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on the claim that he would have taken offer if his client had told him he was facing a 25 yeasr mandatory minimum. Court erred in determining that Defendant's failure to react to the twenty-five-year minimum mandatory term at sentencing movant that he was aware that it existed. To the extent that the postconviction court reasoned that Mr. Arroyave must have been aware that some minimum mandatory term would apply, given that the State's plea offer included a minimum mandatory term of ten years, this fact does not demonstrate that Mr. Arroyave was made aware that a conviction at trial would result in a minimum mandatory term of twenty-five years' prison. Arroyave v. State. 2D21-3497 (11/9/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Citation in the information to the statutes which provide for mandatory minimum sentences does not mean that Defendant is aware of the mandatory minimums. PLEA-WITHDRAWAL: Once it becomes clear that a defendant and his counsel are in an adversarial relationship with respect to the defendant's entry of his plea, the defendant is entitled to the appointment of conflict-free counsel to represent him and assist him with respect to his motion to withdraw plea. An adversarial relationship may be established by record evidence that counsel may be called as a witness at a later hearing. Coley v. State. 3D21-2439 (11/10/22)

DEATH PENALTY-NOTICE: Filing of a superseding indictment does not vitiate the already filed and timely notice of intent to impose thee death penalty. "Notice is notice." The superseding indictment was clearly a continuation of the original indictment. CONFRONTATION CLAUSE: Because the purpose of the Confrontation Clause is to ensure that the trier of fact has satisfactory means to evaluate the truthfulness of a witness's trial testimony, it provides a number of assurances: 1) the entitlement of the accused to a personal examination of the witness; 2) the witness statement will be under oath; 3) the witness may be forced to submit to cross examination; and 4) the jury or fact finder is permitted to observe the demeanor of the witness. ZOOM: Judge violated Due Process by conducting an adjudicatory hearing by Zoom without making a case-specific finding of necessity, and by not affording the Child a hearing on his objection. "[W]e. . .emphasize that the confrontation right afforded by our national and state constitutions is not implicated here. It is the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment that is of importance." But the right to confrontation is a component of due process of law and essential to fairness in juvenile proceedings. CONFRONTATION CLAUSE: "A purpose of the Confrontation Clause is ordinarily to compel accusers to make their accusations in the defendant's presence—which is not equivalent to making them in a room that contains a television set beaming electrons that portray the defendant's image. DELINQUENCY-JURISPRUDENTIAL HISTORY: Under the English Common Law there existed a conclusive presumption that a child under the age of seven was incapable of committing a crime. Other youths were dealt with by the criminal justice system. T.H. v. State, 2D20-3217 (11/4/22)

VOP-FINANCIAL-NON-PAYMENT: Court improperly revoked probation based on Defendant's nonpaument of the cost of electronic monitoring ($6.94/day), $368 for court costs and $25 for the cost of prosecution where no due date or schedule was set for the payment of any of these costs. The probation office's creation of a monthly payment schedule is not binding. Failure to abide by a payment schedule devised by a probation officer is not sufficient to support a violation. Absent a court ordered schedule or time frame, Defendant could not have violated his probation by failing to make payments so long as sufficient time remained on probation for him to do so. Bright v. SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Court errs in imposing a downward departure for medical reasons (complete renal failure), supported by a letter from the dialysis provider and various medical records (neither signed nor sworn to). Defendant is required to prove the following three elements: (1) that he has a physical disability which (2) requires specialized treatment, and (3) that he is amenable to that treatment. Amenability has been defined as "a reasonable possibility that treatment will be successful. Competent, substantial evidence as to either amenability or specialized treatment is required to support a downward departure sentence. A defendant's testimony as to his medical condition, on its own, has been found to be insufficient to support a downward departure. State v. Sawyer, 5D21-242 (11/4/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-GEOGRAPHIC JURISDICTION-INTOXYLIZER: Winter Park officer retains the power or authority to request that the defendant submit to a breath test as part of an ongoing DUI investigation at the Orange County Jail, notwithstanding that municipal law enforcement officers can exercise their law enforcement powers only within the territorial limits of the municipality. A municipal officer may continue to act or investigate outside of his or her geographic jurisdiction if the subject matter originates inside their city limits. Question certified. Torres v. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: In attempted second degree murder case, where there is a discrepancy between the language of the Indictment and that of the special verdict form–the indictment alleged "an act imminently dangerous to another, and evincing a depraved mind" and the special verdict form found that Defendant "did personally carry, display, use, threaten to use, or attempt to use a firearm." Defendant is entitled to an IAC hearing. Defendant, although charged with a second-degree felony, was found guilty of a first-degree felony due to reclassification. which, if properly done, would have reclassified the second-degree felony to a first-degree felony. 5D22-478 (11/4/22)

MANDATORY MINIMUM: The proper pursuit of an enhanced mandatory sentence requires that the State allege the grounds for enhancement in the charging document and the jury must make factual findings regarding those grounds. This principle also applies to reclassification under §775.087(1). 5D22-478 (11/4/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is not entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for misadvising about his right to testify where his attorney told him that his criminal history would be presented, and he wrongly interpreted that to mean that the State could present the underlying facts of those cases. Scott v. State, 5D22-478 (11/4/22)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: An order granting a rule 3.800(a)1 motion and determining that a sentence was illegal is not a final order but remains subject to reconsideration until a final order imposing a corrected sentence is entered. Trial Court's order for a resentencing hearing for a minor pursuant ot Atwell may be vacated since Atwell itself was overturned. Orders granting relief under rule 3.800(a) are not final or appealable until resentencing has occurred. In R. 3.800(a) proceedings the process of sentence correction is not complete until an order is entered imposing a corrected sentence. Until that point, there is no final order. The structure of R. 3.800(a) is fundamentally different from R. 3.850, under which resentencing proceedings are separate and distinct from the prior proceedings that result in an order vacating a sentence. The two different rules are structured differently and therefore operate differently. Morgan v. State, SC20-641 (11/3/22)

APPEAL-ABANDONED ISSUE: Appellant must raise an issue in the initial brief or it is considered waived or abandoned (here, the issue of accident report privilege). Menchillo v. State, 2D21-3466 (11/2/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852145/opinion/213466_DC05_11022022_083942_i.pdf

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT: Defendant's four-minute-long sworn statement, in which he effectively admitted every element of the crime with which he was later charged, and during which he was not Mirandized, is admissible where Defendant was not in custody. Where Defendant was not handcuffed or otherwise restrained and officers believed that they were conducting a civil investigation to complete the civil crash report, he was not in custody. Menchillo v. State, 2D21-3466 (11/2/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852145/opinion/213466_DC05_11022022_083942_i.pdf

APPEAL-REVIEW: Insofar as a ruling is based on a video or audio recording, the trial court is in no better position to evaluate such evidence than the appellate court. Menchillo v. State, 2D21-3466 (11/2/22)

CUSTODIAL INTERROGATION: "Custodial interrogation" means questioning initiated by law enforcement officers after a person has been taken into custody or otherwise deprived of his freedom of action in any significant way. Thus, the right against self incrimination implicates two issues: first, whether a suspect is in custody, and second, whether the suspect is being interrogated. Absent one or the other, Miranda warnings are not required. Menchillo v. State, 2D21-3466 (11/2/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/852145/opinion/213466_DC05_11022022_083942_i.pdf

CUSTODIAL INTERROGATION: Custody for purposes of Miranda encompasses not only formal arrest, but any restraint on freedom of movement of the degree associated with formal arrest. A person is in custody if a reasonable person placed in the same position would believe that his or her freedom of action was curtailed to a degree associated with actual arrest. In making the determination whether a reasonable person would consider himself in custody, the Court considers: (1) the manner in which police summon the suspect for questioning; (2) the purpose, place, and manner of the interrogation; (3) the extent to which the suspect is confronted with evidence of his or her guilt; (4) whether the suspect is informed that he or she is free to leave the place of questioning. Menchillo v. State, 2D21-3466 (11/2/22)

CUSTODIAL INTERROGATION: Two discrete inquiries are essential to the determination whether a reasonable person would have felt he or she was not at liberty to terminate the interrogation and leave: first, what were the circumstances surrounding the interrogation; and second, given those circumstances, would a reasonable person have felt he or she was not at liberty to terminate the interrogation and leave. Once the scene is set and the players' lines and actions are reconstructed, the court must apply an objective test to resolve the ultimate inquiry. Menchillo v. State, 2D21-3466 (11/2/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Where an evidentiary hearing is held to resolve a timely, facially sufficient R. 3.850 postconviction motion, the trial court shall determine the issues, and make findings of fact and conclusions of law with respect thereto. VOP-STANDARD OF PROOF: To revoke probation, the conscience of the court must be satisfied that the State proved by a greater weight of the evidence that, under the totality of the circumstances, the probationer deliberately, willfully, and substantially violated a condition of his or her probation. VOP-HEARSAY-BUSINESS RECORDS: Business records hearsay exception requires that the party seeking to admit certified and authenticated records into evidence shall serve reasonable written notice of that intention upon every other party and shall make the evidence available for inspection

PROBABLE CAUSE-DEFINITION: Probable cause is a flexible, common-sense standard. It merely requires that the facts available to the officer would warrant a perso] of reasonable caution in the belief that certain items may be useful as evidence of a crime; it does not demand any showing that such a belief be correct or more likely true than false. A practical, nontechnical probability that incriminating evidence is involved is all that is required. State v. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-EXIGENT CIRCUMSTANCES-PHONE: One type of exigent circumstance is the imminent destruction of evidence. The government must show more than a subjective fear of imminent destruction of evidence; the fear must be objectively reasonable. Application of the exigent circumstances exception is particularly compelling in cases involving electronic files, which can easily and quickly deleted. State v. Darter, 4D22-308 (11/2/22)

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: The trial court is only required to award credit for pre-sentence jail time; it is the function of the Department of Corrections to award credit for any time served in jail after sentencing but before transfer to state prison. Herbert v. State, 4D22-819 (11/2/22)

OCTOBER 2022

APPEAL: State may appeal the dismissal of a criminal traffic citation. The State's right to appeal dismissal of formal charges is not limited to indictments or informations. State v. Erway, 2D21-1265 (10/28/22)

TRAFFIC CITATION: A traffic citation is a formal charge despite being neither an indictment nor an information. When issued and served, a uniform traffic citation is the equivalent of an executed information for the purpose of initiating a prosecution. State v. Erway, 2D21-1265 (10/28/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/851721/opinion/211265_DC13_10282022_085404_i.pdf

MOTORIZED BICYCLE-DEFINITION: The term "motorized bicycle" refers only to a "bicycle propelled by a combination of human power and an electric helper motor." State v. Erway, 2D21-1265 (10/28/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/851721/opinion/211265_DC13_10282022_085404_i.pdf

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: The Strickland standard for postconviction relief based on ineffective assistance of counsel--but for counsel's errors, the defendant would not have pled guilty--has no logical application outside of the context of the entry of a plea. Counsel's failure to challenge the imposition of costs can serve as a basis for postconviction relief. Jackson v. State, 2D21-3827 (10/28/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/851729/opinion/213827_DC08_10282022_085646_i.pdf

AUDIO RECORDING-ILLEGAL INTERCEPTION: Recorded phone call to a child victim of sexual abuse is lawful. By statute, a child under 18 years of age may intercept and record an oral communication if: the child is a party to the communication and has reasonable grounds to believe that recording the communication will capture a statement by another party to the communication that the other party intends to commit, is committing, or has committed an unlawful sexual act or an unlawful act of physical force or violence against the child. §934.03(2)(k). State v. Trinidad, 5D21-3006 (10/28/22)

EVIDENCE-IMPAIRMENT: Police officers and lay witnesses have long been permitted to testify as to their observations of a defendant's acts, conduct, and appearance, and also to give an opinion on the defendant's state of impairment based on those observations. Cardoso v. State, 5D22-1152 (10/28/22)

APPEAL-JURISDICTION-CERTIORARI: District court of appeal lacks certiorari jurisdiction to review trial court's order compelling Defendant to provide the passcode to his phone pursuant to a searh warrant. For a district court to grant an interlocutory writ of certiorari, the petitioner must demonstrate that the contested order constitutes (1) a departure from the essential requirements of the law, (2) resulting in material injury for the remainder of the case, (3) that cannot be corrected on postjudgment appeal. Although providing the passcode would injury the Defendant's case by providing evidence that the phone is his, any harm would be reparable on postjudgment appeal. State v. Garcia, SC20-1419 (10/27/22)

PASSCODE-CELL PHONE: "[[T]his case may, if and when properly before us, pose questions we have not previously answered regarding the scope of the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination, or for which there was no clearly established law binding on the trial court. . .The district courts of appeal have reasoned to differing conclusions about whether disclosure of a smartphone passcode is testimonial. The courts of last resort in several states have disagreed about whether the compulsion of such disclosure in circumstances like these would violate a defendant's constitutional right against self incrimination." State v. Garcia, SC20-1419 (10/27/22)

APPEAL-REVIEW-BREACH OF PLEA AGREEMENT: The standard of review for an unpreserved claim the Government breached a plea agreement is for plain-error. Plain error occurs when (1) an error has occurred, (2) the error was plain, and (3) it affected the defendant's substantial rights, and if those prongs are met, appellate court has discretion to correct the error if it (4) seriously affected the fairness of the judicial proceedings. Defendant is not required to move to correct the error by post-conviction motion in the trial court. USA v. Malone, No. 20-12744 (11th Cir. 10/26/22)

APPEAL-REVIEW-BREACH OF PLEA AGREEMENT: "Normally, we review de novo whether the government has breached a plea agreement. But that's when the defendant has preserved the issue in the district court. . . In contrast, when, as here, the defendant did not object before the district court that the government breached a plea agreement, we review on direct appeal for plain error." USA v. Malone, No. 20-12744 (11th Cir. 10/26/22)

TESTY COURT: "Because the courts (including ours) have uniformly applied Puckett to require plain-error analysis on direct appeal whenever a defendant claims breach of the plea agreement but did not object in the district court, a reader might wonder why we are bothering to publish this opinion. After all, faithfully applying controlling Supreme Court (and our own) precedent seldom warrants publication. Here, though, our dissenting colleague has asked us to publish. And so we respect that request." USA v. Malone, No. 20-12744 (11th Cir. 10/26/22)

PLEA AGREEMENT-BREACH: Where Government breaches condition of plea agreement that it would not object to acceptance of responsibility guidelines reduction, Defendant is entitled to withdraw the plea. USA v. Malone, No. 20-12744 (11th Cir. 10/26/22)

PLEA AGREEMENT: A material promise by the government, which induces a defendant to plead guilty, binds the government to that promise. USA v. Malone, No. 20-12744 (11th Cir. 10/26/22)

PLEA AGREEMENT-BREACH: Government violates plea agreement for a acceptance of responsibility level reductions where it opposed the reduction based on Defendant's post-arrest, pre-plea conduct of which it was aware at the time of tendering the offer. USA v. Malone, No. 20-12744 (11th Cir. 10/26/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012744.pdf

PLEA AGREEMENT-BREACH: Government breached the plea agreement by, after agreeing to recommend a guidelines sentence, it effectively arguing for a substantially higher sentence ("double or triple [the recommended sentence]" would have been more appropriate"). A promise to recommend a guidelines-range sentence is a material term of the plea agreement.

"[T]here is no question that the government breached the agreement, and that is not acceptable. The government must do better." USA v. Malone, No. 20-12744 (11th Cir. 10/26/22)

APPEAL-REVIEW-BREACH OF PLEA AGREEMENT (DISSENT, J. TJOFLAT): "The problem with the Majority's analysis is that neither of the errors the Majority identifies on appeal was committed by the District Court. https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012744.pdf

PLEA AGREEMENT-(DISSENT, J. TJOFLAT): "[T]he government has an affirmative, non-waivable obligation to ensure the district court at sentencing has a correct understanding of all information relevant to imposing a fair and just sentence under the guidelines and the §3553(a) sentencing factors. . .In other words, the government cannot promise to stand silent at sentencing or withhold evidence from the court. . .Any plea agreement that induces a defendant to plead guilty with ultra vires promises that contradict or lessen this obligation is likely to be involuntary because the government cannot keep its obligation. . . [T]he Government does not have a right to make an agreement to stand mute in the face of factual inaccuracies or to withhold relevant factual information from the court. Such an agreement not only violates a prosecutor's duty to the court but would result in sentences based upon incomplete facts or factual inaccuracies, a notion that is simply abhorrent to our legal system." USA v. Malone, No. 20-12744 (11th Cir. 10/26/22)

EVIDENCE: Evidence was admissible showing that the Defendant's brother, who testified for the defendant and was facing separate criminal charges for his participation in a robbery along with other people who testified against the Defendant and were impeached on the fact of the pending charges in that robbery. The pending charges helpexplain why two of the three co-defendants are turning on the other, and so are relevant to show bias. Burney v. State, 1D21-1082 (10/26/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: In order to be preserved for further review by a higher court, an issue must be presented to the lower court and the specific legal argument or ground to be argued on appeal or review must be part of that presentation if it is to be considered preserved. SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Five officers, three with drawn handguns and one with a rifle pointing at a hotel door from near the pool, who loudly knocked on the door and announced themselves as police loudly knocked and announced themselves as the police, then either pulled him out or the room or allowed him to hesitantly exit it, and who then handcuffed the Defendant were not engagede in a peaceful consensual encounter. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-KNOCK AND TALK: The key to the legitimacy

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CONSENSUAL ENCOUNTER: "No reasonable person would feel unrestricted and free to leave upon opening his door to be confronted by multiple officers with firearms drawn and with a rifle trained at the room from a few dozen yards away. And Dydek was definitively not free to leave when the officers laid hands on him, hauled him down the hall, attempted to handcuff him, and smashed his face into the ground." Dydek v. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-INVESTIGATORY STOP: Finding a firearm in one hotel room which had been occupied by a felon does not justify as an investigatory stop coercively removing the suspect from a different hotel room. Finding a gun in one room (which had been occupied by two people) establishes only a hunch that there is a gun in another room. "First, the officers had no more than a hunch that anyone had committed the crime of felon in possession of a firearm. . .Nor was there any reasonable suspicion that there was a felon possessing a firearm in the second room." RESISTING WITHOUT VIOLENCE: If officers detain an individual without lawful authority to do so, they are not acting in the lawful execution of their duties; therefore the individual's nonviolent effort to oppose or avoid the detention is not unlawful. Dydek v. State, 2D21-1275 (10/26/22)

ARGUMENT: In attempted murder case in which Defendant suggested that the crime was committed by a person whose ID was found at the scene, State's argument that it could be fake or Mintz could have been dropped by the Defendant himself while perpetrating the crime is not tantamount to burden shifting. JUVENILE OFFENDER-LIFE SENTENCE: A juvenile offender is only entitled to Eighth Amendment relief if he or she is serving a life sentence or the functional equivalent of a life sentence. A forty-year sentence is not the functional equivalent of a life sentence. Jordan v. State, 3D22-1116 (10/26/22)

JURY-SIX PERSON (CONCURRING): Guzman has a credible argument that the original public meaning of the Sixth Amendment right to a "trial by an impartial jury" included the right to a 12-person jury. "Guzman's legal argument on jury composition presents a classic example of how the law navigates the shifting sands of constitutional analysis. If the United States Supreme Court revisits its earlier precedent, Florida criminal law." Ramos holds that a jury must be unanimous and, based on its originalist analysis, undercuts the functionalist underpinnings Williams, which allowed six-person juries. Guzman v. PSI: For a first-time felony offender, a PSI is required but may be waived. A defendant's on-the-record personal waiver of the right to a PSI is not required and a trial court's failure to obtain a personal waiver does not constitute fundamental error." The right to a PSI is not a fundamental, constitutional right, nor does it go to the heart of the adjudicatory process.

But a Defendant does nor waive the right to a PSI simply because defense counsel had an opportunity to request a presentence investigation and did not do so. Defendant here waived a PSI because the trial court alerted defense counsel to Guzman's right to a PSI and defense counsel decided to move forward with sentencing without one. Defense counsel did not need to use the magic words "we waive a PSI." Guzman v. State, 4D22-148 (10/26/22)

SEX OFFENDER REGISTRATION-LACHES: Petitioner is not barred by doctrine of laches from challenging 2018 amendments to sexual offender registration requirements as unduly onerous more than four years since enactment. Plaintiffs' claims accrued when they were first injured by the actual or threatened enforcement of the allegedly unconstitutional statute. The continuing violation doctrine applies. Jane Doe v. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Any deficiency in trial counsel's failure to file a motion to suppress is not prejudicial when other evidence strongly supports the conviction. STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT-REDACTION: Although interrogating detectives' statements can be understood by a jury to be "techniques" used to secure confessions, a witness's opinion as to the credibility, guilt, or innocence of the accused is generally inadmissible, and it is especially troublesome when a jury is repeatedly exposed to an interrogating officer's opinion regarding the guilt or innocence of the accused. Such statements by interrogating officer are inadmissible where they do not elicit incriminating responses. Floyd v. State, 5D21-2645 (10/21/22)

DURESS-JURY INSTRUCTION: The six elements of a duress defense are: (1) the defendant reasonably believed that a danger or emergencythat he did not intentionally cause; 2) the danger or emergency threatened significant harm to himself or a third person; 3) the threatened harm must have been real, imminent, and impending; 4) the defendant had no reasonable means to avoid the danger or emergency except by committing the crime; 5) the crime must have been committed out of duress to avoid the danger or emergency; and 6) the harm the defendant avoided outweighs the harm caused by committing the crime. Ford v. State, 1D20-3350 (10/19/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION-GANG AFFILIATION: Defendant's objection to a question aout him being affiliated with the Pakistan Yulee Clique (PYC), without stating a specific legal basis for the objection fails to preserve his contention on appeal that the testimony's risk of unfair prejudice outweighed its probative value. To preserve a legal argument for appeal, the party must state a legal ground for that objection and assert on appeal that same legal ground as a basis for reversal. Ford v. SENTENCING-LACK OF REMORSE: Court did not err in considering the Defendant's lack of remorse where he had tortured his daughter over a long period, leaving her emaciated and with oozing welts, bruises, cuts, and a lacerated spleen, where Defendant bragged and laughed about what they were doing to the child in texts, i.e. it's your turn to "beat [the child's] ass." HABEAS CORPUS-CLOSE MANAGEMENT: A petition for a writ of habeas corpus is the correct mechanism for a prisoner to challenge his or her placement in close management. RES JUDICATA-SEXUAL PREDATOR: Defendant may be later designated a sexual predator, notwithstanding that he was not so designated at the time of his sentencing, for lewd and lascivious molestation. A trial court has jurisdiction to designate a defendant as a sexual predator under §775.21 even though the defendant was not designated as a sexual predator at the time of sentencing and has since completed his sentence. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-APPEAL-EXTENSION: When a motion for extension to file a postconviction motion is denied, the defendant should not appeal that order, but should instead file the intended motion as soon as possible, alleging the grounds for the motion to the best of the defendant's ability and further alleging the reason why the motion is untimely. Gonzalez v. State, 3D22-1259 (10/19/22)

STAND YOUR GROUND: Motion for SYG immunity is facially insufficient where the motion alleged that Defendant's cellmate: (1) asked if he wanted to fight him and offered to fight now, (2) made repeated threats to hs life, (3) struck him with his shoulder as he walked by, (4) chest bumped him, and (5) was a member of a gang known for murder and gun violence. None of these amount to an imminent threat by the cellmate to use unlawful force. Court erred in conducting a hearing on the legally insufficient SYG motion. State v. Woodson, 5D21-2251 (10/14/22)

DEFINITION-"IMMINENT": "Imminent" means "ready to take place: happening soon." This definition implies that an "imminent" act requires no further measures to manifest; imminence also has a temporal dimension, developing quickly relative to the events that define it. In other words, very little time or preparation may stand between the present moment and an "imminent" event. State v. Woodson, 5D21-2251 (10/14/22)

DEFINITION-"PROSPECTIVE"-"IMMINENT": "Prospective' simply means likely to happen, or expected. "Imminent" encompasses a narrower time frame and means "impending" and "about to occur." Thus, while all imminent abuse or neglect is prospective, prospective abuse or neglect is merely in the future, but not necessarily about to happen. State v. Woodson, 5D21-2251 (10/14/22)

APPEAL PRESERVATION-DISCOVERY VIOLATION: The issue of whether State's discovery violation in vehicular homicide case by failing to disclose that an officer would testify as an expert is not preserved where the only objection articulated was that the witness's trial testimony contradicted the deposition testimony. MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL: A motion for new trial requires the trial court to evaluate whether the jury's verdict is contrary to the weight of the evidence and to act, in effect, as an additional juror. The standard is not sufficiency of the evidence. Case remanded for the trial court to consider the weight of the evidence when ruling on the motion for new trial. Roberts v. State, 5D21-2537 (10/14/22)

SEXUAL BATTERY-DUE PROCESS-MENS REA: Defendant who had sex with woman after his roommate had had sex with her, where the woman was unaware that Defendant was a different guy (he approached her from behind and she actively participated, thinking he was Guy #1), may be found guilty of sexual battery. Due Process does not require that Defendant know or should have known that the complainant did not consent to sexual intercourse, or that the defendant knew or should have known anything in particular about the complainant's subjective state of mind. APPEAL-ISSUE-PRESERVATION: Defendant cannot raise on appeal as an issue that Defendant's statement ("that's [sic] makes victim number 23") is improper Williams rule evidence where the articulated objection in trial was that it was unduly prejudicial. Jack v. State, 1D21-1494 (10/12/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PROBATIONARY SEARCHES: On warrantless probationary searches, a nonprobationer, cannot reasonably expect privacy in areas of a residence that shared with probationers. A person choosing to live in the same home with another who is subject as a probationer to warrantless searches has a corresponding diminished expectation of privacy. State v. Green, 1D21-1808 (10/12/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CONFORMITY CLAUSE: The conformity clause of the Florida constitution binds Florida courts to decisions of the United States Supreme Court on Fourth Amendment issues. But when the United States Supreme Court has not addressed a particular search and seizure issue, Florida courts may rely on Florida state precedent for guidance. State v. Green, 1D21-1808 (10/12/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PROBATIONARY SEARCHES: Evidence seized in a probationary search may not be used to support new criminal charges unless the search otherwise satisfies the requirements of the Fourth Amendment. "It bears repeating, however, that probationers do not enjoy the same expectation of privacy under the Fourth Amendment as ordinary citizens. Thus, the United States Supreme Court has held that law enforcement may conduct warrantless searches of probationers' homes under a lesser standard of reasonable suspicion (not probable cause) where a condition of probation included consent to a warrantless search." SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PROBATIONARY SEARCHES: When investigating suspected criminal acts after probation offier observes an illegal substance, the state can seek a search warrant to secure the evidence necessary to support new charges. State v. Green, 1D21-1808 (10/12/22)

BURGLARY-CURTILAGE: Curtilage is the enclosed space of ground and outbuildings immediately surrounding a building. Fenced in area of a car towing business, and the fence itself, is within its curtilage. Key v. State, 1D21-1187 (10/12/22)

CURTILAGE-FENCE: "There do not appear to be any Florida cases that directly address whether the fence is itself part of the curtilage. But the fence is inextricably tied to the curtilage and therefore the structure itself. . .The curtilage is not just an area next to the structure. By statute, the curtilage is the structure. . . When a building has a curtilage, the boundaries of the structure are defined by the fence. Just as the building's walls are part of the structure, the curtilage's fence is also part of the structure." Key v. State, 1D21-1187 (10/12/22)

BURGLARY-JURY INSTRUCTION: Jury instruction which omitted that the defendant "had the intent to commit an offense other than burglary or trespass in that structure," which is meant to make clear to jurors that the crime intended cannot be burglary or trespass, was error, but not fundamental error because it did not touch on a disputed element of the crime. Failing to instruct on an element of the crime over which there was no dispute is not fundamental error. Key v. State, 1D21-1187 (10/12/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CONSENT-SCOPE: Officer who has been given permission to take Defendant's phone from his pocket, but pulls out his bag of heroin as well exceeds the scope of permission. Atwood v. State, 1D21-2605 (10/12/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-REVIEW: "We first ask if Fourth Amendment protections are triggered by the nature of the action. If so, we then address whether those protections were trespassed. And finally, if they were, we evaluate whether the resulting evidence should be excluded." Atwood v. State, 1D21-2605 (10/12/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PLAIN TOUCH: When relying on plain touch, it is the development of probable cause through the otherwise lawful touch that permits the subsequent search and seizure. Based on its feel, the deputy must be reasonably certain the object is contraband. Atwood v. State, 1D21-2605 (10/12/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-EXCLUSIONARY RULE: Use of the exclusionary rule to suppress evidence is a last resort and applies only when its remedial objective is efficaciously served. Defendant's flight upon the removal of narcotics from his pocket, even if the search was unlawful, justifies the detention of the Defendant lawful, so that any dropped drugs were either abandoned or inevitably discovered. Atwood v. State, 1D21-2605 (10/12/22)

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS: §775.15(2)(b) requires that prosecution of a second-degree felony must be commenced within three years of the offense, but §775.15(16) extends the statute of limitations to any time after the identity of the accused is established through DNA evidence, if a sufficient portion of the evidence collected at the time of the original investigation and tested for DNA is preserved and available for testing by the accused. Williams v. State, 1D22-123 (10/12/22)

LIMITATION OF ACTIONS: §775.15(13)(a) provides that if the offense is a first or second degree felony violation of §794.011, and the offense is reported within 72 hours after its commission, the prosecution for such offense may be commenced at any time. Williams v. State, 1D22-123 (10/12/22)

VOP-INABILITY TO PAY: Homeless Defendant who did not appear at sex offender treatment intake, claiming inability to pay $92.00 fee, may be found to have violated probation and may be sentenced to life in prison. "This situation brings to mind the old adage that where there is a will, there is a way. Here, the trial court found there was no will, hence, not surprisingly, no way." Mendoza v. VOP-UNEXPIRED TERM: A trial court is well within its discretion to revoke probation for the non-completion of a sex offender program, even when the order does not specify the date by which it needs to be completed. Mendoza v. State, 3D21-1522 (10/12/22)

JUDGE-TEMPORARY APPOINTMENT: Assuming that a deficiency existed in the temporary appointment of the county court judge to the circuit court, this provides no basis for postconviction relief. Jurisdiction is determined by the court, not the judge. Gray v. State, 4D22-1046 (10/12/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant may not challenge as an illegal sentence pursuant to R. 3.800(a) his designation as a violent career offender by claiming that the Court miscounted the predicate offenses where any such error is not apparent from the face of the record. Williams v. State, 4D22-1234 (10/12/22)

SENTENCING-UPWARD DEPARTURE: A jury finding of dangerousness is required for a judge to sentence a Defendant with fewer than 22 points on his scoresheet. On re-sentencing, Defendant may not be sentenced to prison. Lamberson v. State, 2D21-1557 (10/7/22)

https://www.2dca.org/content/download/850589/opinion/211557_DC13_10072022_083457_i.pdf

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Where the trial court applies an incorrect standard in determining whether to exercise its discretion to depart from the guidelines, a new sentencing hearing is required. In determining whether to grant a motion for downward departure, a trial court is required to engage in a two-part process. First, the court must determine whether it can depart. Second, it should depart. Court's statement ("I do not find that there is a fact or consideration or circumstances that clearly demonstrates that imposing a mandatory minimum term of imprisonment would constitute or result in an injustice,") fails to apply the test. Resentencing before a different judge is required. White v. State, 2D21-1713 (10/7/22)

JURISDICTION-SENTENCE CORRECTION-PENDING APPEAL: A trial court has authority to consider a subsequently filed postconviction motion that raises unrelated issues notwithstanding the pendency of an appeal of an order on a previously filed postconviction motion, but lacks jurisdiction to consider issues related to the subect of the appeal (here, credit for time served). Morrow v. State, 2D22-686 (10/7/22)

JURY-SIZE: The fact that the jury at common law was composed of precisely 12 is a historical accident, unnecessary to effect the purposes of the jury system and wholly without significance except to mystics. Brown v. State, 1D21-597 (10/6/22)

KIDNAPPING: For kidnapping, State must show that the defendant moved or confined the victim in a way that: (1) is not slight, inconsequential and merely incidental to theother crime; (2) is not of the kind inherent in the nature of the other crime; and (3) has ifsome significance independent of the other crime by making the other crime substantially easier to commit or by substantially lowering the risk of detection. Forcing victims back into the restaurant when they were in the process of exiting the building is sufficient to support a conviction for kidnapping. Brown v. State, 1D21-597 (10/6/22)

HEARSAY-CO-CONSPIRATOR'S STATEMENT: A witness's statement that a third-party told her someone named "Kenneth" wanted to rob the Bojangles is admissible under the statement of co-conspirator exception to the hearsay rule. Brown v. State, 1D21-597 (10/6/22)

LEGALLY INCONSISTENT VERDICTS: A legally inconsistent verdict occurs when a finding of not guilty on one count negates a necessary element for conviction on another count. While factually inconsistent verdicts are permissible because they result from a jury's inherent authority to acquit, a legally inconsistent verdict cannot stand. Jury may not find Defendant guilty of first-degree felony murder and not guilty of the predicate attempted robbery. The first-degree felony murder is remanded for the entry of a judgment for the lesser-included offense of second-degree murder. Morris v. State, 1D21-1689 (10/6/22)

SENTENCING-CONCURRENT: A defendant convicted of two or more offenses charged in the same indictment, information, or affidavit or in consolidated indictments, informations, or affidavits shall serve the sentences of imprisonment concurrently unless the court directs that two or more of the sentences be served consecutively. Walk v. State, 4D21-557 (10/6/22)

SENTENCING-CREDIT-MAXIMUM: Defendant is entitled to credit against each count for the time he served in prison and on probation concurrently on each offense. When a criminal defendant is sentenced after being convicted of a crime and serves some portion of that sentence, he or she is entitled to receive credit for the actual service of that sentence, or any portion thereof, in a resentencing for the same crime. Likewise, if multiple convictions result in concurrent sentences, credit must be awarded for time served on each sentence in any resentencing for the multiple convictions. Walk v. HABEAS CORPUS REVIEW-AEDPA: "Put simply, we have the power to overturn a state court's decision on the merits of a petitioner's habeas claim only in rare circumstances. Pye v. Warden, No. 18-12147 (11th Cir. 10/4/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201812147.enb.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-AEDPA: Appellate court may not grant a petition for writ of habeas corpus based on ineffective assistance of counsel in state court unless unless the state court's adjudication of the claim of IAC (1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or (2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts in light of the evidence presented in the State court proceeding. A prisoner must show far more than that the state court's decision was merely wrong or even clear error. The decision must be so obviously wrong that its error lies beyond any possibility for fair minded disagreement. Pye v. Warden, No. 18-12147 (11th Cir. 10/4/22)

AEDPA: AEDPA requires habeas court to defer to the lower court's factual findings, however questionable. The state court's decision to view with caution the affidavit evidence (alleging that counsel failed to investigate death penalty mitigation) was neither contrary to nor an unreasonable application of clearly established federal law. Federal habeas courts require robust evidence before disturbing a state court's credibility determinations. Pye v. Warden, No. 18-12147 (11th Cir. 10/4/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201812147.enb.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS REVIEW: Federal court in habeas review may consider justifications underlying the state court's decision denying relief despite the lower court having failed to explicitly memorialize the reasons in its written opinion. Pye v. Warden, No. 18-12147 (11th Cir. 10/4/22)

HABEAS CORPUS REVIEW-AEDPA (J. PRYOR, DISSENT): "The writ of habeas corpus is illusory—impossible—even, to obtain." Pye v. Warden, No. 18-12147 (11th Cir. 10/4/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201812147.enb.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS REVIEW-AEDPA (J. PRYOR, DISSENT): The majority opinion's first move is to declare that federal courts may find that a reasoned state court decision withstands AEDPA deference by turning to justifications the state court never even hinted at. The majority's attempt to wiggle out from under Supreme Court precedent is unconvincing. The majority opinion supports its declaration with a half-baked textual analysis. Pye v. Warden, No. 18-12147 (11th Cir. 10/4/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201812147.enb.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS REVIEW-AEDPA (J. PRYOR, DISSENT): "[T]he majority opinion holds—on an issue of first impression in this Court that was never briefed or argued by the parties—that a state court's findings of fact may be clearly erroneous but not sufficiently important to meet the 'unreasonable' AEDPA standard. . . [T]he holding creates a practically impossible path to relief for habeas petitioners. If federal courts can bury unreasonable findings under an avalanche of new reasons the state court never gave, then unreasonable findings will virtually never be important enough to satisfy the majority's test." Pye v. Warden, No. 18-12147 (11th Cir. 10/4/22)

SEX OFFENDER REGISTRATION: Sex offender registration/restrictions/neighborhood notification rules do not violate the Ex Post Facto clause of the Constitution because they are not punitive, and therefore may be applied retroactively. McGuire v. Marshall, No. 15-10958 (11th Cir. 10/3/22)

EX POST FACTO: The Ex Post Facto Clause prohibits the retroactive application only of laws imposing punishment; a statutory scheme that is civil and regulatory in nature rather than criminal may apply retroactively. McGuire v. Marshall, No. 15-10958 (11th Cir. 10/3/22)

SEX OFFENDER REGISTRATION-BANISHMENT: Limitations on the residency in employment for sex offenders does not bear a sufficient resemblance to the traditional punishment of banishment to constitute a punishment. McGuire v. Marshall, No. 15-10958 (11th Cir. 10/3/22)

BANISHMENT: Banishment dates back more than 4,000 years. It is a form of punishment contained in the Code of Hammurabi, Mosaic law, the Old Testament Book of Esther, the Laws of Manu, and the T'ang Code. In the early 1700s, the United Kingdom banished around 50,000 of its criminals to America. McGuire v. Marshall, No. 15-10958 (11th Cir. 10/3/22)

LESSER INCLUDED-HOMICIDE: In a homicide prosecution, the jury is not permitted to consider any non-homicide lesser-included offenses (e.g., aggravated battery) even if such lesser-included offenses are subsumed within and necessarily established by proof of the murder charge, unless there is some disputed issue of fact (and some evidence to support a theory) regarding an intervening cause of death. VOP-JURISDICTION: When a defendant has been placed on probation, the sentencing court loses jurisdiction over the defendant once the probationary period expires unless proceedings to modify or revoke probation have been instituted in the interim. Smith v. State, 5D22-1663 (10/3/22)

JURISDICTION-CTS-PROBATION-INCARCERATION: Where the probation order imposes twenty-four months of supervised probation, with the condition that Defendant complete a term of six months in jail with credit for time served. The time spent in jail must be credited toward the entire term of probation. Properly crediting the jail time to the out-of-custody probation period results in the court losing jurisdiction to revoke probation. Smith v.

ACCA-PREDICATE OFFENSE: A completed purchase of a narcotic under Florida law requires proof that the defendant both (1) gave consideration for and (2) obtained control of a trafficking quantity of illegal drugs, and further that the requisite control consists of the same range of conduct that qualifies as constructive possession under federal law. Accordingly, Defendant's prior Florida drug trafficking convictions are prior serious drug offenses for purposes of the ACCA, USA v. Conage, N0. 17-13975 (11th Cir. 9/30/22)

STALKING (DISSENT-J. ARTAU): Court errs in broadly defining the term

"harass" to include almost anything that a neighbor finds annoying, such as a father helping his child with a backyard science experiment that causes a foul-smelling odor; a scantily-dressed teenager taking an outdoor shower; a forgetful grandfather repeatedly placing garbage or debris in the wrong place; a mother using a lawnmower too early in the morning; a family enjoying their fire ring on a windy day; a grandmother taking pictures of wildlife she spots in her neighbor's yard; an activist utilizing her fence to post her views; and a resident who curiously looks at a neighbor while on a break from clearing brush with a machete. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Trial counsel is not ineffective for failing to object to opening statement in which the prosecutor claimed that Defendant attacked a witness and took her purse where the facts ultimately introduced at trial did not support that assertion. Opening remarks are not evidence. The fact that such testimony supporting a claim made in opening is not ultimately elicited at trial does not render the initial comments objectionable.

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel was not ineffective for failing to question one witness for misidentifying Defendant and another for failing to identify for fear of bolstering any in-court identification ("[I]f somebody's identified somebody on the stand, then you ask them, well, did you misidentify them in the past, and they say, well, yes, I did, but he's the man, all I've done is accomplished a second identification of a man in front of the jury.") POST CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE-DNA: MIX 13 studies, a series of scientific studies conducted on DNA labs across the country which brings to light inconsistencies in DNA interpretation, is not newly discovered evidence because it is based on information that was previously available to counsel at the time of trial. APPEAL-BRIEF: Arguments raised for first time in reply brief are waived. Defendant's argument that the trial court improperly denied his objection to the jury panel based on Florida's statute revoking the voting rights of convicted felons was raised only in his reply brief and not in his initial brief, and is thus waived. HABEAS CORPUS-DISMISSAL: Court may dismiss, rather than transfer, a habeas petition when the petitioner seeks relief that (1) would be untimely if considered as a motion for postconviction relief under rule 3.850, (2) raise claims that could have been raised at trial or, if properly preserved, on direct appeal of the judgment and sentence, or (3) would be considered a second or successive motion under rule 3.850. JUVENILE OFFENDER-SENTENCE REVIEW: Juvenile offender convicted of sexual battery with force and sentenced to 30 years in prison qualifies for judicial review after twenty years. However, the Court is not required to pronounce the offender's entitlement to a sentence review, nor is it required to so indicate these facts on the sentencing order. Rather, DOC is required to notify Defendant of his eligibility for a sentence review 18 months in advance. Then, the burden of seeking judicial review falls on the juvenile offender. Parrish v. JUVENILE OFFENDER-SENTENCE REVIEW (CONCURRENCE): "I urge circuit judges to pronounce eligibility at sentencing and include such eligibility in the commitment documents provided to the Department of Corrections. . .[G]iven that the eligibility for a sentence review for nonhomicide juvenile offenders is to occur after they serve twenty years, it seems the Department is more likely to overlook its obligation if it is not in writing." APPEAL: The first document received by the Court must invoke the Court's jurisdiction. "Neither the Florida Constitution nor the Florida Rules of Appellate Procedure requires this Court to open a case just because it receives a document in the mail." Appellant's "Motion for Constitutional Stay Writ," containing only generalized allegations that the lower court violated his constitutional and civil rights, lacking an allegation of a proper basis for relief, is dismissed. APPEAL-JURISDICTION-CERTIORARI-ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL: Appellate court lacks jurisdiction to hear an appeal of the trial court's denial of Public Defender's Motion to Withdraw based on conflict because the order does not act as an end to the judicial labor in the cause, and is not among the appealable nonfinal orders in the appellate rules, nor may the issue be raised by certiorari because no irreparable harm is shown. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-AEDPA; Under the Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act ("AEDPA")., when a state court has adjudicated the petitioner's claim on the merits, a federal court may not grant habeas relief unless the state court's decision was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States, or was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts. The phrase "clearly established Federal law" refers to the governing legal principle or principles set forth by the Supreme Court at the time the state court renders its decision. Lukehart v. POST CONVICTION RELIEF-AEDPA: Constitutional trial error does not entitle a federal habeas petitioner to relief unless the petitioner can establish that the error resulted in "actual prejudice." "Actual prejudice" means that the error had substantial and injurious effect or influence in determining the jury's verdict. Lukehart v. Sec'y Fla. DOC, No. 21-10099 (11th Cir 9/26/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Argument that a different strategy would have been better does not meet Defendant;s burden under Strickland; counsel cannot be adjudged incompetent for performing in a particular way in a case, as long as the approach taken might be considered sound trial strategy." STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT: Interrogation, as conceptualized in the Miranda opinion, must reflect a measure of compulsion above and beyond that inherent in custody itself. Defendant's statements in abducted/murdered baby case ("what's going on?" and that he had just tried to kill himself), even if admitted in violation of Miranda, does not warrant habeas corpus relief. Lukehart v. Sec'y Fla. DOC, No. 21-10099 (11th Cir 9/26/22)

APPEAL-STANDARDS OF REVIEW: Appellate court reviews the legal correctness of a jury instruction de novo, but defers to the district court on questions of style and phrasing absent an abuse of discretion. USA v. Grushko, No. 20-10438 (11th Cir. 9/23/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010438.pdf

APPEAL-STANDARDS OF REVIEW: Appellate court reviews a district court's determination whether to strike an entire jury panel for manifest abuse of discretion. USA v. Grushko, No. 20-10438 (11th Cir. 9/23/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010438.pdf

APPEAL-STANDARDS OF REVIEW: Appellate court reviews sentencing issues de novo, including claims that the district court double counted enhancement levels. However, if a double-counting claim is not raised before the district, review is for plain error. To establish plain error, the defendant must show (1) an error, (2) that is plain, and (3) that affected his substantial rights. If a defendant satisfies these conditions, appellate court may exercise its discretion to recognize the error only if it seriously affects the fairness, integrity, or public reputation of judicial proceedings. USA v. Grushko, No. 20-10438 (11th Cir. 9/23/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010438.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Where Defendants are detained on an warrant outside a home, officers may still enter the home when they are not positive that the detainees are the subjects of the arrest warrant. The officers need not be absolutely certain that a suspect is at home before entering to execute an arrest warrant. USA v. Grushko, No. 20-10438 (11th Cir. 9/23/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010438.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-IRONY: Officers could enter the home of the people they detained and laid face down outside the house where they were not sure whether the detainees were the subjects of the arrest warrants. Checking their wallets for identification would have been unlawful; entering the home to look for them was not. USA v. Grushko, No. 20-10438 (11th Cir. 9/23/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010438.pdf

VOIR DIRE: Court's voir dire questions minimizing the importance of DNA or fingerprint evidence did not impermissibly lower the government's burden of proof. "As we see it, the court's discussion about television shows and the nature of forensic evidence presented on them was unnecessary, unwise and should have been avoided. . .[but], we cannot say that the district court. . .impermissibly createda mandatory presumption in favor of the government, nor can we say that its words entitled the jury to discount the defense's arguments in closing about whether the absence of fingerprint evidence created a reasonable doubt." USA v. Grushko, No. 20-10438 (11th Cir. 9/23/22)

SENTENCING-ENHANCEMENT-DOUBLE COUNTING: Court did not engage in improper double counting for assessing a two level increase for possessing device-making equipment. Impermissible double counting occurs only when one part of the Guidelines is applied to increase a defendant's punishment on account of a kind of harm that has already been fully accounted for by application of another part of the Guidelines. On the other hand, double counting is permissible where: (1) the Sentencing Commission intended the result; and (2) each guideline section in question concerns a conceptually separate consideration related to sentencing. USA v. Grushko, No. 20-10438 (11th Cir. 9/23/22)

VOIR DIRE-JUDGE'S COMMENTS: Judge's comments during voir dire reinforcing a prosecution-friendly view of the case is improper. "I understand that the district court was trying to use images and concepts that would have registered or connected with prospective jurors in the 21st century. But sometimes using the tried and true—even if boring and unimaginative—is a better and safer alternative." USA v. Grushko, No. 20-10438 (11th Cir. 9/23/22)

IMMUNITY-"BUT FOR" CAUSATION: §893.21, providing immunity from prosecution due to evidence obtained as a result of seeking medical assistance, does not apply when an outstanding arrest warrant is discovered, leading to the arrest of the Defendant and the discovery of narcotics in his pocket. The arrest warrant is an intervening cause leading to the discovery of the contraband, sufficient to break the causal chain. Proximate cause, not but for cause, is the appropriate standard. State v. Waiters, 2D21-1477 (9/23/22)

IMMUNITY-"BUT FOR" CAUSATION: "Were we to accept the trial court's

"but for" causation test, an individual would enjoy immunity beyond that intended by the statute. According to Mr. Waiters, an arresting officer must turn a blind eye to any contraband discovered pursuant to a search incident to arrest on an outstanding warrant because the series of events leading to that discovery began with Mr. Waiters' need for medical assistance for a suspected drug overdose. This is, indeed, a strained reading of the statute." State v. Waiters, 2D21-1477 (9/23/22)

COMPETENCY: Court errs in finding Defendant competent on the basis of a report stipulated to by the parties but which the Court never actually read. A trial court abuses its discretion when it does not independently determine that a defendant is competent to stand trial. What cannot be waived is a defendant's right to have the trial court make an independent, legal determination that he is competent to proceed once his competency has been called into question. The parties cannot stipulate that a defendant is competent. Goonewardena v. State, 5D21-1073 (9/23/22)

MOTION TO DISMISS-R 3.190(c)(4): Brandishing and waving an airsoft gun while within shooting range of the victim is an overt act within the meaning of the assault statute sufficient to prove a prima facie case of assault, sufficient to withstand a (c)(4) motion to dismiss. DEATH PENALTY-SEXUAL BATTERY-J. THOMAS, CONCURRING: "[I[n my view, respectfully, the United States Supreme Court's decision barring capital punishment for the rape of an adult was wrongly decided. . .Should a state determine that the death penalty is an appropriate punishment for aggravated armed sexual battery or the sexual battery of a child, the United States Supreme Court, given the opportunity, should. . hold that such sentences. . .are valid and legitimate." Bicking v. State, 1D21-2981 (9/22/22)

RETURN OF STOLEN PROPERTY: Suspect who stole numerous government documents, including top secret documents, later recovered by government via a search warrant, is not entitled to their return, nor to an order prohibiting the government from reviewing the documents for criminal investigative purposes, due to a likelihood of irreparable harm from the threat of future prosecution and the associated stigma. "No doubt the threat of prosecution can weigh heavily on the mind of someone under investigation. But. . . 'if the mere threat of prosecution were allowed to constitute irreparable harm . . . every potential defendant could point to the same harm and invoke the equitable powers of the district court.'" Trump v. USA, No. 22-13005 (11th Cir. 9/21/22)

SUCK IT UP: Bearing the discomfiture and cost of a prosecution for crime is one of the painful obligations of citizenship. Trump v. USA, No. 22-13005 (11th Cir. 9/21/22)

RETURN OF STOLEN PROPERTY: Thief does not have a possessory interest in the the documents he stole, nor does he suffer a cognizable harm if the United States reviews documents he neither owns nor has a personal interest in. Trump v. USA, No. 22-13005 (11th Cir. 9/21/22)

RETURN OF STOLEN PROPERTY: Thief is not entitled to return of seized stolen top secret government documents on the grounds that some personal documents may have been taken. "[N]one of those concerns apply to the roughly one-hundred classified documents at issue here. . .For our part, we cannot discern why Plaintiff would have an individual interest in or need for any of the one-hundred documents with classification markings." Trump v. USA, No. 22-13005 (11th Cir. 9/21/22)

EVIDENCE-DUI MANSLAUGHTER: In DUI manslaughter case, evidence that Victim had active ingredients of marijuana and opioid analgesics in her body at the time of the accident is ordinarily inadmissible. "[T]ere, there was an obvious danger in admitting evidence, even relevant evidence, that would allow the jury to improperly consider the deceased's intoxication, because the statute requires that any fault of the deceased be the sole cause of the fatal collision to absolve Appellant of guilt. Appellant violated the statute, even if he only contributed to the accident, so the proffered evidence had to show that the victim was 100% at fault for the collision." Mizell v. State, 1D20-3627 (9/21/22)

DUI MANSLAUGHTER: An element of DUI manslaughter is that a defendant "cause or contribute to causing" the death of a victim while operating a vehicle while impaired. For a decedent's conduct to constitute a defense to DUI manslaughter, the conduct must be viewed as the sole proximate cause of an accident. Any deviation or lack of care on the part of a driver under the influence to which the fatal accident can be attributed will suffice. Mizell v. State, 1D20-3627 (9/21/22)

ATTORNEY-CONFLICT-WITHDRAWAL: Public Defender must be allowed to withdraw on the vague assertion that the interests of the Defendant "are so adverse and hostile to those of another client and/or an attorney within the Office of the Public Defender that a conflict of interest exists." "Although we recognize and appreciate that trial courts are hamstrung by a statute which allows trial courts to conduct a hearing but precludes trial courts from asking much about the nature of the conflict in cases of alleged conflict like this, it was a departure from the essential requirements of law for the trial court here to deny the public defender's request to withdraw." Hay v. State, 2D21-2167 (9/21/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to apprise her of a possible defense and that had she been aware of the defense, she would not have entered a plea of guilty. McGregor v. State, 3D22-971 (9/21/22)

DRIVER'S LICENSE SUSPENSION: Court may not suspend license for five years for a first DUI. Brown v. State, 1D21-2947 (9/21/22)

COSTS: In DUI case, Court errs in imposing additional costs of $82 under §§938.27 and 318.18(18). The $50 in prosecution costs for a misdemeanor must be requested. §318.18(18)'s $12.50 administrative fee only applies to noncriminal violations and is thus inapposite to Defendant's DUI conviction. APPEAL: Appellate court may not grant any relief from a scrIvener's error in the judgment–Defendant was convicted after trial, not after a plea--where the issue is raised for the first time on appeal. "And if a defendant is precluded from even raising such an error, it follows that for us to respond even by simply noting the error, let alone remanding to allow the trial court to take any action on it, would improperly reward noncompliance with that dictate." Carrion v. State, 2D18-4289 (9/16/22)

DEFINITION- "SCRIVENER'S ERROR": A scrivener's error" is a mistake in the written sentence that is at variance with the oral pronouncement of sentence or the record but not those errors that are the result of a judicial determination or error. SENTENCE CORRECTION (CONCURRENCE): Defendant may not raise for first time on direct appeal the scrivener's error. "I do not agree that such preservation must or even can be effectuated by way of a motion to correct sentencing error pursuant to Florida Rule of Criminal Procedure 3.800(b) because an error in a judgment is not a "sentencing error." A FOUL EXPOSITION: "[A]llowing presentation of an unpreserved scrivener's error that is not fundamental and reviewing such error could run afoul of case law expositing the proscriptions of the contemporaneous objection rule." Carrion v. State, 2D18-4289 (9/16/22)

SAY NO MORE: "Until such time as an appellate court's proper course of action regarding a trial court's unpreserved scrivener's error is clarified by statute, rule, or Florida Supreme Court opinion, perhaps nothing more than that need—or should—be said." Carrion v. State, 2D18-4289 (9/16/22)

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED-ORAL PRONOUNCEMENT: Where court orally awarded credit for time served to which Defendant may not have been entitled, and the written sentence did not award the credit for time served, the oral pronouncement controls. Tillman v. State, 2D21-1269 (9/12/22)

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: A sentencing court has discretion to grant jail credit on each individual consecutive sentence. A trial court is without authority to rescind jail credit at any time even if that credit was awarded improperly. I mean, maybe, y'know. EVIDENCE-CROSS-EXAMINATION: Court permissibly limited the scope of cross examination of witness as to whether he hoped for a sentence reduction due to his testimony where Court finds that the witness was jurisdictionally ineligible for a reduction. Mosley v. State, SC20-195 (9/15/22)

DEATH PENALTY-AGGRAVATING FACTORS: Jury need not be instructed that it must find beyond a reasonable doubt that the aggravating factors were sufficient to justify death and that the aggravating factors outweighed the mitigating factors. "[T]hat is not the law. The sufficiency and weight of aggravating factors in a capital case are not elements that must be determined by the jury beyond a reasonable doubt." Mosley v. EJUSDEM GENERIS: When a general word or phrase follows a list of specifics, the general word or phrase will be interpreted to include only items of the same class as those listed. Knapp v. SEARCH AND SEIZURE: In the Fourth-Amendment context, the governing law asks only whether a potentially mistaken interpretation of the statute is objectively reasonable. A search resulting from an objectively reasonable mistake of law by law enforcement does not implicate the exclusionary rule). Knapp v. APPEAL-RECORD: "We write to note an issue that has arisen in multiple criminal cases. . .[,] an increase of cases where the counsel for an appellant files multiple motions to supplement the record. In many of these cases, the motions have included requests for records or transcripts that could have been requested in one motion had a thorough review of the record been conducted. . .Counsel's obligation of timeliness demands an early, careful, and complete assessment of the need to supplement the record on appeal, so as to avoid unnecessary delay in disposition." Verasso v. State, 1D21-2375 (9/14/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/848891/opinion/212375_NOND_09142022_094603_i.pdf

HYBRID REPRESENTATION-WRITS OF PROHIBITION: The general rule against hybrid representation does not apply where Defendant seeks a ruling on a pending motion to discharge court-appointed counsel. When a pro se criminal defendant affirmatively seeks to discharge his or her court appointed attorney, the request is not regarded as unauthorized or a nullity. A petition for writ of mandamus to compel a ruling on said motion is similarly not improper hybrid representation. Davis v. State, 1D22-1922 (9/14/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/848896/opinion/221922_NOND_09142022_095234_i.pdf

ZOOM: Where Juvenile objected to a remote trial, Court erred in holding a remote adjudicatory hearing without making case-specific findings as to why it was necessary. J.D., a Juvenile v. State, 3D21-1055 (9/14/22) https://www.3dca.flcourts.org/content/download/848905/opinion/211055_DC13_09142022_101506_i.pdf

LOWEST PERMISSIBLE SENTENCE (LPS): Where the LPS for one count of lewd and lascivious battery and twenty-four counts of possession of child pornography is 339.6 months in prison (28.3 years), Court may not sentence Defendant to 480 months (40 years) only on the possession charges. If the LPS exceeds the statutory maximum penalty in §775.082, the LPS is both the minimum sentence and the maximum penalty for that offense. Court must sentence Defendant to the calculated LPS of 28.3 years on all counts to be served concurrently. Baker v. State, 4D20-2112 (9/14/22) https://www.4dca.org/content/download/848911/opinion/202112_DC13_09142022_095640_i.pdf

DWLS-DRIVER'S RECORD: State failed to present a prima facie case that Defendant knew his license had been suspended where the DHSMV driving record did not reflect the address to which the notice of suspension had been sent and there was no testimony regarding Defendant's address. While the driving record reflected a notice of suspension was sent, it did not provide where it was sent and there was no evidence of Defendant's last known address on file with DHSMV. Robinson v. State, 4D22-1064 (9/14/22) https://www.4dca.org/content/download/848919/opinion/221064_DC05_09142022_100657_i.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-DUI-PARKED CAR: Officer may conduct welfare check of driver sleeping in a car at the entrance/exit of a parking lot. Once suspicion of a medical emergency is dispelled, ordinarily a sleeping driver in a parked car should not be detained, but the car's location in the entrance/exit to the parking lot, facing outward, suggests that driver was under the influence of something. Detention was lawful. Daniels v. State, 2D21-702 (9/9/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-COLOR OF OFFICE: The color of office doctrine precludes a law enforcement officer who is outside of his territorial jurisdiction from using the power or color of the office to observe unlawful activity or to gain access to evidence that would not be available to a similarly-situated private citizen. An exception to this doctrine allows a municipal officer to continue to act or investigate outside of his or her geographic jurisdiction if the subject matter of the officer's investigation originates inside their city limits. The ongoing investigation exception to the color of office doctrine allows arresting officer to request Defendant to submit to a breath test outside his terrtorial jurisdiction (Winter Park officer at the Orange County Jail). Question certified. State v. Torres, 5D22-21 (9/9/22)

JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION-HARMLESS ERROR: When a defendant asserts in an appeal that the trial court erroneously denied a legally sufficient motion to disqualify the trial judge, an appellate court's review should be for harmless error. " Davis v. State, SC20-1282 (9/8/22)

JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION: Re-assignment of a case to a judge who had been a prosecutor in the homicide division while the case was pending, notwithstanding averments that he had not been involved in the case at issue, requires disqualification. Error in denying motion to disqualify is not harmless where the judge made several consequential decisions that could have altered the outcome of the trial." Davis v. State, SC20-1282 (9/8/22) https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/848537/opinion/sc20-1282.pdf

STARE DECISIS-JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION (J. POLSTON, CONCURRING/DISSENTING): "I dissent to the majority's use of the harmless error standard because this cannot be reconciled with our established precedent treating the erroneous denial of a motion to disqualify the trial judge as per se reversible." AMENDMENT-RULES-EVIDENCE-DIGITAL MAPPING: §90.2035, providing for admissibility and procedures for judicial notice of information taken from web mapping services, global satellite imaging sites, or Internet mapping tools, to the extent it is procedural, is adopted retroactively to the date it became law. INDICTMENT: Statutes criminalizing the intended sexual activity are not themselves additional elements but only means of proving the element of intent. An indictment need only provide those facts showing which particular path the defendant took to commit a crime--the elements of the crime itself–not the means. An indictment for a transport-for-sexual-activity offense need not specify the unlawful sexual act intended. It is best practice to include the statutes criminalizing the sexual activity that the defendant planned to inflict on the transported child, but it is not required. USA v. Doak, No. 19-15106 (11th Cir. 9/7/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915106.pdf

INTENT: Defendant may be convicted of transporting a minor to commit a criminal offense notwithstanding that he had other motives, such as opening a new business or visiting family. USA v. Doak, No. 19-15106 (11th Cir. 9/7/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915106.pdf

PRINCIPAL: Spouse of child molester who helped Defendant transport the girls may be convicted as a principal, regardless of whether she did so "with a happy heart" or with "a sense of foreboding." Helping to keep his abuse a secret and abusing (non-sexually) the victims may be sufficient. "The evidence of her initial resistance is not enough to preclude the jury from finding that she acted with intent." "Despite knowing that her husband was raping and abusing the girls, Jaycee Doak committed physical and mental abuse of her own rather than helping the girls as she sometimes promised. What she did help with was family travel, which further perpetuated the abuse." USA v. Doak, No. 19-15106 (11th Cir. 9/7/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915106.pdf

EVIDENCE: Error, if any, in precluding the defense from presenting evidence that another person was the perpetrator, is harmless. USA v. Doak, No. 19-15106 (11th Cir. 9/7/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915106.pdf

EXPERT-FORENSIC INTERVIEW: When a witness relies on experience, she must (1) explain how it leads to and supports the conclusion she has reached and (2) show how it can be reasonably applied to the facts. Expert witness may explain the forensic interview process and describe how children pulled out of suspected sexual-abuse situations disclose that information. USA v. Doak, No. 19-15106 (11th Cir. 9/7/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915106.pdf

EVIDENCE: Video of Defendant slapping victims' brother is properly admitted to show that the children did not report the sexual abuse because they were afraid of physical and verbal abuse if they did so. USA v. Doak, No. 19-15106 (11th Cir. 9/7/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915106.pdf

SENTENCING-SUBSTANTIVE UNREASONABLENESS: Government's appeal of the bottom of the guidelines sentence of the aiding-and-abetting spouse of the child molester, on the grounds of substantive unreasonableness fails. Sentencing court has discretion in weighing factors. USA v. Doak, No. 19-15106 (11th Cir. 9/7/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915106.pdf

COSTS/FINE: Evidence that a defendant has failed to disclose assets may support a determination that the defendant is able to pay a fine with those undisclosed assets. USA v. Doak, No. 19-15106 (11th Cir. 9/7/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915106.pdf

RESTITUTION: Court properly assessed $150,000 for restitution for victims' estimated therapy costs. USA v. Doak, No. 19-15106 (11th Cir. 9/7/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915106.pdf

RESTITUTION: Court improperly assessed restitution based on $4,000 per month for estimated living expenses where the amount included expenses for all eight children in the Defendant's care, not only the abused victims. "Even though we do not impose a rigid formula for calculating restitution, the government must provide 'reliable and specific evidence.'" USA v. Doak, No. 19-15106 (11th Cir. 9/7/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201915106.pdf

VOP-JURISDICTION: Court has authority, upon revocation or modification of a defendant's probation, to extend a defendant's probationary period for the period of time her case was tolled, but there is nothing in the statute that automatically extends a defendant's probationary period. Instead, a trial court that wants to extend a defendant's probationary period beyond the original probationary term by adding the tolled period of time may do so only by revoking or modifying the original term. Prior violations may have tolled probation, but did not extend it. Court lacked jurisdiction to revoke probation. Bailey v. State, 1D21-2023 (9/7/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/848505/opinion/212023_DC13_09072022_141059_i.pdf

PROBATION-REINSTATEMENT: "Although trial courts often use the term 'reinstate' probation, the statute offers only three options: revocation, modification, or continuance." Bailey v. State, 1D21-2023 (9/7/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/848505/opinion/212023_DC13_09072022_141059_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-AFFIDAVIT; The supporting affidavit for a motion for post conviction relief is legally sufficient despite not having been sworn by the affiant before an individual authorized to administer oaths because it contained a signed written declaration complying with §92.525(2). A signed written declaration being offered as a legally sufficient verification must show that the affiant has: (1) made the declaration under penalties of perjury; (2) read the foregoing document; and (3) indicated that the facts or matters stated or recited in the document are true, or words of that import or effect. The rule only requires an affidavit; it does not specify how the affidavit is to be sworn. Neeley v. State, 4D21-333 (9/7/22) https://www.4dca.org/content/download/848484/opinion/213335_DC13_09072022_095757_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to an evidentiary hearing on claims that 1) his plea was involuntary because he did not understand the terms of the plea agreement, and 2) the trial court failed to determine that a factual basis for the plea existed where the records attached to the trial court's order do not conclusively refute the claims. Robinson v. State, 5D22-1085 (9/2/22)

1ST DEGREE MURDER-PREMEDITATION: Premeditation is understood as requiring proof that the defendant was aware of the consequences of the actions that caused death, and that the defendant had the opportunity for reflection prior to committing the fatal act. Premeditation does not require lengthy deliberation on the part of the actor; but may be formed a moment. Gordon v. State, SC20-284 (9/1/22)

JUROR-PEREMPTORY-RACE NEUTRAL REASON: In death penalty case, the issue of whether State impermissibly struck a juror, who had said that "I'm not God," and clarified that the phrase did not connote a religious belief and that she could vote for either death or life on the merits, is not preserved for appeal. The issue is not preserved unless the party opposing a peremptory strike makes a specific objection to the proponent's proffered race-neutral reason for the strike, articulating why the proffered facially race neutral reasons for the strike are not genuine. "On this record, which contains no reasoned, preserved objection regarding the genuineness of the State's proffered race neutral reason for a peremptory strike, we have no basis upon which to revisit the trial court's decision to seat the contested juror." AGGRAVATED ASSAULT-RECLASSIFICATION: Aggravated assault is not subject to reclassification under §775.087(1) because a firearm is an essential element of aggravated assault. Darling v. State, 3D22-697

MANDATORY MINIMUM-FIREARM-MANSLAUGHTER-RECLASSIFICATION: Use of a firearm is not an element of the offense of manslaughter. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: A motion to correct illegal sentence under R 3.800(a) is not cognizable where the defendant seeks to challenge the validity of the conviction and, only by extension, the "legality" of the resulting sentence. Ramirez v. State, 3D22-1014 (8/31/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION-SEXUAL PREDATOR (J. COHEN, CONCURRING): The defendant who objected to being designated as a sexual predator, but did not articulate the specific basis–that conspiracy to commit the offense of conspiracy to commit sexual battery on a person less than twelve years of age is not a qualifying offense–did not preserve the issue for appeal. EVIDENCE-GOOD CHARACTER: R. 404(a)(1) forbids use of character evidence. Evidence of good conduct is not admissible to negate criminal intent. In medical fraud case, evidence that some patients received proper care is inadmissible. USA v. Ifediba, No. 20-13218 (11th Cir. 8/25/22)

JUROR MISCONDUCT: Court did not abuse his discretion in investigating an allegation of juror misconduct by excusing the juror and inquiring of the remaining jurors collectively, rather than individually. APPEAL-PRESERVATION-SENTENCING CONSIDERATIONS: The issue of whether the Court improperly considered Defendant's incidents of misconduct occurring after the charged offense is not fundamental error, and thus cannot be raised on appeal absent a contemporaneous objection. PURCHASE: A completed purchase of illegal drugs necessarily entails the defendant purchaser's possession of those drugs, as federal law defines possession. a purchase is not necessarily complete as soon as the would-be purchaser pays for the drugs. Conage v. USA, SC20-1441 (8/25/22)

DEFINITION-"PURCHASE": As a matter of ordinary meaning, a purchase entails both giving consideration for and obtaining the good being purchased. It would not be reasonable to apply this definition so literally as to require proof that a defendant personally obtained actual, physical possession of the purchased item. Conage v. USA, SC20-1441 (8/25/22)

PURCHASE: For purposes of § 893.135(1), a completed purchase requires proof that the defendant both (1) gave consideration for and (2) obtained control of a trafficking quantity of illegal drugs. The requisite control consists of the same range of conduct that qualifies as constructive possession under federal law, including control through an agent of the defendant. Conage v. STATUTORY INTERPRETATON: The maxim that "when the language of the statute is clear and unambiguous and conveys a clear and definite meaning, there is no occasion for resorting to the rules of statutory interpretation and construction" is misleading. . . It would be a mistake to think that our law of statutory interpretation requires interpreters to make a threshold determination of whether a term has a "plain" or "clear" meaning in isolation, without considering the statutory context and without the aid of whatever canons might shed light on the interpretive issues in dispute. Conage v. USA, SC20-1441 (8/25/22)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel was not ineffective for not presenting evidence by one psychiatrist that Defendant was insane in light of the fact that asking the question would have directly led to the testimony of 4 experts that he was not. Covington v. State. SC21-295 (8/25/22)

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-PENETRATION: Applying victim injury penetration points does not violate the Equal Protection Clause on the reasoning that the assessment of victim injury penetration points would not pass constitutional muster because it would apply only in cases of heterosexual incest. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Where defendant and his accomplice engaged in a brutal criminal rampage in two counties, during which he pistol whipped three women and crashed into another victim's car, stole another victim's car at gunpoint (the victim was going Christmas shopping), pistol

SUPERSEDEAS BOND: A defendant who has been sentenced for the commission of any non-capital offense for which bail is not prohibited under §903.133 may be released, pending review of the conviction, at the discretion of either the trial or appellate court, provided that the defendant establishes that the appeal is taken in good faith, on grounds fairly debatable, and not frivolous. A trial court's failure to consider the required factors is a basis for reversal of a denial of supersedeas bond. Court's conclusion that it "does not believe that reversible error was committed at trial or that an appeal is meritorious" is not a basis for denying supersedeas bond. The term "good faith, on grounds fairly debatable, and not frivolous" doesn't require a prognostication of the ultimate outcome of the appeal. But here, although a close call, the denial of supersedeas bond is affirmed. Carnright v. State, 3D22-1244 (8/24/22)

DEFENSE; Defendant asserted the defense that his narcissistic personality disorder diminished his capacity to steal $169,177,338.00 by mail fraud. Conviction and sentence affirmed. USA v. Utsick, No. 16-16505 (11th Cir. 8/22/22)

EXTRADITION-RULE OF SPECIALTY: The "rule of specialty" stands for the proposition that, in extradition cases, the requesting state, which secures the surrender of a person, can prosecute that person only for the offense for which he or she was surrendered or else must allow that person an opportunity to leave the prosecuting state to which he or she had been surrendered. But the rule of specialty does not limit the other country's ability to consider the facts of a case not orosecuted because of the rule of specialty in determining the sentence. When imposing a sentence for an offense like mail fraud, the proper calculation of the guidelines requires the district court to consider all relevant conduct, not merely charged conduct. While the rule of specialty bars proof of other crimes in order to exact punishment for those other crimes, it does not bar proof of other crimes as a matter germane to the determination of punishment for the extradited crime. USA v. Utsick, No. 16-16505 (11th Cir. 8/22/22)

COSTS-PUBLIC DEFENDER FEE: Court errs in imposing a $100 public defender application fee; the amount should be $50. Hernandez v. State, 21-1992 (8/19/22)

STAND YOUR GROUND: SYG motion need not be sworn to. Court improperly denied the motion because it was unsworn. To raise a claim of immunity under §776.032, an accused must simply allege a facially sufficient prima facie claim of justifiable use of force. The trial court is to assume all facts as true, and if the alleged facts satisfy the requirements of the applicable self-defense statute raised by the accused, the burden shifts to the State to present clear and convincing evidence to overcome the self defense claim. POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant who files an "Affidavit of Truth" containing a "plethora of irrelevant and nonsensical allegations," and who, at the hearing, demands that the court address him in a particular way and repeatedly asks if the State would be responding to his incomprehensible "Affidavit of Truth" may be removed from the courtroom without warning. "While we agree that an explicit warning would have been preferable and might have remedied Germain's disruptive conduct, his due process argument nonetheless fails, as it overlooks that his stubborn refusal to proceed and present his case rendered him unable to meet his burden of proof." Germain v. State, 5D21-2553 (8/19/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: To establish ineffective assistance of counsel based on a conflict-of-interest claim, Defendant must establish: (1) a conflict of interest that (2) adversely affected counsel's performance. To establish an adverse effect, Defendant must show some plausible alternative defense strategy or tactic that might have been pursued but for the alleged conflict. The allegation that one attorney failed to negotiate a plea bargain because Defendant failed to pay a bribe or kickback which would have benefitted a different client of that attorney is insufficient since Defendant was also represented by several other attorneys. GRAND JURY-SECRECY: A grand jury secrecy law's prohibition on a witness's disclosure of grand jury information that he learned only by virtue of being made a witness does not violate one's right to Free Speech. But to the extent that it prohibits a grand jury witness from disclosing information he learned outside the grand jury room, it violates one's right to free speech. Henry v. JUVENILE-PROBATION-LENGTH: When a judgment of delinquency is withheld, a court may impose a specific probationary period or an indeterminate period of probation, but a disposition is legally insufficient where a court orders a term of probation but fails to indicate whether the probation is indefinite or for a fixed period. J.H. v. State, 1D21-1114 (8/17/22)

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT: There is no bright-line rule that renders a confession by a juvenile involuntary. In order to determine whether a juvenile defendant's waiver of Miranda rights was voluntary, knowing, and intelligent, the totality of the circumstances is considered. Pertinent factors include: 1) the manner in which the Miranda rights were administered, like cajoling or trickery; 2) the age, experience, background, and intelligence of the defendant; 3) whether the defendant's guardian was contacted, and the juvenile given an opportunity to consult a parent, guardian, or counsel before questioning; 4) whether the interview was conducted in a wepolice station; and 5) whether the interrogators secured a written waiver. Here, the confession was admissible. J.H. v. State, 1D21-1114 (8/17/22)

IMPEACHMENT-SUBSTANTIVE EVIDENCE: Co-Defendant's statements in deposition and at his own earlier sentencing hearing are statements given under oath and are therefore admissible as either substantive evidence or impeachment should he testify differently at trial. Witness should not be excluded on basis that State only called him as a witness in order to impeach, and to use the impeachment as substantive evidence. Mitchum v. State, 1D21-1993 (8/17/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for advising him not to testify. CORPUS DELICTI: Defendant's statement to officer, in response to question, that he did not have a driver's licence, is inadmissible under corpus delicti doctrine where State had no evidence establishing that appellant drove the car without a license. Because driving a motor vehicle is not a crime in and of itself, the State needs to present independent evidence showing Defendant drove without a license. S.I. a Child, v. State, 4D21-1551 (8/17/22)

CORPUST DELICTI: Corpus delicti is Latin for "body of the crime" which reflects the simple principle that a crime must be proved to have occurred before anyone can be convicted for having committed it. In criminal trials, the State must independently present substantial evidence tending to show the commission of the charged crime. Substantial evidence need not be uncontradicted or overwhelming, but it must at least show the existence of each element of the crime. A confession in a criminal case is not sufficient evidence of a criminal act where no independent direct or circumstantial evidence exists to substantiate the occurrence of a crime. S.I. a Child, v. State, 4D21-1551 (8/17/22)

INCOMPETENCE-DISMISSAL: Court is not required to dismiss charges on the grounds of continued incompetence where Defendant's repeated failure to appear at status conferences prevented the trial court from ordering a subsequent evaluation to determine if she remained incompetent to proceed. CRIME OF VIOLENCE: Murder and Attempted Murder are "crimes of violence" under the "elements clause" of 18 U.S.C § 924(c)(3), , which makes it a crime to use or carry a firearm during and in relation to any crime of violence or drug trafficking, and which defines a crime of violence as one that "has as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force against the person or property of another." APPEAL-PENDING APPEAL-MOTION: Defendant's motion to withdraw a plea, filed during the pendency of his appeal, is a nullity. Court lacks jurisdiction to deny the motion while the appeal is pending. Payet v. State, 5D22-547 (8/12/22)

APPEAL: "As an aside, we note that one of these orders provided that the trial court was holding the instant appeal in abeyance. A trial court lacks the authority to rule upon an appellate court's jurisdiction. Payet v. State, 5D22-547 (8/12/22)

FILING FALSE LIEN: 18 U.S.C. §1521 makes it illegal to file a false lien against the property of a federal officer or employee because of something he did as part of his official duties, including former federal officers or employees (here, former IRS Commissioner and former Treasury Secretary). §1521's prohibition depends upon what an individual did while acting as a federal officer or employee, and not simply his employment status at the time of the action at issue. SECOND DEGREE MURDER-DEPRAVED MIND: Slashing the Victim's throat in the course of an argument about the Victim's girlfriend's failure to deliver the title to a car to the Defendant is sufficient evidence of ill will, hatred, spite, or an evil intent, without regard to human lead to support a conviction for second-degree murder. VOP: Court improperly revoked probation on those grounds which required a monetary component absent a determination regarding Defendant's ability to pay. Woodward v. State, 1D21-1465 ((8/10/22)

VOP (DISSENT-J. TANENBAUM): In VOP hearings, the only process due to the probationer is an opportunity to be heard and to show, if he can, that he did not violate the conditions, or, if he did, that circumstances in mitigation suggest that the violation does not warrant revocation. Woodward v. State, 1D21-1465 ((8/10/22)

VOP-FRUITLESSNESS (DISSENT-J. TANENBAUM): "Oddly enough, . . .the majority . . .instructs the trial court to edit the revocation order by striking a few findings. Mind you, this suggestion for elision does not benefit the defendant at all. This proposed 'improvement' upon the original revocation order will have no effect on the defendant's sentence. He will get a piece of paper in prison titled 'amended order of revocation' that will have three fewer enumerated violations, but he will be serving the same amount of time. In addition to this exercise being a waste of judicial resources, it could prove confusing to the defendant, who will be left wondering: 'My lawyer won, so why didn't I?'" Woodward v. APPEAL-(DISSENT-J. TANENBAUM): "There is no source of authority for our remanding a case with an instruction to the trial court to nevertheless correct 'errors' that make no difference. I know this court has engaged in this perplexing practice in the past, which presumably is the reason the majority does so here. Still, practice is not 'precedent.' There is no utility in the remand and no authority behind it." Woodward v. State, 1D21-1465 ((8/10/22)

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED: If a defendant posts bond on one charge and is released, only to be reincarcerated later on other charges, he is then being held only on the charges occasioning the later arrest, until and unless the bond posted on the initial charge is revoked. PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: A jury trial is not necessary to determine the date of the Defendant's release from prison in determining whether he qualifies as a Prison Releasee Reoffender. The date of a defendant's release from prison relates to the fact of a prior conviction. Alleyne does not require a jury to make the PRR factual determination. Rivers v. State, 1D22-1190 (8/10/22)

JURISDICTION-APPEAL-SEXUAL PREDATOR: Trial court has jurisdiction to designate a person as a sexual predator during the pendency of an appeal. The designation of a person as a sexual predator is neither a sentence nor a punishment but simply a status resulting from the conviction of certain crimes. The designation is regulatory and procedural in nature. Alvarez v. State, 3D22-928 (8/10/22)

PROBATION-CONCURRENT SENTENCE: When a criminal defendant is sentenced after being convicted of a crime and serves some portion of that sentence, he or she is entitled to receive credit for the actual service of that sentence, or any portion thereof, in a resentencing for the same crime. Likewise, if multiple convictions result in concurrent sentences, credit must be awarded for time served on each sentence in any resentencing for the multiple convictions. Because Defendant was serving concurrent sentences during the probationary period prior to his resentencing, he was entitled to credit against each count for the probation he served. Walk v. DEPORTATION: The fact that the alien has committed a particularly serious crime makes the alien dangerous within the meaning of the statute. MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL: Granting a motion for a new trial occurs—albeit rarely—precisely when the evidence is legally sufficient to convict where the evidence preponderates heavily against the verdict, such that it would be a miscarriage of justice to let the verdict stand. NATURALIZATION-CITIZENSHIP: Sale of Cocaine under New York law is an aggravated felony, which conclusively establishes that a person who commits it is not a person of good moral character, and who therefore cannot become a naturalized US citizen. STATUTORY INTERPRETATION: "The evidence gleaned from contemporaneous dictionary definitions and federal statutes seems to point in the opposite direction from that gleaned from a state-counting approach. . .But that's not the point. The point is that we, as judges in whom the Constitution 'vest[s] exclusively' the judicial power of the United States, should do statutory interpretation before deferring to any reasonable interpretation offered by an executive agency." Bastias v. U.S. Attorney General, No. 21-11416 (8/2/22)

CREDIT FOR SERVED (LAMBERT-CONCURRENCE): The standard practice when calculating prison credit is for the trial court to defer prison credit calculations to the Department of Corrections. Courts should separately designate jail credit and leave calculation of prison credit to the Department of Correction. "Trial judges have difficult and stressful jobs. To perhaps slightly ameliorate their stress, I suggest that trial judges defer prison credit calculations to the Department of Corrections and that they use sentencing documents that differentiate between awards of jail credit and prison credit. I also recommend that judges consider implementing any additional procedures that may further assist them in confirming the accurate calculation and reporting of jail credit." Spear v. State, 5D19-1747 (7/29/22)

CONTEMPT-PASSCODE: Defendant may be held in indirect contempt of court for refusing to provide the passcode to access his iPhone in connection with a search warrant. Because the subject has not yet been charged with any crime related to his phone, any arguments challenging the warrant's issuance and the propriety of the traffic stop and seizure of his iPhone are premature. This "should not be understood as ruling on any of the Fourth Amendment arguments Mr. Harris has raised. To the contrary, if the State ultimately pursues charges against him in connection with any evidence found on his iPhone, Mr. Harris will have. . .the full panoply of protections afforded under the state and federal constitutions." Harris v. State, 2D21-02601 (7/29/22)

APPEAL WAIVER: A criminal defendant who wishes to plead guilty can waive the right to challenge his conviction and sentence in exchange for a better plea deal. A valid waiver of the right to collateral appeal bars habeas claims brought under 28 U.S.C. § 2255, including when a defendant seeks to challenge his sentence based on a new retroactive constitutional rule. A defendant who signs an appeal waiver gives up even the right to appeal blatant error. King v. USA, No. 20-14100 (11th Cir. 7/28/22)

PRO SE-SERVICE OF DOCUMENTS: Defendant seeking post conviction relief or a pro se appeal is not entitled to have the Clerk of Court serve his filings for him. Decuir v. State, 1D22-920 (7/27/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/844207/opinion/220920_NOND_07272022_145803_i.pdf

ZOOM: Conducting VOP and sentencing hearings by Zoom is not a fundamental error. Allowing Defendant to consult with his attorney and a breakout room is legally sufficient. A lawyer who is not sitting next to a defendant at counsel table during a hearing is not ineffective as a matter of law. Gonzalez v. State, 3D20-0325 (7/27/22)

SENTENCING-IMPROPER SCORESHEET: Defendant is entitled to resentencing when he was originally sentenced under an improperly calculated scoresheet. The fact that the sentence imposed fell below the statutory maximum does not mean that Defendant is not entitled to resentencing absent a clear intent to impose a sentence harsher sentence regardless of any scoresheet error. Sampson v. State, 3D21-2005 (7/27/22) https://www.3dca.flcourts.org/content/download/844159/opinion/212005_DC13_07272022_102714_i.pdf

ILLEGAL ARREST: An illegal arrest, without more, has never been viewed has a bar to subsequent prosecution nor as a defense to a valid charge. Brown v. State, 3D22-3677 (7/27/22) https://www.3dca.flcourts.org/content/download/844169/opinion/220367_DC05_07272022_104217_i.pdf defender fee. A $400 fee ($150.00 arising at his first probation modification, $100.00 for the second modification, $100.00 for community control revocation and the $50.00 public defender application fee) it is permissible. Gibson v. State, 4D21-660 (7/27/22)

HEARSAY: Responding deputy's testimony that the victim had identified the defendant as the driver of the vehicle which had caused the crash. The declarant—the victim—had not been subject to cross-examination concerning the statement, as required by §90.801(2)(c) (the identification exception to the hearsay rule) because the state, during the victim's earlier testimony, did not ask her whether she had informed the deputy that the defendant had been the driver. PLEA-WITHDRAWAL: Court improperly denied Defendant's motions to withdraw plea and to appoint conflict-free counsel where Defendant, through the public defender, moved to withdraw the plea, but, in the absence of conflict-free counsel, deferred articulating the reasons beyond saying that defense counsel had "misadvised him as to what the best pleading decision was." When a defendant files a facially sufficient motion setting forth an adversarial relationship with counsel, the court is required to appoint conflict-free counsel unless the record conclusively refutes the motion's allegations.

Where defense counsel advised the trial court of his inability to properly argue the motion because of the existing conflict, it was clear that an adversarial relationship existed. Baker v. State, 5D21-3041 (7/22/22).

STAND YOUR GROUND: A SYG motion to dismiss requires a pretrial evidentiary hearing on the applicability of the statutory immunity under §776.032, which has almost nothing to do with the so-called "stand your ground" provisions of §§776.012, 776.013, and 776.031. Swift v. State, 1D21-799 (7/20/22)

STAND YOUR GROUND: "Most of the case law refers to this immunity [under §776.032] as 'StandYour-Ground immunity,' but this is a misnomer because the immunity applies to all self-defense cases, not just ones in which standing one's ground is an element. That is why a better label is 'self-defense immunity.'. . .[W]e should no longer refer to the provisions of section 776.032 as 'Stand Your Ground immunity.'" Swift v. State, 1D21-799 (7/20/22)

STAND YOUR GROUND: In SYG hearing, Court does not err in crediting the contradictory evidence presented by the neutral witnesses and responding officers in denying SYG immunity. under §776.032. Swift v. State, 1D21-799 (7/20/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Where Defendant is charged with four discrete acts of child molestation, three other, separate acts on different occasions were not inextricably intertwined. Counsel performed deficiently in failing to object, but Defendant was not prejudiced because there was no reasonable probability that, but for counsel's unprofessional errors, the result of the proceeding would have been different. CARRYING CONCEALED FIREARM: Court properly dismissed charge of Carrying a Concealed Firearm where observing officer said that he was able to immediately recognized the questioned object as a weapon. This alone

FRAUD: Fraud includes lying about the nature of the bargain itself, including lying about how investment money would be spent, such as here where Charles Barkley was told that his investment would be used as a capital infusion when in fact it was used to pay the Defendant's back alimony and other personal expenses. BANK FRAUD: Defendant "seems to suggest a bank has no interest in truly knowing who it is lending its money to or what purposes they intend to put the money towards. . .This argument is plainly nonsensical. POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that a newly discovered witness saw the fight , and the Defendant was not the aggressor. To prevail on a claim of newly discovered evidence, a defendant must meet the following two requirements: First, the evidence must not have been known by the trial court, the party, or counsel at the time of trial, and it must appear that the defendant or defense counsel could not have known of it by the use of diligence. Second, the newly discovered evidence must be of such nature that it would probably produce an acquittal on retrial. Williams v. State, 2D21-3795 (7/15/22)

JOA-CONSPIRACY TO OBSTRUCT JUSTICE: Request of former mayor,

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: The Antiterrorism and Effective Death Penalty Act of 1996 (AEDPA) greatly circumscribes a federal court's review of a final state habeas decision; a federal habeas court cannot grant a state petitioner habeas relief on any claim that was adjudicated on the merits in state court unless the state court's adjudication of the claim (1) resulted in a decision that was contrary to, or involved an unreasonable application of, clearly established Federal law, as determined by the Supreme Court of the United States; or (2) resulted in a decision that was based on an unreasonable determination of the facts. POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Whether defense counsel's performance fell below Strickland's standard is not the question before a federal habeas court reviewing a state court's decision under AEDPA. Federal habeas courts must guard against the danger of equating unreasonableness under

Strickland with unreasonableness under AEDPA. Gavin v. Commissioner, Alabama DOC, No. 20-11271 (11th Cir. 7/14/22)

JURY-NO IMPEACHMENT RULE: A juror may not testify in impeachment of the verdict as to any matter or statement occurring during the course of the jury's deliberations or to the effect of anything upon that or any other juror's mind or emotions as influencing the juror's decision, nor may a juror's affidavit or evidence of any statement by the juror concerning a matter about which the juror would be precluded from testifying be received for these purposes. Evidence that jurors considered the death penalty before determining guilt is barred by the no impeachment rule. Gavin v. Commissioner, Alabama DOC, No. 20-11271 (11th Cir. 7/14/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-COLLATERAL ESTOPPEL: Collateral estoppel/issue preclusion applies only when the same issue has been decided against the same party or a third party who has some kind of privity between the original and current opposing parties. "Privity" is a relationship between two parties who both have a legally recognized, mutual interest in the same subject matter. There it is no privity between the state and federal prosecuting authorities, notwithstanding that the original arrest on state charges occurred when DEA agents had state law enforcement stop the Defendant's car in order to hide their role in investigating the Defendant. While the cooperation between state and federal law enforcement agencies is relevant, is not a sufficient nexus to establish privity. USA v. Lewis, No. 20-12997 (11th Cir/ 7/14/22)

JUROR-CHALLENGE FOR CAUSE: Court did not error in denying challenge for cause by State of a juror with a masters degree in divinity who would have difficulty standing and judgment of someone else based on her religious convictions and because she would "have difficulty standing in judgment of someone else." USA v. Lewis, No. 20-12997 (11th Cir/ 7/14/22) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012997.pdf

JUROR-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE: Court did not err in denying Defendant's peremptory challenge of a white juror upon finding a discriminatory intent. Error, if any, is harmless because juror was qualified to sit on the jury. USA v. Lewis, No. 20-12997 (11th Cir/ 7/14/22) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012997.pdf

HARMLESS ERROR: Error, if any, in excluding evidence that officer withheld evidence that the original stop was secretly instigated at the behest of DEA is harmless given the overwhelming evidence of guilt. SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVE UNREASONABLENESS: An upward variance of life imprisonment for production of child pornography and sexual abuse of a minor is not substantively unreasonable. A sentencing court may impose an upward variance based upon uncharged conduct as it relates to the history and characteristics of the defendant, as well as the need to promote respect for the law, afford adequate deterrence, and protect the public. USA v. Butler, No. 21-19659 (11th Cir. 7/14/22) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110659.pdf

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-APPEAL-STANDARD OF REVIEW: The standard of review for counsel's failure to move for a judgment of acquittal is whether there was a manifest miscarriage of justice. Hesser v. USA, No. 19-13297 (11th Cir. 7/13/22)

JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL-TAX EVASION: Tax evasion requires an affirmative act constituting an evasion or attempted evasion of the tax. Hiding gold in one's house is not tax evasion absent evidence that the gold was subject to a tax levied upon Defendant. "The only way that the action of hiding gold from the IRS would be legally significant to constitute an affirmative act for attempted tax evasion is if the gold had been subject to a tax levied on Hesser. Otherwise, it would not matter how much he wanted to cheat the IRS. He would not be cheating on his taxes because the gold would not be subject to a tax levied on him." Hesser v. ATTEMPT-MISTAKE OF LAW/FACT: "The Government confuses a mistake of law with a mistake of fact." One who shoots a pillow under the covers, thinking arch enemy is there, cannot be convicted of attempted murder (mistake of fact). One who shoots a tree, thinking that it is a crime to kill a tree, cannot be convicted of arbor-icide (mistake of law). "All this is to say, someone can be convicted for attempt when they mistake the facts but not when they simply mistake the law." "Just like shooting at trees on one's own property isn't a crime, hiding gold in and of itself is not tax evasion or attempted tax evasion." Hesser v. USA, No. 19-13297 (11th Cir. 7/13/22)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL: Counsel is

JUSTICE: "[W] e note the asymmetry between the plight of Hesser's wife and his own. It seems unfair that she now has a felony conviction for filing a false tax return on her record and her husband will have a record free of convictions for tax fraud or evasion based on this case. This is especially so since Hesser was clearly the mastermind behind all the tax and mortgage maneuvers that Hesser and his wife made. We do not rejoice in that outcome. But Hesser's wife chose to plead guilty, and Hesser did not." Hesser v. USA, No. 19-13297 (11th Cir. 7/13/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Convictions for both burglary with assault and attempted home invasion robbery violate double jeopardy. The crime of burglary of a dwelling with an assault or battery is subsumed by the offense of home invasion robbery." Estache v. State, 3D18-2322 (7/13/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: When a defendant is convicted of a felony in which the conviction is enhanced due to use of a firearm, the double jeopardy clause bars both a conviction and sentence for the crime of possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony. Estache v. State, 3D18-2322 (7/13/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Once a sentence has been fully satisfied, even if it is an illegal or invalid sentence, a trial court may not increase or amend the sentence, as this would violate a defendant's double jeopardy rights, but Defendant no expectation of finality triggering double jeopardy protection when he completed the sentence while the State's appeal was pending. SPEEDY-TRIAL-DELAY: Defendant's speedy trial rights are not violated where Government waited four years to seek extradiction from the Bahams and Jamaica, which have onerous requirements for extradition. Defendant's Sixth Amendment right to a speedy trial is violated is determined by considering four factors: [1] Length of delay, [2] the reason for the delay, [3] the defendant's assertion of his right, and [4] prejudice to the defendant. USA v. Stapleton, No. 19-12708 (11th Cir. 7/12/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-DUPLICITOUS CHARGES: Indictment for multiple conspiracies to smuggle aliens is not improperly multiplicitous where there are different boats, different captains, and different groups of aliens. A multiplicitous indictment violates double jeopardy principles by giving the jury more than one opportunity to convict the defendant for the same offense. USA v. Stapleton, No. 19-12708 (11th Cir. 7/12/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-CONSPIRACY: Five factors to determine whether a defendant committed two separate conspiracies or only one are: "(1) time, (2) persons acting as co-conspirators, (3) the statutory offenses charged in the indictments, (4) the overt acts charged by the government which indicate the nature and scope of the activity which the government sought to punish in each case, and (5) places where the events alleged as part of the conspiracy took place. DOUBLE JEOPARDY-MENS REA: Dual convictions for encouraging or inducing an alien to enter the United States while knowing or in reckless disregard of the fact that the alien's coming to the United States is in violation of law and transportation of an alien for the purpose of commercial advantage or private financial gain are permitted. SENTENCING-ENHANCEMENT-DANGEROUS WEAPON: Court may apply the dangerous weapon enhancement in alien smuggling case based on statement of passenger that Defendant had a gun in his waistband similar to those carried by police in the course of an uncharged event. SPEEDY-TRIAL-DELAY: Defendant's speedy trial rights are not violated where Government waited four years to seek extradiction from the Bahams and Jamaica, which have onerous requirements for extradition. Defendant's Sixth Amendment right to a speedy trial is violated is determined by considering four factors: [1] Length of delay, [2] the reason for the delay, [3] the defendant's assertion of his right, and [4] prejudice to the defendant. USA v. Stapleton, No. 19-12708 (11th Cir. 7/12/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Court must attach records conclusively refuting allegation that counsel misadvised him on a legal point before sentencing (as opposed to before entering plea agreement), notwithstanding that the claim was buried in verbiage under a misleading heading and was rebutted by an attachment to the motion. R. 3.850(f)(5) unambiguously and unqualifiedly requires that that portion of the files and records that conclusively shows that the defendant is entitled to no relief shall be attached to the final order. Jackson v. State, 2D21-2961 (7/8/22)

LESSER INCLUDED-ROBBERY-UNCHARGED OFFENSE: Robbery with a deadly weapon is not a lesser included offense of robbery with a firearm. It fundamentl error to instruct the jury that it is. The permissible lesser is robbery with a weapon. Duffy v. State, 5D22-691 (7/8/22)

DEATH PENALTY-MITIGATION: Defendant, who was already serving life imprisonment for murder, and who murdered his cell mate roommate in order to qualify for the death penalty so as to end his own life cannot claim fundamental error for counsel's failure to fully develop mitigating circumstances in light of his failure to cooperate. Fletcher v. State, SC20-1862 (7/7/22)

DEPORTATION: State convictions for felony transporting into a state controlled substances with the intent to distribute and conspiracy to transport marijuana into a state are crimes involving moral turpitude ("CIMT") within the INA, rendering lawful permanent resident deportable. Daye v. U.S. Attorney General, No. 20-14340 (7/6/22)

DEPORTATION: The phrase "crime involving moral turpitude" in the INA is not unconstitutionally vague. Participation in illicit drug trafficking is categorically a CIMT. Daye v. U.S. Attorney General, No. 20-14340 (7/6/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014340.pdf

DEPORTATION-CIMT: Moral turpitude means an act of baseness, vileness, or depravity in the private and social duties which a man owes to his fellow men, or to society in general, contrary to the accepted and customary rule of right and duty between man and man, or conduct that is inherently base, vile, or depraved. A crime involving moral turpitude must involve conduct that not only violates a statute but also independently violates a moral norm. Daye v. U.S. Attorney General, No. 20-14340 (7/6/22)

DEPORTATION-CIMT: In immigration proceedings inchoate offenses such as conspiracy qualify as a CIMT if the underlying substantive offense qualifies as a CIMT. Daye v. U.S. Attorney General, No. 20-14340 (7/6/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-STANDING-RENTAL CAR: An unauthorized driver of a rental car has standing to challenge the search of it. The fact that Defendant was not listed on the rental agreement does not defeat his reasonable expectation of privacy, so long as he was otherwise in lawful possession and control of the vehicle. USA v. Cohen, No. 21-10741 (11th Cir. No. 7/6/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202110741.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-INVENTORY SEARCH: Police may conduct an inventory search of a rental car before returning it to the company where the driver is arrested. USA v. Cohen, No. 21-10741 (11th Cir. No. 7/6/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-MARIJUANA: Under the "automobile exception," police may search a vehicle without a warrant so long as they have probable cause to believe that it contains contraband or evidence of a crime. Hatcher v. State, 1D20-3628 (7/6/22)

PROBABLE CAUSE-DEFINITION: Probable cause is a flexible, common-sense standard, turning on the assessment of probabilities not readily, or even usefully, reduced to a neat set of legal rules. Hatcher v. State, 1D20-

3628 (7/6/22)

https://www.1dca.org/content/download/842517/opinion/203628_DC05_07062022_104014_i.pdf

PROBABLE CAUSE-DEFINITION: Probable cause is not a high bar. It is enough if there is the kind of fair probability on which reasonable and prudent people, not legal technicians, act. Innocent behavior frequently will provide the basis for a showing of probable cause. Hatcher v. State, 1D20-3628 (7/6/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-MARIJUANA: Where there are other indications that the Defendant had been smoking marijuana, the fact that hemp is legal and indistinguishable by smell from marijuana does not render the search of the vehicle unlawful. Hatcher v. State, 1D20-3628 (7/6/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-MARIJUANA (CONCURRENCE): "Changes in Florida and federal law have abrogated the basis for our reasoning in Johnson [that the smell of marijuana may support a search]. As a result, I respectfully submit that we should no longer rely on Johnson." Hatcher v.

State, 1D20-3628 (7/6/22)

CORPUS DELICTI: The corpus delicti rule requires that the State must independently present substantial evidence tending to show the commission of the charged crime, including at least the existence of each element of the crime. A confession in a criminal case is not sufficient evidence of a criminal act where no independent direct or circumstantial evidence exists to substantiate the occurrence of a crime. S.I., a Child v. State, 4D21-1551 (7/6/22)

https://www.4dca.org/content/download/842508/opinion/211551_DC08_07062022_100424_i.pdf

CORPUS DELICTI: Defendant's admission that he had no license after he fled an accident after hitting a motorcyclist is insufficient to establish the charge of DWLS. Because driving a motor vehicle is not a crime in and of itself, the State needed to present independent evidence showing he had no license. S.I., a Child v. State, 4D21-1551 (7/6/22)

VEHICULAR HOMICIDE: A conviction for vehicular homicide requires proof that a defendant caused the death of another human being through the operation of a motor vehicle in a reckless manner likely to cause the death of, or great bodily harm to, another. The defendant must have engaged in intentional conduct demonstrating a conscious disregard of a likelihood of death or injury. Neither carelessness nor ordinary negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle are sufficient to sustain a conviction for vehicular homicide. "Nothing in section 782.071. . . supports the proposition that a finding of recklessness can be based solely on the numeric value of a driver's excessive speed—which would by itself only constitute a non-criminal traffic offense—in the absence of other determinant factors." Hormaeche v. State, 4D21-2071 (7/6/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-VEHICULAR HOMICIDE-ERRONEOUS ADVICE: Defendant is entitled to withdraw his claim entered upon the erroneous advice of counsel that his excessive speed precluded him from mounting a defense to the charge of vehicular homicide. Hormaeche v. State, 4D21-2071 (7/6/22)

https://www.4dca.org/content/download/842509/opinion/212071_DC13_07062022_100633_i.pdf

PLEA-WITHDRAWAL: Once good cause for the defendant to withdraw his plea is shown prior to sentencing – here, erroneous advice of counsel–the trial court is obligated to allow the defendant as a matter of right to withdraw his plea. Hormaeche v. State, 4D21-2071 (7/6/22)

https://www.4dca.org/content/download/842509/opinion/212071_DC13_07062022_100633_i.pdf

RECLASSIFICATION: Where Defendant is charged, along with 2 codefendants with aggravated battery with a deadly weapon, and jury finds him guilty of "aggravated battery causing great bodily harm with a weapon, as charged," the second degree felony cannot be reclassified to a first-degree felony based on the use or possession of the weapon where the jury does not find, nor does the information allege, that the Defendant actually possessed the weapon. Williams v. State, 2D21-1619 (7/1/22)

https://www.2dca.org/content/download/842124/opinion/211619_DC08_07012022_085309_i.pdf

RECLASSIFICATION: For the application of a reclassification or enhancement statute to an offense, a clear jury finding of the facts is necessary, either by (1) a specific question or special verdict form (which is the better practice), or (2) the inclusion of a reference to the fact necessary for reclassification in identifying the specific crime for which the defendant is found guilty. Williams v. State, 2D21-1619 (7/1/22)

https://www.2dca.org/content/download/842124/opinion/211619_DC08_07012022_085309_i.pdf

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CHILD PORNOGRAPHY: Defendant lacks a reasonable expectation of privacy in the alphanumeric identification codes unique to each file he shared and otherwise made available to the public over a peer-to-peer file sharing network. A person who shares files over a peer-to-peer network has no expectation of privacy in those files. Youngman v. State, 2D21-2472 (7/1/22)

INVESTIGATIVE COSTS: A court may not impose a sentence imposed thereon. However, because the trial court impose a $245 investigative cost in the absence of a request by the State. Osborne v. State, 5D21-2080 (7/1/22)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to impeach a key witness by prior convictions. Gutierrez v. State, 5D21-3048 (7/1/22)

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-STRATEGIC DECISIONS: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claimant counsel's ineffective for failing to cross-examine witness based on inconsistencies between her trial testimony and pretrial statements. The fact that Defendant assented to his counsel not cross-examining the witness is not dispositive where counsel incorrectly advised him that nothing could be gained from questioning the victim. The denial of a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel based on a finding that counsel was engaged in a reasonable trial strategy should only be made after an evidentiary hearing. Reyes v. State, 5D22-33 (7/1/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel was not ineffective for failing to give adequate advice on whether to testify. Giving the pros and cons of testifying is not ineffective assistance. Jackson v. State, S19-1624 (6/30/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Claim that counsel spent less than fifteen minutes preparing a witness to testify is not ineffectiveness. Jackson v. State, S19-1624 (6/30/22)

INFORMATION-AMENDMENT DURING TRIAL: Mid-trial (i.e., after State rests) amendments to a charging document that alter the elements of a criminal offense are not per se prejudicial. Any such amendments should be assessed on a case-by-case basis to determine, based on the totality of the circumstances, if they prejudice the substantial rights of the defendant. State may amend capital sex battery count to lewd or lascivious molestation upon Defendant's motion for JOA. Thach v. State, SC20-1656 (6/30/22)

STARE DECISIS: Stare Decisis loses again. Kind of. "We acknowledge that today is the first time we have used the phrase 'totality of the circumstances' in discussing the prejudice analysis. However. . .we break no new ground by saying that the prejudice analysis requires consideration of the totality of the circumstances." Thach v. State, SC20-1656 (6/30/22)

https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/842026/opinion/sc20-1656.pdf

INFORMATION-AMENDMENT DURING TRIAL (J. LABARGA, DISSENTING): "It is axiomatic that due process of law affords a person charged with having committed a crime with the right to know what the charge is before proceeding to trial. Here, after the defense proceeded throughout the State's entire case-in-chief in reliance on the original charges, the State was permitted to substantively amend four charges. Thach v. State, SC20-1656 (6/30/22)

https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/842026/opinion/sc20-1656.pdf

INFORMATION-AMENDMENT DURING TRIAL (J. LABARGA, DISSENTING): "For more than two decades, the per se prejudicial rule has guarded the right to due process in cases where the State seeks,during trial, to substantively change a charged offense. This sound rule should have been applied here. It makes absolutely no sense, after not only the conclusion of the State's case, but what turned out to be the presentation of all the evidence, to allow the State to amend four charges to allege crimes that require proof of different elements. For the majority to permit such a clear violation of due process will, in no small measure, facilitate the very thing that Florida laws. . .are intended to prevent—trials by ambush." Thach v. State, SC20-1656 (6/30/22)

INFORMATION-AMENDMENT DURING TRIAL (J. LABARGA, DISSENTING): The implications of the majority's decision to reject the per se prejudicial rule cannot be understated. As a result of the majority's disapproval of this decades-long safeguard, citizens will be required to proceed to trial without certainty of what the ultimate charges against them will be. Thach v. State, SC20-1656 (6/30/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-DUI-BODILY INJURY/PROPERTY DAMAGE: Because the criminal offenses of DUI causing damage to property or person and DUI causing serious bodily injury are degree variants of the same offense, dual convictions for both offenses as to the same victim from a single episode violate the prohibition against double jeopardy. Velazco v. State, SC20-506 (6/30/22)

INDIANS-JURISDICTION: The Federal Government and the State have concurrent jurisdiction to prosecute crimes committed by non-Indians against Indians in Indian country. Contrary precedents are "tangential dicta" or "scattered dicta." Indian country is part of the State, not separate from the State. Oklahoma v. Castro-Huerta, No. 21-429 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/29/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-429_8o6a.pdf

INDIANS-SOVEREIGNTY (GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "Native American Tribes retain their sovereignty unless and until Congress ordains otherwise. Worcester proved that, even in the '[c]ourts of the conqueror,' the rule of law meant something. . . Where this Court once stood firm, today it wilts." Oklahoma v. Castro-Huerta, No. 21-429 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/29/22)

INDIAN RESERVATIONS (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "Tribes are not private organizations within state boundaries. Their reservations are not glorified private campgrounds. Tribes are sovereigns." Oklahoma v. Castro-Huerta, No. 21-429 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/29/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-429_8o6a.pdf

INDIANS-SOVEREIGNTY (GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "[T]he Court cites no proof for its ipse dixit, nor could it. . . Congress took pains to abide its treaty promises. . .and has never revoked them. Nor may this Court abrogate treaties or statutes by wishing them away in passing remarks. In a Nation governed by the rule of law, not men (or willful judges), only Congress may withdraw this Nation's treaty promises or revise its written laws." Oklahoma v. Castro-Huerta, No. 21-429 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/29/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-429_8o6a.pdf

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-429_8o6a.pdf

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-429_8o6a.pdf

INDIANS-SOVEREIGNTY (GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "If the Court's ruling today sounds like a legislative committee report touting the benefits of some newly proposed bill, that's because it is exactly that. . .The Court's decision is not a judicial interpretation of the law's meaning; it is the pastiche of a legislative process." Oklahoma v. Castro-Huerta, No. 21-429 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/29/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-429_8o6a.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel for Ponzi-scheme Defendant was not ineffective for failing to anticipate two four-point enhancements in the PSR i(violation of a commodities law by a commodities trading advisor and jeopardizing the safety and soundness of a financial institution. A miscalculation of sufficient magnitude may constitute deficient performance and cause prejudice under Strickland, but the miscalculation here is not outside the range of effective assistance. Riolo v. USA, No. 20-12206 (11th Cir. (6/29/22)

BOND-MENTAL HEALTH SCREENING: Mental health screening without determining pretrial release conditions at first appearance does not constitute an illegal detention. Rhody v. McNeil, 1D22-551 (6/29/22)

MOOTNESS: The mootness doctrine generally requires dismissal of an appeal when the controversy ceased to exist, but a narrow exception exists for cases that are capable of repetition while evading review. That exception applies when (1) the challenged action was too short-lived to be completely litigated in time, and (2) there is a reasonable chance that the same party will face the same action again. Pre-bond screening is an exception to the muteness doctrine because it happens "fast, much too fast for a case to ever beat it to the finish line." Rhody v. McNeil, 1D22-551 (6/29/22)

https://www.1dca.org/content/download/841943/opinion/220551_DC02_06292022_141131_i.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: It is insufficient to merely pose a question with an accompanying assertion that it was improperly answered in the court below and then dump the matter into the lap of the appellate court for decision. Appellant who merely pays lip service to some basic due process rules and gives only a conclusory statement to say that the mental health screening process breaks those rules does not sufficiently preserve the issue. "Because Rhody merely dropped these issues in our lap expecting us to do the rest, we will not address [them]." Rhody v. McNeil, 1D22-551 (6/29/22)

JUDGE-DISQUALIFICATION: Motion to disqualify judge is facially sufficient when it alleges that the judge had prosecuted him while an Assistant State Attorney years before. Although a direct conflict of interest may not exist, a criminal defendant in Defendant's position may have a well-founded fear of not receiving fair treatment. Choute v. State, 1D-22-566 (6/29/22)

APPEAL-FINAL JUDGMENT: An order that resolves all of the claims raised in a motion for postconviction relief is a final order because such an order ends udicial labor on that motion, and thus is ripe for appeal. The fact that an order denying postconviction relief also directs a party to show cause why sanctions should not be imposed does not alter the finality or appealability of the order denying relief. Nilio v. State, 1D22-940 (6/29/22)

ZOOM HEARING: Absent a case specific finding of necessity, adjudicatory hearings by Zoom violate the Child's right of confrontation. Virtual confrontations offered by closed-circuit television systems fall short of the face-to-face standard because they do not provide the same truth-inducing effect. J.T.B. v. State, 3D21-537 (6/29/22)

ZOOM HEARING: Court must make case-specific findings before it may conduct an adjudicatory hearing by Zoom. "Because we conclude that at this point in the pandemic, due process requires a case-specific finding of necessity before a trial court may conduct a remote adjudicatory hearing over objection, we reverse and remand for a new adjudicatory hearing." HABITUAL OFFENDER-RELEASE FROM PRISON: Lewars, which provided that Defendant had to be physically released from prison, not merely since the present but released on credit time served from a county jail, to qualify as a Habitual Offender does not apply retroactively. FIRST STEP ACT: The First Step Act, which authorizes district courts to reduce the prison sentences of defendants convicted of certain offenses involving crack cocaine, allows district courts to consider intervening changes of law or fact in exercising their discretion to reduce a sentence. Concepcion v. United States, No. 20-1650 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/27/22)

MENS REA-FRAUDULENT PRESCRIPTION: For the crime of unlawfully dispensing controlled substances (prescriptions), the "knowingly or intentionally" mens rea applies. After a defendant produces evidence that he or she is authorized to dispense controlled substances, the Government must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant knew that he or she was acting in an unauthorized manner, or intended to do so. A doctor's subjective belief that he is meeting a patient's medical needs by prescribing a controlled substance is a complete defense to a §841 prosecution. Ruan v. United States, No. 20-1410 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/27/22)

MENS REA-FRAUDULENT PRESCRIPTION: The requirement of scienter in §841 ("Except as authorized by this subchapter, it shall be unlawful for any person knowingly or intentionally . . . to manufacture, distribute, or dispense . . . a controlled substance.") extends to the "except as authorized" clause. Although the "[e]xcept as authorized" clause is not an element of a §841(a)(1) offense, it is sufficiently like an element for the mens rea canon to apply. Ruan v. United States, No. 20-1410 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/27/22)

MENS REA: As a general matter, our criminal law seeks to punish the vicious will. With few exceptions, wrongdoing must be conscious to be criminal. Ruan v. United States, No. 20-1410 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/27/22)

ABORTION: "We . . .hold that the Constitution does not confer a right to abortion. Roe and Casey must be overruled, and the authority to regulate abortion must be returned to the people and their elected representatives." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

STARE DECISIS: "Stare decisis. . .does not compel unending adherence to Roe's abuse of judicial authority. Roe was egregiously wrong from the start. Its reasoning was exceptionally weak, and the decision has had damaging consequences. . . It is time to heed the Constitution and return the issue of abortion to the people's elected representatives." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

LIBERTY: "In interpreting what is meant by the Fourteenth Amendment's reference to 'liberty,' we must guard against the natural human tendency to confuse what that Amendment protects with our own ardent views about the liberty that Americans should enjoy." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

DUE PROCESS-RIGHTS: The Due Process Clause protects two categories of substantive rights. The first consists of the great majority of the rights guaranteed by the first eight Amendments. The second category comprises a select list of fundamental rights that are not mentioned anywhere in the Constitution, but which are deeply rooted in our history and tradition are essential to our Nation's scheme of ordered liberty. Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)

STARE DECISIS: Stare decisis is not an inexorable command, and it is at its weakest when we interpret the Constitution. Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

DUE PROCESS-PRIVACY: "[T]he Solicitor General suggests that overruling [Roe and its progeny] would 'threaten the Court's precedents holding that the Due Process Clause protects other rights.'. . .That is not correct. . .'[A]bortion is a unique act' because it terminates 'life or potential life.'. . .And to ensure that our decision is not misunderstood or mischaracterized, we emphasize that our decision concerns the constitutional right to abortion and no other right. Nothing in this opinion should be understood to cast doubt on precedents that do not concern abortion." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

DUE PROCESS (J. THOMAS, CONCURRENCE): "Substantive due process . . .has harmed our country in many ways. Accordingly, we should eliminate it from our jurisprudence at the earliest opportunity." Dobbs v.

Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

DUE PROCESS (J. THOMAS, CONCURRENCE): "[I]n future cases, we should reconsider all of this Court's substantive due process precedents, including Griswold, Lawrence, and Obergefell. . . After overruling these demonstrably erroneous decisions, the question would remain whether other constitutional provisions guarantee the myriad rights that our substantive due process cases have generated." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

DUE PROCESS (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "So at least one Justice is planning to use the ticket of today's decision again and again and again." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

STARE DESISIS (J. KAVANAUGH, CONCURRING): "Every current Member of this Court has voted to overrule precedent. And over the last 100 years Beginning with Chief Justice Taft's appointment in 1921, every one of the 48 Justices appointed to this Court has voted to overrule precedent." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

STARE DESISIS (J. KAVANAUGH, CONCURRING): A constitutional precedent may be overruled only when (i) the prior decision is not just wrong, but is egregiously wrong, (ii) the prior decision has caused significant negative jurisprudential or real-world consequences, and (iii) overruling the prior decision would not unduly upset legitimate reliance interests. Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)

JUDICIAL RESTRAINT (C.J. ROBERTS, CONCURRING): Here, there is a clear path to deciding this case correctly without overruling Roe all the way down to the studs: recognize that the viability line must be discarded. . .and leave for another day whether to reject any right to an abortion at all. Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

JUDICIAL RESTRAINT (C.J. ROBERTS, CONCURRING): "Both the Court's opinion and the dissent display a relentless freedom from doubt on the legal issue that I cannot share." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

ABORTION (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "Whatever the exact scope of the coming laws, one result of today's decision is certain: the curtailment of women's rights, and of their status as free and equal citizens." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

ROE V. WADE (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "So one of two things must be true. . . .Either the mass of the majority's opinion is hypocrisy, or additional constitutional rights are under threat. It is one or the other." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

MODERATION (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "To the majority 'balance" is a dirty word, as moderation is a foreign concept." Dobbs v. Jackson

Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

WOMEN (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): What rights did those "people" have in their heads at the time? But, of course, "people" did not ratify the Fourteenth Amendment. Men did. So it is perhaps not so surprising that the ratifiers were not perfectly attuned to the importance of reproductive rights for women's liberty, or for their capacity to participate as equal members of our Nation. . . .When the majority says that we must read our foundational charter as viewed at the time of ratification (except that we may also check it against the Dark Ages), it consigns women to second-class citizenship. Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)

CONSTITUTION (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "The Framers (both in 1788 and 1868) understood that the world changes. So they did not define rights by reference to the specific practices existing at the time. Instead, the Framers defined rights in general terms, to permit future evolution in their scope and meaning. And over the course of our history, this Court has taken up the Framers' invitation. It has kept true to the Framers' principles by applying them in new ways, responsive to new societal understandings and conditions. Nowhere has that approach been more prevalent than in construing the majestic but open-ended words of the Fourteenth Amendment—the guarantees of 'liberty' and 'equality' for all. And nowhere has that approach produced prouder moments, for this country and the Court." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

CONSTITUTION (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "[T]he constitutional 'tradition' of this country is not captured whole at a single moment. . . Rather, its meaning gains content from the longsweep of our history and from successive judicial precedents—each looking to the last and each seeking to apply the Constitution's most fundamental commitments to new conditions." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

RIGHTS (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): The majority (or, rather, most of it) tries to assure the public that it has no designs on rights (for example, to contraception) that arose only in the back half of the 20th century—in other words, that it is happy to pick and choose, in accord with individual preferences. Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

ORIGINAL INTENT (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "We are not mindreaders, but here is our best guess as to what the majority means. . . .[A]pparently, the Fourteenth Amendment might provide protection for things wholly unknown in the 19th century; maybe one day there could be constitutional protection for, oh, time travel. But as to anything that was known back then (such as abortion or contraception), no such luck." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

OH MY (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): Justice Kavanaugh's "idea is that neutrality lies in giving the abortion issue to the States, where some can go one way and some another. But would he say that the Court is being 'scrupulously neutral' if it allowed NewYork and California to ban all the guns they want?. . .If the Court allowed some States to use unanimous juries and others not? If the Court told the States: Decide for yourselves whether to put restrictions on church attendance? We could go on—and in fact we will." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct.

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

WOMEN'S RIGHTS (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "When the Court decimates a right women have held for 50 years, the Court is not being 'scrupulously neutral.' It is instead taking sides: against women who wish to exercise the right, and for States. . .that want to bar them from doing so. JUSTICE KAVANAUGH cannot obscure that point by appropriating the rhetoric of even-handedness. His position just is what it is: A brook-no-compromise refusal to recognize a woman's right to choose, from the first day of a pregnancy. And that position, as we will now show, cannot be squared with this Court's longstanding view that women indeed have rights (whatever the state of the world in 1868) to make the most personal and consequential decisions about their bodies and their lives." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

CONSTITUTION-SCEPTICISM (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "Faced with all these connections between Roe/Casey and judicial decisions recognizing other constitutional rights, the majority tells everyone not to worry. It can (so it says) neatly extract the right to choose from the constitutional edifice without affecting any associated rights. (Think of someone telling you that the Jenga tower simply will not collapse.) Today's decision, the majority first says, 'does not undermine' the decisions cited by Roe and Casey—the ones involving 'marriage, procreation, contraception, [and] family relationships'—'in any way.'. . .Should the audience for these too-much-repeated protestations be duly satisfied? We think not." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

DEY LYIN' (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): Nor does it even help just to take the majority at its word. Assume the majority is sincere in saying, for whatever reason, that it will go so far and no further. Scout's honor. Still, the future significance of today's opinion will be decided in the future." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

LAW-EVOLUTION (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "[L]aw often has a way of evolving without regard to original intentions—a way of actually following where logic leads, rather than tolerating hard-to-explain lines. Rights can expand in that way. . .Rights can contract in the same way and for the same reason—because whatever today's majority might say, one thing really does lead to another. We fervently hope that does not happen because of today's decision. . . But we cannot understand how anyone can be confident that today's opinion will be the last of its kind." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

RIGHTS (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "The point of a right is to shield individual actions and decisions 'from the vicissitudes of political controversy, to place them beyond the reach of majorities and officials and to establish them as legal principles to be applied by the courts.'. . . However divisive, a right is not at the people's mercy." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

STARE DECISIS (J. BREYER, DISSENTING): "The majority has overruled Roe and Casey for one and only one reason: because it has always despised them,and now it has the votes to discard them. The majority thereby substitutes a rule by judges for the rule of law." Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization,
No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

STARE DECISIS: "Weakening stare decisis threatens to upend bedrock legal doctrines, far beyond any single decision. Weakening stare decisis creates profound legal instability. And. . .weakening *stare decisis. . .*calls into question this Court's commitment to legal principle. It makes the Court appear not restrained but aggressive, not modest but grasping. In all those ways, today's decision takes aim, we fear, at the rule of law. Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, No. 19–1392. (U.S. S.Ct. 6/24/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/19-1392_6j37.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-EXECUTION: A death row inmate may attempt to show that a State's planned method of execution violates the Eighth Amendment if he can 1) establish that the State's method of execution presents a substantial risk of serious harm--severe pain over and above death itself, and 2) identify an alternative method that is feasible, readily implemented, and in fact significantly reduces the risk of harm involved. Nance v. Ward, No. 21-439 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/23/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-439_bp7c.pdf

DEATH PENALTY-EXECUTION: Prisoner under sentence of death may seek the imposition of an alternative method of execution (he wants a firing squad) not authorized by statute in his state pursuant to 42 U.S.C. §1983 rather than exclusively by a petition for habeas corpus. Even if the alternative route necessitates a change in state law, Defendant's requested relief still places his execution in the State's control. "[T]he State can enact legislation approving what a court has found to be a fairly easy-to-employ method of execution. . .And anyway, Georgia has given us no reason to think that the amendment process would be a substantial impediment. The State has legislated changes to its execution method several times before." Nance v. Ward, No. 21-439 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/23/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-439_bp7c.pdf

STATEMENT OF DEFENDANT-MIRANDA: The use of an un-Mirandized statement against a defendant in a criminal proceeding violates the Fifth Amendment but may not support a §1983 claim against the officer who obtained the statement. A Miranda violation is not tantamount to a violation of the Fifth Amendment. Vega v. Tekoh, No. 21-499 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/23/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-499_gfbh.pdf

MIRANDA: "Whether this Court has the authority to create constitutionally based prophylactic rules that bind both federal and state courts has been the subject of debate among jurists and commentators. . .But that is what the Court did in Miranda, and we do not disturb that decision in any way. Rather, we accept it on its own terms, and for the purpose of deciding this case, we follow its rationale." Vega v. Tekoh, No. 21-499 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/23/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-499_gfbh.pdf

MIRANDA-(J. KAGAN, DISSENT): "Today, the Court strips individuals of the ability to seek a remedy for violations of the right recognized in Miranda. . .[W]hat remedy does he have for all the harm he has suffered? The point of §1983 is to provide such redress. . .The majority here, as elsewhere, injures the right by denying the remedy." Vega v. Tekoh, No. 21-499 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/23/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-499_gfbh.pdf

SECOND AMENDMENT: The Second and Fourteenth Amendments protect an individual's right to carry a handgun for self-defense outside the home. Statute requiring a "special need" for a license to carry a firearm in public violates the Second Amendment. New York State Rifle & Pistol Ass'n v. Bruen, No. 20-843 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/23/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-843_7j80.pdf

SECOND AMENDMENT: The Second Amendment guarantees to all Americans the right to bear commonly used arms in public subject to certain reasonable, well-defined restrictions, such as limiting the intent for which one could carry arms, the manner by which one carries arms, or the exceptional circumstances under which one may not carry arms, such as before justices of the peace and other government officials. New York State Rifle & Pistol Ass'n v. Bruen, No. 20-843 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/23/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-843_7j80.pdf

SECOND AMENDMENT: The Second Amendment's operative clause—"the right of the people to keep and bear Arms shall not be infringed"—guarantee[s the individual right to possess and carry weapons in case of confrontation that does not depend on service in the militia. New York State Rifle & Pistol Ass'n v. Bruen, No. 20-843 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/23/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-843_7j80.pdf

SECOND AMENDMENT: The standard for applying the Second Amendment is as follows: When the Second Amendment's plain text covers an individual's conduct, the Constitution presumptively protects that conduct. The government must then justify its regulation by demonstrating that it is consistent with the Nation's historical tradition of firearm regulation. Only then may a court conclude that the individual's conduct falls outside the Second Amendment. New York State Rifle & Pistol Ass'n v. Bruen, No. 20-843 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/23/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-843_7j80.pdf

SECOND AMENDMENT: Firearms may be regulated in "sensitive places." The definition of "sensitive places" does not extend to all places where people typically congregate and where law-enforcement and other public-safety professionals are presumptively available. New York State Rifle &

Pistol Ass'n v. Bruen, No. 20-843 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/23/22)

RESTITUTION-TIME LIMIT: There is no jurisdictional deadline for courts to set a hearing to determine restitution. Even though the court set a deadline at sentencing of 60 days for finalizing the the restitution amount, a hearing may be requested and held after the deadline. The sixty-day reservation of jurisdiction approved in the plea agreement did not bar the State from seeking, or the trial court from finalizing the restitution amount for the victims' losses. State v. Bryant, 1D21-694 (6/22/22)

SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Court's failure to impose a downward departure sentence is not reversible where there is no argument that the trial court misconstrued its discretion to depart, or had a blanket policy of refusing to exercise its discretion to depart. Manuel v. State, 1D21-1315 (6/22/22)

PRO SE DEFENDANT-CLERK OF COURT-DUTIES: Clerk has no duty to serve pleadings on a pro se defendant's behalf. It is generally not within the duties and responsibilities of any clerk of court to serve pleadings on behalf of a party. Butts v. State, 1D22-494 (6/22/22)

APPEAL-REPRESENTED APPELLANT: Appellant can proceed with counsel; or, he can proceed pro se. What he cannot do is both. Criminal defendants have no right to engage in 'hybrid representation'—that is, to simultaneously represent themselves and be represented by counsel. Butts v. State, 1D22-494 (6/22/22)

CREDIT FOR TIME: Where defendant violated probation after serving a prison sentence, and entered a plea on the VOP to a negotiated agreement was specifically provided that he would be given credit for "all prior prison and again time," and DOC deemed his gain time forfeited, Defendant may seek postconviction relief to get credit for the forfeited gain time. A claim that a forfeiture of gain time by the DOC thwarted the intent of a negotiated plea agreement may be raised in a timely rule 3.850 motion. Curry v. State, 3D-490 (6/22/22)

JUVENILE-HOME DETENTION: A juvenile may be held on home detention beyond 21 days in extraordinary circumstances posing a threat to public

CHILD NEGLECT-JOA: Defendant who drunkenly walked a four-year-old child under his supervision down the middle of Apopka Avenue in Inverness, Florida cannot be convicted of child neglect. Kelley v. State, 5D21-1569 (6/22/22)

JOA: A motion for Judgment of acquittal admits the facts in evidence and every reasonable inference from the evidence favorable to the State. Trial courts should not grant motions for judgment of acquittal unless, when viewed in the light most favorable to the state, the evidence does not establish a prima facie case of guilt. Kelley v. State, 5D21-1569 (6/22/22)

CULPABLE NEGLIGENCE: "Culpable negligence" means that the defendant acted with a gross and flagrant character, evincing reckless disregard for human life or an entire want of care which would raise the presumption of indifference to consequences; or such wantonness or recklessness or grossly careless disregard of the safety and welfare of the public, or that reckless indifference to the rights of others, which is equivalent to an intentional violation of them. Only the most egregious conduct satisfies the culpable negligence standard. Kelley v. State, 5D21-1569 (6/22/22)

HOBBS ACT-ATTEMPTED ROBBERY-CATEGORICAL APPROACH: The Hobbs Act makes it a federal crime to commit, attempt to commit, or conspire to commit a robbery with an interstate component, with further punishments for those who use a firearm in connection with a "crime of violence." Attempted Hobbs Act robbery does not qualify as a "crime of violence" under the 18 U. S. C. §924(c)(3)(A)because it does not satisfy the elements clause. "Yes, to secure a conviction the government must show an intention to take property by force or threat, along with a substantial step toward achieving that object. But an intention is just that, no more." United States v. Taylor, No. 20-1459 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/21/22)

HOBBS ACT: The Hobbs Act makes it a federal crime to commit, attempt to commit, or conspire to commit a robbery with an interstate component, with further punishments for those who use a firearm in connection with a "crime of violence." A federal felony qualifies as a "crime of violence" if it meets either of two definitions: 1) The elements clause (offenses that have as an element the use, attempted use, or threatened use of physical force) or 2) the residual clause (for offenses that by their nature involve a substantial risk that physical force may be used). Except the residual clause is unconstitutionally vague, so only the elements clause matters. United States v. Taylor, No. 20-1459 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/21/22)

CATEGORICAL APPROACH (J. THOMAS, DISSENT): "This holding exemplifies just how this Court's 'categorical approach' has led the Federal Judiciary on a 'journey Through the Looking Glass,' during which we have found many 'strange things.'. . .Rather than continue this 30-year excursion into the absurd, I would hold Taylor accountable for what he actually did and uphold his conviction." United States v. Taylor, No. 20-1459 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/21/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-1459_n7ip.pdf

QUOTATION (J. THOMAS, DISSENT): "[O]ur precedents have led the Federal Judiciary to 'a pretend place.'. . ." Like Alice, we have strayed far 'down the rabbit hole,' and '[c]uriouser and curiouser it has all become.'. . .Even Alice, having slaked her curiosity, eventually returned from the land beyond the looking glass. It is high time that this Court do the same." United States v. Taylor, No. 20-1459 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/21/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-1459_n7ip.pdf

CATEGORICAL APPROACH (J. ALITO, DISSENT): "The whole point of the categorical approach that the Court dutifully follows is that the real world must be scrupulously disregarded." United States v. Taylor, No. 20-1459 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/21/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-1459_n7ip.pdf

ALL WRITS: The All Writs Act authorizes federal courts to issue all writs necessary or appropriate in aid of their respective jurisdictions and agreeable to the usages and principles of law. Shoop, Warden v. Twyford, No. 21-511 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/21/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-511_o75p.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: The All Writs Act does not authorize the issuance of transportation orders for medical testing for the purpose of gathering facts for the preparation of a planned Habeas Corpus Motion for Post Conviction Relief based on purported traumatic brain injury. Shoop, Warden v. Twyford, No. 21-511 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/21/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-511_o75p.pdf

WRIT: A transportation order that allows a prisoner to be sent to a medical facility for an examination hoping for new evidence is not necessary or appropriate in aid of a federal court's adjudication of a habeas corpus action when the prisoner has not shown that the desired evidence would be admissible in connection with a particular claim for relief. Shoop, Warden v. Twyford, No. 21-511 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/21/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/21-511_o75p.pdf

APPEAL-COLLATERAL ORDER DOCTRINE (J. BREYER, DISSENT): The collateral order doctrine allows interlocutory appeal from a small class of orders that finally determine claims of right separable from, and collateral to, rights asserted in the action, but the class is narrow and selective in its membership. Transportation orders to an outside medical facility for evaluation do not satisfy the requirements for interlocutory appeal under the collateral order doctrine. Shoop, Warden v. Twyford, No. 21-511 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/21/22)

JOA-LEWD AND LASCIVIOUS: JOA: Testimony by a minor of a momentary "glance" at a man sitting in the driver's seat of a parked truck twenty-eight feet or more away, from the passenger side of the vehicle, giving the witness the impression that Defendant was masturbating and the witness believing he could see the tip of Defendant's penis amounted to no more than inferences based on speculation. Judgment of Acquittal is required. Deamelio v. State, 2D20-878 (6/17/22)

WITNESS PERCEPTION: The fact that a witness "sensed" something is insufficient to establish that he observed something. "[T]he State argued that A.B. 'very clearly said he sensed it.'. . But this is not true; A.B. did not make such a statement. Even if it were true, it would be meaningless. . . There are only five senses, and the only one involved in this case is sight. To the extent that the prosecutor meant to imply or insinuate that 'sense' could mean something other than the five physical senses, we reject this out of hand. . . .[The term] 'senses,' [is] meant to limit those . . .to the five found in the natural world." Deamelio v. State, 2D20-878 (6/17/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/840728/opinion/200878_DC13_06172022_084725_i.pdf

JOA-STANDARD: "The standard to be employed for all criminal cases regarding the sufficiency of the evidence is simply whether the State presented competent, substantial evidence to support the verdict. This standard is met when the evidence relied upon to sustain the ultimate finding is sufficiently relevant and material such that a reasonable mind would accept it as adequate to support the conclusion reached." Where the facts adduced by the State are insufficient to prove the elements of the offense beyond a reasonable doubt, the case should not be submitted to the jury, and a judgment of acquittal should be granted. Deamelio v. State, 2D20-878 (6/17/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/840728/opinion/200878_DC13_06172022_084725_i.pdf

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS-REMORSE: Court may consider Defendant's lack of remorse, as shown by his teatimony at trial, in imposing sentence. Piccinini v. State, 5D17-2919 (6/17/22) https://www.5dca.org/content/download/840719/opinion/172919_DC05_06172022_083659_i.pdf

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS-REMORSE (CONCURRENCE): "[P]ermitting a trial court to consider a defendant's statements of innocence as demonstrative of a lack of remorse places a chilling effect upon a defendant's constitutional rights and amounts to a due process violation." Piccinini v. State, 5D17-2919 (6/17/22) https://www.5dca.org/content/download/840719/opinion/172919_DC05_06172022_083659_i.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: Defendant who pled guilty failed to preserve issue of whether convictions for leaving the scene of a crash with death and DUI causing death violated double jeopardy where she made no express reservation of the right to appeal. Schaefer v. State, 5D17-2919 (17-2919 (6/17/22) https://www.5dca.org/content/download/840719/opinion/172919_DC05_06172022_083659_i.pdf

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED-CORRECTION: Subject to the procedural constraints of R 3.800(b), a trial court has the inherent authority to sua sponte correct sentencing documents that over-report the amount of jail time served by a defendant prior to sentencing or the amount of jail time and prison time served by a defendant prior to resentencing. Spear v. State, SC20-676 (6/16/22) https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/840626/opinion/sc20-676.pdf

CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED-CORRECTION: Trial court may only correct errors of over-calculation of credit for time served on its own motion within the time frames of R.3.800(b) and only if the errors constitute scrivener's errors. Court may not correct over-calculation of credit for time served after the sentence is affirmed on appeal and has become final. Spear v. State, SC20-676 (6/16/22) https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/840626/opinion/sc20-676.pdf

discovered evidence when Defendant was aware of the bank robbery case 10 years before the filing of his motion. Hutchinson v. State, SC21-18 (6/16/22)
https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/840627/opinion/sc21-18.pdf

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-GIGLIO: To obtain relief under Giglio, Defendant needs to demonstrate, among other things, that a State witness gave false or misleading testimony at trial. Defendant must identify with specificity any false or misleading testimony by a State witness at trial. Hutchinson v. State, SC21-18 (6/16/22)

SEARCH AND SEIZURE-PROBATIONARY SEARCH: Information discovered by probation officers during a probationary search can be used to obtain a search

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on a claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to inform him of an advantage of accepting the plea, what sentence he might receive if he rejected the plea offer, and bymisinforming him about the extent of his sentence exposure should he go to trial. Dely v. State, 2D21-3625 (6/15/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-PLEA WITHDRAWAL: Defendant's "Motion for Postconviction Relief Withdrawal of Guilty Plea," which sought to withdraw his plea based upon ineffective assistance of his trial counsel, should have been treated as a timely Rule 3.850 motion rather than an untimlely R. 3.170(l) motion to withdraw plea. CREDIT FOR TIME SERVED-CALCULATION: §921.161 requires the trial court to determine and give credit for all time spent in county jail prior to sentencing and for the Department to calculate the time after sentencing, including time in the county jail after sentencing. Court must give credit for time spent in the county jail before Defendant was originally sentenced and credit for county jail time served awaiting any resentencing after Defendant's return to jail from DOC. DOUBLE JEOPARDY: The Double Jeopardy Clause does not prohibit twice placing a person in jeopardy for the same conduct or actions. The Double Jeopardy Clause does not bar successive prosecutions of distinct offenses, even if a single sovereign prosecutes them. Denezpi v. United States, No. 20–7622 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/13/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-7622_ljgm.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-DUAL SOVEREIGNTY DOCTRINE: The Court of Indian Offenses (established by the Bureau of Indian Affairs under the Code of Federal Regulations–hereafter CFR courts) adjudicate Indian tribe rule violations for tribes without their own judicial systems. Defendant may be convicted and sentenced for sex battery related charges in CFR court (140 days incarceration) and later tried and sentenced in federal district court for the same acts (30 years in prison, consecutive). The double jeopardy clause does not bar successive prosecutions by the same sovereign. Denezpi v. United States, No. 20–7622 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/13/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-7622_ljgm.pdf

DEFINITION-"OFFENCE": 'Offence" means "transgression, . . .an act committed against law, or omitted where the law requires it." Denezpi v. United States, No. 20–7622 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/13/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-7622_ljgm.pdf

DEFINITION-"LAW": "[A] law is defined by the sovereign that makes it, expressing the interests that the sovereign wishes to vindicate." Denezpi v. United States, No. 20–7622 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/13/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-7622_ljgm.pdf

COURT OF INDIAN OFFENSES (J. GORSUCH, DISSENT): "By anyone's account, the Court of Indian Offenses is a curious regime. . . .[No one] pointed to any Act of Congress authorizing the project. On the contrary, from the beginning, federal officials recognized that these 'so-called courts' rested on a 'shaky legal foundation.'. . .Even more than that, one might wonder how an executive agency can claim the exclusive power to define, prosecute, and judge crimes. . .[H]owever. . .those questions—long lingering and incredibly still unanswered—remain for another day." Denezpi v. United States, No. 20–7622 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/13/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-7622_ljgm.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-DUAL SOVEREIGNTY DOCTRINE (J. GORSUCH, DISSENT): Under the dual sovereignty doctrine, even successive prosecutions under identical criminal laws may be permissible if they are brought by different sovereigns. "To my mind, that doctrine has no place in our constitutional order." Denezpi v. United States, No. 20–7622 (U.S. S.Ct. 6/13/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-7622_ljgm.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: The ordinary meaning of the term "mistake" in Rule 60(b)(1) includes a judge's legal errors. A party may seek relief from a final judgment in a criminal case under F.R.Civ.P. 60(b)(1) (which authorizes a court to reopen a final judgment under certain circumstances, so long as the motion is filed within a reasonable time) based on a mistake, which includes a judge's error of law. Defendant who failed to meet deadlines for appeal or criminal post conviction relief may proceed civilly based on legal errors by judge. Kemp v. United States, No. 21–5726 (U.S.S.Ct. 6/13/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF (J. GORSUCH, DISSENTING): "Going forward, every judicial legal error—not just an inadvertent or obvious 'mistake'—is fodder for collateral attack under Rule 60(b)(1). And what is the basis for all this? A mysterious 1946 amendment deleting the word 'his.' Kemp v. United States, No. 21–5726 (U.S.S.Ct. 6/13/22)

ACCA-PREDICATE OFFENSES: Cocaine may not be a predicate offense for the ACCA enhancement, depending on when it occurred. Because the drug ioflupane (which has therapeutic value for treating Parkinson's Disease) had been removed from the list of serious drug offenses at the time the Defendant possessed a firearm, and because the Defendant's prior cocaine conviction fell under the same statute which included ioflupane at the time, and because the categorical approach applies to interpreting ACCA, Defendant's prior cocaine conviction is not a predicate for ACCA enhancement. Sentence vacated. USA v. Jackson, No. 21-13963 (11th Cir. 6/10/22)

ACCA-PREDICATE OFFENSES-COCAINE: "Because we apply the categorical approach. . ., we must presume that Jackson's cocaine-related convictions 'rested upon nothing more than the least of the acts criminalized or the least culpable conduct.'. . .Here, that means we must assume that Jackson sold and possessed with intent to sell ioflupane. But. . .on September 26, 2017—when Jackson possessed the firearm here—the federal Schedule II expressly excluded ioflupane as a cocaine-related controlled substance. . .As a result, Jackson's cocaine-related prior convictions do not qualify under ACCA as 'serious drug offenses.'" USA v. Jackson, No. 21-13963 (11th Cir. 6/10/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113963.pdf

DUE PROCESS: Due-process fair-notice considerations require that the version of the Controlled Substance Act Schedules in place when the defendant committed the federal firearm-possession offense for which he is being sentenced, rather than that in effect when he was convicted of his predicate state crimes, applies. USA v. Jackson, No. 21-13963 (11th Cir. 6/10/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113963.pdf

CATEGORICAL APPROACH-MODIFIED CATEGORICAL APPROACH: Elements are the constituent parts of a crime's legal definition—the things the prosecution must prove to sustain a conviction. Alternative means, on the other hand, are different ways to satisfy a single element. When a statute lists alternative "elements," rather than alternative "means" of satisfying an element, the statute is "divisible." In that case, the "modified categorical approach" permits a court to consult a limited class of documents for the sole purpose of ascertaining the elements on which the defendant was actually convicted, such as a plea agreement, the transcript of a plea colloquy, the charging document, jury instructions, or a comparable judicial record of this information. But when a statute lists alternative means of satisfying a single element, the standard categorical approach governs. USA v. Jackson, No. 21-13963 (11th Cir. 6/10/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113963.pdf

PRIOR PANEL PRECEDENT RULE: Other cases in which §893.13(1) convictions have been considered to be serious drug offenses are not binding under the prior-panel-precedent rule. Questions which merely "lurk in the record," neitherbrought to the attention of the court nor ruled upon, are not to be considered as having been so decided as to constitute precedents. "The question of which version of the Controlled Substance Act's drug Schedules governs under §924(e)(2)(A)(ii)'s definition of "serious drug offense" was not even a twinkle in our eyes." Assumptions are not holdings. Sub silentio holdings, unstated assumptions, and implicit rejections of arguments by prior panel are not binding circuit precedent. USA v. Jackson, No. 21-13963 (11th Cir. 6/10/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113963.pdf

PRAEMONITUS: "'Praemonitus, praemunitus' is a Latin proverb that translates loosely to 'forewarned, forearmed.'" Ancient Romans identified the principle that forewarned is forearmed thousands of years ago. USA v. Jackson, No. 21-13963 (11th Cir. 6/10/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113963.pdf

DUE PROCESS: Due process contemplates criminal laws that give ordinary people fair notice of the conduct they punish. Fair notice allows the ordinary citizen to conform his or her conduct to the law and ensures uniformity of enforcement by police and courts. '"And if an individual decides to break the law, anyway, the fair notice that due process requires advises him of the maximum (and depending on the statute, minimum) statutory penalty he can expect, so he knows what he risks before he undertakes his crime. . . After all, forewarned is forearmed." USA v. Jackson, No. 21-13963 (11th Cir. 6/10/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202113963.pdf

GAIN TIME: Defendant convicted of sexual battery is not entitled to incentive gain time. But Defendant convicted of attempted sexual battery is. Prior case law receded from. Attempts are violations of Chapter 777, not Chapter 794. Florida D.O.C. v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

ATTEMPT: A criminal attempt is an offense separate from the offense attempted. "No reasonable reading of the text of section 777.04 could give rise to a conclusion that 'criminal attempt' is an offense prohibited by some other statute, '"as modified"' by section 777.04, rather than a separate offense with its own specified punishment." The criminalization of a general "attempt" is the criminalization of intent rather than any particular action or result. Florida D.O.C. v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

STARE DECISIS: Perpetrating an error in legal thinking under the guise of stare decisis serves no one well and only undermines the integrity and credibility of the court. Florida D.O.C. v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

MANDAMUS: "Mandamus is an ancient writ rooted in English common law. It was used 'to prevent disorder from a failure of justice' where there was no other remedy but 'where in justice and good government there ought to be one.'" Mandamus is available in Florida to order an officer to exercise his discretion where it is his duty to do so and to control the exercise of discretion that "is abused and illegally violates rights of complaining parties." Florida D.O.C. v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

MANDAMUS: Mandamus is the accepted method of judicial review of parole commission quasi-judicial determinations. Florida D.O.C. v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22)

DEFINITION-"UNDER": "Under" is a preposition which means "with reference to" or "subject to." Florida D.O.C. v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22)
https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

SIGNIFICANCE: "Judge Bilbrey. . .speculates that our opinion will affect application of section 948.30, regarding conditions of sex-offender probation, and that our holding may apply to current terms of probation. . . [W]e do not address how the former provision, as we now have interpreted it, might affect the application of section 948.30. In turn, whether our analysis might apply to an offender who committed a crime or was put on probation prior to this decision is not before us." Florida D.O.C. v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22)
https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

STARE DECISIS (DISSENT): "Little commends devoting the scarce judicial resources of a fifteen-member appellate court to this run-of-the-mill sexual offender gain-time case, which is unworthy of an en banc hearing after languishing for over three years before an en banc vote was even sought. Upending time-honored precedent with no discernable benefit to society or the legal system is ill-advised as well, particularly when doing so directly thwarts the Legislature's clear and obvious intent to deny gain-time to convicted felons suchas Gould, who—because of today's jurisprudential flip-flop—is now eligible for potentially earlier release from prison." Florida D.O.C. v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22)
https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

WORD OF THE DAY-FOOFARAW: "Short of that, the Florida Supreme Court is potentially pulled into the foofaraw unnecessarily because the formerly statewide uniform precedent on the topic has become muddled and conflicting due to this court's jurisprudential turnabout." Florida D.O.C. v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22)

https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

STARE DECISIS (DISSENT): "The collateral consequences of the court's decision will ripple—both retroactively and prospectively—into other areas of the law, spawning uncertainty, quizzical questions, and unforeseen consequences. En banc review is supposed to bring about uniformity; here, the court's decision—the judicial equivalent of an unprompted cannonball dive into a long-placid wading pool—yields the opposite result." Florida D.O.C. v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22)

ATTEMPTED SEXUAL BATTERY-DISSENT: "[U]nder the majority's holding any sex offender who completed the offense and is placed on probation. . .will remain automatically required to undertake the applicable conditions of sex offender probation. . . But anyone who attempts any sex offense, up to attempted capitalsexual battery, will now not be statutorily mandated to complete the sex offender conditions of any probation. . .More troubling, the majority's holding seems to me to apply to existing sentences of probation." Florida DOC v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22)

FAILURE TO REGISTER: Defendant who has not paid fines and costs must still register as a sexual offender. His argument that he had not been "released from the sanction imposed," and that he was therefore not subject to registration, is nonavailing. Florida DOC v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

RECENT-CONTROVERSY RULE: A clarifying amendment to a statute that is enacted soon after controversies as to its interpretation arise may be considered as a legislative interpretation of the original law and not as a substantive change. Because the legislature clarified its intent immediately following James (holding that a sex offender who had not paid fines remains under saction and therefore does not have to register), the statutory amendment applies retroactively and Defendant must register. Florida DOC v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

RECENT-CONTROVERSY RULE: The recent controversy rule suggests a court should interpret a preamendment statute in light of a subsequent "clarification" rather than the statute's plain meaning in isolation. In other words, the recent controversy rule purports to use the statute's subsequent legislative history as a guide for determining the legislature's intent in the pre-amendment version of the statute. Florida DOC v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/840141/opinion/191149_DC05_06102022_120047_i.pdf

RECENT-CONTROVERSY RULE: "Our interpretation of Florida Statutes section 943.0435(1)(h)1 in James was correct and felicitous to the operative text of the statute at that time. We also add that we, too, find the recent controversy rule—by which a subsequent legislature's amendment somehow slips free from the bonds of time to recalibrate the meaning of the words that a prior legislature enacted—both puzzling in its application and potentially troubling in its effect. It is, however, a settled facet of the law in our State." Florida DOC v. Gould, 1D19-1149 (6/10/22)

DOUBLE JEOPARDY-MINIMUM MANDATORY: Where Court orally sentences Defendant to 25 years without characterizing the sentence as a mandatory minimum, the written judgment provides for a mandatory minimum, and the Defendant moves to correct the sentence to conform to the oral pronouncement, The court must impose the minimum mandatory. The trial court was required to impose a ten year mandatory minimum sentence. There was no wiggle room. Jeopardy attaches only to a legal sentence. Because jeopardy has never attached, there can be, as a matter of law, no double jeopardy violation. Whether Defendant's sentence was amended later that same day following oral pronouncement or more than twelve years later, the passage of time does not alter the calculus. An illegal sentence was, is, and remains illegal until it is corrected. Miles v. State, 2D21-1519 (6/10/22)

hearing on the claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to move to exclude testimony and evidence regarding Defendant's alleged use of K2. Court may not avoid its duty to attach record documents supporting its denial by stating that "because the facts it has relied upon to deny [this ground] are from [Phillips'] own motion. It is a safe assumption [Phillips] would have presented those facts in the light most favorable to himself." "While the court's assumption may be true, it does not relieve the court of its obligation to attach records that conclusively refute Phillips' claim." Phillips v. State, 2D21-1963 (6/10/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to object on the basis of the State's argument which allegedly referred to facts not in evidence, in the absence of contrary attached records. State's assertion that such records exist is insufficient. Phillips v. State, 2D21-1963 (6/10/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/840108/opinion/211963_DC08_06102022_081518_i.pdf

SEARCH WARRANT: Search warrant based on allegations by confidential informant and observation of activity at a house are sufficient for warrant, or for application of the good faith exception. The good faith exception to the exclusionary rule precludes the suppression of evidence secured pursuant to an invalid warrant when the officer who conducts the search does so in an objectively reasonable reliance upon the validity of the warrant. The good faith exception applies, precluding the suppression of evidence obtained by officers, if the officers acted in objectively reasonable reliance on the search warrant issued by a detached and neutral magistrate, regardless of whether the warrant was later found by the trial court to be unsupported by probable cause. APPEAL-PRESERVATION: To be preserved, the issue or legal argument must be raised and ruled on by the trial court. Counsel failed to preserve any issue with respect to closing argument related to improper reference to mercy to the Defendant where he did not contemporaneously object. The failure to raise a contemporaneous objection when improper closing argument comments are made or to secure a ruling on any such objection waives any claim concerning such comments for appellate review. Ritchie v. State, SC20-1422 (6/9/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: To preserve an error founded on an objection at trial, it is necessary to move for a mistrial only when the objection is sustained, not when it is overruled. Ritchie v. State, SC20-1422 (6/9/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: An objected-to comment is not adequately preserved where the trial court did not sustain or overrule the objection, but rather agreed with trial counsel that it was improper for the State to argue Defendant deserves no more mercy that he gave the victim and cautioned the prosecutor to limit his argument accordingly is not a definitive ruling. Ritchie v. State, SC20-1422 (6/9/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVATION: A general pretrial motion in limine does not constitute a contemporaneous objection to the prosecutor's arguments. §90.104(1), which was amended in 2003 to make a contemporaneous objection to admission or exclusion of evidence unnecessary in order to preserve the issue for appeal where a prior definitive ruling has been obtained does not apply to claims of error in prosecutorial argument. Ritchie v. State, SC20-1422 (6/9/22)

GOLDEN RULE: A golden rule argument is an "argument that invites the jurors to place themselves in the victim's position. "Can you imagine the dread of knowing that your life is ending and you're feeling pain all over your body. . ." is an impermissible Golden Rule argument; asking the jury to consider what the evidence showed as to the length of the attack and what the victim experienced while Defendant compressed Victim's neck is not. But error was not objected to and was not fundamental. Ritchie v. State, SC20-1422 (6/9/22)

https://www.floridasupremecourt.org/content/download/839976/opinion/sc20-1422.pdf

ARGUMENT-IMAGINARY SCRIPT: Asking jury to imagine what the victim was thinking or what was happening during the silence of the 911 call is improper speculation violating the "imaginary script" variant of the prohibition on golden rule arguments. But error was not objected to and was not fundamental. Ritchie v. State, SC20-1422 (6/9/22)

PROSECUTORIAL MISCONDUCT-ARGUMENT: Prosecutor improperly commented upon the Jamaican legal system (where Defendant came from) or to compare it to the legal system in the United States, or commenting upom Defendant's "comfortable" life while awaiting trial in jail, to what his life would have been like had he been on trial in Jamaica. "To the extent the prosecutor's rhetoric could be taken as anti immigrant, we condemn such rhetoric in the strongest possible terms; it has no place in our courts." But error was not objected to and was not fundamental. Ritchie v. State, SC20-1422 (6/9/22)

PROSECUTORIAL MISCONDUCT-ARGUMENT: Prosecutor's argument comparing his difficult childhood to the difficult childhood of Ronald Reagan, the prosecutor did not improperly attach an aggravating label to a mitigating factor nor and improperly appeal to the jury's emotions. DEATH PENALTY-VICTIM IMPACT: Victim impact evidence probative of the victim's uniqueness as an individual human being and the resultant loss to the community's members by the victim's death does not violate the United States and Florida Constitutions. Ritchie v. State, SC20-1422 (6/9/22)

DEATH PENALTY-VICTIM IMPACT: Victim's mother concluded her

testimony by reading the following Bible verse: “If anyone causes one of these little ones, those who believe in me, to stumble, it would b better for them to have a large milestone [sic] hung around their neck and to be thrown in the depths of the sea,” exceeds the scope of relevant victim impact evidence. But error was not objected to and was not fundamental. Ritchie v. State, SC20-1422 (6/9/22)

PROSECUTORIAL MISCONDUCT-ARGUMENT LABARGA (DISSENT): “[T]he majority’s position sends a strong message to prosecutors that the stronger their case, the stronger the likelihood their improper statements, regardless of their egregiousness, will pass muster. This Court must come to terms with the fact that our long-established prohibitions against ‘same mercy’ arguments, ‘golden rule’ arguments, and arguments designed to stoke anti immigration sentiment are there to be followed. And, when they are not, there must be consequences. We cannot continue to overstate . . .the requirements of fundamental error, in order to ignore the prosecutorial misconduct that the majority agrees occurred in this case. Lawyers, whether prosecutors or defense attorneys, are officers of the Court and, as such, must follow the law. The prosecutor in this case chose to ignore the law.” Ritchie v. State, SC20-1422 (6/9/22)

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Defendant is not entitled to discovery in order to prepare a motion for post conviction relief. Post conviction discovery is not automatically allowed and instead it is within the trial judge's inherent authority to allow limited prehearing discovery during postconviction proceedings. That authority should be used only upon a showing of good cause. Nothing can be relevant or material when there is no postconviction proceeding. Preston v. State, 1D21-904 (6/8/22)

SENTENCING SCORESHEET: Scoresheet errors at sentencing are subject to harmless error review. A sentence predicated on an inaccurately calculated scoresheet is proper when the record shows the trial judge would have imposed the same sentence in the absence of the scoresheet error, which requires a showing that the final sentence would have been imposed in the absence of error, not merely the sentence could have been imposed. Harmful error occurs when the sentence is close to the bottom of the guidelines and the record does not conclusively show that the trial court would have imposed the same sentence under a corrected scoresheet. JUDGMENT OF ACQUITTAL-FRAUDULENT DEEDS: Defendant's signature on fraudulent deeds is insufficient evidence that Defendant had knowledge of any fraudulent scheme because 1) he did not sign as a notary, and thus did not certify that the document was validly signed, and 2) no one testified that the signatures within the five documents were fraudulent.

Tinker v. State, 4D19-3232 (6/8/22)

https://www.4dca.org/content/download/839887/opinion/193232_DC13_06082022_095731_i.pdf

FRAUD-NOTARIZATION: The fact that deed was dated in 2010, but the notary seal showed an expiration in 2017 (notary commissions are valid for only four years) implies fraud, "However, any fraud regarding the date of expiration of the notary's commission does not support an inference that Defendant had knowledge of any fraud with the notarization. We doubt that the average citizen pays attention to the expiration date on the notary's stamp when the citizen's signature as a party is acknowledged by a notary or added as a witness to a party signing, particularly because typically the notary signs last and typically the notary stamp is applied after the notary signs." Further, the signatures of two subscribing witnesses is not certification that any information contained within the document is correct. Tinker v. State, 4D19-3232 (6/8/22)

FRAUD-NOTARIZATION: Evidence that Defendant (1) was a corporate officer for Global Management during some portion of the years the fraudulent activity occurred, (2) recorded some of the fraudulent documents, (3) lived in one of the homes that was obtained by fraud, and (4) signed an eviction notice for one of the properties, none of such evidence, singularly or in combination, is sufficient to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Defendant knew of fraudulent activity to effectuate or assist the criminal scheme. Tinker v. State, 4D19-3232 (6/8/22)

FRAUD-JOA: The fact that Defendant was listed as a corporate officer in one of his father's corporations is not sufficient to prove knowledge of criminal activity. When an officer of a corporation makes an affidavit in its behalf, it is not necessary that he should state the sources of his knowledge, or information and belief. A distinct difference exists between the scenario of a corporate officer executing an affidavit (inherently a statement of facts) and a corporate officer signing a document pertaining to a parcel of real property as a party or witness, including an attesting witness. Tinker v. State, 4D19-3232 (6/8/22)

JOA-EVIDENCE: JOA is required when the evidence, viewed in the light most favorable to the State, is such that a rational juror could not have found the existence of the knowledge and intent elements beyond a reasonable doubt. Tinker v. State, 4D19-3232 (6/8/22)

https://www.4dca.org/content/download/839887/opinion/193232_DC13_06082022_095731_i.pdf

EVIDENCE-HANDWRITING IDENTIFICATION: Non-expert detective may not identify signature on documents as that of the Defendant based on "his training and experience" after reviewing numerous documents. To be sufficiently acquainted with a signature, a lay witness may identify an individual's signature where the lay witness only if he has has seen the individual sign his or her name on different occasions. However, a lay witness cannot identify a signature where the familiarity with the handwriting was acquired for the purpose of litigation." Familiarity acquired for the purposes of a criminal investigation is the same as familiarity acquired for the purposes of litigation. Tinker v. State, 4D19-3233 (6/8/20)

MISTRIAL: Defendant is entitled to a mistrial when an exhibit (a chart) containing prosecutor's notes on how the State thought the chart proved the counts was mistakenly sent to the jury room. "[T]he main prejudice with Column H is not the extraneous information which the jury could 'disregard,' but instead, the juror's exposure to 'additional' argument from the State." Tinker v. State, 4D19-3233 (6/8/20)

JURY QUESTION: Court may not respond to a jury question without affording Defendants an opportunity to be fully heard. Failure to do so is per se reversible error. Tinker v. State, 4D19-3233 (6/8/20)

PRISON-PROBATION-CONSECUTIVE: Probation and Imprisonment cannot exceed the maximum sentence. Where Defendant is convicted of a life felony (punishable by a term of imprisonment for life or by a term of imprisonment not exceeding forty years), forty years in prison followed by lifetime sex offender probation exceeds the statutory maximum. Trottman v. State, 4D20-2717 (6/8/22)

BAKER ACT: Conclusory testimony, unsubstantiated by facts in evidence, ... is insufficient to satisfy the statutory criteria by the clear and convincing evidence standard for involuntary commitment. The subjective fear of the subject's mother is insufficient. Kogel v. State, 4D21-2093 (6/8/22)

SENTENCING-DELINQUENCY-VOP: The statutory requirement that the Court discuss with the child his or her feelings about the offense committed, the harm caused to the victim or others, and what penalty he or she should be required to pay for such transgression does not apply to a post-VOP disposition in which no new law violation is alleged. "Because the trial court is required to have the discussion under section 985.433(4)(c) 'when' the child has been found to have committed the delinquent act, the statute's plain language does not require such a discussion at a later disposition hearing at which the child has not been found to have committed a delinquent act." DEPORTATION-CANCELLATION OF REMOVAL: There are four statutory eligibility criteria for cancellation of removal. Under the exceptional and extremely unusual hardship standard, the BIA considers the ages, health, and circumstances of qualifying relatives to determine whether the hardship the qualifying relative(s) would face would be substantially beyond that which ordinarily would be expected to result from the alien's deportation. The possibility that alien's daughter might not be able to accompany him out of the country and might become dependent is not necessarily sufficient. "As sympathetic as we are to his plight, we are precluded from reweighing the hardship factors now since our review of his case is jurisdictionally limited to 'constitutional claims or questions of law.'" Flores-Alonso v. U.S. Attorney General, No. 19-14058 (11th Cir. 6/6/22)

CERTIORARI: Appellate court may not dismiss the petition because we cannot review an oral ruling by certiorari. Absent a signed, written order, certiorari jurisdiction may not be invoked. Barnes v. State, 1D22-1663 (6/6/22)

EVIDENCE-AUTHENTICATION-AUDIO RECORDING: Recording is sufficiently authenticated when the victim testified that she was a participant in the recorded conversation, that she had listened to the tape before trial, that the voices on the tape were Defendant's and and hers and that the tape fairly and accurately memorialized the conversation. Authentication is a relatively low threshold that only requires a prima facie showing that the proffered evidence is authentic; the ultimate determination of the authenticity of the evidence is a question for the fact-finder. There is no definitive list of requirements that must be met to authenticate an audio tape. Jabri v. State, 5D21-2317 (6/3/22)

APPEAL-PRESERVED ISSUE: Where Court violated the plea agreement ("Despite any labels the State or the trial court may attempt to place on the plea, the transcript of the plea hearing reveals that the trial court clearly offered Melendez a specific sentence in exchange for his guilty plea. Such is a negotiated plea.") but the Defendant neither objected nor sought to withdraw his plea, the issue is not preserved for appellate review. Defendant may not argue on direct appeal that trial counsel was ineffective for failing to object to the violation of the plea agreement. An unpreserved error may only be raised and result in reversal on direct appeal where the error is fundamental. Because a showing of fundamental error is not required to prevail on a claim of ineffective assistance of trial counsel . . . such an unpreserved claim may not be raised or result in reversal on direct appeal. Melendez v. State, 2D20-933 (6/3/22)

VOP-JURISDICTION-TOLLING: Upon the filing of an affidavit alleging a violation of probation and following issuance of a warrant, a warrantless arrest, or a notice to appear, the probationary period is tolled until the court enters a ruling on the violation. Under the law at the time (since superseded by statute) a probationary period is not tolled following issuance of a warrant for a noncriminal violation because the statutory language required that the warrant be issued under §901.02, which in turn required that the warrant be issued for a "crime." Rule did not apply where Defendant absconded, but record here does not show absconsion. VOP dismissed. Bourdeau v. State, 2D21-68 (6/3/22)

DISQUALIFICATION-PROHIBITION: Defendant's motion to disqualify in

DUI case based on Judge's statement in a sermon about socialism, no fault divorce, and abortion is improperly denied where Judge, in denying it, makes extraneous comments challenging the allegations in the motion as to his religious beliefs and linking the allegation in the motion by analogy to other cases where facts and their intersection with various religious tenets held by judges resulted in criticalexamination of that interrelation. The original motion was legally insufficient, but "[b]ecause the trial court went beyond simply finding the motion to be legally insufficient and did so in a manner which addressed the merits of the motion, we grant the relief sought. . .Judge Bell chose to cite to specific cases and to make certain analogies that surreptitiously refuted Wagner's allegations of bias, thereby taking issue with the motion." Wagner v. State, 2D21-3707 (6/3/22)

DISQUALIFICATION-PROHIBITION-DISSENT: "Wagner's argument that the trial court exceeded the proper scope of inquiry relies on the nonsequitur that the Judge commented on the veracity of the allegations by finding that Wagner's fears are not objectively reasonable. To the contrary, the trial court must determine—based on the allegations in the motion—whether the defendant's fears are objectively reasonable in order to reach a conclusion as to the sufficiency of the motion.". . .Whether the judge's extrajudicial activities were advisable is not a relevant matter for this court's contemplation. And the prudence of the trial court's decision to elaborate on its rationale for determining that the motion was legally insufficient. . .are not considerations within this court's ambit of review." Wagner v. State, 2D21-3707 (6/3/22)

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS-LACK OF REMORSE: Judge may evaluate whether a defendant's in-court statements contained falsehoods and, if so, assess that fact along with all of the other sentencing considerations. When a defendant voluntarily chooses to allocute at a sentencing hearing, the sentencing court is permitted to consider the defendant's freely offered statements, including those indicating a failure to accept responsibility. The same rule applies when the statements were made during trial rather than an allocution. State v. Burns, SC18-1208 (6/2/22)

EVIDENCE-COLLATERAL CRIMES: There are two types of collateral crime evidence: similar fact evidence and dissimilar fact evidence. The former (also known as Williams rule evidence) is governed by §90.404 while the latter is subject to §90.402. Hayes v. State, 1D18-3876 (6/1/22)

https://www.1dca.org/content/download/839287/opinion/183876_DC05_06012022_130853_i.pdf

EVIDENCE-COLLATERAL CRIMES: In gang-related drive-by shooting in which a baby was killed, evidence of prior shootings between the 2 gangs, and rap videos describing prior fights and shootings are admissible as inextricably intertwined evidence, to show that the shooting in question was a continuation in consequence of the preceding events, or to show motive, intent, and identity. The evidence is necessary to establish the entire context out of which the charged crimes arose and adequately describe the events leading up to the charged crime. Without the evidence, the State could not have explained why the defendants attacked a woman, her baby, and an elderly grandmother. Hayes v. State, 1D18-3876 (6/1/22)

IDENTIFICATION: Suggestive pretrial identification is admissible if the identification possesses certain features of reliability. An out-of-court identification is admissible if (1) the police did not employ any unnecessarily suggestive procedure in obtaining an out-of-court identification; or, (2) if so, considering all the circumstances, the suggestive procedure does not give rise to a substantial likelihood of irreparable misidentification. Where there was no police involvement in a witness's identification of the Defendant from the photograph, any later in-court identification is admissible. Hayes v. State, 1D18-3876 (6/1/22)

HEARSAY-EXCEPTION-CO-CONSPIRATOR: Videos showing the co-defendant rapping alone in a vehicle, assuming the videos constituted hearsay, are admissible under the co-conspirator exception. The co-conspirator exception to the hearsay rule (§90.803(18)(e)) allows a statement to be admitted if substantial evidence, independent of the statement itself, is presented showing: (1) that a conspiracy existed; (2) that the declarant/coconspirator and the defendant against whom the statements are offered were members of the conspiracy; and (3) that the statements were made during the course and in furtherance of the conspiracy. Richardson v. State, 1D18-4084 (6/1/22)

as the codefendant Thompson opposing gang is not hearsay because it is not offered to prove the truth of the matter asserted. Taunts are verbal acts. Verbal acts are not hearsay because they are admitted to show they were actually made and not to prove the truth of what was asserted therein. Richardson v. State, 1D18-4084 (6/1/22)

EVIDENCE-AUTHENTICATION-FACEBOOK PHOTOS: For evidence to be authenticated bthere must be enough evidence to support a finding that the matter in question is what its proponent claims. Authentication for the purpose of admission is a relatively low threshold that only requires a prima facie showing that the proffered evidence is authentic; the ultimate determination of the authenticity of the evidence is a question for the fact-finder. Richardson v. State, 1D18-4084 (6/1/22)

EVIDENCE-AUTHENTICATION-FACEBOOK PHOTOS: There are two ways to authenticate photos. The "pictorial testimony" method requires testimony to establish that, based on personal knowledge, the photographs fairly and accurately reflect the events or scene. The "silent witness" method provides that the evidence may be admitted upon proof of the reliability of the process which produced the tape or photograph. As to the "pictorial testimony" method, any witness with knowledge that the photograph is a fair and accurate representation may testify to the foundational facts. There is no requirement that the person testifying about the photograph have been present when the photograph was taken (or even know who took the photograph. Richardson v. State, 1D18-4084 (6/1/22)

EVIDENCE-AUTHENTICATION-FACEBOOK PHOTOS: Facebook photographs are properly authenticated using the "pictorial testimony" theory notwithstanding that the State did not use the standard predicate, "Does the photograph fairly and accurately depict [the subject of the photograph]?" A witness who knows the subjects of the photographs may testify about who is in them and the meaning of the hand gestures used in the Facebook photos. Richardson v. State, 1D18-4084 (6/1/22)

EVIDENCE-COLLATERAL CRIMES: There are two types of collateral crime evidence: similar fact evidence and dissimilar fact evidence. The former (also known as Williams rule evidence) is governed by §90.404 while the latter is subject to §90.402. Richardson v. State, 1D18-4084 (6/1/22)

https://www.1dca.org/content/download/839288/opinion/184084_DC05_06012022_131019_i.pdf

EVIDENCE-COLLATERAL CRIMES: In gang-related drive-by shooting in which a baby was killed, evidence of prior shootings between the 2 gangs, and rap videos describing prior fights and shootings are admissible as inextricably intertwined evidence, to show that the shooting in question was a continuation in consequence of the preceding events, or to show motive, intent, and identity. The evidence is necessary to establish the entire context out of which the charged crimes arose and adequately describe the events leading up to the charged crime. Without the evidence, the State could not have explained why the defendants attacked a woman, her baby, and an elderly grandmother. Richardson v. State, 1D18-4084 (6/1/22)

LIFE SENTENCE-JUVENILE-OFFENDER: Graham established a categorical rule prohibiting a life without-parole-eligibility sentence for a juvenile who committed a non-homicide offense. Juvenile Offenders who was originally sentenced to life imprisonment with the possibility of parole and later twice violated parole may be resentenced to life imprisonment with the possibility of parole. Lowe v. State, 1D20-2588 (6/1/22)

VOP-CHANGING RESIDENCE: Where Probationer was ordered by a court in Delaware to leave his residence where he had resided with his mother following an incident there, his absence from that residence does not constitute a willful violation of probation, even though his own actions resulted in his removal. Lovett v. State, 1D21-846 (6/1/22)

https://www.1dca.org/content/download/839291/opinion/210846_DC08_06012022_132922_i.pdf

STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS-RICO: In a RICO prosecution, the limitations period commences upon the date the crime is completed which means the date of the last charged predicate act committed by the individual defendant. Where the predicate charge in a RICO case (which here includes homicides), the time limit for the predicate offense governs. §775.15(1), read in conjunction with §895.05(10) provides no time limitation on the State's ability to bring a substantive RICO charge based on a predicate felonious act that resulted in a death. Five year RICO statute of limitation does not apply. Jean-Marie v. State, 3D18-1870 (6/1/22)

PLEA-WITHDRAWAL-COUNSEL: When a represented defendant files a pro se rule 3.170(f) motion to withdraw plea, the trial court is not required to appoint conflict-free counsel unless it determines: (1) that an adversarial relationship exists,and (2) the defendant's allegations are not conclusively refuted by the record. SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-ILLEGAL EXPORTATION OF WEAPONS: "In this sentencing appeal, we interpret U.S.S.G. §2M5.2(a)(2) for the first time in a published decision." A Defendant who exports enough weapons parts for two operable firearms (AR-15), along with additional parts to service additional firearms, cannot take advantage of the lower base offense level. Defendant who attempted to export 23 weapons parts which were not capable of being converted to more than two firearms, but who had purchased over the years enough parts to make four firearms, is subject to a 12 level enhancement pursuant to §2M5.2(a)(2). USA v. Stines, No. 20-11035 (11th Cir 5/31/22)

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-ILLEGAL EXPORTATION OF WEAPONS: The Guidelines (§2M5.2(a)(2)) do not distinguish between assembled and disassembled weapons. USA v. Stines, No. 20-11035 (11th Cir 5/31/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202011035.pdf

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-ILLEGAL EXPORTATION OF WEAPONS: Weapons parts for guidelines purposes are equal to complete weapons. "In fairness to Stines, we recognize that our interpretation could lead to results that are at least counterintuitive. . . [F]or instance, a defendant exporting just three AR-15 triggers—and nothing else—would get the higher base offense level (because those triggers would service three AR-15s), while a defendant with two fully operable AR-15s would get the lower base offense level." But, oh well. USA v. Stines, No. 20-11035 (11th Cir 5/31/22)

DEFINITION-"ONLY" (CONCURRENCE): "'Only' means 'only.'" In Diaz-Gomez. "the court explained that it saw 'no reason to interpret the plain meaning of the term 'only' to mean anything other than 'only.'" USA v. Stines, No. 20-11035 (11th Cir 5/31/22)

ARMED CAREER CRIMINAL-SERIOUS DRUG OFFENSE: To count as a "serious drug offense" under the ACCA, the drug offenses must have a maximum term of imprisonment of ten years or more. The maximum term of imprisonment is the statutory maximum, not the high end of the presumptive sentencing range. USA v. Gardner, No. 20-13645 (11th Cir. 5/27/22)

LIFE SENTENCE-JUVENILE OFFENDER-SENTENCE REVIEW: Life sentence with fifteen year review for remorseless juvenile offender who shot taxi driver in the back of the head and proposed writing a rap song about it is lawful. Falcon v. State, 1D20-2417 (5/25/22)

JUVENILE OFFENDER-SENTENCE REVIEW: Juvenile offender convicted of attempted second-degree murder with a firearm and sentenced to 30 years in prison, is entitled to judicial review of his sentence at 25 years. The conviction is deemed to be under §782.04 (the murder statute) rather under §777.04 (the criminal attempt statute). The former calls for a sentence review after 35 years, not 20 years. State v. CLEMENCY-ALL WRITS: Governor's blanket policy of denying clemency to all sex offenders and murders does not provide Petitioner an avenue of relief under the court's "all writs" provision. Governor has no duty to consider a clemency application without resort to a policy that denies clemency merely based on the type of crime committed. No specific procedures are mandated in the clemency process. The very nature of clemency is that it is grounded solely in the will of the dispenser of clemency. He need give no reasons for granting it, or for denying it. The governor may agonize over every petition or he may glance at one or all such petitions and toss them away. Bryan v. DeSantis, 1D21-2575 (5/25/22)

COMPETENCY HEARING: Where Defendant went to trial, it is fundamental error for the Court to have failed to hold a competency hearing once the issue had been raised. In the case of a voluntary plea, fundamental error is not an exception to the preservation requirement of Fla.R.App.P. 9.140(b)(2)(A)(ii)(c), but in the case of a trial, it is. Walton v. SECOND AMENDMENT: Illegal aliens in the United States do not enjoy the right to keep and bear arms. Federal statute that prohibits illegal aliens from possessing firearms does not violate the Second Amendment. "[T]he people" mentioned in the Second Amendment refers to a class of persons [1] who are part of a national community or [2] who have otherwise developed sufficient connection with this country to be considered part of that community." SEARCH AND SEIZURE-TIP: A tip provided by woman who identified herself by name and provided police her phone number qualifies as a tip from a citizen informant, and thus falls at the high end of the reliability scale because she was not anonymous. Madsen v. State, 2D21-832 (5/20/220)

JIMMY RYCE: Court errs in disregarding Defendant's affidavit disputing his future dangerousness and granting summary judgment for involuntary commitment under Jimmy Ryce. Civil commitment is a significant deprivation of liberty that requires due process protections. Court may not cut short Appellant's case by disregarding his affidavit as self-serving. Ridenhour v. PAROLE-REVIEW-WRIT OF MANDAMUS: Once the commission establishes the initial presumptive parole release date (PPRD), a prisoner has only sixty days to challenge it. After that, the initial PPRD becomes binding. The PPRD may not be changed except for reasons of institutional conduct or the acquisition of new information not available at the time of the initial interview. After that, Defendant may not challenge by writ of mandamus any initial improper calculation of his PPRD, notwithstanding later modification. Clifford v. ALLEN CHARGE: An Allen charge is not required when jury returns a guilty verdict, but during polling, one juror says that she does not agree. Allen charge is only required when there is an impasse, not merely lack of unanimity. Returning the jury for further deliberations is permissible. Blackman v. State, 3D18-1875 (5/18/22)

VIOLATION OF PRETRIAL RELEASE: Defendant who does not post bond may still be found guilty of violating a condition of pretrial release by making phone calls from jail, despite not having been released. The plain language of §§741.29(6) and 903.047(1)(b) support the conclusion that a defendant can violate a condition of pretrial release prohibiting contact with the victim before being released from jail. Caldwell v. State, 4D21-117 (5/18/22)

PROBATION-CONDITIONS: Court may not impose a condition of probation that Defendant submit to psychological evaluation where the condition has no relationship to the charged crimes, does not prohibit conduct that is itself criminal, and does not appear to have any reasonable relationship to Defendant's future criminality. Criminality alone does not justify the imposition of a mental health evaluation as a special condition of probation. Caldwell v. State, 4D21-117 (5/18/22)

PROBATION-CONDITIONS-ORAL PRONOUNCEMENT: Where Court orally pronounced a special probation condition requiring the defendant to obtain substance abuse mental health evaluations, but did not orally pronounce that the defendant would be responsible to pay for them, then portion of the written order requiring payment must be stricken. PROBATION-CONDITION-SEX OFFENSE-INTERNET: Court may impose as condition of supervised release for a defendant convicted of a sex offense that Defendant may not possess any medium of digital storage nor the means to access the Internet. USA v. Coglianese, No. 20-12074 (11th Cir.

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012074.pdf

SENTENCE- SUBSTANTIVE UNREASONABLENESS: Reliance on some §3553(a) factors over others does not necessarily render a sentence unreasonable, nor does the failure to discuss every factor. The bottom of the guideline sentence for a Defendant who enticed a minor, had sex with her despite knowing her age, and then traded nude photos of her is not unreasonable. USA v. Coglianese, No. 20-12074 (11th Cir. 5/17/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012074.pdf

APPEAL-PRESERVATION-OBJECTION: An objection to a condition of supervised release is properly preserved for appeal when it articulates the specific nature of the objection so that the district court may reasonably have an opportunity to consider it. Defendant's objection to "the computer term" (prohibiting Internet access and digital storage devices) is not too broad to apprise the district court of his challenge, and thus to preserve the issue for appeal USA v. Coglianese, No. 20-12074 (11th Cir. 5/17/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202012074.pdf

CONDITION OF PROBATION-INTERNET: A condition of supervision which includes a ban on computer and Internet use and on possessing electronic data storage mediums does not unduly restrict a defendant's liberty so long as the defendant has the ability to seek permission from the probation office to use a computer and/or access the internet for specified purposes. USA v. Coglianese, No. 20-12074 (11th Cir. 5/17/22)

DEPORTATION-REVIEW: Federal courts lack authority to review even erroneous BIA judgments about one's eligibility for relief from removal. Patel v. Garland, No. 20-979 (U.S. S. Ct. 5/16/22)

DEPORTATION (J. GORSUCH, DISSENT): "So under the majority's construction of subparagraph (B)(i), individuals who could once secure judicial review to correct administrative errors at step one in district court are now. . .likely left with no avenue for judicial relief of any kind. An agency may err about the facts, the law, or even the Constitution and nothing can be done about it. . .Until today, courts could correct mistakes like these. But the majority's construction of subparagraph (B)(i) will almost surely end all that and foreclose judicial review for countless law-abiding individuals whose lives may be upended by bureaucratic misfeasance." Patel v. Garland, No. 20-979 (U.S. S. Ct. 5/16/22)

https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-979_h3ci.pdf

DEPORTATION-REVIEW (J. GORSUCH, DISSENT): "Altogether, the majority's novel expansion of a narrow statutory exception winds up swallowing the law's general rule guaranteeing individuals the chance to seek judicial review to correct obvious bureaucratic missteps. It is a conclusion that turns an agency once accountable to the rule of law into an authority unto itself. Perhaps some would welcome a world like that. But it is hardly the world Congress ordained." TEXTUALISM (J. ANDERS BRIEF: Counsel may not file an Anders brief without supplementing the record with missing transcripts. "[T]he initial absence of transcripts, including the transcript from the hearing at which LoRusso was first permitted to represent himself, causes us to question whether and how counsel could have asserted that the trial record had been conscientiously examined and that no issues of arguable merit had been found. . . We thus remind appellate counsel of the procedural and ethical requirements involved in the filing of a brief pursuant to Anders and admonish against filing a no merits brief when the record on appeal is incomplete." Lorusso v. State, 2D21-1325 (5/13/22)

STAND YOUR GROUND-PROHIBITION-BURDEN OF PROOF: Court improperly required the Defendant to present evidence showing self-defense immunity. However where the error is procedural, such as the Court applying the incorrect evidentiary burden, rather ntan substantive, prohibition is not the appropriate remedy. Defendant must request certiorari If the defendant asserts that on the merits he or she is entitled to immunity, is challenging the legal determinations and factual findings of immunity or lack of immunity, and the relief to be afforded is prohibition against further prosecution, then a petition for writ of prohibition is appropriate to review the claim. However, if the defendant asserts that the trial court applied the wrong procedure, and the relief requested would require remand for further proceedings on the defendant's motion, then certiorari relief is the proper mechanism. Corbett v. State, 5D21-3166 (5/13/22)

SENTENCING-SUBSTANTIVE UNREASONABLENESS: A sentence may be substantively unreasonable if it is grounded solely on one factor, relies on impermissible factors, ignores relevant factors in the sentencing context, or balances the relevant factors in an unreasonable manner. Procedural unreasonableness may be evident when the district court improperly calculates the guideline range, treats the guidelines as mandatory, fails to consider the appropriate statutory factors, bases the sentence on clearly erroneous facts, or fails to adequately explain its reasoning. Defendant's 135-month sentence was not substantively unreasonable. USA v. Rodriguez, No. 20-14681 (11th Cir. 5/12/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014681.pdf

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-QUANTITY OF NARCOTICS: Government meets its burden of establishing the relevant drug quantity by a preponderance of the evidence by convincing the trier of fact that the existence of a fact is more probable than its nonexistence. In making this showing, the government must present reliable and specific evidence. A ledger recovered in the search showing that the conspiracy had distributed approximately 190 kilograms of methamphetamine throughout a six- to seven week period during the course of the fifteen-month conspiracy, plus thirteen kilograms of methamphetamine that were seized in the search of the stash house support the finding of 200 kilograms for guideline purposes. USA v. Rodriguez, No. 20-14681 (11th Cir. 5/12/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014681.pdf

APPEAL-ISSUE-PRESERVATION: "As we've said many times, an appellant abandons an issue when he makes only a 'passing reference' to it in his opening brief." USA v. Rodriguez, No. 20-14681 (11th Cir. 5/12/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014681.pdf

CONSPIRACY-WITHDRAWAL: In order to sustain a legally cognizable withdrawal from a conspiracy, a defendant must take steps inconsistent with the conspiracy and communicate these acts in a manner reasonably calculated to reach the coconspirators, or disclose the illegal activity to law enforcement authorities. USA v. Rodriguez, No. 20-14681 (11th Cir. 5/12/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202014681.pdf

MINOR ROLE-QUANTITY: Court's determination that Defendant played a minor role in the conspiracy does not imply or compel the conclusion that he could not be held responsible for the full amount of narcotics distributed. Those two determinations are not necessarily mutually exclusive. A participant in a conspiracy may be substantially less culpable than the average participant in the criminal activity while also still being sufficiently involved to be considered a joint participant who may be held culpable for the full quantity of drugs attributed to a conspiracy. USA v. Rodriguez, No. 20-14681 (11th Cir. 5/12/22)

FIREARM-ENHANCEMENT: Defendant's sentence may be enhanced on the grounds that his co-conspirator had stored a firearm at the stash house. A Defendant may receive a sentencing enhancement for possession of a firearm by a co-conspirator if:(1) the possessor of the firearm was a co-conspirator, (2) the possession was in furtherance of the conspiracy, (3) the defendant was a member of the conspiracy at the time of possession, and (4) the co-conspirator's possession was reasonably foreseeable by the defendant. SENTENCING-DOWNWARD DEPARTURE: Court's decision to grant or deny a defendant a downward departure based on a claim that the guidelines over-represent his criminal history is committed to the court's discretion. Appellate court lacks jurisdiction to review district courts' discretionary decisions in this area. USA v. Rodriguez, No. 20-14681 (11th Cir. 5/12/22)

JUVENILE OFFENDER-LIFE SENTENCE-RE-SENTENCING: Life sentence with possibility of parole for a juvenile offender upon resentencing is lawful where Court considered relevant factors. Kirk v. State, 1D20-3598 (5/11/22)

SENTENCING-CONSIDERATIONS: When a defendant voluntarily chooses to allocute at a sentencing hearing, the sentencing court is permitted to consider the defendant's freely offered statements, including those indicating a failure to accept responsibility. Life sentence with 25 year review for juvenile offender is lawful where Defendant gave conflicting versions but ultimately blamed the co-defendant, indicating a failure to take responsibility. HABEAS CORPUS: The remedy of habeas corpus is not available in Florida to obtain the kind of collateral postconviction relief available by motion in the sentencing court pursuant to R. 3.850. Sanders v. State, 1D22-747 (5/11/22)

RETURN OF PROPERTY: When the defendant seeks the return of seized property as the true owner, the applicable procedure is similar to the procedure for the consideration of a motion for postconviction relief. The trial court first must determine whether the motion is facially sufficient—that it alleges with specificity the property to be returned and "that the property at issue was his personal property, was not the fruit of criminal activity, and was not being held as evidence. Property does not permanently vest with the Sheriff until 60 days after the appellate decision becomes final. O'Connell v. State, 2D20-142 (5/11/22)

RETURN OF PROPERTY: §§705.101(6) (defining evidence as unclaimed only if no claim of ownership has been made within the sixty days) and 705.105(1) tacitly create a sixty-day deadline before which a defendant must move for a return of her property, notwithstanding that the motion must be filed within 60 days. LIFE SENTENCE-JUVENILE OFFENDER: Eventual freedom to a juvenile offender convicted of a nonhomicide is not required, but the offender must be given some meaningful opportunity to obtain release based on demonstrated maturity and rehabilitation. A juvenile offender's sentence does not implicate Graham and Miller[v. Alabama, unless it meets the threshold requirement of being a life sentence or the functional equivalent of a life sentence. 35 years is not the functional equivalent of a life sentence. Nugent v. State, 2D21-2196 (5/11/22)

JOA-SALE OF COUNTERFEIT SUBSTANCE: For the State to prove a violation of §831.31(1)(a), the State must present evidence either of some labelling, which contains some identifying mark, number, or likeness of a trademark of a manufacturer other than the person who in fact manufactured the product. Alternatively, the State must prove that the substance is falsely identified as a controlled substance listed in §893.03. Packaging the items to look like crack cocaine does not constitute the necessary false identification of the substance. Graham v. State, 4D21-1763 (5/11/22)

HELPFUL INFORMATION: "At trial, the government asked Agent Green to describe what a VCR was—'a unit that would play the VHS tapes,' he responded—and asked him what a VHS tape was. AIDING AND ABETTING: To prove the Defendant guilty of possession of firearms by a felon–-the guns were taken by his co-defendant in a car burglary while Defendant drove the getaway car--under an aiding and abetting theory, the Government must prove that the Defendant knew that his co-defendant was a convicted felon. APPEAL-PROCEDURAL DEFAULT-PROCEDURAL BAR: The terms "procedurally barred" and "procedurally defaulted" have distinct meanings. A procedural bar prevents a defendant from raising arguments in a §2255 proceeding that were raised and rejected direct appeal. A defendant can overcome a procedural bar when there is an intervening change in law. By contrast, a procedural default occurs when a defendant raises a new challenge to his conviction or sentence in a §2255 motion. If a defendant fails to raise an issue on direct appeal, he may not present the issue in a §2255 proceeding unless his procedural default is excused. To overcome a procedural default, a defendant must show either (1) cause and prejudice, or (2) a miscarriage of justice, or actual innocence. Seabrooks v. USA, No. 20-13459 (1th Cir. 5/6/22)

RULES-AMENDMENT-POST-CONDITION RELIEF-DEATH PENALTY: A capital defendant may waive pending post conviction proceedings but not post conviction counsel, and that a subsequent post conviction motion is allowable to raise certain specified claims after a waiver of pending post conviction proceedings. A capital defendant may not represent him or herself in state post conviction proceedings. The only basis for a capital defendant to seek to discharge post conviction counsel in state court is pursuant to statute due to an actual conflict of interest, which, if granted, will result in the appointment of conflict-free Counsel In Re: Amendments to Florida Rule of Criminal Procedure 3.851 and Florida Rule of Appellate Procedure 9.142, No. SC21-537 (5/6/22)

DRIVER'S LICENSE SUSPENSION: Where DHSMV permanently suspends Driver's on the basis of the disputed out-of-state conviction for DUI, and tells him that his only review is in the Circuit Court, rather than by any further challenge through agency channels, Driver is entitled to first tier certiorari review in which he could present evidence that no Michigan DUI conviction existed. POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Defendant is entitled to a hearing on the claim that counsel failed to convey a plea offer for 20 years in prison with no probation. PRISON RELEASEE REOFFENDER: Apprendi and Alleyne, which hold that any fact that increases the mandatory minimum sentence must be found by a jury, do not include sentencing enhancements for recidivist offenders. The fact of Defendant's date of release from a prior prison sentence is directly derivative of a prior conviction, and need not be found by a jury beyond a reasonable doubt in order for a defendant to qualify as a PRR. BRADY: Defendant is not entitled to a new trial based on the Government's failure to disclose that the arresting officer had been disciplined for mishandling evidence in an unrelated case. Any possible impeachment of the officer would not have affected the verdict in this case. The officer's misconduct in an unrelated case had nothing to do with the evidence in this case, so his lack of credibility would tell the jury nothing about the credibility of the other officers, who did handle evidence in this case. "By separating weight out from the other two elements of the offense, the District Court distanced weight from the beyond-a-reasonable-doubt language in such a way that the jury may have assumed that weight did not need to be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. POSSESSION OF FIREARM BY FELON-KNOWLEDGE: In possession of a firearm by felon case where Defendant does not stipulate that he is a felon, The court did not abuse its discretion in allowing the admission of 8 certified copies of conviction. "So far as we can tell, no other circuit has addressed how many prior felony convictions are acceptable for the Government to admit after Rehaif. The answer likely depends on the circumstances of each case. SAFETY VALVE- FIREARM ENHANCEMENT: Not all defendants who receive the firearm enhancement under §2D1.1(b)(1) are precluded from relief under the safety valve; one may still secure safety valve relief upon a showing that it is more likely than not that the possession of the firearm was not in connection with the offense. EQUAL PROTECTION: The equal-protection component of the Fifth Amendment's Due Process Clause does not require that SSI benefits be made available to residents of Puerto Rico to the same extent that they are available to residents of the States. Puerto Rican resident who moved from

New York to the island must repay $28,000 in SSI benefits accrued after he moved to the island. USA v. Madero, (4/21/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-303_6khn.pdf

EQUAL PROTECTION (J. THOMAS, CONCURRING): "I write separately to address the premise that the Due Process Clause of the Fifth Amendment contains an equal protection component whose substance is 'precisely the same' as the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment. . . Although I have joined the Court in applying this doctrine, . . I now doubt whether it comports with the original meaning of the Constitution." "[T]he Fifth Amendment's text and history provide little support for modern substantive due process doctrine." USA v. Madero, (4/21/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-303_6khn.pdf

EQUAL PROTECTION-TERRITORIES (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "A century ago in the Insular Cases, this Court held that the federal government could rule Puerto Rico and other Territories largely without regard to the Constitution. It is past time to acknowledge the gravity of this error and admit basedwhat we know to be true: The Insular Cases have no foundation in the Constitution and rest instead on racial stereotypes. They deserve no place in our law." USA v. Madero, (4/21/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-303_6khn.pdf

EQUAL PROTECTION-TERRITORIES (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "The flaws in the Insular Cases are as fundamental as they are shameful. . .The Insular Cases can claim support in academic work of the period, ugly racial stereotypes, and the theories of social Darwinists. But they have no home in our Constitution or its original understanding." USA v. Madero, (4/21/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-303_6khn.pdf

INSULAR CASES: I hope the Court will soon recognize that the Constitution's application should never turn on. . .the misguided framework of the Insular Cases.. . .[T]he time has come to recognize that the Insular Cases rest on a rotten foundation. And I hope the day comes soon when the Court squarely overrules them." USA v. Madero, (4/21/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-303_6khn.pdf

TERRITORIES-CAPITAL "T" (J. GORSUCH, CONCURRING): "When Congress supposedly 'incorporated' Hawaii as a Territory, it included Palmyra, then a Hawaiian possession. . .Ultimately, however, the atoll was not folded into Hawaii on statehood, and it remained under federal control. . . So today our bureaucracies endow that Territory alone a capital "T" in their official lists while the others, Puerto Rico included, earn only a lowercase "t." USA v. Madero, (4/21/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-303_6khn.pdf

HABEAS CORPUS-AEDPA: Where the state court had ruled on the merits (that the Defendant's shackling during trial did not effect the verdict), Defendant is not entitled to federal habeas corpus relief. Court must look beyond the Brecht rule (that a state prisoner seeking to challenge his conviction in collateral federal proceedings must show that the error had a substantial and injurious effect or influence on the outcome of the trial) and apply the AEDPT rule. Brecht and AEDPA ask analytically distinct questions. Both tests must be satisfied before habeas relief becomes permissible. Brown v. Davenport, No. 20-826 (U.S. S. Ct. 4/21/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-826_p702.pdf

WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS: History of the Writ of Habeas Corpus explained. Brown v. Davenport, No. 20-826 (U.S. S. Ct. 4/21/22) https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-826_p702.pdf

DICTA: The language of an opinion is not always to be parsed as though we were dealing with the language of a statute. Defendant and the dissent "would have override a lawful congressional command. . .on the basis of a handful of sentences extracted from decisions that had no reason to pass on the argument Mr. Davenport presents today. We neither expect nor hope that our successors will comb these pages for stray comments and stretch them beyond their context. . .Such an exalted view of this Court's every passing remark would turn stare decisis from a tool of judicial humility into one of judicial hubris." https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-826_p702.pdf

JUDICIAL SNIPING (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "Because the majority begins with some law-chambers history. . .I do too—though fair warning: My discussion is no more relevant than the majority's to the issue before us. Not surprisingly, neither of the parties to this small and legally mundane case thought it a suitable occasion for a from-Blackstone-onward theory of habeas practice." Brown v. Davenport, No. 20-826 (U.S. S. Ct. 4/21/22)
https://www.supremecourt.gov/opinions/21pdf/20-826_p702.pdf

JURISPRUDENCE (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): "I hate to assign homework to readers of Supreme Court opinions, but if you don't know what to make of the majority's and my contrasting descriptions of Fry and Ayala: well, just go read them." Brown v. Davenport, No. 20-826 (U.S. S. Ct. 4/21/22)

HABEAS CORPUS (J. SOTOMAYOR, DISSENTING): All today's holding does going forward is compel habeas courts, and the parties before them, to spin their wheels. . .Of course, it is not the worst thing in the world to have to do unnecessary work of this kind. . . But really, why should they have to?" Brown v. Davenport, No. 20-826 (U.S. S. Ct. 4/21/22)

FREE SPEECH: University policy prohibiting "discriminatory harassment"

or "Bias-Relatred incidents" violate the First Amendment. The discriminatory-harassment policy objectively chills speech because its operation would cause a reasonable student to fear expressing potentially unpopular beliefs. Neither formal punishment nor the formal power to impose it is strictly necessary to exert an impermissible chill on First Amendment rights—indirect pressure may suffice. Speech First, Inc. v. Cartwright, No. 21-12583 (4/21/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112583.pdf

FREE SPEECH: "Nowhere is free speech more important than in our leading institutions of higher learning. Colleges and universities serve as the founts of—and the testing grounds for—new ideas. Their chief mission is to equip students to examine arguments critically and, perhaps even more importantly, to prepare young citizens to participate in the civic and political life of our democratic republic." Speech First, Inc. v. Cartwright, No. 21-12583 (4/21/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112583.pdf

FREE SPEECH (CONCURRENCE): "History provides us with ample warning of those times and places when colleges and universities have stopped pursuing truth and have instead turned themselves into cathedrals for the worship of certain dogma. By depriving itself of academic institutions that pursue truth over any other concern, a society risks falling into the abyss of ignorance. Humans are not smart enough to have ideas that lie beyond challenge and debate. . .A university that has placed its highest premium on the protection of feelings or safe intellectual space has abandoned its core mission. The protection of feelings or the creation of safe space rightly might be the foremost goal in some settings, like at a family dinner, but it is not right for a university." Speech First, Inc. v. Cartwright, No. 21-12583 (4/21/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202112583.pdf

FREE SPEECH: "A university that turns itself into an asylum from controversy has ceased to be a university; it has just become an asylum." Speech First, Inc. v. Cartwright, No. 21-12583 (4/21/22)

SENTENCING-UPWARD VARIANCE: Court erred in failing to state facts on which it based its upward variance and to elicit fully articulated objections to the court's ultimate findings of fact and conclusions of law. Re-sentencing required where the Court's written Statement of Reasons included the fact that the weapon used had been stolen from the police department where such fact was neither articulated, included in the PSR, nor discussed during the sentencing hearing. USA v. Mosely, No. 20-11146 (11th Cir. 4/21/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202011146.pdf

MOTION TO SUPPRESS-STANDARD OF REVIEW: The standard of review of a district court's finding of satisfactory explanation for officer's delay in sealing the wiretap recordings is mixed. Recordings held by the clerk in an unopened tamper-proof evidence bag is sufficiently sealed. A separate, written sealing order is not required. USA v. Stowers, No. 18-12569 (11th Cir. 4/20/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201812569.pdf

WIRETAP-SEALING: A delay in sealing should be excused if the government provides a satisfactory explanation for the delay. The government must explain not only why a delay occurred but also why it is excusable. The reasons for the delay here, including that the government thought that it had to finish making transcripts and copies first. USA v. Stowers, No. 18-12569 (11th Cir. 4/20/22)
https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201812569.pdf

WIRETAP-JURISDICTION: An interception of phone calls occurs both where the call is heard and at the location of the targeted phone when it makes or receives a call. The safeguard on the scope of state court's wiretap authority is the requirement that law enforcement establish probable cause for the intrusion, not a geographical limit on the phone calls that can be monitored. USA v. Stowers, No. 18-12569 (11th Cir. 4/20/22) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201812569.pdf

PRECEDENTS: State courts are not bound by the decisions of the lower federal courts on issues of federal law. USA v. Stowers, No. 18-12569 (11th Cir. 4/20/22) https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201812569.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF: Videotaped out-of-court interviews with child victims are not allowed into the jury room during deliberations because of the real danger that the child's statements will be unfairly given more emphasis than other testimony. Where defense counsel failed to object to the video being taken to the jury room for tactical reasons, claim of ineffective assistance fails. State v. Mackendrick, 1D20-3362 (4/20/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/835524/opinion/203362_DC13_04202022_141353_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-REDACTION: Defendant is not entitled to post conviction relief for failure to redact CPT video to delete references to two other possible victims where victim conceded to the CPT interviewer that she did not really know if Defendant had done anything to "Stormy" or "Sabrina." State v. Mackendrick, 1D20-3362 (4/20/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/835524/opinion/203362_DC13_04202022_141353_i.pdf

POST CONVICTION RELIEF-EXPERT: Defendant is not entitled to post conviction relief for failure to retain an expert to testify that Victim, if penetrated, would have suffered some injury. Lawyers have limited time and resources, and so must choose from among countless strategic options. Strickland does not enact Newton's third law for the presentation of evidence, requiring for every prosecution expert an equal and opposite expert from the defense. State v. Mackendrick, 1D20-3362 (4/20/22) https://www.1dca.org/content/download/835524/opinion/203362_DC13_04202022_141353_i.pdf

JURY INSTRUCTION-DEALING IN STOLEN PROPERTY: The inference instruction–-sale of goods substantially below fair market value gives rise to an inference of knowledge that the goods were stolen-- should not be given unless there is evidence of the fair market value of the stolen property. An owner's estimate of the value of the property when no other proof is presented is insufficient to prove the fair market value. New trial required. Cintron v. State, 2D21-40 (4/20/20) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/835435/opinion/210040_DC13_04202022_084917_i.pdf

JURY INSTRUCTION-DEALING IN STOLEN PROPERTY: Instruction that "proof of the purchase or sale of stolen property by a dealer in property, out of the regular course of business. . .unless satisfactorily explained, gives rise to an inference that the person buying or selling the property knew or should have known that it had been stolen" is improper when the Defendant in not a "dealer in property." An Amazon truck dispatcher is not a "dealer in property." A person who, on one occasion, buys property from another and then sells the property is not a dealer in the business of buying and selling property. Cintron v. State, 2D21-40 (4/20/20) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/835435/opinion/210040_DC13_04202022_084917_i.pdf

HABITUAL OFFENDER-NVDL WITH DEATH: No valid driver's license with death or serious bodily injury is a third degree felony which cannot be enhanced as a Habitual Offender. Ten year imprisonment is not lawful. Welch v. State, 2D21-463 (4/20/22) https://www.2dca.org/content/download/835439/opinion/210463_DC08_04202022_085626_i.pdf

POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-PLEA OFFER: Failure of counsel to convey a plea offer can constitute ineffective assistance of trial counsel. To establish prejudice, the movant must allege and prove a reasonable probability that (1) he or she would have accepted the offer, (2) the prosecutor would not have withdrawn the offer, (3) the court would have accepted the offer, and (4) the conviction or sentence, or both, under the offer's terms would have been less severe than under the judgment and sentence that in fact were imposed. Court improperly reasoned that the Defendant would not have accepted the 3 year prison offer because he had hired an attorney to get a probationary offer. Kalogianis v. State, 2D21-3770 (4/20/22)

JURY SELECTION-PEREMPTORY CHALLENGE: When giving the Defendant an 11th peremptory challenge, Court does not abuse its discretion in similarly awarding an 11th peremptory challenge to the State. Montgomery v. State, 4D18-2379 (4/20/22)

MURDER-PREMEDITATION: Premeditation is established by evidence that Defendant told his wife, "I should shoot you," and told his grandmother, "I know how to get you out of here" before fetching his rifle and shooting his stepdaughter 8 times, then his wife 7 to 8 times. MICHIGAN: Michigan is part of the United States[1]. "Hakim refused to admit that he was a United States citizen and instead affirmed only that he was 'a citizen of Detroit, Michigan, born and raised, in the Michigan republic. . . But see Definitive Treaty of Peace Between the United States of America and his Britannic Majesty, U.S.-Gr. Brit., arts. I–II, Sept. 3, 1783, 8 Stat. 80; An Act to admit the State of Michigan into the Union, ch. 6, 5 Stat. 144 (1837)." USA v. Hakim, No. 19-11970 (11th Cir. 4/14/20)

WAIVER OF COUNSEL: Defendant's purported waiver of his right to counsel was not knowing where Court gives materially incorrect or misleading information about his potential maximum sentence, i.e, where the magistrate wrongly informs him that the maximum sentence is 12 months when, if stacked consecutively, 36 months is possible. USA v. Hakim, No. 19-11970 (11th Cir. 4/14/20)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201911970.pdf

KNOWING WAIVER OF ATTORNEY: A defendant must have an awareness of the penal consequences of conviction before his decision to represent himself can constitute a knowing waiver of his Sixth Amendment right to counsel. Defendant's unknowing waiver of right to counsel at arraignment is structural error. Court's acceptance of an invalid waiver of the Sixth Amendment right to counsel is not subject to harmless error analysis. Conviction vacated. USA v. Hakim, No. 19-11970 (11th Cir. 4/14/20)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201911970.pdf

OBSCURANTISM: Example of obscurantism: "I am Saleem Naazir, family of Hakim, a living male on the land and soil jurisdiction, as one of the people of the several states, having owner's equity and beneficial interest in the all caps style, Capitis Diminutio Maxima Saleem Naazir Hakim, which is an ens legis aka Saleem N. Hakim, all caps, and aka Saleem Hakim, who is allegedly being charged here as a defendant." USA v. Hakim, No. 19-11970 (11th Cir. 4/14/20)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201911970.pdf

CONTEMPORANEOUS OBJECTION RULE: Defendant is not obliged to contemporaneously object to the validity of his own waiver of attorney because he lacked an opportunity to object to that ruling. "It makes no sense to suppose that a defendant must have enough knowledge to object before he is advised of the dangers of proceeding without the assistance of counsel. . .It would be nonsensical to require that a prospective pro se defendant object to the district court's inquiry into the defendant's rationale and ability to proceeding pro se." USA v. Hakim, No. 19-11970 (11th Cir. 4/14/20)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201911970.pdf

DEFINITION-"CONTEMPORANEOUS": "Contemporaneous" means "living, occurring, or existing at the same time."). USA v. Hakim, No. 19-

WAIVER OF ATTORNEY-PLAIN ERROR (DISSENT): Plain error review should apply where a defendant challenges the validity of his right-to-counsel waiver for the first time on appeal where the Defendant was ultimately represented by counsel before trial and still failed to challenge his earlier waiver. USA v. Hakim, No. 19-11970 (11th Cir. 4/14/20)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201911970.pdf

SEXUAL BATTERY-FAMILIAL OR CUSTODIAL AUTHORITY: Teacher did not stand in familiar or custodial authority over student with whom he established a sexual relationship where the sexual acts occurred off campus. The fact that the events occurred during the school year is insufficient in and of itself to establish custodial authority these events occurred during the school year. "We note that had Teet been charged with the same conduct today, pursuant to section 800.101, Florida Statutes (2018), custodial authority would not have been an issue." Teet v. State, 5D21-735 (4/14/14)

STATEMENTS OF DEFENDANT-CUSTODY-MIRANDA: Defendant was not in custody when interrogated in a police van after officers raided his home after identifying the IP address (from which adolescent girls had been extorted to make pornographic images and videos). Admissions are not suppressible. Even if a reasonable person would not have felt at liberty to leave, one may still be deemed not in custody if the relevant environment does not present the same inherently coercive pressures as the type of station house questioning at issue in Miranda. Only if the environment presented the same inherently coercive pressures are the warnings required. USA v. Woodson, No. 20-10443 (11th Cir. 4/13/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010443.pdf

STATEMENTS OF DEFENDANT-CUSTODY-MIRANDA: The actual, subjective beliefs of the defendant and the interviewing officer on whether the defendant was free to leave are irrelevant. USA v. Woodson, No. 20-10443 (11th Cir. 4/13/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010443.pdf

STATEMENTS OF DEFENDANT-CUSTODY-MIRANDA: Neither the brief handcuffing and detention of the Defendant, the large number of officers, the confiscation of his cell phone, nor the hour-long questioning in the police van render the Defendant in custody. "To be sure, the hour-long interview falls along the spectrum between questioning that lasts 'only a few minutes' and the prolonged station house interrogations 'in which the detainee often is aware that questioning will continue until he provides his interrogators the answers they seek. . .But 'there is no fixed limit to the length of questioning' after which an interrogation is necessarily custodial." USA v. Woodson, No. 20-10443 (11th Cir. 4/13/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010443.pdf

SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVE UNREASONABLENESS: 50 year sentence for Defendant who infiltrated social media accounts of hundreds of adolescent girls one by one, using an account of the victims' friends to gain access to their accounts, locking them victim out of the accounts, and demanding that they produce pornographic material to get their accounts back, where the recommended guideline range is between or 30 to 117 years, is not substantively unreasonable. USA v. Woodson, No. 20-10443 (11th Cir. 4/13/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010443.pdf

SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVE UNREASONABLENESS: Court need not explain why it was imposing a sentence at any particular point within the sentencing range. If a sentencing range exceeds 24 months, the district court must state the reason for imposing a sentence at a particular point within the range, but need not state that a particular factor is not applicable in a particular case. The requirement is satisfied where the record reflects that the district court considered many of the §3553(a) factors. USA v. Woodson, No. 20-10443 (11th Cir. 4/13/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/202010443.pdf

SENTENCING: Defendant is not entitled to a sentence near the bottom of the guidelines because he did not target prepubescent children. "That argument is shocking. Through technology, Woodson and his team tapped into the vulnerabilities of hundreds of girls, and then degraded, humiliated, and threatened them. We cannot discern how his methods diminish the seriousness—indeed, the depravity—of his offenses." USA v. Woodson, No. 20-10443 (11th Cir. 4/13/22)

AUTHENTICATION-VOICE MAIL: Testifying about a phone call does not require authentication if the call is within the witness's personal knowledge. Victim may testify that the call was from the Defendant. Patterson v. State,

HFO-CONSECUTIVE SENTENCES: Court may not sentence Defendant as a habitual felony offender to two consecutive thirty-year sentences for attempted manslaughter with a firearm. Court may not designate him as an HFO and then further increase the sentence by running the two HFO-enhanced terms consecutively. Upon remand, Court may impose a maximum sentence of thirty years for count one, with a fifteen-year minimum mandatory term, based on the HFO designation, and a consecutive term of fifteen years in state prison for count two as a Prison Releasee Reoffender, for a total sentence of forty-five years in state prison. LESSER INCLUDED: It is not fundamental error to convict a defendant under an erroneous lesser included charge when he had a chance to object and failed to do so when the improperly charged offense is lesser in degree and penalty than the main offense or defense counsel requested the improper charge or relied on it. POST-CONVICTION RELIEF: Counsel's failure to renew objection to certain testimony is not ineffective where counsel elicited testimony from other witnesses on the point. Knowles v. State, 1D21-3051 (4/13/22)

VETERANS COURT: Where Defendant qualifies for the pretrial veteran's treatment intervention court program (PVTIP), Court may not rely upon the State's rejection of the Defendant's admittance into it, but rather must exercise its discretion to determine whether the Defendant qualifies for admission. §948.16(2)(a), as it previously existed, does not confer authority upon the State to approve or disapprove of the admission of any eligible veteran charged with any misdemeanor, including a DUI, into the misdemeanor PVTIP [NOTE: the statute has since been amended]. Allowing the State to act as gatekeeper and divert veterans charged with misdemeanor DUIs only to the postadjudicatory veterans' intervention program departs from the requirements of law. Maderi v. LIFE FELONY: Kidnapping is a 1st PBL, enhanced to a life felony by the use of a firearm. For a life felony unless sentenced to life, the maximum sentenced the Defendant can receive is 40 years. A 50 year sentence for a life felony is unlawful. Ryan v. State, 2D21-1572 (4/13/20)

BOND-REMISSION: Court shall order remission of the forfeiture if it determines that there was no breach of the bond and when application for remission occurs within two years from the forfeiture. Where bondsman reaches the bond by failing to pay the forfeiture within sixty days of the notice of forfeiture, bondsman is not entitled to remission. Clerk of Court v. SUBPOENA DUCES TECUM-VIDEOS: In DUI case, video camera recordings of the police station at the time of Defendant's arrest may be exempt from disclosure pursuant to a public records request under the "security system plan" exemption, but only following in camera review. When certain statutory exemptions are claimed by the party against whom the public records request has been filed or when doubt exists as to whether a particular document must be disclosed, the proper procedure is to furnish the document to the trial judge for an in camera inspection. MARSY'S LAW: Defendant, sentenced to life upon his conviction for felony murder based on the death of his accomplice during a burglary, is not entitled to a resentencing on the claim that the victim's mother's wish that he be given fifteen years was not adequately considered in violation of Marcy's Law. The State must satisfy the requirements of Marsy's Law, but those requirements do not limit prosecutorial discretion. Defendant's conviction and sentence are affirmed. Dean v. OH, MY: "A trust-based system is only as good as the people who are trusted. Douglas Moss is one of those who was trusted but not trustworthy." USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

OH MY: "He appeals, challenging the convictions, sentence, restitution amount, and forfeiture amount, which is nearly every component of the judgment against him. And he loses on every component of his appeal." USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

OH MY: "The jury also heard evidence about how the representations Moss made in the billings were impossible: his claiming to have performed more than 24 hours of services a day, his claiming to have seen over 50 patients a day, and his claiming to have seen patients in Georgia when he was actually in Las Vegas." "The services Moss billed on one stellar day would have required him to put in nearly 100 hours in that one 24-hour period. People sometimes wish there were more hours in a day, but Moss alone miraculously stretched some of his days to far more than 24 hours." USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

ATTORNEY-SUBPOENA: Court did not err in quashing subpoena on the attorney for the purpose of impeaching on whether the witness had been instructed to hold back evidence in his proffer. The attorney and witness both said that he had so instructed him. "That's agreement not disagreement, corroboration not contradiction." USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

CHARACTER WITNESS: Court did not err in limiting Defendant's character witnesses to five. USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

ARGUMENT: In Medicare fraud case, Court did not err in cutting off Defense counsel's argument that Defendant had not profited. "It is one thing to argue that a defendant was not motivated by profit and another to argue that he didn't commit a crime because there was no proof that he had netted a profit. . . The government does not have to prove a penny of profit to establish the elements of fraud. A paucity of proof of profit is no defense. Defense counsel was not entitled to argue that it was." USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

SENTENCING-GUIDELINES-LOSS: In calculating loss for the purpose of guidelines calculations in Medicare fraud case, Court may determine the amount paid to the doctor, then deduct by percentage which the Court estimates as being the value of legitimate services performed. A district court need not make a precise determination of loss amount, but only a reasonable estimate of it given the available information. USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914548.pdf

LOSS: "Loss" is the greater of actual loss or intended loss. "Intended loss" is the pecuniary harm that the defendant purposely sought to inflict, including pecuniary harm that would have been impossible or unlikely to occur. When it comes to federal health care offenses involving government health care programs there is a rebuttable presumption that the intended loss equals the amount the defendant billed a government agency. The aggregate dollar amount of fraudulent bills submitted to the Government health care program shall constitute prima facie evidence of the amount of the intended loss. USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

OH MY!-RESTITUTION-MEDICAL FRAUD: "The burden was on Moss to show that the services he provided were medically necessary. . .Because of that, it does not matter how many medically unnecessary visits Moss and his employees may have made to patients, which was the basis of Moss' estimate. Zero times a thousand is still zero. Because Moss' estimate failed to embrace, salute, or even nod at medical necessity, the district court did not clearly err in giving it little or no value." USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

FORFEITURE: Just because the loss and restitution amounts were reduced by 10 percent does not necessarily mean the forfeiture amount must be. Unlike restitution, forfeiture is also a punitive action against the defendant. Forfeiture may encompass the proceeds doctor who committed Medicare fraud received for providing legitimate services. USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914548.pdf

DEFINITION-"BUT FOR": "But for" means that if one thing hadn't happened another thing would not have happened. In other words, a but-for test directs us to change one thing at a time and see if the outcome changes. If it does, we have found a but-for cause. "[T]ake away the fraudulent billing and what's left? The record does not reveal any of Moss' claims that were both for legitimate services and properly billed. . .Not a single one. As far as the record shows, it's all fraudulent billing." USA v. Moss, No. 19-14548 (11th Cir. 4/12/22)

WILLIAMS RULE: Evidence at the same firearm was used in 4 separate murders is not admissible to establish modus operandi, but is admissible to establish identity where the fatal shootings occurred in close temporal and geographic proximity and the victim's seem to be randomly chosen. The fact that the same gun was used in each of the homicides makes the evidence relevant to establish Defendant's identity as the perpetrator without any heightened similarity requirement. State v. POST-CONVICTION RELIEF-NEWLY DISCOVERED EVIDENCE: Defendant is entitled to an evidentiary hearing on claim of newly discovered evidence. Generally, it is inappropriate to determine a witness's credibility without a hearing. Black v. State, 5D21-2144 (4/8/22)

COSTS-ATTORNEY'S FEE: Court may not order Defendant to pay a $26,000 fee to Justice Administration Commission, which is the amount JAC ultimately paid the Defendant's conflict counsel. "We have found nothing in that statute. . .that would permit imposition of the fee against Appellant personally, and recovery from both the JAC and Appellant would be impermissible. SEARCH AND SEIZURE: Officer unlawfully ordered the Defendant out of his vehicle where he was stopped for cutting through a parking lot. Officer safety does not justify removing the Defendant from his car where it is clear that the safety issue was not related to the issuance of the traffic citation but rather to the vehicle sweep. The government's officer safety interest stems from the mission of the traffic stop itself whereas on-scene investigation into other crimes detours from that mission and a seizure would not be justified for that purpose even if necessitated by officer safety. SEARCH AND SEIZURE-CONSENT: Consent can be non-verbal; stepping aside and yielding the right-of-way to officers at the front door is valid consent to enter and search, as is silently accepting an officer's expressed intent to enter the house solely for the purpose of retrieving a phone. USA v. Sanchez, No. 19-14002 (11th Cir. 4/5/22)

SENTENCING-MILITARY CONVICTION: A previous conviction under Article 120 (pertaining to sundry sex crimes) of the Uniform Code of Military Justice is a qualifying offense under 18 U.S.C. § 2251(e). Defendant's "position is not correct because its central premise is that the statute doesn't really mean what it clearly says. A conviction under Article 120 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice is on that list, plain as day. . . The gist of his argument is that there was only a brief period during which his conduct would have triggered the §2251 enhanced penalty; he does not dispute that his conduct occurred during that period." SENTENCING-ENHANCEMENT: Defendant who had child victim make videos of herself inserting foreign objects into her vagina is subject to the 4-level increase under §2G2.1(b)(4) for production of child pornography that portrays sadistic or masochistic conduct. USA v. Sanchez, No. 19-14002 (11th Cir. 4/5/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914002.pdf

SENTENCING-ENHANCEMENT-SEXUAL ACT: Defendant argues that he is not subject to a 2-level increase under §2G2.1(b)(2)(A) because he did not touch, penetrate, or film the two victims and their masturbation, and therefore it would "not amount to a sexual act or sexual contact within the meaning of the guidelines provision. Yes it does." USA v. Sanchez, No. 19-14002 (11th Cir. 4/5/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914002.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: Defendant argues that he should not be sentenced for violating both 18 U.S.C. §2251 and §2422 based on his criminal conduct of enticing two minors to make lewd videos because the statutes have identical elements. "No, they don't." USA v. Sanchez, No. 19-14002 (11th Cir. 4/5/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914002.pdf

DOUBLE JEOPARDY: §2422(b) requires the government to prove that he defendant attempted to persuade a minor to engage in sexual activity for which any person can be charged with a criminal offense. This element is not found in §2251. And §2251 requires the government to prove that the defendant attempted to persuade a minor to engage in sexually explicit conduct for the purpose of producing any visual depiction of such conduct. This element is not contained in §2422(b). Blockburger. Defendant may be convicted of both. USA v. Sanchez, No. 19-14002 (11th Cir. 4/5/22)

SENTENCING-ENHANCEMENT-SEXUAL CONTACT: The plain meaning of 'sexual contact' under U.S.S.G. §2G2.1(b)(2)(A) and 18 U.S.C. §2246(3) includes the act of masturbating. USA v. Sanchez, No. 19-14002 (11th Cir. 4/5/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914002.pdf

SENTENCING-ENHANCEMENT-PATTERN OF SEXUAL CONDUCT: Defendant "challenges a 5-level increase under U.S.S.G. § 4B1.5(b)(1) for 'engag[ing] in a pattern of activity involving prohibited sexual conduct.' He certainly did that." Among other things, the fact that Defendant produced child pornography on two separate occasions means that the pattern enhancement applies. USA v. Sanchez, No. 19-14002 (11th Cir. 4/5/22)

SENTENCE-SUBSTANTIVE UNREASONABLENESS: Defendant's guidelines-range sentence of imprisonment for life (plus a 10-year consecutive mandatory minimum term) is substantively reasonable. USA v. Sanchez, No. 19-14002 (11th Cir. 4/5/22)

https://media.ca11.uscourts.gov/opinions/pub/files/201914002.pdf

FOURTH AMENDMENT-MALICIOUS PROSECUTION: A Fourth Amendment claim under §1983 for malicious prosecution does not require the plain tiff to show that the criminal prosecution ended with some affirmative indication of innocence. A plaintiff need only show that the criminal prosecution ended without a conviction. Defendant who was charged with resisting without violence (for refusing to allow officers to come into his house to investigate what turned out to be a baby's diaper rash) may sue for malicious prosecution where the underlying case is dismissed without the judge or prosecutor explaining why.
